

Bribery Charge Hurlled, When Education Board Meets, Causes Fist Fight

Alderman Armistead Accused of Offering Money to Induce Signer of Petition Against Change in Geographies to Withdraw Name.

EUBANKS' RIGHT THUMB BROKEN WHILE ACTING IN ROLE OF PEACEMAKER

Fight followed a heated discussion in effort to have board reconsider its action in making change in Geographies.

Charged with offering a bribe to a signer of an injunction petition against the board of education, in order to get him to withdraw his name, Alderman Jesse W. Armistead, member of the board, Thursday afternoon resented the attack of his accuser, Walter Fudge, a printer on The Atlanta Georgian, by following him into the hall just outside the Chamber of Commerce assembly hall and engaging in a fist fight.

George F. Eubanks, another member of the board, rushed to the scene in time to interpose after only one blow had been struck. Luther H. Still, a labor leader who was with Fudge, also came between the combatants and as he took charge of Fudge and pushed him down the stairs, the latter hurled a copy of Tarr & McMurray's geography at Armistead, just as the alderman was shoved back into the assembly hall through two swinging doors by Mr. Eubanks.

RIGHT THUMB IS BROKEN.

In putting an end to the fight Mr. Eubanks sustained a broken right thumb and had his right hand painfully hurt when it was crushed against the door.

The trouble was all over in such short time that several members of the board hardly knew what had happened. Mr. Armistead, during the recital of charges by Fudge, started to reply, but noting a number of ladies in the hall, sat quietly until he had finished and as soon as Fudge walked from the room, he immediately rushed out and accosted him.

No words were spoken by either of the two men. Mr. Armistead, without speaking, struck Fudge, who did not reply, but sought to strike back.

The fight followed a heated discussion precipitated by an effort on the part of Mr. Still to have the board reconsider its action on the Tarr & McMurray geography which was recently adopted for the Atlanta schools. Mr. Still favored the Frye geography, which was in use last year.

"A member of this board offered to pay a man who signed the petition for an injunction to withdraw his name," said Mr. Fudge in his angry outburst. "I would like to see that member if he is not a member of the board." He also wanted this signer to see the others and have them take their names from the petition.

President R. J. Gunn interrupted the speaker and said he would not permit him to continue unless he cleared members of the board not involved in the alleged transaction.

REFERS TO ARMISTEAD.

Mr. Armistead was the member I refer to," he said. "I do not know of any signers that he knew it would require some time to do this work so he offered to reimburse him. He said he would pay him as much as $25 if he would withdraw his name, another signer, to withdraw his name.

"If that Tarr & McMurray geography is worth all that effort, it ought to be done," said Mr. Fudge.

Luther Still said that he and Mr. Armistead were good friends and that recently Armistead called on him and said he wanted to see him.

"I want you fellows to withdraw that injunction petition," he insisted time again that I take my name off the petition.

"He said 'I'm losing time from my business and if it costs you any money you will be glad to reimburse you up to $25. I said 'I will take the other signers' and have them withdraw the petition. I'll borrow the money if necessary."

Mr. Armistead said that he did not explain that on account of recent events in which a certain sheet in this case had made an attempt to do the same thing, I would be willing to put up the money to bring about harmony in our school system.

ANIMOSITY CHARGED.

Mr. Still admitted that the statement was true, but stated further that Mr. Armistead said "There is considerable animosity between the chairman of the board of education and myself."

"Mr. Armistead said further that he would like to roll as a sweet morsel under his tongue with the chairman," said Mr. Still.

Chairman Gunn interrupted him saying that he would not permit Mr. Armistead and myself, so far as I am concerned, I don't know what he referred to."

Mr. Still made an appeal to the board to reconsider its action on the change in Geographies, on the ground that it would mean an enormous financial burden on thousands of children and their parents.

He represented 5,000 members of organized labor, who, in their various meetings had protested against a change in the books. He said that the Tarr & McMurray publication was far inferior to the Frye.

"Mr. Chairman, it has only a dozen Georgia cities on its map and does not even designate Marietta, the home of our mayor," said Mr. Still.

"Don't worry about that," said Mayor Woodruff. "I personally know very well where to find that town."

Mr. Eubanks asked Mr. Still what the amount of the enormous financial burden on the children would be. He was unable to answer, whereupon Mr. Eubanks protested against a change in the board of education. It would cost only $472.

CHILDREN TO GET SPRING VACATION

Radical Changes in Conduct of the High Schools Are Recommended to Board by Professor W. F. Dykes.

The date for the opening of the Atlanta public schools was fixed for September 13, and the school calendar for the term of 1915-16 was agreed on by the board of education at its regular meeting Thursday afternoon.

Five new assistant principals were elected to be assigned to schools by the superintendent. The board also elected a number of new teachers for the grammar schools and to fill associate places in the high schools.

Radical changes in the conduct of the high schools were recommended by W. F. Dykes, principal of high schools. These suggestions will be handled by the committees of the board.

No Final Examinations.

Mr. Dykes recommended that all students making an average grade in all studies of 75 per cent for the entire school year be exempted from final examination; that pupils coming from other schools be given credit for work in other school systems.

The new regime, as set forth in the newly-adopted school calendar, affords forty-five weeks of actual school time, and seven weeks of holiday, as follows:

Two weeks of Christmas holidays in December and January.

One week holiday in April.

One week holiday in June.

Three weeks holiday in August and September.

The first quarter of the term of nine weeks will begin September 13 and close on November 12.

The second quarter will begin November 15 and close January 23.

The third quarter will be from January 31 to March 31.

