Dr. Pratt, Chief of U. S. Commerce Bureau, Tells Bankers "World Markets" Are Replacing the "Home Market."

REAL TRADE BALANCE FOR THE UNITED STATES

Period of Export Capitalism Has Come, Says Dr. Pratt, and We Are at Point of Expanding Into World Markets.

Chicago, January 20.—For the first time in history the United States is "experiencing the sensation of a real trade balance" in its favor, Dr. Edward E. Pratt, chief of the federal bureau of foreign and domestic commerce, told the Illinois Bankers' association at a dinner here tonight.

As a result of developments abroad during the last six months, Dr. Pratt said, "we have turned the corner and are facing a new era of business expansion in this country—an era which has made the term 'home market' obsolete and archaic, and put in its place the unfamiliar word 'world market.'"

EMPIRE LIFE CASE IN HANDS OF COURT

Commissioner Files Intervention Showing the Company's Principal Office Is in Atlanta, Not Augusta.

The opening of the hearing of the case of Judge James R. Brown v. Empire Life Insurance company for the appointment of a receiver was marked Wednesday by a decided sensation when Warren Grice, attorney general of Georgia, intervened in the case by a petition in behalf of William A. Wright, insurance commissioner, withdrawing the allegations upon which the jurisdiction of a bill in equity previously filed by the insurance commissioner in Richmond superior court had been based.

The intervention of the insurance commissioner, which was presented by the attorney general, was filed with Judge W. D. Ellis, of Fulton superior court, Wednesday morning, alleging that a petition had been filed in Richmond superior court by the insurance commissioner, under which petition an order had been passed taking the assets and control of the Empire Life Insurance company out of the hands of the officers and directors of the company and placing the insurance commissioner in charge.

The petition, says the insurance commissioner, had been filed under the misapprehension that the principal office of the company was in Augusta, Ga., but that after the filing of the bill the insurance commissioner had ascertained that the principal office of the company had never been legally removed, and which was always and still is in Atlanta.

Asks for a Receiver. Immediately following the intervention of the insurance commissioner, counsel for Judge James R. Brown presented an amendment to the original petition, charging that the officers and directors of the Empire Life Insurance company had admitted their inability to successfully conduct the affairs of the company, and that there was an emergency for taking the business and assets of the company out of their control and had consented to the proceedings filed in Richmond superior court, which had been amended to include allegations these circumstances as additional grounds for the appointment of a receiver by the judge of Fulton superior court.

The amendment also alleged that the promises of the company held out by Judge Ellis upon the original hearing, and upon which his order had been based, had not been performed and that the company was being abandoned, that the liens upon the Augusta property and upon the Atlanta building were undiminished, that the liabilities of the company had largely increased, and its assets greatly depreciated, with the result that the company was at present insolvent in the sum of approximately $500,000.

Judge Ellis ordered the amendment filed in the original bill, and the demurrers filed in the original bill and to the amendments.

Athens, Ga., January 20.—(Special.)—It is reported here tonight that Herman Hollis, aged 16, shot and killed his 14-year-old brother, Floyd, tonight in the auditorium of the school building at Crawfordville, where the scouts, under direction of Rev. Mr. Burgess, were rehearsing a play.

Three-Year-Old Tot Ticketed AS "Lost Article" After Tour From One End of City to Other

No little boy in Atlanta, who has not yet topped his third birthday, has ever spent a more eventful time than did Master William Isaacs Parks yesterday when he decided to turn his back on the parental roof and started on a journey of discovery.

"Ike" at home where he resides with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph A. Parks, of 41 Eugenia street.

The first stop was made at Down Town to Fryer street. There he saw several men and women boarding an Inman Park trolley car. So he proceeded to climb aboard and was assisted by the accommodating conductor who had no other possible idea than that the baby boy belonged to one of the women passengers. Ike ensconced himself in a comfortable seat and viewed the passing panorama complacently.

At the "Lost Office." There was but one thing to do and that was to take him to the office at Five Points where all articles "found" on cars are left. Conductors are always making many unique finds on the cars, but that was the first time that ever a live baby boy was discovered.

At "Lost office." Ike spent hours playing with a lot of toys which had been found on the cars during Christmas week. He also enjoyed drawing pictures on a scratch-pad, which was furnished for his entertainment.

The police were communicated with. A lost boy had been reported at 146 1-2 Richardson street, but that wasn't Ike. Late in the afternoon the police heard that a lost boy was wanted at 41 Eugenia street. That was Ike and he was taken home by Division Superintendent J. R. Leach, who had in the meantime feasted him on fruit and candy.

BEER PRETENDED SECRETARY, EX-GOV. GLYNN AND OTHERS WERE INTERESTED IN EXPLOITING DOMINGO.

