IVY STREET WORK IS DELAYED BY CONSTRUCTION ERRORS; CITY LAGS

Where workmen are repairing the Ivy Street retaining wall which crumbled because of faulty construction. It was necessary to remove all the earth which had been filled in, resulting in long delay in the completion of the city's part of the work.

County Is Ready to Start Paving, but Must Wait on Slow Municipal Gangs.

So many complaints about the slow progress of the work on Ivy Street have come to the Georgian that an investigation has been made.

Nearly 400 feet of the retaining wall, averaging eight feet, proved to be faulty construction and was torn down and is being rebuilt at a cost of several thousand dollars.

After six months on the work on this street, the city construction department still is laying a sewer on the south side.

Shelby Smith, chairman of the City Commissioners, made this statement:

"The county has agreed to repave the street. It has been completed the work long ago if the city and the county had not been so slow in getting on with it. We are ready to begin the work at once if they will get out of our way."

Since the work of regrading Ivy Street was begun last January the residents of the street have been most fully deprived of its use. They have been confronted with the same slow progress that marked the Peachtree Street regrading, the Marietta Street regrading, and various other municipal improvements.

One cause of delay on Ivy Street was the delay in getting the retaining wall completed. Professor Charlton has established what he claims is an abill when he says that the charges were absolutely fair; that he left the church on the night in question after 8:30 o'clock, met Mrs. Jenkins at her home, and returned to the church on the morning of the 11th.

FRANK IS WILLING FOR STATE TO GRILL HIM

Accused Man Declares He's Anxious Even for Prosecution to Cross-Examine.

Surpassing in interest any of the other testimony at the trial of Leo M. Frank will be the story related on the stand by the accused man himself.

That Frank will make a detailed statement of his movements on the day that Mary Phagan was murdered is regarded as one of the certainties of the trial.

Frank was desirous of going even further than this by being sworn and submitting to a cross-examination by the attorneys for the prosecution. He will request his lawyers, Luther Z. Rosser and Reuben R. Arnold, to extend the State.

The defense consistently has refused to divulge any of the details of its plans for the trial and for the reason it is impossible to say positively that Frank will be cross-examined. That it is not at all improbable, however, is indicated by the readiness with which Mr. Rosser permitted Frank to go before the coroner's inquest and answer every question that was propounded to him.

"I was so confident of my innocence," said Mr. Rosser at that time, "that I didn't hesitate an instant in giving consent to any cross-examination that they might give me."

As a result of the trial will be the inquisition before the coroner's jury. The second matter will be much more severe. At the inquest Frank was merely seeking enough evidence to support the holding of Frank, along with Scott Lee, to the grand jury.

At the trial Frank will be confronted by two trained and hostile lawyers who have announced their conviction that he is the man guilty of the murder of Mary Phagan.

Miss Lucy Roberts, staunch defender of Dixie gallants.

FRANK IS WILLING FOR STATE TO GRILL HIM

Surpassing in interest any of the other testimony at the trial of Leo M. Frank will be the story related on Tuesday to deny the assertion of Miss Lillian Kyle Jones, of Knoxville, Tenn., that "chivalry is about the only thing which the Southern man favors a girl."

"The idea," she exclaimed, when shown a clipping of the story, "Why our Southern men not only have better manners, but they also are better than they have been in this city."

"You know," she further averred, "chivalry is a very nice thing to have around the house, but you can't live on that."

Following this statement, Miss Jones expressed a high regard for the Northern men, especially those who hail from New York town.

Among the defenders of the Southern men is Miss Lucy Roberts, one of the prettiest of the younger society girls of Atlanta. Miss Roberts has just returned from finishing school at Washington.

State Farm May Lose Appropriation

ENIGMS IN PROBE ARE GRADED

No Indication Given of Results of Investigation of Reports of Disorderly Houses.

The result of the grand jury's sensational vice probe of a few weeks ago will be made known Wednesday when the presentments are returned to Superior Judge W. D. Ellis, who two months ago charged that an extensive investigation be made.

Save when an indictment was returned against Police Commissioner W. P. Paine, which charged him with keeping a disorderly house and beating one of the women inmates, no finding of the general trend of the probe got beyond the closed doors of the jury room.

When the probe first started the jury expected it to be completed in a day. It took a sensational turn when Colonel Thomas B. Fisher, chief of detectives, reported that he had been visiting a vice den in the city.

It was understood that the jury had declined to probe the matter of police corruption and had given the department a clean bill of record.

Whether the presentments of police headquarters made it necessary for the jury to change its presentments Tuesday could not be ascertained, but the matter of vice was made was admitted by E. V. Krieger, chairman of the presentment committee, in a statement made here, whether it had to deal with the recent police expose.

Several times since the vice probe began Foreman L. H. Beck has been swamped with signed and anonymous communications furnishing the names of alleged disorderly houses, and some of the writers agreed to testify before the jury under oath.

Dixie Body Wednesday.

Practically none of the witnesses whose names were furnished the jury were called, and it was generally understood the body declined to deal with specific places, or names, but would only deal with the question in a general way, and recommended to the court any specific action that might be deemed necessary.

The body will meet at 10 o'clock Wednesday morning for a short session to consider the matter. The body will be discharged by Judge Ellis.

The grand jury will be taken today before the body is discharged. In the event of the jury not taking a recess reference to the matron's grand jury, which meets next Monday, take it up, or the next jury may take it up of its own accord.