The fourth quarter will begin April 3 and continue to June 3, but from April 21 to April 30, inclusive, there will be ten days of spring holidays.

One Week of Holiday.

At the close of the regular school term in June, there will be one week of holiday—from June 9 to June 19, inclusive.

The summer session, or vacation school, which will consume nine weeks, will begin June 19 and continue to August 15.

There will be three weeks' holidays from August 15 to September 11. All teachers will meet to prepare for work on the Tuesday after the first Monday in September.

The new school year for 1916 will begin on September 11.

Superintendent Landrum reported that sixty-four new school rooms are now under construction. Many of these, entirely new buildings, others additions to old buildings. These will take care of all pupils and will eliminate the necessity of double sessions.

Teachers Are Elected.

The election of teachers Thursday resulted as follows:

Tech High Schools—C. M. Stodgill, associate science teacher, group 1; H. G. Green, associate shop and drawing teacher, group 2.

Commercial High School—C. E. Betts, associate English and mathematics teacher, group 1; Miss May Trentwell, associate language teacher, group 2.

Boys' High—A clerk is recommended for Boys' High and one for Tech High.

Assistant Principals—Miss Mary K. Crawford, Miss Gladie Carr, Mrs. Julia Gable, Miss Julia Bellingham and Mrs. J. C. Case.

Grammar Schools, Grade Teachers—Group 1, Miss May Trentwell, Miss Lucy L. Allen, Miss Birdie Thrasher, Miss Gene Small, Miss Mrs. Annie Armstrong, Miss Adelaide Christian, Miss Charlotte Underwood and Miss Hattie May Carmichael.

Group 4—Mrs. Pauline Ballard, Superintendent; Miss Annie Laura Garner, Miss Lida Sue Brown, Miss Meg Stephenson, Miss Nena White, Miss Lillian Colley, Miss Leon Smith, Miss Lovina Vinson, Miss Florence DeLynch, Miss Georgia Crane, Miss Gene Small, Miss Mrs. Annie Armstrong, Miss Waverly Hunnicutt, Miss Mary Bowen, Miss Frances Hunter, Miss Bidie Armistead and Miss Lennie Sims.

Dr. George S. Morse was elected principal of the colored schools and Charity Collins was named nurse for the department in the colored schools.

Misses Eddie Lou Simpson and Jennie Zuber were granted each a year's leave of absence.

Urges Homes' Election.

A delegation of negroes appeared to thank the board for establishing a night school for the negro children and for the position. When asked by a negro who has done considerable uplift work among Atlanta negroes, he was asked to appear before the board of education. His appearance was deferred until the next meeting.

The finance committee was instructed to appear before the general council and ask for a special appropriation.

GRAND DUKE'S ARMY STILL ELUDING CIRCLING TEUTONS

Forced From Second Line by the Capture of Brest-Litovsk, Russians Are Still Retiring Toward East.

CZAR'S FORCE DIVIDED BY AUSTRIAN CAVALRY

Wedge Thrust Into Russians East of Kovel—Successes Claimed by Italy Denied in Vienna.

London, August 26.—The Austro-Germans today marched into Brest-Litovsk, center of the Bug river line of defenses and main concentration center. The Russians put up a desperate resistance to the German advance, but made no attempt to defend the fortress itself, evacuating it as they did Osowetz.

Petrograd dispatches had indicated the Russians were planning to take up defensive positions further east. The Germans now hold the entire railway line from Cholm to Bialystok. As the Russians already have evacuated Bialystok, the lesser fortresses of Grodno and Olita are the only strongly defended positions remaining in the hands of the Russians. The Germans are nearing both of these and they probably will be given up when they have fulfilled their purpose of facilitating the Russian retreat.

EXPECTED RUSSIANS WILL ESCAPE CAPTURE.

The Russians have not yet entered the vast Bielowetz forest, which extends thirty miles north and south and has a width of from 17 to 30 miles. The forest is a famous hunting center. South of it are the Priepet marshes, which protect the Russian left.

With plenty of roads and three or four railway lines it is expected here that Grand Duke Nicholas will make good his retirement if Grodno and Vilna can hold out long enough. Even if they should fall military observers say the grand duke would be well on his way to his new positions before the Germans could reach his flank. There are reports of a large number of soldiers for a stand, but no indication as to where this attempt is to be made.

ALLIED AVIATORS AGAIN ACTIVE.

Aircraft again have broken the monotony of the western warfare. Sixty-two French aeroplanes flew over the Dellingring Iron Works near Saarbrücken, Germany, dropping 150 bombs, while a British aviator is reported to have dropped a bomb on and destroyed a German submarine off Ostend.

The German report says that a conference of cotton states' bankers conferred at length here today with W. P. G. Harding, of the federal reserve board, on the cotton situation. It was found that Mr. Harding's view thoroughly accorded with the resolutions adopted at Galveston. A statement was issued by the bankers tonight which concludes as follows:

"The delegation appointed at the recent conference of cotton states bank delegates held at Galveston, August 14, said this morning in a statement that a representative from each of the Southern States Bankers' associations, and appointed for the purpose of conferring with Hon. W. P. G. Harding, of the federal reserve board, made the following report:

"That we have this, the 26th day of August, 1915, held such a conference with Mr. Harding at Birmingham, Ala., and after a full consideration and discussion on the matter of co-operation between southern bankers and cotton producers, the resolutions adopted at the Galveston conference are heartily ratified and approved.

