CHANGING ABOLISHED BY SENATE

Measure Introduced by Foster Provides Sweeping Changes in Prison System.

Sweeping changes in the prison system of the state of Georgia are provided by a bill introduced in the Senate Thursday morning by Senator A. H. Foster of the Twenty-seventh District.

Senator Foster's bill, which he declares meets with the approval of Senate leaders, contains the following important provisions:

To provide for the inspection of all county jails.

To abolish the county sheriff.

To provide an indeterminate sentence in both felony and misdemeanor cases.

To arrange for the parole and after-care of prisoners.

To provide for the retraining and disposition of habitual criminals.

To provide for a system of grades, classifications and credits of convicts while in the penitentiary.

To provide for the appointment and compensation of wardens and guards for the penitentiary.

Senator Foster made shortly after introducing his bill in addition to having the support of the Senate.

The measure has the backing of the Georgia Prison Reform Association, which is the result of the investigations of the association and the Georgia Prison Reform Association, and in addition contains some ideas of his own.

Senator Foster declared that while he expected that some amendments would be made in the bill before it is passed, he would concentrate his efforts on retaining the wording of the original bill in the section relating to indeterminate sentences. This, he declared, is the most needed reform in Georgia prison system.

The phrase "to abolish the county sheriff" in the caption of the bill is confusing, inasmuch as slight reference is made to it in the body of the measure.

Senator Foster stated that his idea was not so much to totally abolish the existing system as to make it impossible to work negroes and whites together. He hopes, he says, to abolish the mixed changes and segregate the races.

The sections of the bill set forth that the policy of the state shall hereafter be to deal with convicts that their punishment may serve to discipline them to right conceptions of citizenship.

Board Members Inspectors.

The burden of the inspection of prisons and jails is placed upon the State Prison Commission, which, declares the bill, shall provide for quarterly visitation of all county jails and aid in their just, humane and economic administration. The Commission shall make a report of each visit to the Governor.

Instead of the fixed sentence, Senator Foster's bill declares that when any prisoner is convicted of a felony or misdemeanor the court shall pronounce an indeterminate sentence and the bill also impresses upon the Prison Commission the necessity of segregating the youthful prisoners from those who had hardened offenders.

One of the strong and unusual features of the bill is a section providing that all moneys earned by an convict shall be paid to his family or other dependent upon him. The payment to be placed in the hands of the Prison Commission.

All prisoners save those on charge of a crime or criminal assault are granted the privilege of applying to the Governor and the Prison Commission for parole three months before the expiration of the maximum term which they may be required to serve.

A commission authorizing the operation of a reformatory center for the purpose of investigating the state of affairs in the penitentiary is provided for.

JUDGE SPEED RAPS U. S. ATTORNEY GENERAL

Georgia Federal Jurist, Before Iowa Bar, Resents Probe of His Office.

STOUC CITY, IOWA, June 25.—Severe criticism of the Attorney General of the United States for having him investigated by special agents and secret service men in the employ of the Department of Justice was the feature of the address of Judge Speed, of the United States Court for the Southern District of Georgia, before the Iowa Bar Association here today.

He also stated that the district judges are liable for contempt of court for operating in the presence of the court.

Judge Speed spoke to the Iowa lawyers, who are in annual meeting here, on "The Debt the American People Owe the American Judges." When he had finished that subject he discussed the action of the Department of Justice in probing his personal and judicial record.

Questions Right to Probe.

"More dangerous than the power to disqualify a Federal judge is the power to investigate and condemn him in the utter absence of all charges against him. It is not the arbitrary judgment of the Department of Justice, but the Department of Justice, under the direct order of the Attorney General, that has done this."

He also stated that the district judges are liable for contempt of court for operating in the presence of the court.

Urges Underwood For Presidential Candidate in 1916

Oscar Underwood for President of the United States in 1916 is the slogan of Judge G. R. Hutcheson, of Rome, who managed the Underwood campaign in Georgia last year. Judge Hutcheson stopped Thursday at the Hotel Arizona, where he will remain for several days.

"Underwood is the logical man for the presidency," said Judge Hutcheson Thursday afternoon, "and we are going to put him in the race long before the next election rolls around."

"Last year some people and one Atlanta newspaper, I believe, were hotly attacked at us when we proposed Underwood's name for the presidency. They had nothing whatever to say when the primary vote showed that the Alabama man had swept Georgia by almost 70,000 votes. We can duplicate that vote in 1916."

