Mystery in Slaying of Girl Typist
in Downtown Office Grows.
All Clues Fail.

DALLAS, TEXAS, July 30.—The hours of the most thorough investigation of the Dallas-to-day admitted that they were no nearer a solution of the city's worst murder mystery than they were when the body of Florence Brown was found in the office where she was employed. A pearl button, evidently from a man's shirt, found lying in a pool of blood was the only tangible clue in the possession of the police. Was it impressions of the finger marks in the girl's flesh were taken. The detective on the case has gone over the scene of the crime a dozen times and has compiled a complete history of the young stenographer's life without result.

Left Her Home in Auto.
Miss Brown left her home at 8 o'clock Monday morning. S. B. Cuthbertson, an employee of the real estate firm employing her, called her for her in the automobile. Leaving Miss Brown at the office, Cuthbertson went to the courthouse, where he spent less than 15 minutes transacting business. When he returned to the office, Miss Brown was not at her desk but the other employees of the firm had not noticed her absence.

G. W. Brown, manager of the rental department, entered the lavatory room upon the girl's body lying in a pool of blood. She had been dead only a short time, and there were signs of a desperate fight waged by the girl against her slayer.

DANVILLE, ILL., July 30.—The only reason that "Uncle Joe" Cannon is alive to-day was the shallowness of the small lake in Spring Hill cemetery. "Uncle Joe's" teeth clung to the thin black cigar.

Others Look Slow

The dream tango, which was danced by the "four hundred," who arrived from Europe today, says the tango man will make the tango, the turkey trot, bunny bug, banana peel glide and others look like an over-the-hill. He is going to teach the summer school at Newport the new ways to glide. The horse tango, he says is modified turkey trot, the dancers did line over the waded, surface like a horse and instead of wobbling all over the floor.

Here is a facsimile of one of the notes found beside the body of Mary Phagan and introduced in the trial of Leo M. Frank. The defense met with little success in its effort to make New York admit that he had a part in the writing of this note. Sergeant Dobbs, however, testified that when the officers deciphering the note came to the word "nigger," Lee said: "That means me." "Night witch" has been interpreted to mean "night watchman." The real battle over the notes will come when Jim Conley, who admits writing them, is put on the stand.

STATE ADDS NEW LINK TO EVIDENCE CHAIN BY ROBERT ROGERS' STORY

Sensational testimony by J. M. Gantt, discharged pencil factory employee, was promised Wednesday by Solicitor Dorsey and Frank A. Hooper, who is assisting him. They admitted that Gantt had testimony that had never before been published, and would be one of the State's most material and direct witnesses.

The defense has heard that Gantt will testify he saw Frank and Conley together on the day of the crime. Gantt was expected to follow Grace Hicks on the stand.

The State added another link in the chain of circumstantial evidence it is seeking to forge about Leo M. Frank by calling W. W. (Boss) Rogers to the stand Wednesday.

Rogers is the former county officer in whose automobile the policeman went to the National Pencil Factory Sunday morning after New Lee, factory nightwatchman, had called up the police station.

Rogers was on the stand two hours, but in this time he failed to give any material evidence that had not already been presented to the coroner's jury.

FRANK LAUGHS FOR FIRST TIME DURING TRIAL WHEN HOME INCIDENT IS TOLD

Frank laughed for the first time during the trial when the incident at his home was told.

Q. What time was it—A. About 5 or 5:10 Sunday morning.

Q. Do you know who he called?—A. No.

Q. What did he say?—A. I don't recall exactly, but in substance he was asking some one to come to the factory. I heard him say, "If you will come I will send an automobile for you." He turned to me and asked me if I would go to Mr. Frank's home and get him. He gave us the address and Detective Black went with me. Detective Black went to the door. I won't be sure whether he knocked or rang the bell. Mrs. Frank answered the door. She had on a heavy blue bathrobe. We asked if Frank was there, and she came through the curtain into the reception hall.

Q. Was he dressed for the street?—A. Yes, with the exception of collar and coat.

Q. How you tell exactly what he had on?—A. A pair of shoes, blue trousers, white pleated shirt, and suspenders.

Q. What was said?—A. When Frank came in he went directly to Black. He asked him, "Has anything happened at the factory?" Black did not answer him, and, turning to me, he asked the same question. I did not answer.

Q. What else did he say?—A. He asked, "Did the night watchman telephone you anything had happened at the factory?"

Q. What else?—A. Black did not answer him then, but told him he had better come to the factory.

Q. What did Starnes say to Frank over the phone besides what you have already told?—A. "The object," said Attorney Rosser, "of the trial is to establish a leading question."

Q. You will have to put the question differently," said Judge Roan to Mr. Dorsey.

Q. Detail how, what Mr. Starnes said first?—A. Mr. Starnes was talking to someone over the telephone. I won't be sure whether he told him who it was or not. He asked this party he was talking to come to the factory. He said it would be good if he would send an automobile for him.

Q. Did you hear anyone else call from the factory?—A. Soon after we reached the pencil factory about 8:30 o'clock. I was in the office with William Anderson and Newt Lee. Anderson was trying to get someone over the phone. I don't know who it was.

Q. What else happened at Frank's

His wife and mother on each side of him appeared weary.

Frank looked at Rosser.