"It is a matter of much gratification to the delegation to find that these resolutions are not only in accord with the views of Mr. Harding, a member of the federal reserve board and a recognized authority upon the production and marketing of cotton, but that they have met with such general approval throughout the country. The federal reserve board and those entrusted with the management of the federal reserve banks are working in harmony with the principles contained in the plan for the greater marketing of cotton, and we earnestly bespeak therefore their further co-operation and encouragement."

RUSSIANS RETIRING TOWARD THE EAST.

Petrograd, August 26.—Tonight's Russian general staff statement reads:

"There has been no change in the Riga district. To the southwest of Friedland, in the region of Schonenberg and Radulich, on the 24th and 25th, the enemy, reinforced, resumed the offensive and severe and stubborn fighting ensued. In the direction of Dvinsk and in the region of Oknista, on the river Sveta, we drove the Germans back.

"In the direction of Vilna, our troops which held up the enemy during the 24th and 25th on positions before Ivje are gradually falling back along both banks of the River Vilja.

"On the middle Niemen and the front between the Priepet and the Priepet, our troops are retreating toward the east. The enemy is pressing our troops only in certain directions, having on the 24th concentrated his principal efforts against Bialystok and on the roads running eastward from Bialk to Kleshtahoe.

"On the other sectors of our front, in general, there has been no important change."

SUCCESS IN CAUCASUS CLAIMED BY RUSSIANS.

Petrograd, August 26.—(Via London, August 25, 1915.)—An official communication dealing with operations continued on Page Two.

KAISER AND VON HINDENBURG "SNAPPED" BY THE KAISERIN

THE KAISER AND VON HINDENBURG.

Germany's two most popular war heroes, the Kaiser and Field Marshal von Hindenburg, are depicted together on a photograph which is having the greatest vogue in Germany. The picture has added interest because it was "snapped" recently by the Kaiserin on a visit to the eastern front, where the emperor had a conference with the general whose armies have inflicted the recent defeats on the czar's forces.

BANKERS URGED TO GIVE LOW RATES ON COTTON

Conference Delegates, However, Decide Against Fixing Maximum Interest Rate.

Birmingham, Ala., August 26.—The delegates appointed at the recent Galveston conference of cotton states' bankers conferred at length here today with W. P. G. Harding, of the federal reserve board, on the cotton situation. It was found that Mr. Harding's view thoroughly accorded with the resolutions adopted at Galveston. A statement was issued by the bankers tonight which concludes as follows:

German Submarine Is Sent to Bottom By British Aviator

Commander Bigsworth, Single-Handed, Destroys an Undersea Boat Near Ostend by Dropping Bombs on It.

London, August 26.—A German submarine has been destroyed near Ostend, Belgium, by a bomb dropped by an aeroplane. Official announcement to this effect was made here this evening.

The text of the statement follows:

"The secretary of the admiralty announces that squadron commander, Arthur W. Bigsworth, R. N., destroyed single handed a German submarine this morning by bombs dropped from an aeroplane. The submarine was observed to be completely wrecked and sank off Ostend.

"It is noted the practice of the admiralty to publish statements regarding the losses of German submarines, important though they have been, in cases where the enemy has not other sources of information to the time and place at which these losses have occurred.

"In the case referred to above, however, the brilliant feat of Squadron Commander Bigsworth was performed in the immediate neighborhood of the coast in occupation of the army, and the position of the sunken submarine has been located by a German destroyer."

REPORTS OF ALLEGED GERMAN ACTIVITIES DELUGE WAR OFFICE

Washington, August 26.—Secretary Garrison revealed today that for months the war department had been receiving letters from all parts of the country reporting alleged German activities, such as the masking of big gun foundations in tennis courts and building foundations. No evidence had been discovered, the secretary said, to substantiate the reports.

Assistant Secretary of the Navy Roosevelt wrote today to The Providence Journal regarding a reply to Secretary Daniels' letter last week asking the paper to submit any evidence it might have concerning a published statement that a civil employee of the war department was in the pay of the German government.

"Nice Young Man" Sought as Husband By Alabama Girl

He Will Have to Take Care of Several Relatives and Must Be Content to Live on Farm.

If there is "a nice young man" in Atlanta who wants a wife, Robert B. McCord, secretary of the Georgia Child Welfare Society, will lead her straight into the arms of such a young lady.

After receiving scores of letters from young men from all parts of the south inquiring for wives in answer to a story which appeared in The Constitution several weeks ago, Secretary McCord has at last received a communication from a young lady of Garland, Ala., who states that she wants a husband.

The latest applicant to the state of matrimony requests that "Mr. McCord put her next to some nice young man between the ages of 22 and 35 years who wants a wife." She specifies that her husband must be content to live on a farm in Alabama, take care of several relations besides his wife.

"I find you are helping other girls in time of need," writes the young lady. "Please send me if you have a nice young man to spare."

FRANK L. POLK SLATED TO SUCCEED LANSING

FRANCE UNITED TO WAGE WAR TO VICTORIOUS END

Paris, August 26.—Premier Viviani, addressing the chamber of deputies at the opening of today's session at which the question of whether military affairs shall be considered in secret session was expected to be decided, said:

"I am not going to speak of the sanctatory service alone, but also of the temporary incidents that cannot be ignored. In the higher interest of the country, by which we are judged, we must justify the union of government and parliament.

"The home services of the war department have accomplished their tasks. In other quarters errors have been made, but parliament has lent cordial co-operation without seeking at the time to fix responsibility for mistakes. The errors have been repaired and the confidence of the chamber and the galleries were filled with persons prominent in Paris, many of them women.