HATED OF OWN FAMILIES LEADS DOOMED CONVICT TO AUCTION OF HIS BODY

FORSTER, G.A. June 26.—Hated of his own family has prompted Thomas A. McCullough, a convict in the Monroe County chainage, to advertise his own body for sale to the highest bidder.

Self-worn never again to have anything to do with his relatives, he is now in mortal fear that his body after death will be turned over to them for burial. McCullough's fear has been increased by the physician's statement that he is suffering from heart disease and has not long to live. The money which his body would bring is a secondary matter to the convict. His one real desire is that death shall not seal the breach which he has cherished and broadened in life between himself and his family. Therefore, by disposal of his body to some medical school for experiment he hopes to eliminate this possibility.

"Cut Us White Alive"

"Why shouldn't they buy me?" McCullough exclaimed as he leaned his feet, hairy body against the wall and looked down at his interviewer. "I've been cut up white alive and I wouldn't care if they cut me up after I am dead."

"If I've got a thing to do with it, no single member of my family will get my body when I die. I don't want them to have a thing to do with me. I'd rather be let out for the buzzard than be turned over to them."

McCullough's strange hatred is founded upon his belief that his family "turned him up" when he was being hidden from the officers of the law following his escape from the camp some months ago.

He had been sentenced to eighteen years penal servitude for the murder of a negro in Spalding County. The deed was the outcome of a quarrel between the two in a gambling game.

Caught After Three Months

McCullough was sent to the Monroe County convict camp, where he served three months. Eluding the officers through bribe payments and a double bluff, he made his way back to his home in Spalding County. He remained there in hiding

BROWN ADVISES AGAINST W. & A. EXTENSION

Cost, $20,000,000, Too Great to Be Compatible With State's Policy, Says Message.

Opposition to the extension of the Western and Atlantic Railroad to the sea was expressed in a message sent by Governor Brown to the Legislature. The cost of building such a road, which, it is said, would be about $20,000,000, is the reason given by Governor Brown for his opposition.

That the result of such an addition, if possible, to "less it would not amount to more than the interest on the bonds, thus leaving nothing with which to pay of the principal, is one of the arguments advanced by him against the building of the road.

Judge Emory Speer Attacks Attorney General McReynolds' Espionage System

"More dangerous than the power to disqualify a Federal judge is the power to disgrace and defame him. In the utter absence of all charges against him, is not the arbitrary espionage or investigation of a judge by the Department of Justice, under the direct order of the Attorney General, to treat him as if he were wholly careless of his reputation and good name?"

"His examiner holds the fate of the judge in the hollow of his hand! And all the while, be it remembered, there are no charges pending against the judge, where such charges should be made. The examiner imparts to the judge no information whatever of any complaint. There is no chance for defense.

"This method is very recent. I dare declare that no other could be more offensive to the chastity of judicial honor."—Judge Emory Speer, in an address before the Iowa Bar Association.

Fight Is Opened to Reform State's Prison System

Sweeping changes in the prison system of the State of Georgia are provided by a bill introduced in the Senate Thursday morning by Senator A. H. Foster, of the Twenty-seventh District.

Senator Foster's bill, which he declares meets with the approval of Senate leaders, contains the following important provisions:

- To provide for the inspection of all county jails.
- To abolish the county chain-gang.
- To provide for indeterminate sentences in both felony and misdemeanor cases.
- To arrange for the parole and after-care of prisoners.
- To define the retarding and disposition of habitual criminals.
- To provide for a system of grades, classifications and credits of convicts while in the penitentiary.
- To provide for the appointment and compensation of wardens and guards for the penitentiary.

Indorsed by Byrdmore, Senator Foster stated shortly after introducing his bill that in addition to having the support of influential members of the Senate, the measure has the backing of the Georgia Prison Reform Association. The bill, he said, is the result of the investigations of the association and Philip Weisner, its secretary.

Senator Foster declared that while he expected that some amendments would be made in the bill before it is passed, he would concentrate his efforts on retaining the features of the original bill in the section relating to indeterminate sentences. This, he declared, was the most needed reform in Georgia prison methods.

The phrase "to abolish the county chain-gang" in the caption of the bill is confusing, inasmuch as slight reference is made to it in the body of the measure.

Senator Foster stated that his idea was not so much to totally abolish the chain-gang system as to make it impossible to work negroes and whites together. He hopes, he says, to abolish the mixed chain-gang and segregate the races.