Q. What did Frank want they got to the factory?—A. Frank went to the office and unlocked the safe. He got a book and ran his hand down a column and said: "Yes, Mary Phagan worked here; if I am not mistaken she was here Saturday and drew her pay."

Q. He said it was some time a little after 11 o'clock. He asked us, "How do you know it?"

Q. "Your honor," said Mr. Dorsey, "he clearly overlooked something. Can I direct his attention to it?"

Q. "How do you know it?" interrupted Rosser.

I have his testimony before the coroner's jury and I have talked to him," said Dorsey.

Q. "Oh, Lord," growled Rosser as he sat down.

Q. What was said about a dream?—A. Mr. Frank said something about dreaming or hearing the telephone ring during the night.

Q. What was anything said about whiskey?—A. Yes, Mr. Frank said he had not had breakfast. He thought he would like to have a cup of coffee. Detective Black said a drink of whiskey might do him some good.

Mr. Frank answered that Mrs. Beig had been ill with acute indigestion and had used all of the whiskey in the house.

Q. What was Frank's voice that morning?—A. He was nervous.

Q. What about his voice? Was it fine?—A. Yes, it was fine, somewhat like a woman's. He asked questions rather abrupt, right of the reel. His questions were jumpy.

Q. What else happened?—A. Frank said "I would better nail the back door."

Q. What was done?—A. Frank and Dorsey went to the back door. Q. What did you do there?—A. Frank said, "I guess we had better put in a new lock. I'll take it to the hardware store."

Q. Where was Newt Lee?—A. Lee was right behind me, handcuffed.

Q. Where was Daryel?—A. He was next to me.

Q. What happened next?—A. Mr. Frank went to his office, brought out a new slip. He took out the old slip and wrote on it April 23, 1931.

Q. What did he do with it?—A. He took it once and went into his office.

Q. Did you see that slip?—A. Yes, I glanced at it. The first punch was 8:10 and the second at 8:18. There did not appear to be any slip in it.

Q. Did you hear Frank say anything about something to eat?—A. Yes, several times he said he wanted to get a cup of coffee.

Q. Did you notice Frank's eyes?—A. They were bright.

Q. How long did you and Frank remain in the factory?—A. I should say something more than an hour.

Q. Where did you get?—A. In the automobile with Lee, Daryel, Black and Frank to the police station.

Q. What happened at the station?—A. They took Frank to Chief Langford's office.

Q. Did you see Frank do any writing?—A. Yes, he wrote Newt Lee's name and moved quickly.

Q. How was he?—A. Well, he stepped lively and moved quickly.

Q. Frank was nervous during these questions, his expression an enigma.

before the coroner's jury. Rosser again objected. Judge Roan declared the witness could not be asked.

Q. Did you see the officers do anything with Frank and Lee at the station?—A. I saw them take Mr. Frank and Lee up the stairs.

Q. Did you see Frank with a pencil?—A. I can't say that I did or did not. I was drunk there so much and saw so much.

Q. What was Frank's attitude at the station?—A. He appeared nervous as he had all the morning.

Q. Did you or not have occasion to observe Frank's hand at the police station?—A. No, sir, I did not.

Rosser Takes Witness.

Mr. Rosser then took up the cross-examination of Mr. Frank.

Q. You never saw Frank before that morning?—A. No.

Q. You don't know whether what you considered his nervousness was natural to him or not?—A. No.

Q. How long after you had knocked at Frank's door was it before Frank came?—A. About a minute or two.

Q. You went to the factory with the police?—A. Yes.

Q. You had some trouble in finding whether the child was black or white?—A. Yes.

Q. Did you think someone had to pull down her stocking and look at the feet before they could tell her color?—A. Yes, I believe so.

Tells of Victim's Fate.

Q. Was there dirt on her face?—A. Yes.

Q. Was there dirt in her mouth?—A. Yes, and some in her eyes.

Q. How long were you at Frank's home?—A. About fifteen minutes.

Q. Do you think long for the things you have told us to happen?—A. Yes.

Q. Are you sure of it?—A. I am sure.

Q. You don't know what time it was when you went to the undertaker's?—A. I don't know whether it was 7 o'clock or not, do you?—A. I can't be sure of that. I am trying to refresh my memory as best I can.

Q. Did you swear to that conversation with Frank about the pay envelope at the coroner's inquest?—A. Yes, I said something about it.

Q. Are you as sure of that as the other things you have said to me this morning?—A. I am sure I said something about it.

Visit to Frank's Home.

Q. Was anything said about a little girl being you all good?—A. No.

Q. When were you at Frank's home?—A. I don't know.

Q. Did you know that Cheesing, sending in front of the corpse, saw Frank looking at it?—A. No.

Q. Then you won't say that Frank didn't see the young girl's face?—A. I do say that it would have been impossible for anyone to see her face when it was turned to the wall, and I can swear that no one but Mr. Chesing and I went up to the corpse.

Q. What time did you see Frank?—A. I don't know.

head at the same time you did?—A. Yes, I suppose so.

Q. Did Frank have any trouble unlocking the safe at the office? Did he work the combination the first time?—A. Yes, without any trouble.

Q. Could you get by a glance at the face but not see the face white or red?—A. Yes, you could tell of the face but not see the face.