"The party groups held caucuses previous to the assembling of the chamber. The extreme socialists alone favored a secret session.

"Continuing his speech, the premier said:

"At the question of peace before the country, and it would be blown to nothing. Not a heroic Belgium, not a France, not until we have retaken Alsace and Lorraine, could there be mischievous divisions among us. Our enemies may continue astray in their delirium of last year, but not we, who have seen working and omnipotent, the rich citizen and the poor, men of every party and every walk in life, fulfilling with a single purpose and with equal zeal their duties in defense of the liberty of the world.

"With this certain knowledge we come before parliament which has given the country an admirable spectacle, rising to the domain of the future; which has devoted admiration for the army, from the commander-in-chief to the private—for all those combatants who silently absorbed in their heroic labor the suffering more than to be left outside the sphere of politics."

"We must destroy the legend that the republic of France, having borne for forty-five years a horrible wound did not make provision for military defense. I must repeat the words of the commander-in-chief during the last session of the chamber: 'The republic must be proud of her armies.'

"France has created an army fulfilling the most modern conceptions. She has instilled the love of justice, the love of right and upon the day the war began the children of France united in support of this high ideal, without which there would have been only armies of mercenaries."

"At this the deputies sprang to their feet and cheered wildly. Later the premier continued:

"Yes, the German press has said that France was divided. Yes, there are divergences of opinion. These are the essence of free government. But it would be a fatal division if there were in this country a fraction of the people who even thought of a premature peace."

many as it was to the rest of the world for although it has not yet been officially stated, it is believed that German submarine commanders after the sinking of the Lusitania received instructions to avoid another such disaster.

It was suggested today in diplomatic quarters that while Germany had avoided making a public announcement of that fact she now was in a position to do so because of the victories of the German arms in Poland. and stewards were able to hit a port-scope at the distance of half a mile, the target being a floating imitation of a submarine. The so-called club members also practiced in an improvised shooting gallery. It was indicated that the steamer's color was similar to that of the German submarines. A machine gun barricade protected the captain's bridge and the steering apparatus. This, it is conjectured, would make possible an attack by the fire upon a submarine when one was sighted.

The music faculty for the coming year includes such well-known teachers as:

Miss Marguerite Bartholomew, piano, harmony and musical literature; Miss Edna Bartholomew, piano and pipe organ; Miss Clementine Macgregor, piano; Mrs. Iverson L. Graves, piano; Miss Pearl Rivers, musical kindergarten; Mrs. Mary Lovelace Hurt, voice; Georg Fr. Lindner, violin.

12 STATE HIGHWAYS FOR GEORGIA PLANNED

Routes Will Be Considered at Meeting in Macon, September 29-30.

To plan for twelve "Georgia state highways," radiating from Macon to the borders of the state, there will be a meeting of representatives of the cities, counties and towns along possible routes, September 29 and 30, in Macon, under the auspices of the Georgia Chamber of Commerce.

During the discussions the claims of all contesting parties will be given a full hearing, and no route will be considered, it is announced, which does not have a good representation before the meeting. It is proposed to get these highways into condition as soon as possible, that they may be presented to the state highway commission when that body is created by the legislature, as the basis for a network of state highways over the entire state.

Invitations have been sent out by the Georgia Chamber of Commerce to commercial and industrial organizations in all parts of Georgia, asking them to map out proposed routes from their own towns or counties leading to Macon, and to come to the meeting in automobiles over these routes.

Caught in Galveston Storm, Atlantans Have Narrow Escape

Captain W. R. Joyner, state fire commissioner, yesterday received a letter from his son, Richard W. Joyner, of Dallas, Texas, telling of a thrilling experience which Mrs. Richard W. Joyner and Captain Joyner's three small grand children had in Galveston during the recent storm.

Mrs. Joyner and her children were visiting at the beach at Galveston when the storm came, and although their escape from harm was almost miraculous, they are none the worse off for it.

The youngsters, says their father in his letter, seemed rather to enjoy the experience of wading and being carried down the beach by the waves, although they did not particularly care for the idea of going twenty-four hours without anything to eat.

The following account of their experience is published in The Dallas News of August 26:

"Staying in three different buildings at Galveston Monday evening during the storm, Mrs. R. W. Joyner and three children, 3627 Dickson avenue, escaped with no injury and returned to Dallas Sunday night. They were taken to Galveston Wednesday and returned with them to Dallas Mrs. Joyner, five-year-old Richard, 7-year-old Waltheil and 3-year-old daughter, Cllo, were removed from the beach hotel by the police patrol, which took them to Schott's drug store, in the first of the storm.

While the storm was at its height, fire broke out in a laundry near the drug store, forcing the band of refugees to leave the building. Water was over the heads of the children, and big, strong men carried them through the streets to the American National Insurance building, where they remained until the storm had passed. The Galveston chief of police is a special friend of Mr. Joyner, and sent the patrol wagon to rescue the family.

Mr. Joyner, at Dallas, who probably was the first man to talk over long-distance telephones to Galveston, put in a call for his wife at 2:30 o'clock Monday afternoon, and conversed with her while she was at the drug store. Mr. Joyner said yesterday that he does not know how the telephone company succeeded in locating his wife, especially as the storm had started and everything was in a turmoil. He complimented the telephone company for its efficiency and called the service rendered a marvelous piece of work.

Mrs. Joyner complimented the men at Galveston when the storm broke, saying they did everything in their power to assist the women and children to gain a place of safety.

Mr. Joyner said in his letter that only the sea wall saved Galveston.