The sections of the bill set forth that the policy of the State shall hereafter be to deal with convicts on their punishment, may serve to discipline them to right conceptions of citizenship.

Board Members Inspectors.

The board of the inspection of prisons and jails is placed upon the State Prison Commission, which, it declares, the bill, shall provide for quarterly visitation of all county jails and jails in their just, humane and economic administration. The Commission shall make a report of each visit to the Governor.

Instead of the fixed sentence, Senator Foster's bill declares that when any prisoner is convicted of a felony or misdemeanor the court shall pronounce an indeterminate sentence.

The bill also increases upon the Prison Commission the necessity of segregating the youthful prisoners from the adult convicts.

(One of the strange and unusual features of the bill is a section providing that all convicts sentenced to the State Prison shall be given the right to gain the right to even a limited franchise.)

Urges Underwood For Presidential Candidate in 1916

Oscar Underwood for President of the United States in 1916 is the slogan of Judge R. H. Hatcher, of Rome, who managed the Underwood campaign in Georgia last year. Judge Hatcher stopped Thursday at the Hotel Arson, where he will remain for several days.

"Underwood is the logical man for the presidency," said Judge Hatcher Thursday afternoon, "and we are going to put him in the race long before the next election rolls around."

Last year some people and one Atlanta newspaper in particular noted at us when we proposed Underwood's name for the presidency, but they had nothing whatever to say when the primary votes showed that the Alabama man had swept Georgia, by 15,000 votes. We can duplicate that vote in 1916."

JUDGE SPEER RAPS U. S. ATTORNEY GENERAL

BIOW CITY, IOWA, June 25.—Governor of the United States for having him investigated by special agents of the United States Department of Justice was the feature of the address of Judge Emory Speer, of the United States Court for the Southern District of Georgia, before the Iowa Bar Association today. Judge Speer stated that the department is liable for contempt of court for operating in the presence of the court.

Judge Speer applied to the Iowa Bar Association for an annual meeting to be held in Biow City, Iowa, on July 1st. When he had finished that subject he discussed the action of the Department of Justice in probing his personal and judicial record.

Questions Asked in Probe.

Judge Speer said, in part: "I am more dangerous than the power to disgrace and defame him. In the utter absence of all charges against him, is not the arbitrary espionage or investigation of a judge by the Department of Justice, under the direct order of the Attorney General, to treat him as if he were wholly careless of his reputation and good name? I speak impersonally and with all deference and respect for the distinguished official who is co-official of the leader of the American bar."

Hints at Contempt of Court.

Cool Weather Just Ahead, Forecaster's Solemn Assurance

Cooler weather is on the way. "Fair and warm" is the forecast for Thursday, but moderate breezes blowing through the West and Middle West are due to reach Atlanta at no distant date. Possibly Thursday afternoon may bring a little relief from the high temperature of the last two weeks. Thunder showers are anticipated in the Atlanta territory, and if the city is so fortunate as to be in the path of the rain it may enjoy moderate weather for a day or two.

This announcement was made by the United States Weather Bureau Thursday morning, and it brought joy unalloyed. The drop in temperature was as much as 8 or 10 degrees, according to official data. Temperature at 7 o'clock Thursday morning was 73 degrees. At 3 it was 70.

STOVER GIRL PLAYS STAR PART IN CASE

With the selection of the court room made Thursday, all is virtually ready for the trial of Leo M. Frank, accused of strangling Mary Phagan. The venue of jurymen has been selected and July 18 fixed as the date, and both sides have announced they are ready to go into court.

The details of the case were reached by Judge L. S. Ragan to hold the trial on the first floor of the Old City Hall building. The decision was reached after a conference with Solicitor General Dorsey, and it was represented by the State to hold the trial in the small and not well-ventilated courtroom of the State building.

The witness will be present with the affidavit called for, but a hot fight will be put up by Solicitor General and Attorney Hooper to prevent their use by the defense.

Frank is a small, thin, 16-year-old girl, who will be a star witness in the trial, according to all indications today.

The State, it is said to be satisfied that Monte Stover is the murderer of Mary Phagan. Stover, it is said, has been seen in the vicinity of the crime, and the evidence will be sufficient to establish his guilt beyond a reasonable doubt. Stover is a young man, about 20 years of age, and is a native of Georgia.