Q. Did you say Frank did or did not see that girl's face in the undertaking establishment?—A. I don't know.

Q. You can't see only two opportunities he had to see the face, and he saw it?—A. He couldn't see it because he was blind.

Rosser said: "Mr. Rosser, didn't you see the girl's face?—A. Yes, but he couldn't have seen it, unless he was standing by me, and he wasn't."

workings which might be interpreted as changing to the accused.

Working on the foundation laid by Rosser, Assistant Solicitor Dorsey was understood to be prepared Wednesday and Thursday to introduce witnesses who would swear that the stains found in two places on the second floor were splices of blood, not saliva or any other color.

It is the purpose of the State to establish beyond a doubt that Frank, without being told of what happened, had made remarks to the officers when they came for him which indicated he did not desire Frank's presence at the factory. He denied that he had mentioned the fact that a girl had been killed.

Claim Frank Knew.

It is the purpose of the State to establish beyond a doubt that Frank, without being told of what happened, had made remarks to the officers when they came for him which indicated he did not desire Frank's presence at the factory. He denied that he had mentioned the fact that a girl had been killed.

That Lee appeared composed when questioned Sunday by the detective that he witnessed the new night watchman in the pencil factory make a complete punch of the time clock covering a period of twelve hours in the minutes.

Under Rosser's cross-examination Starnes admitted that it was practically impossible for him to remember the exact words he used in certain parts of his testimony at the coroner's inquest.

That Starnes' memory in respect to the telephone conversation with Frank could not be regarded as any more reliable, Rosser brought out that Starnes had mentioned to the coroner's inquest the matter of a telephone conversation on the alleged conversation he had with Frank the morning of the murder.

Starnes also admitted that the girl's slip which was shown him by Solicitor Dorsey must not be the same slip he had taken from the rear door of the basement as the slip had been out of his possession part of the time during the investigation.

PHAGAN CASE SLAUGHTER RULING IN CLOVES CHARGED DALLAS

Mystery in Slaying of Girl Typist in Downtown Office Grows. All Cloves Fall.

DALLAS, TEXAS, July 30.—After hours of the most thorough investigation the police of Dallas to-day admitted that they were not nearly a solution of the city's worst murder mystery that they were when the body of Florence Brown was found in a pool of blood in the office where she was employed. A pearl button, evidently from a man's shirt, found lying in a pool of blood was the only tangible clue in the possession of the police. Wax impressions of the finger marks in the girl's flesh were taken. The detectives on the case have gone over the scene of the crime a dozen times and have compiled a complete history of the young stenographer's life without result.

Left Her Home in Auto. Miss Brown left her home at 8 o'clock Monday morning. E. B. Cuthbertson, an employee of the real estate firm employing her, called for her in his automobile. Leaving Miss Brown at the office, Cuthbertson went on to the courthouse, where he spent less than 15 minutes transacting business. When he returned to the office, Miss Brown was not at her desk, but the other employees of the firm had not noticed her absence. O. W. Swyer, manager of the rental department, entered the lavatory and came upon the girl's body lying in a pool of blood. She had been dead only a short time, and there were evidences of a desperate fight, waged by the girl during her slaying.

Rings Torn From Fingers. Blood was on the wall, and the girl's throat was cut. Marks on her left arm showed where strong teeth had met in the flesh. Two rings were torn from her fingers. A blood-covered hammer was found. The sharp instrument that cut her throat was not found. The murderer apparently left the office in haste, although he stopped to wash his hands of the girl's blood.

ROSSER'S SEXUAL ABUSE OF LEE JUST AS SHOT IN DARK; DEVELOPED TO START BARRY

By JAMES B. NEVIN

If Mr. Luther Z. Rosser's bite is one-half so dangerous as his growl undoubtedly it is disconcerting and we imagine there will be little save shrieks and patches of the prosecution left when the state comes eventually to sum up its case against Lee Frank Rosser's examination of New Lee was one of the most nerve-racking and thrilling I ever listened to.

It is not that much of a big man, but his bearing and his manner are so impressive that he is a terror to the jury. He is a man of the law, and he is a man of the law. He is a man of the law, and he is a man of the law. He is a man of the law, and he is a man of the law.

Always the terrible Rosser was there—and so very little bit, Lee fell back on the witness stand, with a wailing and a sobbing, and he was ever so softly and abjectly, "I am sorry, I am sorry, I am sorry."

It is not that much of a big man, but his bearing and his manner are so impressive that he is a terror to the jury. He is a man of the law, and he is a man of the law. He is a man of the law, and he is a man of the law.

TRAGIC FLASHES BLEND WEARYING SQUABBLES OF COUNSEL AT FRANK TRIAL

By O. B. KEELER

The trouble is plain human emotion won't stick at concert pitch all the time. The Pathos of a Drama. The testimony just now is not thrilling. It has to do with wear, way and an office and some very unattractive looking cord or heavy wire.

Official stand about, walking on the floor of their feet, like pussy cats. But they do not part, they request you to be seated. You must not stand up; you must stand up to walk to a place to sit down.

First Chord a Mere Trifle. This is the only chance for the concert pitch to vibrate. Human emotions are constituted so curiously that a railing note has been known to overbalance the dread presence of the King of Terror. Human persons have been known to be so affected by the thrill while you are stepping on their heels.