SHE SLASHES THROAT OF DRUNKEN HUSBAND

Columbus, Ga., August 26.—(Special)—Drunkennes could prevail in the home of Lena Miller, colored, if she can prevent it with her strong right arm and a trusty butcher knife. Last night her husband, Joe Miller, went home, strongly intoxicated by alcohol drinks and at peace with all the world, his extreme good nature including even his wife in this category. It is charged that she disapproved of his condition at the extent of assaulting him with a butcher knife with the cross condition of cutting his throat. Miller, although accommodating, felt that there was a limit and resisted assassination. Lena Miller, a woman who called in to her assistance Georgia Goodwin, another negro woman, who held the knife for her while she applied the knife to his throat, according to the police charges. Miller was removed to the city hospital, but subsequently was carried to his home today. His recovery is doubtful.

Automobile v. Bicycle.
 Columbus Ga., August 26.—(Special)—This morning a small negro boy, while speeding down Twelfth street, one of the city's main streets, on a bicycle, ran into a little girl who was crossing the street. The child was killed. A car was knocked down and screamed as she fell. A dozen men ran into the street to assist her, and a crowd gathered to a nearby drug store. The negro boy was seized but in a moment when a crowd gathered he seized the opportunity to escape and speeded out Twelfth street in a manner that would have amazed a baby. The boy was cranked it up and started on Twelfth street after the fleeing culprit. The car then a quarter mile away but the "slow but sure" power of gasoline finally prevailed as the result of a rather classy race out Twelfth street, which won the boy more than did his part, and another was added to the laurels of the Hon. Henry Ford.

BUILDERS' EXCHANGE IS EXTENDING TRADE

Plans Being Laid to Place Georgia Marble and Granite in South American Markets.

As a result of the activities of the Atlanta Builders' exchange, Georgia marble and granite, which are admitted by contractors to be the best in the world, may enter the South American territory, and if they do there will be opened a new avenue of foreign trade in this section which will have potential effects upon the business of Atlanta.

This matter is being handled by the members of the exchange through the bureau of foreign and domestic commerce of the department of commerce at Washington, and the bureau is turning it over to the director of the United States consuls in South American countries. It is their reports and opportunities for the sale of marble and granite in the territories where they are located.

Forms Being Prepared.

The blank form for the questions that are to be answered from time to time by the consuls in South America is now being prepared by Sam Tate, member of the Atlanta Builders' exchange, and as soon as he has written it the form will be sent to Washington to be filled out by the consuls in charge of the Atlanta branch of the bureau of foreign and domestic commerce.

This new field for Atlanta products was first mentioned by the secretary of the Atlanta Builders' exchange in a letter to the department of commerce, in which he said:

"My information is that Italian marble has very largely monopolized the South American trade. It would seem that Italy's participation in war would destroy this feature, and the foreign commerce. Therefore is not this an opportunity for American quarries to send their products into the South American field?"

"Naturally we are interested in this, because of the marble beds in north Georgia and the granite quarries of Stone Mountain and Lithonia."

Indorsed by Brand.

In replying, E. A. Brand, the assistant chief of the bureau of foreign and domestic commerce, coincided with the view that the psychological moment had arrived for entering the South American markets with Georgia products, and he added:

"It might be desirable to call attention to possibilities in the domestic market at present. If Italy is unable to send us the shipments of marble which have amounted to over $1,000,000, annually our American quarries should supply the demand."

In discussing this question yesterday at the Atlanta Builders' exchange, Albert Weblen, president of the Stone Mountain Granite corporation, who is to be found at the exchange when he visits Atlanta, said:

"It seems to me that not only South America but also Central America are splendid fields for our product, and especially at this time of marble shortage. I remember seeing a large quantity of marble, which came from Italy, unloaded from a ship at New Orleans and placed on board trains for Mexico. It was going to the City of Mexico, where it was to be used in constructing the theater at that place. We can compete with Italy, and I am glad to see the movement started."

"When I decided to take a business course I was at a loss to know where to enroll but on investigating, I readily decided on Draughon's. On the completion of my course, the College secured me a position as stenographer with the National Life Association, Atlanta, at an attractive salary, and I have since been made secretary and treasurer. John Hancock—Father of the Revolution

UPON the Declaration of Independence his name may be read without spectacles. His signature was the first subscribed to the world's most famous State document. In the most realistic sense John Hancock pledged his life and his fortune to the cause of the Revolution. He was one of the richest men in the colonies, holding investments in banks, breweries, stores, hotels, and also owning a fleet of vessels. The seizure of one of these precipitated the Boston massacre. In Revolutionary days and until his death he was a popular idol. When it was proposed to bombard Boston, though it would have resulted in greater personal loss to him than to any other property owner, he begged that he be paid to him because of his financial interests. While Hancock did not sign the Constitution of the United States, he used his great influence in its behalf, which awakened the gratitude of Washington. "He was possessing in manner, and passionately fond of the elegant pleasures of life, of dancing, music, concerts, routs, assemblies, card parties, rich wines, social dinners and festivities." Until the end of his life the people of Massachusetts delighted to honor him. In the stirring events preceding the Revolution he was one of the most active and influential members of the Sons of Liberty. To this tireless worker for American Independence Liberty was the very breath of life. He would have frowned upon any legislation which would restrict the natural rights of man, and would have voted NO to prohibition enactments. It was upon the tenets of our National Spoken Word that Anheuser-Busch 58 years ago founded their great institution. To-day throughout the length and breadth of the Free Republic their honest brews are famed for quality, purity, mildness and exquisite flavor. Their brand BUDWEISER has daily grown in popularity until 7,500 people are daily required to meet the public demand. Its sales exceed any other beer by millions of bottles.