PAINTER FAMILY LOSES IN SUIT FOR ORGANS

BALTIMORE, June 25.—The doctor offered by the family of Edward O. Painter, the late Jacksonville fertilizer man, against the appointment of a receiver for his viscera, was overruled by Judge Duffy in Circuit Court today. The receivership proceedings, however, were continued until July 15, during which time the defendants must show cause why a receiver should not be appointed.

When the case is reopened Judge Duffy will take testimony tending to show why a receiver should be named to take charge of the Painter organs. In the meantime they will remain in the possession of Dr. Charles Gleason, chemist, to whom they were sent from Jacksonville for analysis.

In overruling the demurrer Judge Duffy said that the attorney for the Painter family and coroner Abbott had not shown it was within the jurisdiction of the court to appoint a receiver for the organs. The court, he ruled, had the power to appoint a receiver, but the demurrer was overruled.

FIGHT OPENS TO REFORM STATE PRISON SYSTEM

CHANGING GANGS BOULSHED BY BILL IN SENATE

JUDGE SPEER GRAPS U. S. ATTORNEY GENERAL

PRESIDENT ANDERSON CALLS SENATE TO ORDER

STOVER GIRL PLAYS STAR PART IN TRIAL

Sweeping changes in the prison system of the State of Georgia are provided by a bill introduced in the Senate Thursday morning by Senator A. H. Foster, of the Twenty-ninth District.

Senator Foster's bill, which declares Senate meets with the approval of the Senate leaders, contains the following important provisions:

To provide for the inspection of all county jails.

To abolish the county changing system.

To provide an indeterminate sentence in both felony and misdemeanor cases.

To arrange for the parole and after-care of prisoners.

To define the meaning of and disposition of habitual criminals.

To provide for a system of classification and credits of convicts while in the penitentiary.

To provide for the appointment and compensation of wardens and guards for the penitentiary.

Indorsed by Reformers.

Senator Foster stated shortly after introducing his bill that in addition to having the support of influential members of the Senate, the measure has the backing of the Georgia Prison Reform Association. The bill, the results of the investigations of the association and Philip Wetner, and in addition contains some ideas of his own.

Senator Foster declared that while he expected that some amendments would be made in the bill before it is passed, he would concentrate his efforts retaining the working parts of the original bill in the section relating to indeterminate sentences. This, he declared, was the most needed reform in Georgia prison methods.

The phrase "to abolish the county changing," in the caption of the bill, is confusing, inasmuch as slight reference is made to it in the body of the measure.

Senator Foster stated that his idea was not so much to totally abolish the changing system as to make it impossible to work negroes and whites together. He hopes, he says, to abolish the mixed changing and average the races.

Other sections of the bill set forth that the policy of the State shall hereafter be to deal with convicts "that their punishment may serve to discipline them to right conceptions of citizenship."

Board Members Inspectors.

The burden of the inspection of prisons and jails is placed upon the State Prison Commission, which declares the bill shall provide for "quarterly visitations of all county jails and all institutions under the administration." The Commission shall make a report of each visit to the Governor.

Part of the fixed sentence, Senator Foster's bill declares that when any prisoner is convicted of a felony or misdemeanor the court shall pronounce an indeterminate sentence.

The bill also empowers upon the Prison Commission the authority of suspending the parolees prior to the time of the expiration of their term of the bill in a section providing that all convicts sentenced by the Court shall be placed in a

SIoux CITY, IOWA, June 25.—Severe criticism of the Attorney General of the United States for having him investigated by special agents and secret service men in the employ of the Department of Justice was the feature of the address of Judge Emory Speer, of the United States Court for the Southern District of Georgia, before the Iowa Bar Association today. He also stated that the department of Justice was the cause of the feature of the address of Judge Emory Speer, of the United States Court for the Southern District of Georgia, before the Iowa Bar Association today. He also stated that the department of Justice was the cause of the feature of the address of Judge Emory Speer, of the United States Court for the Southern District of Georgia, before the Iowa Bar Association today.

Judge Speer spoke of the Iowa Bar Association, who are in annual meeting here, on "The Debt the American People Owe the American Judges." When he had finished that subject he discussed the action of the Department of Justice in probing his personal and judicial record.

Questions Right to Probe.