Simply a detail of a misfortune that is a tragedy in its own right. Frank months in prison have not affected him physically. His own eyes are as bright as ever.

DALLAS, TEXAS, July 30.—After hours of the most thorough investigation the police of Dallas today admitted that they were no nearer a solution of the city's worst murder mystery than they were when the body of Florence Brown was found in the office where she was employed. A pearl button, evidently from a man's shirt, found lying in a pool of blood, was the only tangible clue in the possession of the police. Wax impressions of the finger marks in the girl's flesh were taken. The detectives on the case have gone over the scene of the crime a dozen times and have compiled a complete history of the young stenographer's life without result.

'Uncle Joe' Thrown Into Lake by Auto; Never Loses Cigar

DANVILLE, ILL., July 30.—The only reason that "Uncle Joe" Cannon is alive today was the shallow course of the small lake in Spring Hill cemetery. The former Speaker and his daughter narrowly escaped drowning when their automobile went over a ditch (not embankment) and aligned itself side up to the level of water. "Uncle Joe's" teeth clung to the thin, black cigar.

$900 Clerk Twits Mr. Bryan in Verse

WASHINGTON, July 30.—E. Norbert, Jr., a clerk in the Department of Justice, has written a poem which was made public today, in which he equally twits Mr. Bryan for complaining that he cannot live on $13,000 a year. The last stanza follows: All things are out of proportion. As we all are, I feel. If the burden falls heavy on Bryan, let us us all equally feel. And thus we need our portion. And hope that what may be near for it shall be as I feel. We can't on his husband's plan.

Mexico Frees Three American Prisoners

Boy in Knee Pants Jailed as Slayer

VALDOSTA, July 30.—Henry Miller, a boy in knee trousers, is today in jail here charged with the murder of Walter Smith at Valdosta last night. Miller, it is alleged, stabbed Smith to the heart with a barbed wire Smith drove in a few minutes. Miller and Smith were employed at the turpentine distillery of W. M. Miller, brother of the alleged slayer. Smith had charge of the mules and objected to Miller riding one of them. A quarrel followed. "The dead man was 23 years old. He left a wife and two children."

16-Year-Old Boy On Trial for Slaying

GAINESVILLE, GA., July 30.—Barrow Cantrell, 16-year-old, today is being tried for the murder of Arthur Hawkins on May 27. He first decided to plead guilty and said his brother, Jim Cantrell, hired him to kill Hawkins. Jim Cantrell has been freed. Mrs. Milva Hawkins, wife of the murdered man, has not yet been tried. Her husband was always a white man to be hanged in Hall County.

Sifting of Mulhall's Testimony Is Begun

WASHINGTON, July 30.—Having protected Martin M. Mulhall while he has built up a huge mound of accusations against the legislative activities of the National Association of Manufacturers, the Overman Lobby Inquiry Committee today began to pick this evidence to pieces to find just what would set the manufacturers committed. "It is not Mulhall but the manufacturer who was on trial," said a member of the committee.

FRANK SEEDS DOUGLAS TO FACTORY GIRLS, SAYS MISS JUK'S EVIDENCE

Sixteen-year-old Grace Hix, a pretty employee of the National Penol Factory living at No. 100 McDonough road, who identified the body of Mary Phagan, was called by the State in the trial of Leo M. Frank Wednesday, but proved a much better witness for the defense.

Slight and graceful and attractive, the young factory girl made a decidedly pleasing impression in the half hour she was on the stand. He answered all of the questions asked her by Solicitor Dorsey and Attorney Bosser with simple directness and apparent truthfulness. She was the first witness whose testimony was distinctly favorable to the defense.

She was attired entirely in white. She seemed not at all embarrassed by the hundreds of eyes focused upon her and never for a moment was confused by the questions of the attorneys.

Her testimony was given from first to last by gesture. She explained conditions and situations in the factory, it seemed, exactly as she would have explained them in the privacy of her own home.

In response to the questions in the cross-examination conducted by Attorney Bosser, chief of counsel for Frank, she said that she never had known of Frank speaking to any of the girls in the factory except in connection with their work and never had known that he had attempted acquaintance of any sort. As far as she knew he had never spoken to Mary Phagan.

Red spots had been present. The red spots discovered by the detectives on the second floor, for all the knew might have come from the girl. She said that the red spots was scattered on the floor when the employees in the paint room were walking in the dressing room.

"And do you girls have a place to wash your hair?" inquired Attorney Bosser. "Yes, we have one, but many of us girls comb our hair right where we happen to be working," she responded naively.

And here there any of the girls in the factory who had hair the color of Mary Phagan's," continued the attorney.

"Yes, there's Margoline Kennedy. Her hair is almost the same color." "Points for Defense."

By the testimony of this one girl Attorney Bosser showed that it was possible that the red spots on the floor in the dressing room and toward the middle of the factory might have been red paint and not blood. The fact found on the machine might have been that of Margoline Kennedy or some other girl who had been combing her hair there, and, finally, that Frank's deportment among the girls of the factory so far as she knew was always exemplary.

The Hix girl was called by Solicitor Dorsey to tell of her identification of the body of Mary Phagan the morning after the murder and to describe some of the physical characteristics of the second floor of the factory.

With her testimony he continued in laying the foundation for his theory that the attack upon Mary Phagan was made on the second floor of the building and not on the first floor where Jim Conley was in hiding.