GERMAN PROBLEM SOLVED.

When the last American note relative to the sinking of the Lusitania was dispatched to Germany, more than a month ago, The Constitution pointed out that our differences with the country were far nearer solution and much less serious than those with England relative to that country's blockade of neutral European ports against our commerce.

Moreover, we called attention to the fact that Germany had practically conceded our demands in the actual conduct of her submarine warfare, inasmuch as following the first Lusitania note, no further submarine attacks without warning were made upon passenger ships carrying neutrals.

The recent sinking of the Arabic, with the loss of two American lives, seemed antagonistic to this conclusion; and yet we could not feel that after so many weeks of careful conduct of her submarine campaign, when better opportunities for it had been tried and again presented, Germany had at last determined to flout us by an act which, if deliberate, must unquestionably have caused a serious breach between the two governments.

When announcement came of the sinking of the Arabic, as serious as the incident appeared, The Constitution was first to counsel calmness and careful inquiry into all the facts, and from both viewpoints. The wisdom of that advice is now more than apparent. We are given to understand in a specific statement from Imperial German Chancellor von Bethman-Hollweg that if the circumstances of the sinking of the Arabic were comparable to those surrounding the Lusitania the commander of the German submarine violated his instructions and Germany would make reparation accordingly.

The imperial chancellor's statement upon this point is of interest not only as indicating in the strongest possible manner that Germany does not desire a breach with the United States, but as signifying Germany's accordance with our views as to the conduct of marine warfare where neutrals are concerned. The significant feature of his statement is as follows:

Only after all these circumstances have been cleared up will it be possible to say whether the commander of one of our submarines went beyond his instructions, in which case the imperial government would not hesitate to make such complete satisfaction to the United States as would conform to the friendly relations existing between both governments.

There could scarcely have been made a more satisfactory answer to the last American note than this, yet had it not been for the sinking of the Arabic it might have been delayed for months to come.

It is now clear beyond question, as The Constitution has pointed out, that Germany, pending the war, hesitated to make outright admission of her error in sinking the Lusitania and causing extensive loss of neutral life; but that she had evidently determined to satisfy this country by making her submarine campaign conform to our views of it, and to leave final settlement of the Lusitania problem per se for the close of the war.

The unfortunate loss of American life on the Arabic, which is yet to be cleared up, has brought about the necessity for Germany's openly declaring herself as to the principles involved in the sinking of the Lusitania, and the indications are that she will not hesitate to do it in a manner that will be entirely satisfactory to the United States.

Germany's accession to our views of the Lusitania disaster, based upon recognized international law, will go a long way toward restoring the friendship of the two countries to a basis, if anything, even firmer than that which existed prior to the outbreak of the European war.

With the removal of the German problem, whose solution is now in full sight, the way is better cleared than ever for the con-position of our differences with England, which country has dealt a serious blow at one of the foremost of our industries.

England is just as wrong in declaring cotton-contraband, and in blockading neutral European ports against our non-contraband commerce, as was Germany in sinking the Lusitania. We should be equally insistent in the one case as in the other.

The present difference in the two cases is that Germany has receded, while England persists. It is not difficult to see which of the two countries is inclined to be "deliberately unfriendly."

PLENTY OF COTTON MONEY.

Indications point to the fact that there will be more money available for loans on cotton this fall than ever before in the history of the south—a condition undoubtedly made possible through the establishment of the federal reserve financial system.

The federal reserve banks were the first to announce that they were prepared under reasonable conditions and restrictions to finance the cotton crop. The conditions are comparatively simple. They require safe storage, a satisfactory warehouse receipt and adequate insurance. These conditions complied with, they will not hesitate to advance through their member banks, 75 per cent of the market value of the cotton offered as collateral at a rate of interest as low or lower than has heretofore obtained.

Almost concurrent with the announcement of officials of the reserve banks in the cotton-growing sections, Secretary of the Treasury McAdoo stated he would be glad to place with the three reserve banks in the cotton belt $30,000,000 in gold without interest, to be used in making cotton loans.

Secretary McAdoo's decision to place this money without any interest charge will make it possible for the reserve banks to lend it through their member banks at the lowest interest rates.

The Atlanta banks, one after another, with the federal reserve system at their backs, are proposing to lend money on cotton at the rate of 6 to 7 cents per pound and at an interest charge of only 6 per cent per annum. They will do this, of course, through their correspondent banks in Georgia and neighboring states, but in a manner to enable the producer to secure a maximum loan upon the most liberal terms.

The Central bank, the Fourth National and the Third National have announced they will make extensive cotton loans. It is not to be questioned that other Atlanta banks will join them, and that possibly by the time the cotton movement is well under way hundreds of banks over the south will have placed their resources at the disposal of the cotton producer upon the same basis.

Thus it is evident there will be no lack of money in the south this year to take care of cotton upon a basis which must be entirely satisfactory to the producer. He will be able to meet all of his pressing obligations, to take care of himself, and to hold his cotton until such time as market conditions warrant his disposing of it.

ATLANTA'S UNFORTUNATES.

As surprising and shocking as are disclosures regarding the extent of the narcotic drug habit in Atlanta, incident to the efforts to enforce the Harrison law enacted by congress to prevent the indiscriminate sale of such drugs, the problem is not one beyond Atlanta's power to cope with, if handled in the right way.