Judge Speer said, in part: "More dangerous than the power to disqualify a Federal judge is the power to disgrace and defame him. In the utter absence of all charges against him, is not the arbitrary espionage or investigation of a judge by the Department of Justice, under the direct order of the Attorney General, to treat him as if he were wholly careless of his reputation and good name? I speak in the name of the American people, and I speak in the name of the American judges. I speak in the name of the American people, and I speak in the name of the American judges. I speak in the name of the American people, and I speak in the name of the American judges."

Hints at Contempt of Court.

Judge Speer then stated that the examiner had appeared in court, made copious notes with significant passages, conferred with disgruntled attorneys, received letters from convicts in the penitentiary, interviewed stubborn debtors who had been forced by the court to pay their obligations and examined newspaper files.

"The examiner, and I speak of him with great respect, even with timid deprecation, works to a mysterious way his wonders to perform," said the judge, adding:

"This method is very recent. I dare declare that no other could be more offensive to the chastity of judicial honor. This method is very recent. I dare declare that no other could be more offensive to the chastity of judicial honor. This method is very recent. I dare declare that no other could be more offensive to the chastity of judicial honor."

"For action less directly in the presence of the court, less interfering with the administration of justice, men have been convicted for contempt of court, and the convictions have been sustained."

ST. LOUIS, June 25.—Temporarily insane from the effects of the hot weather and alcoholic excesses, Fulton Dean, 33 years old, of Macon, Ga., a friend of B. Sanders Walker, the Macon banker who died from the effects of bichloride of mercury taken by mistake for aspirin, is held here in the observation ward at the City Hospital following an attempt to swallow some of the poison which caused his friend's death.

Dean is connected with the Hibb Sewer and Pipe Company, of Macon, and the Evans & Howard Sewer and Pipe Company, of St. Louis. He came to St. Louis Monday to confer with officials of the latter concern. He remained at the American Hotel until Monday, then checked out West, where he called on his nephew, John Dean, city passenger agent of the Southern Railroad. He was unable to give any account of his whereabouts about last Monday.

Dean has a wife and four children in Macon.

ENGINE BLOWS INTO HOUSE.

RENO, June 25.—A house on the corner of Broadway and Second streets was blown into the air by a steam engine which struck it, tearing the track and killing a man.

Monteen Stover, a timid little 14-year-old girl, will be star witness in the trial of Leo M. Frank July 18 on the charge of strangling Mary Phagan in the National Pencil Factory, according to all indications Thursday.

The frequency with which she has been called upon to repeat her story of going to the factory on the day of the crime and finding Frank absent from his office is taken as an almost certain indication that the prosecution regards her statements of the utmost importance.

The State, if it is able to establish that Monteen Stover entered the factory on the day of the crime just after Mary Phagan went inside, will have scored a most significant victory. The evidence will still be circumstantial, it is true, but it will be of greater weight even than the worst stories of the negro avenger, Jim Conley, who has sworn that he aided Frank in disposing of the body.

Adds to Mystery.

Her story, however, until it is substantiated or disproved in court, only adds to the mystery of a crime which already abounds in baffling and mysterious phases. Her appearance on the witness stand may mark every thing or nothing—because there is the startling fact that every indication points to Monteen Stover having entered the factory BEFORE Mary Phagan.

Monteen Stover is the daughter of Mrs. Homer Edmondson, of 131 South Forsyth Street. She formerly was employed at the pencil factory and on the Saturday of the murder went to the building to get her money. She said that she arrived there at 11:05 and remained about five minutes. She said that Frank was not in his office and that she was not able to find him.

Pitted against the declaration of the little girl is the statement of Frank that he was in his office at the time. One of the two apparently has spoken falsely or mistakenly. It is the theory of the State that Mary Phagan had preceded Monteen Stover into the factory; that Frank had attacked her probably in the meal room; and that this is the reason the Stover girl was unable to find Frank in his office when she was in the building from 11:05 to 11:15.

Where the Case is Held.

Should the State be able to impress the jury that this was the actual sequence of events, the prosecution will argue that Mary Phagan left the office in company with Frank and went to the meal room.

But the theory of the State is at once assailed by what appears to be practically certain evidence that, as a matter of fact, Monteen Stover was at the factory before Mary Phagan entered. If this is the case, Frank's absence from his office could not have been in company with Frank and went to the meal room.

The trial will be held at the Georgia State Penitentiary at 11:05. She lives in Ashford and the trial will be held at the Georgia State Penitentiary at 11:05. She lives in Ashford and the trial will be held at the Georgia State Penitentiary at 11:05.