Tristram Snow Frank's horror. He had her tell of the proximity of the men's and women's dressing rooms on the second floor and how it would have been impossible for a person entering the men's not to have passed within a few feet of that for the women.

Solicitor Dorsey, by his other two witnesses of the forenoon, W. W. "Burrhead" Rogers and Dequincy Phagan, sought primarily to place in

Judge Roan Denies Attorneys Right To Remove Coats

Just allow the lawyers to take their coats off and this trial will be a success. Judge Roan in refusing to allow the attorneys the privilege had allowed the lawyer to remove their coats from the courtroom. The judge said that the paper men gathered around the press table. Even some of the spectators in the row of seats outside the railing have shown their disapproval of the dignity of the court by removing their coats.

It is so unimportant for a lawyer to take off his coat while in court that I am afraid they would get too comfortable if it should become a long time reaching the end. Now, newspaper reporters are so used to slipping out of things that they just naturally slip out of their coats, anyway."

The hearts of the jurors that Leo Frank attacked and strangled Mary Phagan in the factory April 18, and then, in the revulsion of horror at his deed, was in a jangle of looking upon the face of his victim, was taken to the morgue for the purpose of identifying her.

The Solicitor drew from the two men other circumstances of the morning after the crime, which he evidently proposes to introduce as significant of Frank's guilt, but he had the greatest stress on the visit of Frank at the morgue, where both Rogers and Black testified. Frank avoided gaining at the broad and contorted features of the murdered factory girl.

Say Frank Was Nervous. Black and Rogers testified that Frank appeared nervous all the morning after they went for him at his home at 43 East Georgia avenue, and took him to the morgue and later to the factory. Rogers was on the stand about two hours and told a seemingly straightforward story. He was not bothered much by the cross-examination of Rogers, but many of the objections to some of his statements in his direct testimony.

It was evident that Black's testimony was going to precipitate a lively squabble between the attorney the moment that he went on the stand. Attorney Rogers was at his feet while Black's testimony was being given. Black's testimony was going to precipitate a lively squabble between the attorney the moment that he went on the stand.

Black asserted that Frank was pale and nervous on the morning of April 18; that he talked excitedly and asked questions without waiting for answers, and that his voice was trembling and hoarse, and that he never entered the room where Mary Phagan's body lay at the morgue.

he said he would love me and dab in play like the neighbor did it but that long tall black negroes did by his side.

Here is a facsimile of one of the notes found beside the body of Mary Phagan and introduced in the defense with little success in its effort to make a New York Lee admit that he had a part in the writing of this note. Sergeant Dobbs, however, testified that when the officers deciphering the note came to the word "night," Lee said: "That means 'night.'" "Night which" has been interpreted to mean "night watchman." The real battle over the notes will come when Jim Conley, who admits writing them, is put on the stand.

DETECTIVE HEADS PART OF HIS STORY UNDER ROSSER ATTACK

Important developments in the trial, Wednesday of Leo M. Frank for the murder of Mary Phagan follow.

W. W. Rogers, former county policeman, in whose auto the police went to the factory the morning the body was found, testified Frank was nervous when taken to the plant and apparently afraid to look at the body.

Miss Grace Hix, factory employee, testified Frank rarely spoke to the girls in the plant and that the young women combed their hair near the lathe where strands of hair, alleged to be from the head of Mary Phagan were found.

John Black, detective, testified that Frank was nervous. His statement that Frank was "nervous, as any other man would be who had been arrested," is stricken on O'Dorsey's request. He is questioned by the State in an effort to show Frank was not nervous before he was arrested. Cross-examined by Rosser, he admits having made a mis-statement and retrains it. He is furiously grilled by the defense.

Solicitor Dorsey and Attorney Hooper admit J. M. Gant is to give sensational new evidence.

Sixteen-year-old Grace Hix, a pretty employee of the National Plant Factory, Wednesday, July 29, was called by the State in the trial of Leo M. Frank, Wednesday, but proved a much better witness for the defense.

Hix was called and cross-examined, like young Grace who made a decidedly favorable impression in the half hour she was on the stand. She answered all of the questions asked her by Solicitor Dorsey and Attorney Rosser with simple directness and apparent truthfulness. She was the first witness whose testimony was distinctly favorable to the defense.

She was attired, entirely in white. She seemed not at all embarrassed by the hundreds of eyes focused upon her and never flinched in the slightest. Her testimony was confused by the questions of the attorneys. Her testimony was accompanied from first to last by gestures. She explained conditions and situations in the factory, it seemed, exactly as she would have explained them in the privacy of her own home.

In response to the questions in the cross-examination conducted by Attorney Rosser, she said that she never had known of Frank speaking to any of the girls in the factory in connection with their work and never had had any conversation with him. She said she had never spoken to Mary Phagan.

She said that she had seen the red spots discovered by the detectives on the second floor, but she said she had never seen the red spots on the floor when she was in the plant room. She said that she frequently was spotted on the floor when the employees in the plant room were waiting to the dressing rooms.

"And you girls have a place to comb your hair?" inquired Attorney Rosser.

"Yes, we have one, but many of us girls comb our hair right where we are sitting," she responded evasively.

"And are there any of the girls in the factory who have hair the color of Mary Phagan's?" continued the attorney.