It is almost impossible to believe that 2,000 persons in this city, one per cent of the total population, are drug addicts, and yet this is the disclosure of the census made in connection with the enforcement of the Harrison law. The large percentage of them are, it is stated, negroes who use cocaine, nevertheless, it deprived suddenly of the drug to which they have been long accustomed, their condition would be even more desperate than that of the average man deprived of food.

It is certain that something must be done to prevent the rapid spread of the drug habit. The Harrison law has been devised to this end, but it is essential that there shall be certain relaxation in its enforcement until the drug habit has been eliminated. It should, and doubtless will, be rigidly enforced to the extent of preventing others from becoming drug users, but it must be relaxed at least to the extent which will permit the emancipation of present unfortunates from the habit.

Fortunately, those charged with the enforcement of the law fully realize this necessity, and are endeavoring to make provision for it through opening the city contagious disease camp, which is not now in use, for that purpose, as a drug treatment station.

If one place in the city is provided where drug habits may be given the "tapering off" treatment as long as they need it, and it is definitely known that all other sources of procuring drugs are closed to them, it is quite possible that the larger percentage of Atlanta's drug addicts may be restored to self-control.

To accomplish this there is needed careful, humane and generous but firm treatment, carried well beyond the period of apparent recovery. That this is the official intention there can be no question. If carried out, and if sources of drug supplies are then permanently closed, much should be accomplished in the reclamation of those now upon the road to a living death.

The Old Thanksgiving Feeling.
Like a breath o' winter
Violence feels the chilly
dew,
But the old Thanksgiving
feelin'
Is a-comin' over you.
You're awake now from yer dreamin'
(Ain't the country lookin' prime?)
On the first of August steamers
(Colonel, when's yer toddy-time?)

Every fife-side hint of glories
Comin' at yer beck an' call,

The dog-eared folks tell of all)
All the hard times wounds are healin',
Storms have left the sky true blue,
An' the old Thanksgiving feelin'

Language Has Limits.
The society editor of The Asheville (Ind.) News thought it was high time to celebrate a marriage like this.
"The bride and groom presented a regal spectacle, never equaled since the proud Cleopatra sailed down the perfumed lotus-bearing Nile in her gilded papyrus boat to meet Mark Antony while all the world stood agape at the unheard of triumph to describe the bride's costume beggars the English language and imagination, falls faint and feeble before the electric radiance of her gorgeous array in a caboch white dress and a pair of lace curtains floated like a dream about her figure."

The Earth-Grabbers.
As to people taking more of the earth than they know what to do with a county correspondent of The Campbell News is reminded of the story of the dog and the railroad train.

An old countryman and his wife lived near the railroad and the dog persisted in charging to the tracks every time a train came. The old man watched the dog chase a train, as usual, and she remarked to her husband: "I wonder why that dog runs after that train so much?"

Said the old man: "I don't know but I've been a wonder in what in the h—l he'd do with it if he ketched it!"

An Autumn Spread.

The Mountain Spout Fire.
From a communication of "Subscriber," to The Murray County Messenger, looking forward to the extra legislative session.
"Cotton went to the mountains, and now we can't raise hogs, cattle nor wool. They want us to starve and freeze to death in the winter, die of rattlesnake bite without whom the damm legislature would have the mountains with the wild cat and stock law and rattlesnakes and no liquor at all!"

The Harvest Herald.
Harvest Herald says, says he
"Summer long you prayed for me,
As you tended well the soil
Prayer was perfect made by toff,
He! I stand and in my hand
Gleams the gold to crown the land,
Open wide the friendly door
Throw some white sand on that floor,
Here's the filler come to play
Hands all round till break o' day!"

The Brickler Vision.

To the Missing Birds.

The bluebird will come to my window in spring
And warble his wild sweet notes,
The mockingbird ever in winter will sing
The thrush and the wren again, and again,
Will sing e'er the snow melts away,
And the fussy jaybird is bound to be heard
In December as well as in May.
But gone from the land is the little jessie,
Gone the source of such innocent joy,
And where, oh where can the woodpecker be
And the bluebirds I loved when a boy?

The sparrow still chirps from peep of the morn
Till shadows of evening fall,
When Chuck-wills-widow, all sad and forlorn
Responds to quaint Whippoorwill's call,
Whistling Bob White with cheering delight
Yet gladdens his lady love
Mong green woodland trees there floats on
The breeze
The sweet plaintive coo of the dove—
But gone from the land is the little jessie,
Gone the source of such innocent joy,
And where, oh where can the woodpecker be,
And the bluebirds I loved when a boy."

The Holland Letter

When the owners of one of the steamship lines which operates vessels navigating along both the Atlantic and Pacific coasts and engaged also in foreign commerce across the Pacific were negotiating, according to reports, for the sale of some, if not all, of its steamers, information came from Boston that capital is sought in that city for the purpose of organizing a steamship line which will operate between Boston and the Pacific coast. The promoter of this Boston plan has referred to his executive duties entailed in carrying out the same as playing the executive whom Charles S. Mellen brought from Minnesota to Boston to aid Mr. Mellen in carrying out great plans for the unification of the New England railroad situation. Mr. Byrnes must have been familiar with steamship navigation through the Great Lakes and perhaps gained by that expert, once knowledge which will make it all the easier for him to persuade Boston capital that the opportunities are excellent for establishing a steamship line operating between Boston and the Pacific coast by way of the Panama canal. Reports have been in circulation that the managers of a steamship company which has long been engaged in commerce between New York and the Pacific coast by way of the Panama isthmus and found it expedient to sell some of its steamships on account of the effect of the so-called La Follette law. Nevertheless, when President Wilson takes up his investigation of the La Follette law with a view of making recommendations to congress in favor of modification of that law, should he find this advisable, certain facts will be brought to his attention which will reveal to him the magnitude of shipbuilding operations in the United States. Those who control shipyards do not appear to find that the La Follette law is an affliction of their work. However, it is not the shipbuilders but those who own and navigate ships, who will be affected, if there is any harmful effect by the La Follette law.