Painter Family Loses in Suit for Organs

BALTIMORE, June 25.—The demurrer offered by the family of Edward O. Painter, the late Jacksonville fertilizer man, against the appointment of a receiver for his viscera, was overruled by Judge Duffy in Circuit Court today. The receivership proceedings, however, were continued until July 15, during which time the defendants may show cause why a receiver should not be appointed.

The court, however, will take testimony tending to show why a receiver should be named to take charge of the Painter organs. In the meantime they will remain in the possession of Dr. Charles Cline, chemist, to whom they were sent from Jacksonville for analysis.

In overruling the demurrer Judge Duffy said that the attorneys for the Painter family and Coroner Abbott had not shown it was within the jurisdiction of the court to appoint a receiver for the organs. The court, he ruled, had the power to appoint a receiver, but he admitted it was questionable whether the court, upon appointing a receiver, had the right to order the receiver to make autopsic examinations of the organs, as has been done by the Pidelity and Guaranty Company.

The Painter family contended that the viscera of Painter, being parts of a human body, could not be considered as real property for sale. It appears now that the old will with respect to the property.

JUDGE SPEER DAPS U. S. ATTORNEY GENERAL

Georgia Federal Jurist, Before Iowa Bar, Resents Probe of His Office.

PROUXTON, IOWA, June 26.—Severe criticism of the Attorney General of the United States for having him investigated by special agents and secret service men in the employ of the Department of Justice was the feature of the address of Judge Speer of the United States Court for the Southern District of Georgia, before the Iowa Bar Association today.

Judge Speer spoke to the Iowa lawyers who are in annual meeting here, on "The Debt—The American People Own the American Judges." When he had finished that subject he discussed the action of the Department of Justice in probing his personal and judicial record.

Judge Speer said in part: "More dangerous than the power to appoint and remove judges is the power to disgrace and defame him. In the utter absence of all charges against him, not the arbitrary suspension or investigation of a judge by the Department of Justice, but the direct order of the Attorney General to treat him as if he were wholly careless of his reputation and good name, I speak personally and with all deference and respect for the distinguished official who has ex officio the leader of the American Bar."

STOVER GIRL PLAYS STAR PART IN TRIAL

But Story Must Prove She Entered Factory Before Mary Phagan.

Monteen Stover, a timid little year-old girl, will be a star witness in the trial of Leo A. Frank today for the charge of strangling Mary Phagan in the National Pencil Factory, according to all indications Thursday.

The frequency with which she has been called upon to repeat her story of going to the factory on the day the crime and finding Frank absent from his office is taken as an almost certain indication that the prosecution regards her statements of the situation important.

The State, if it is able to establish that Monteen Stover entered the factory on the day of the crime in the National Pencil Factory, will have secured a most significant testimony. The evidence will still be circumstantial, it is true, but it will be of greater value than the witness' stories of the negro awper, Vin Coffey, who has sworn that he did not see Frank in the factory.

Her story, however, until it is substantiated or disproved in court, adds to the mystery of the crime, already abundant in baffling and terrifying phases. Her appearance in the witness stand may mean everything or nothing—because, there is no starting fact that every indication points to Monteen Stover having entered the factory BEFORE Mary Phagan.

Monteen Stover is the daughter of Mrs. Homer Edmonson, of 174 1/2 North Forsyth Street. She formerly was employed at the pencil factory, and on the Saturday of the murder was in the building to get her money. It is said that she arrived there at 11 o'clock and remained until 12 o'clock. She said that Frank was not in his office and that she was not able to see him.

Pitted against the declaration of the little girl is the statement of the theory of the State that Phagan had entered the factory after Stover and that she was unable to find him in his office when she was in the building from 11:15 to 11:30. Should the jury be able to improve the jury that this was the actual sequence of events, the prosecution would argue that Mary Phagan left the office in company with Frank to go to the hotel room.

PAULINE WELCH, actress-bridle of 'Bud' Fisher, famous creator of 'Mutt and Jeff,' who narrowly escaped death when she gashed her throat by falling upon the jagged edge of a broken water pitcher in an unlighted Piedmont Hotel bath room. She was rendered unconscious, and has been forced to cancel her vaudeville engagements.