"Yes, there's Magnolia Kennedy. Her hair is almost the same color."

Points for Defense.

By the testimony of one girl, Attorney Rosser showed that it was possible that the red spots on the floor in the dressing room, toward the middle of the factory might have been red paint and not blood, that the hair found on the lathe machine might have been that of Magnolia Kennedy or some other girl who had been combed her hair there, and finally, that Frank's department among the girls of the factory so far as the hair was always exempt.

The girl who was called by Solicitor Dorsey to tell her identification of the body of Mary Phagan the morning after the murder and to describe some of the physical characteristics of the second floor of the factory.

With her testimony he continued to lay the foundation for his theory that the attack upon Mary Phagan was made on the second floor of the building and not on the first floor where Jim Conley was in hiding.

Unlucky Joe Thrown Into Lake by Auto; Never Loses Cigar

Delicate and frail as a result of an operation for appendicitis and a victim of tuberculosis, Jack Davis, a 28-year-old girl prisoner in the Savannah county jail Wednesday morning received a card from Governor John M. Slaton.

The girl was convicted on the charge of carrying to Chatham County by an auto and sentenced to six months in jail upon failure to pay the fine of $100. At the end of a month she was picked up by an auto and driven to the jail in the face of the strict order by the heroic efforts of the State police, a couple with her own determination to live, regardless of obstacles.

A severe calamity was in store for her, however. The physician announced that she was affected with tuberculosis and it was then the first time she was taken to the hospital in the face of a lingering disease. In fact, she decided to make an appeal to the Governor, begging him to have her removed from the jail to a home.

Victim of Misfortunes.

"It is not long to know the fate of the girl, and the idea of dying a prisoner is more than I can stand. I am a girl just 28 years of age, and unfortunately was led away from my home a year ago. I have only been living a life of shame since that time."

ROSSER'S EXAMINATION OF LEE JUST A SHOT IN THE DARK; HOPED TO START QUARRY

By JAMES B. NEVIN.

It is Luther G. Rosser's bite is one-half so dangerous as his growl undoubtedly is disconcerting, and few things there are more likely to excite and catch of the prosecution to run up the case against Leo Frank. Rosser's examination of New Lee was one of the most nerve-racking and interesting I ever witnessed. It reminded me much of a fox being masquerading and leaning a huge brown rat, and finally beat eventually upon the rat's established.

A witness up against one of Rosser's mighty bombardments is in a decidedly uncomfortable position—no doubt about that.

True, Lee snapped back at Rosser and growled sharply every time he was asked a question, and that for a while away from the instant proof of the tremendously menacing tone of his heavily lowered in front of him, wearing, tearing, sneering, and threatening, but he could not.

Always the terrible Rosser was there—read so, every little bit. Lee would fall back into the witness chair, with a faint smile and say, ever so softly and abjectly, "Yes, yes, yes."

As Rosser's Lee countered.

Build-up Rosser may be browbeaten, but he is far, far away from the picture of a nervous man as he is in his progress to date.

The Solicitor General outspokenly renews the Rosser method of questioning witnesses and endeavors with all the resources of his mind to outguess the witness and get him to confess to the crime he is charged with. Rosser is a power, and he is the very limit of the effectiveness of his methods.

It must be remembered that the State is relying largely upon the testimony of two ignorant men, the conviction of Frank.

The witness who was witness and New Lee is his second best witness. Both are nearly equally ignorant, but at least, more or less easy marks for the Rosser method.

Time and again, Lee called out the name of the witness, and he is telling exactly as he is. He is not telling exactly as he is. He is not telling exactly as he is. He is not telling exactly as he is.

FATHER AND SON WHO FIGURE IN THE DEFENSE OF LEO FRANK

Frank and Wife Perfect in Poise; Mother Pitiful Figure

By L. Y. WOODRUFF.

Arm akimbo, glasses firmly set, changing position seldom, Leo M. Frank sits through his trial with his thoughts in Kamatcha, Terra del Fuego, or the Antipodes, so far as the spectators in the courtroom can judge.

He may realize that if the twelfth man he faces decides that he is guilty of the murder of Mary Phagan, the decree of earthly court will be that his only hope of the future will be an appeal to the Court on High. His mind may constantly carry the impression of the likelihood of the solemn reading of the death warrant, the awful march to the death chamber, the sight of the all-terrible, ingratiating, the dreadful execution of his steel stairs, the few words of religious consolation—and then the drop.

Frank's Face A Mask.

But if he does realize these things, his face is so completely masked against emotion that of a skilled poker player.

But all appearances, he is the defendant in a civil suit on a contract of $10, and he has the money in his pocket to pay the judgment if the court should rule against him.

An outsider, entering the courtroom, uninforming, would look in vain for the man whose chief interest is in the trial.

There is a world of earnestness written on the face of the attorney of counsel. The jury sits with fixed faces. The nervous fanning of the fan, the tapping of the pen, the tapping of the pen, the tapping of the pen.

Frank's months in prison have not affected him physically. His eyes are

Flashes of Tragedy Pierce Legal Tilts at Frank Trial

By O. B. KEELER.

The trouble is, plain human emotions won't stick at concert pitch all the time.

And so the Frank trial, after the first twenty minutes, becomes much more like any other trial.