Shipbuilding Progress.

Two or three years ago American shipyards began to bustle because the belief was general that the opening of the Panama canal to navigation would greatly stimulate commerce. The advent of the European war seems not to have affected the shipbuilding business in the United States. The statistics which President Wilson will have at hand will show him that the American shipyards late in June of this year, under construction vessels designed for seaborne navigation, built of steel and iron aggregating sixty with a gross tonnage of nearly three hundred thousand. But the president will have more striking figures than these before him when the details of the construction of vessels which are to navigate the Great Lakes are laid before him. As the so-called "Soo canal has now for some years floated a greater tonnage than any other ship canal in the world—greater even than that of the Suez canal—so also ship construction and the navigation of the Great Lakes represent the most active of that kind in American waters.

Few people realize what important part the tonnage of Great Lakes shipping plays in the aggregate of American commerce. The city of Detroit is the chief source of opportunity for observing the magnitude of the commerce which is carried on through the Great Lakes. There is probably no inland city in the world where a greater commerce passes than is the case with Detroit.

The distinctive character of some of the vessels which are under construction in American shipyards is illustrated by the magnitude of our commerce. For instance, the magnitude of the oil-carrying commerce can best be understood by the statistics which show that in American shipyards there are now under construction twenty-one oil carriers whose aggregate capacity is a little over one hundred and fifty thousand gross tons. This is approximately half of the entire tonnage now under construction.

American shipyards are now constructing six colliers each of which has a capacity of four thousand tons, and an additional five passenger steamers, each of which has a capacity of thirty-five thousand gross tons. About twenty cargo steamers are under construction which are to be used exclusively for freighters and two or three oil carriers when completed, transport molasses in great tanks. In one instance, American shipyards are now occupied in building steamers for foreign nations. In Baltimore, the shipbuilding company is building for Norway two triple-screw, steel steamers designed for the exclusive purpose of transporting oil. This is reported to be the first instance in which an American shipbuilding company has entered into contracts to construct steamers for a foreign nation. Where there is a ship canal of adequate dimensions comparable in size and capacity to the "Soo" canal which connects Lake Erie with Lake Ontario, then there is no doubt that the shipbuilding and the navigation industry of the Great Lakes would be largely increased. Some day undoubtedly a canal will be constructed which will make direct shipments possible for the Great Lakes ports across the ocean to destinations in foreign lands. How inadequate the Welland canal is for Great Lakes traffic to the Great Lakes ports to the ocean or the other way is clearly shown through the experience of the Erie railroad. The interstate commerce commission, in competing the Erie railroad to sell its steamers which operate upon the Great Lakes. These vessels were sold through a company which intended to use them in the coastwise trade. The purpose was to float them through the Welland canal to Lake Ontario and thence by the St. Lawrence river to the coast. But it was discovered that all of those vessels, with a single exception, were too large to navigate the Welland canal. One was too large, but only by considerable manipulation.

PONDEROUS PERSONAGES
HENDRIK HUDSON
By GEORGE FITZEL.
Author of "At Good Old Sitwahk."

Hendrik Hudson was a fearless navigator who sacrificed his life in the interests of geography and died a disappointed man because he wanted to find a northwest passage to China which wouldn't have been worth anything, and instead only succeeded in discovering New York, which teaches us that we should never be dissatisfied with our failures until we have had them assayed by posterity.

Hudson was an Englishman and was known as "Henry" and "Hank" by his boyhood playmates. He prepared himself to be a discoverer but the discovery business was slow in England, so he went over to Holland, where they changed his name to "Hendrik," taught him to wear eleven-ply pants and gave him a life job roaming around the Arctic regions with flimsy ships manned by dissatisfied crews.

Who's the First Lady of the Land?

Well, let's see now. It should be Miss Margaret Wilson, charming daughter of the president. But Miss Margaret has in her head a number of uplift things which must be done and are now being done by her most successfully, all of which take her away from the White House for most of her time, right now, too, when the White House is just beginning to entertain a little after its period of mourning. Who, then, really is the first lady of the land? They say a lovely southern widow comes very close to filling the place. Read Sunday's Constitution and see what you think about it.

his provisions and returned home empty-handed. On his second trip, he landed in a fine harbor and ascended a broad river for a long distance. However, when the river petered out he was still several thousand miles from China, so he named it the Hudson and departed. He mentioned his discoveries casually on his return home and the Dutch built New Amsterdam in consequence. If they had not relied so implicitly on unpreparedness as a defense the English would not have taken it from them and the colonists would probably have had to whip two nations to be free.

In 1616 Hudson sailed on his fourth trip. He forced his little ship into the vast and silent north with a daring only equaled by the motor boat cranks of the present, and after great hardships entered an immense sea. Round and round this sea he sailed, trying to find the way to China, until his impatient crew dumped him into a small boat, and went home with his son and seven sick sailors.

Hudson was never heard from again, but he has survived in history very tenaciously. He has had a bay, a territory a river, a lumber steambark a tunnel, seventy-nine apartment houses, a county and an automobile named after him—all because he died rather than to give up. In order to become immortal it is necessary to be tolerably conspicuous of life and comfort and financial returns.