'BUD' FISHER'S BRIDE HAS NARROW ESCAPE

That Mrs. Bud Fisher, who is better known to Atlanta as Pauline Welch, narrowly escaped death last Sunday night became known to-day. The wife of the famous creator of "Mutt and Jeff" lies in her apartment at the Piedmont Hotel with a gash five inches long in her throat as the result of an accident which only great good fortune prevented from being fatal.

Mrs. Fisher, whose clever singing won great applause at the Forsyth Theatre last week, retired about midnight Sunday night. About an hour later she arose and started into the bath room to fill a pitcher, containing some tea, with water. The lights were not turned on in the apartment, and as Mrs. Fisher entered the bath room she stumbled and fell against the bath tub.

The pitcher she held in her hand crashed against the tub, and she fell against a jagged piece of the glass, cutting a deep gash in the throat. She screamed and fainting, Mr. Fisher picked her up and carried her to a bed.

Twenty stitches in wound.

Mrs. Fisher lost a great deal of blood. There was considerable delay in getting medical assistance, and when Dr. Worth E. Vasey and C. L. Houston arrived an hour later she was unconscious. The flow of blood was stopped and 20 stitches were taken in the wound, nine aluminum clamps being necessary to hold the severed flesh in place during the operation.

A third physician was called into consultation, and the doctors remained with Mrs. Fisher during the remainder of the night. For several hours it was feared that she would not recover from the shock and loss of blood, but early Tuesday morning she regained consciousness and rallied rapidly.

Most Remain in Atlanta.

Mr. Fisher stated Wednesday morning that it will be impossible to move Mrs. Fisher for a week or ten days. They have canceled a vaudeville engagement at Harrison Beach for week after next and intend to remain in Atlanta until recovered.

The attending physicians declare that Mrs. Fisher had a miraculous escape from death.

Brown's Attack Stirs Unions

Both Branches of the Legislature Get Down to Real Work--Flood of Bills Begins in Upper and Lower Houses Soon After Lawmakers Convene.

The full text of Governor Brown's message to the Legislature will be found on page 12.

With the reading of a sensational message by Governor Brown flaying the labor unions, the election of J. Randolph Anderson, of the First District, to the Presidency of the Senate, the election of W. H. Burwell, of Hancock, to the Speakership of the House and the introduction of the preliminary draft of bills, the Georgia Legislature began its session Wednesday.

Pledges made by Senator Anderson had appealed the hostility of the "dry's" throughout the State and quieted the opposition to his candidacy. He was elected to the Presidency by a unanimous vote of the members, Judge Allen's name being withdrawn.

Representative Burwell, in accepting his unanimous election to the Speakership, spoke of the need of tax reforms in the State, and expressed the hope that bills would be passed which would remedy the present iniquitous features of the system.

As soon as the House got down to work, the introduction of bills was begun. They had a wide range of subjects, and the indications from the first day of the session were that 50 days would be crowded with legislative business.

Law leaders issued a bitter reply to the charges made in the Governor's message.

Troops received here from United States troops along the border of Sonora State said that Mexican Federal forces were eating snakes since the insurgent troops have cut off their food supply.

MEXICO CITY, June 25.—The Mexican Government to-day commenced the concentration of all its armed forces in the northern military zone to restore railway traffic with the United States border over the National system. This step is taken to prevent the capital from complete isolation.

CONLEY PUT ON GOLF STICKS TO STORY

Prattled by several of the statements of Jim Conley in regard to his part in the happenings the day that Mary Phagan was killed, the police have resumed the questioning from which the negro had been free since he was taken to the police station to the city jail.

One point that has not been cleared up is why Conley saw every one else that went into or left the factory and yet failed to see Mary Phagan.

Conley, on Sunday, was confronted by Monteon Steyer. He identified her as the girl he saw enter the factory shortly after 10 o'clock on the day of the crime. Yet he still maintains that he did not see Mary Phagan, although Mary must have entered the factory, either just before or just after the Steyer girl was in the building. This evidence in the possession of the police shows that there could hardly have been more than three to five minutes intervening between the time that the two girls entered the factory.

Want Clearer Statement.

Conley has been asked to explain this apparently improbable circumstance. Conley at first denied that he had seen Lammie Dalton in the factory on the Saturday of the murder. Later he said he had seen the factory foreman, White, whom he believed by the state he did not know. What explanation is made by the negro for his report in regard to the matter also is conjectural.

Mary Phagan left her home on April 23 at about 10 o'clock. It is regarded as unlikely that she reached the factory in less than 15 minutes. Conley has testified that she visited the factory at about 12:10, which would be just before Mary Phagan entered the factory, if the times testified to are correct.