Except in the flashes.

You get into the courtroom with some formality. At once you are in the midst of order. It is rather ponderous, made-to-order order. But it is order.

Officials staid about, walking on the balls of their feet, like pussy cats, but they do not purr. They resist you to be seated. You must not stand up; you must sit down. Unfortunately, you must stand up to walk to a place to sit down. And that grieves the old.

They may think their faces. One in particular, an entire red handkerchief—sometimes for his face, sometimes to his standing spectators. You must sit down.

There is order.

Thru the Gal Temporary Check.

That you are thoroughly sitting down there is no chance for the concert pitch to vibrate. Human emotions are constituted so curiously that a rapping out has been known to overcome the dead presence of the King of Terrors. Honest persons have admitted this. The grim percent of the Frank trial produces no thrill while you are stepping on other people's feet.

Being seated, the first thing you do is to breathe gently. That is the first thing you do. That is the first thing you do. That is the first thing you do.

That is the first thing you do. That is the first thing you do. That is the first thing you do.

Defense Plans Sensation. Line of Queries Indicates

That a sensation is to be sprung by the defense by the production of the murder scene at the ribbon and dye factory from the hat of the murdered girl, was indicated by the attorney, Mr. H. S. Smith, in his opening address on Tuesday.

BLACK QUITS STAND WHEN ENTICED BY ROSSER'S HAMMERING

Important developments in the trial Wednesday of Leo M. Frank for the murder of Mary Phagan follow:
W. W. Rogers, former county policeman, in whose auto the police went to the factory the morning the body was found, testified that he was nervous when taken to the plant and apparently afraid to look at the body.
Miss Grace Hix, factory employee, testifies Frank rarely spoke to the girls in the plant and that the young women combed their hair near the ladies' wash room, alleged to be from the head of Mary Phagan were found.
John Black, detective, testifies that Frank was nervous. His statement that Frank was "nervous, as any other man would be who had been arrested" is struck out on Dorsey's request. He is questioned by the State in an effort to show Frank engaged counsel before he was arrested. Cross-examined by Rosser, he admits having made a mis-statement and retreats it. He is ferociously grilled by the defense.
Dorsey questioning Black, says the State is trying to show that Frank "planted" the bloody shirt found in the yard of New Lee's home and changed Lee's time slip. Black admits Rosser was his "confederate."
J. M. Gant testifies Frank knew Mary Phagan, but admits he testified at the inquest he never saw Frank with her.

Solicitor Dorsey came out with the startling announcement Wednesday afternoon that it was the State's contention that the blood-stained shirt found at the house of New Lee, negro night watchman at the National Pencil Factory, was a deliberate "plant" to shift suspicion from Leo M. Frank to the negro Lee.
"It is our contention," he shouted, "that the shirt was a 'plant,' and that Herbert Haas, as an attorney for Frank, demanded that Frank's house be searched so as to open up the way for a search of New Lee's house."
Gant says Frank knew girl.
The most sensational statement of J. M. Gant, discharged employee of the National Pencil Factory, was that, contrary to the factory's representatives' statement that he was arrested, knew Mary Phagan by sight and by name.
"I know this," he said, "because Frank had remarked to him: 'You seem to know Mary pretty well, Gant.'"
Gant's other testimony was to the effect that Frank appeared nervous and fearful at 6 o'clock Saturday evening.
Dorsey tried to bring out that Frank had told Black that he thought New Lee knew more about the crime than Lee had told him, but the search of Lee's house had followed this remark of Frank's.

A witness between the attorneys occurred over the endeavor of Dorsey to bring this out and after this was settled Rosser resumed his attack upon Black with such terrific effectiveness that Black, shaken and un-nerved, was forced to admit that he was confused, black that he could not swear to the absolute accuracy of any of them.
"Boots" Rogers had testified that he assisted Frank in removing the tape from the lime clock. Black said he could not recollect any one assisting Frank.
"Your memory so bad that you can't remember what you told Mr. Dorsey only 30 or 40 minutes ago?" Rosser raved a momentary while Black hesitated to repeat some of his direct testimony.
The attorney alternately belittled and laughed at the witness. He finally got him to say he would not swear to Frank's conversation in regard to the time slips.
Factory girl on stand.
Sixteen-year-old Ora Mae Hix, a factory employee of the National Pencil Factory living at No. 148 McDonough road, who identified the body of Mary Phagan, was called by the State in the trial of Leo M. Frank Wednesday, but proved a much better witness for the defense.
The slight and graceful and attractive, elderly pleasing impression in the hall court she was on the stand. She answered all the questions asked her by Solicitor Dorsey and Attorney Rosser with simple directness and apparent truthfulness. She was the

ROSSER'S MAINTENANCE MUST BE SHOWN; HOPE TO START QUARRY

By JAMES B. NEVIN.

If Mr. Luther Z. Rosser's bile is one-half so dangerous as his growl undoubtedly is, disconcerting and unappealing, there will be little save shreds and patches of the prosecution left when the State comes eventually to sum up its case against Leo Frank.

Rosser's examination of New Leo was one of the most nerve-racking and interesting I ever listened to. It reminded me much of a huge maulit working and tearing a huge brass nail and grime bent eventually by upon the rat-uter annihilation.