Bank Cashiers Are Figuring Interest Under New Ruling

Cashiers of the Atlanta banks which carry Government deposits are busy figuring out just how much money they must remit to Uncle Sam under the new rule which requires 2 per cent interest on the average monthly balance of such funds, to be paid January 1 and July 1.

The rule went into effect by order of William McAdoo, Secretary of the Treasury June 20. One month's interest had to be paid on July 1. One month's interest at 2 per cent per annum is one sixth of 1 per cent.

Under the former construction the interest due to Uncle Sam Tuesday about $150, according to the last published statement of the national banks.

EXPERIMENT STATION IN DANGER

State, for Alleged Breach of Regulations, May Lose $30,000 Appropriation.

Georgia is in imminent danger of losing its State Experiment Station. Reliable information from Washington is to the effect that the Department of Agriculture is concerned over the question as to whether the annual appropriation of $30,000 to Georgia should be continued.

A knowledge of this situation has been in the hands of State officials at the Capitol during the past few days. It can be stated that there is some concern at this end of the line also.

The rupture between the State of Georgia and the Office Experiment Station is an old story, which, however, is just reaching a climax. When the board of trustees of the Experiment Station meets in a few days, it is expected that a representative of the State of Georgia will appear before the board with an ultimatum.

Inefficiency Charge Expected.

It appears that the charges which the Office of Experiment Station has made are to the effect that Georgia has been lacking in efficiency and has misappropriated the funds appropriated by the Department of Agriculture.

No shortage of accounts is alleged, but certain regulations as to how the appropriation must be used and what must be done with the proceeds of the experiment station farm, as provided in the Hatch and Adams acts, have been violated repeatedly and without respect to warnings of the department at Washington, according to reports.

Last summer five destroyed buildings at the Experiment Station, and the amount of surplus of the farm was used to replace these buildings.

This seems to have been considered by the department at Washington as a matter of serious importance, it is claimed, has been spent for purposes that are contrary to the Federal law.

The farmers of agriculture claim that according to the various appropriating acts that the Federal Government funds can be used only in carrying on experimental work, the supposition being that the State would furnish the buildings and the equipment. It seems that Georgia has not appropriated anything for this purpose for about 22 years.

In view of what has transpired, it seems that the present attitude of the Department of Agriculture is to insist upon a very literal interpretation of the laws in the future use of Federal appropriations, and a recommendation of suspension of such appropriations if the laws are not complied with.

The query around the Capitol, among those who have a knowledge of the situation, is as to how legal the situation may call for, if any. Probably not until the board of trustees of the station meets on July 3 will the proposition be cleared up.

INQUIRY INTO INTIMACY CHARGE BEGUN

Neighbor Declares She Heard the Choir Leader Make Appointment Over Party Line.

MACON, July 2.—Church people here are greatly agitated today over the investigation by the executive committee of the First Christian Church into the alleged intimacy of two of its most prominent members—Professor Frank M. Charlton, leader of the choir, and Mrs. Marvin Lee Lester, secretary of the Ladies' Aid Society.

The alleged improper conduct was charged by two neighbors of Mrs. Lester, Mrs. J. W. Jenkins and Mrs. Alma Armstrong, is said to have occurred on the night of June 3, when a telephone conversation between Professor and Mrs. Lester was overheard by Mrs. Jenkins, it is alleged.

According to Mrs. Jenkins, who is on the same telephone line with Mrs. Lester, Professor Charlton asked Mrs. Lester if Mr. Lester were in.

"Pair Walk for Professor."

Upon the reply of Mrs. Lester that he was not in, Mrs. Jenkins says Professor Charlton said: "How about coming round, then?"

Mrs. Jenkins claims she called Mrs. Armstrong over and together they watched Professor Charlton's arrival. He came to the corner of the Lester house, she claims, and then went back and turned up the alley, where he started to enter the back gate of the Lester side gate. Mrs. Jenkins says she screamed "burglar" and called Mrs. Lester, who replied that there was no burglar there, and cut off.

Nothing further was heard of the "burglary" until June 21, when The Macon News published an anonymous story of the affair using the names A. B. C. Copies of the paper were then mailed anonymously to Mr. Lester and Mrs. Charlton, and a church investigation followed on Saturday last, when certain of the parties were summoned to appear.

Four Elders Make Inquiry.

Members of the committee, composed of four elders of the church, Lenoir M. Erwin, Orrin Erwin, H. W. Koper and A. M. Smith, said today that the investigation probably would be completed the latter part of the week. The committee will then report its findings in open meeting to the church congregation, which will vote on the guilt of the parties concerned.

If proved guilty members of the committee say, both Professor Charlton and Mrs. Lester will be ousted from the church. On the other hand, if proved not guilty, the parties will be vindicated in open meeting and the church cleared of the charges which have been placed against two of its most prominent members.

Will Be No Whitewash.

Lenoir M. Erwin, member of the investigating committee and United States Commissioner here, and H. W. Koper and A. M. Smith, pastor of the church, declared today that there would be no whitewash in the matter; that the charges were being sifted to the bottom, and the real truth would be brought out in open meeting, as is customary in the Christian Church.

"If the parties are guilty as charged," said Rev. Anderson, "they will be dealt with accordingly, but if they are not guilty of the charges the church will protect them. In either case, however, will this be done secretly, for the laws of our church provide for action by the congregation as a whole in such cases."

Wanted Names Published.

"There will be no whitewash, and if any publication of the matter is made I demand that the names of the parties, the name of the church and the pastor be used."

Mr. Erwin, who is taking an active part in the investigation, made the same statements in substance. He said both sides of the matter were being investigated fully, and no stone