Conley, on this account, has been asked to explain the advantage point behind the boss, Monteon Steyer, entered the factory at 12:10 o'clock, and Lammie Dalton at 12:15, why he did not see Mary Phagan when she entered in the interval between the two girls.

Blacks to His Story.

Another point on which he has been questioned is as to how he could have left his home at the time he has testified and visit all the saloons of which he has told and still meet Frank at Nelson and Forsyth Streets as Frank was on his way to Monteon Steyer's factory. Frank, according to the statements of members of the Monteon gang, was in their building by 10 o'clock.

Conley has testified to doing work there, but he has said that he had taken him until considerably after 10 o'clock, according to a contemporary associate.

He also has been questioned on other points in his testimony which appear to be in variance with the facts, but he has stuck steadfastly to the story told in his last affidavit. Solicitor Dorsey expects to have Mr. Steyer in court to show the negro is any important particular.

Deny He Killed Steyer.

Atorney Luther Z. Rosser, chief counsel for Frank, made strenuous denial Wednesday that any effort had been made to contest Senator John Smith with the defense. A similar denial was made by Herbert Hagan, associated with Mr. Rosser in the defense. Neither was able to say how the rumor had started.

Frank A. Hooper, who is assisting Solicitor Dorsey in the prosecution, said that the effort would be to present Monday to fight the subpoena duces tecum issued by the lawyers for the defense. It is regarded as improbable, however, that the defense will bring the matter to an issue until the trial begins July 25.

LABOR LEADERS SCORE MESSAGE LEADERS NAMED WITHOUT FIGHT

The Georgia Legislature's spirited attack upon labor unions and their tactics in its Saturday message to the Legislature aroused widespread comment Wednesday, stirring up a hornet's nest among the labor union forces.

The Governor branded the unions an agency for anarchy and said that even in their gentler aspects they took issue with the state's labor laws.

He did not mince words in describing the unions as a menace to the people and to the principles of government. He stated that the unions, he said, not at the rich people, but at the poor for whose protection they were supposed to exist.

The Governor's message was met with a chorus of protest from the Atlanta State Must Act.

The State of Georgia, declared the Governor, must assert itself and demonstrate that no person or group of persons can with impunity disregard the laws of the Commonwealth.

The Governor's message was met with a chorus of protest from the Atlanta State Must Act.

The Governor's message was met with a chorus of protest from the Atlanta State Must Act.

Neither man had any opposition in the balloting, and both were elected unanimously.

The rather unexpected termination of the heretofore uncertain fight for the speakership of the Senate undoubtedly surprised the packed galleries and lobby.

Allen Withdrew His Name.

Senator Spinks, who was expected to nominate Judge Allen, arose unexpectedly after the Senate had been called to order by Secretary Northrup, and instead of nominating his name withdrew his name.

In doing this he delivered a long and friendly little speech, praising his own man and his opponent, and said that while Judge Allen had 23 votes ready to stand by him, it was not sufficient to elect, and the Senator from the Twenty-first—Judge Allen preferred to do the greatest thing and retire rather than proceed with his friends to a fruitless struggle.

When Senator Spinks sat down, Senator Black arose and nominated Mr. Anderson in a speech every bit as good natured as the one preceding it.

Rival Votes for Anderson

When the roll was called, Allen's name came first, and when he started off the balloting in favor of his victorious rival, he was generally applauded by his colleagues.

On assuming the chair, President Anderson delivered a brief address, particularly calling attention to the much necessary legislation that the new General Assembly likely would have to undertake.

He got a good laugh when, in a facetious manner, he mentioned the Atlanta Chamber of Commerce's work on behalf of the Western and Atlantic Railroad, the State's property. He said it evidently would not be the Legislature's work to say what should be done with that property, as the Atlanta trade body seemingly proposed taking care of that little matter itself.

Senate Happy Over Outcome.

The feeling in the Senate after the settlement of the Allen-Anderson fight was very happy. The way in which that issue was solved evidently lifted a heavy load from many a Senator's mind, and Judge Allen's frank and manly attitude won him many friends.

Mr. Anderson, in accepting the Presidency, paid a eloquent tribute to the ability and integrity of his opponent.

The efforts of the prohibitionists to get into the Senate at the present session seems to have been completely null, so far as results were concerned.

Both Senators Anderson.