A witness up against one of Rosser's fiery bombardments is in a decidedly uncomfortable predicament — no doubt about that.

Frank's attorney, Mr. Conley, was decidedly uncomfortable predicament — no doubt about that. He was stamped out at Rosser and growled angrily every little bit and strove this way and that to get away from the insistent, direct and unrelentingly menacing mass of humanity forever in front of him, working, tearing, snarling, and threatening, but he could not.

Always the terrible Rosser was there—and so, every little bit, he would fall back into the witness chair, with an audible sigh, and say ever so softly and abjectly, "Yes, yes, as a matter of fact."

Somebody has counted. Bulldozer Rosser may be browbeaten, perhaps, he will be far and away the most picturesque figure in the trial as it has progressed to date.

The Solicitor General has undoubtedly resent the Rosser methods of examining witnesses and endeavors with all the resources of his office to demand to counteract them and as far as it is possible to do so, to get as plain as he fears the powerful years of the case for Frank, and draws to the very limit the effective force of his methods.

It must be remembered that the testimony of two ignorant negroes for the State is the State's star witness and New Leo's only defense. Both are densely ignorant, and they testify all dead, more or less of examination.

Time and again, Leo rallied and came back at his tormentor with a ringing effect. It is likely altogether more than once the jury's arm, while Rosser was grating him down to the marrow, was raised and arold, and the spectators ready with approving titters and gasps.

Still, more than once Rosser mixed the negro up somewhat, when the adroit Arnold came to the bar for argument.

"Repeat! Repeat the Oath," Arnold seems to me that the battle is to be fought over the bludgeon, and Dorsey is to neutralize the effect of the bludgeon, whenever he can, while Arnold and Dorsey are to undertake the more skillful and artistic, but none the less deadly, fight.

FATHER AND SON WHO FIGURE IN THE DEFENSE OF LEO FRANK

L. Z. Rosser, Sr., and son, L. Z. Rosser, Jr., both engaged in Phagan case

Frank and Wife Perfect in Poise; Mother Pitiful Figure

By L. F. WOODRUFF.

Arm akimbo, glasses firmly set, changing position seldom, Leo M. Frank sits through his trial with thoughts in Kamikaze. Terra del Fuego, of the Antipodes, no far as the spectators in the courtroom can judge.

He may realize that if the twelve men he faces decide that he is guilty of the murder of Mary Phagan, the decree of earthly court will be that he is to die.

On the other hand, if Conley retains the justice, Rosser and Arnold will be able to locate the loss of Leo, and when they do Conley should read readily as anybody the die and winter danger, mental that there and then will stand significantly ahead of the crowd.

Rosser Shoots in Dark. As for the examination of New Leo, Rosser's method is more often as a mere shooting in the dark, hoping for something.

To my mind there is nothing more to be said and excepting the one fact that he discovered the dead body of the girl, Mary Phagan, in the factory cell.

There is a genuine negro, with all of a negro's superstitious antipathy for the white race, and a white man, with all of a white man's cunning and guile, and a perfectly normal and ordinary mind. He is a man who has been employed as a night watchman in the factory.

That is all he knows about the case, and he has never seen the man who bears the name of the man charged with the blackest crime known to Atlanta criminology.

Flashes of Tragedy Pierce Legal Tilts at Frank Trial

By O. B. KEELER.

The trouble is, plain human emotions won't stick at concert pitch all the time. And so the Frank trial, after the first twenty minutes, may become much like any other trial.

Except in the flashes. You get into the courtroom with some formality. At once you are in the midst of order. It is rather ponderous, make-to-order order. But it is order.

Officials stalk about, walking on the balls of their feet, like pussy cats. They are not out of order. They are to be seated. You must not stand up; you must sit down. Unfortunately, you must stand up to walk to a place to sit down. And that grieves the officials. They mop their faces. One in particular has an entirely red handkerchief—sometimes for his face, sometimes to flag standing spectators, who must sit down.

There are two orders. "Thills! Get Temporary Seats." Until you are thoroughly sitting down there is no chance for the concert pitch to vibrate. Human emotions are constituted so curiously that a waiting cooler can be so nervous as to overbalance the dead presence of the King of Terrors. Human nerves have a habit of this. A grim portent of the Frank trial produces no thrill while you are stepping on other people's feet.

Being seated, the first thing you do is to perspire gently. That if it is not roasting, it is at least a little hot. It is hard to reconcile perspiration and cold chills back of the neck.

You get the single when you pick out the accused. Your neighbor does not help you do this. One's face is all they know any way. Being seated, the first thing you do is to perspire gently. That if it is not roasting, it is at least a little hot.

There is a slim little man. He is dark. His face is sharp, cut and lean. His eyes are well opened, and he looks at the witness with the first real tingle.

Did those eyes stare down upon the figure of the man in Phagan in the school loneliness of the penitentiary that Saturday afternoon? The prosecutor asks odder. The thrill passes.

There is Rubs Arnold, objecting to something that the witnesses called Monday and Tuesday were only for the purpose of the trial. He is not constantly injured. Mr. Arnold is not at all fat. He is not at all fat.

Mr. Arnold's philosophy. Mr. Arnold has to submit that an officer of the court, that everybody looks guilty. Mr. Arnold has to submit further that the husband of the girl who was murdered is the man who is guilty.