New York, January 20.—William C. Beer, an attorney for the Banco Nacional of Santo Domingo, which has been accused of seeking to exploit public contracts in the Dominican republic, was quoted today at the inquiry into the fitness of James M. Sullivan, American minister to that republic, as having said he expected to share what profits he made in the alleged exploitation with Secretary of State Bryan, Martin H. Glynn, former governor of New York, and Congressman James E. Hamilton of New Jersey.

Mr. E. Davis, of New York, a contractor, testified he had been so informed by Beer. He said that at the time he had taken Beer's statement seriously, but when Senator-elect James D. Phelan, conducting the inquiry, expressed surprise that he had so regarded it, Davis asserted he now believed the statement to be "silly talk."

HE MIXED BRYAN IN GRAFT SCHEME

The testimony of Davis in regard to Mr. Bryan was as follows: "Mr. Beer mentioned Mr. Bryan in this inquiry upon Mr. Bryan's part to share in the profits in any contracting work obtained at Santo Domingo as Mr. Glynn, Mr. Hamilton and myself."

"The witness said Beer asserted that Bryan, Glynn and Hamilton were all interested in seeing Santo Domingo improved, and that arrangements had been made by the administration with the Dominican government for expenditures of $6,000,000 in public improvements."

"I took him to mean Mr. Bryan," continued Mr. Davis. "Did he say Mr. Bryan," asked Mr. Phelan.

ABSOLUTE FALSEHOOD, SAYS EX-GOV. GLYNN.

Albany, N. Y., January 20.—The statement of Mr. E. Davis, in the investigation of James M. Sullivan, American minister to the Dominican republic, that I am interested in Santo Domingo matters is an absolute falsehood, said former Governor Martin H. Glynn, in a statement tonight. "I do not know Mr. Davis and never heard of him before."

UNIFORMITY FIRST!

The standard of public school hours that has prevailed in Atlanta's public school system for fifty years is five and one-half hours—from 8:30 a. m. until 2 p. m., with recesses.

There are now about twenty grades in the white schools aggregating something less than 500 children, taught under the double session plan. This means one set of children come at 8 o'clock and remain until noon. Then another class comes at noon, occupying the same room, and stays until 4 p. m.

In other words, there are about 500 children in Atlanta who are in school only four hours, as against the standard five and one-half hours allotted the vast majority.

In the face of this present inequality, how farcical it is to talk of putting the whole school population of 26,000 upon a morning and afternoon basis.

IF THE CITY CANNOT GIVE 500 OF ITS CHILDREN MORNING HOURS, HOW IS IT GOING TO GIVE 26,000 MORNING AND AFTERNOON HOURS?

Until this injustice is remedied, every argument about double sessions for the entire 26,000 school population is a waste of time. It is based on a fallacy and on a fundamental injustice.

Where is progress and where are reforms when educational facilities are positively retrograding?

It is the primary premise in a democracy that equal educational opportunities are afforded all children of whatever station.

And here we are begged to forget this indefensible inequality, which the board should bend all its energies to remove, while we are led on to heights whence we can see an educational promised land compounded of rainbow and moonshine.

The four-hour double session day was evolved last autumn for the first time in the history of our public school system. It was a product of population outgrowing school facilities, and of the miserly municipal policy of cramming our schools. The original proposition was to compel the same teacher to handle morning and afternoon classes.

The Constitution, seeing the injustice involved to both teacher and pupil, conducted a vigorous and persistent campaign of protest, the righteousness of which council soon saw. The evil was remedied, but only partially.

The forty-five double sessions were reduced to twenty, and teachers were afforded for each session.

But the plea was made that it was impossible to secure room space sufficient to permit morning sessions, with the full standard of five and one-half hours of work, for all the children. So that at present, twenty classes, aggregating something less than 500 children, receive only four hours of instruction, as against the regulation five and one-half hours that has prevailed since the system was established.

It will be time enough to talk about putting 26,000 children on a seven and a half hour basis when the five hundred neglected ones are put on the standard five and a half hour basis.

The finance committee and council should find the money for space and teachers to give each child in Atlanta the same educational opportunity. Incidentally, if the energies spent on exploiting new schemes of education were concentrated on demonstrating to council the inequalities of the present system, we should get results quick enough. Uniformity first—then the frills!

THE RIGHT WAY!

To the Nashville, Chattanooga and St. Louis railway and the Holston National bank at Knoxville, Tenn., is due an enterprise in aid of advanced agriculture which the Constitution hopes to see adopted widely by railways and far-reaching financial institutions throughout the south.

The railway and the bank have each established a Percheron breeding stud, that of the former at Jackson and of the latter at the East Tennessee experiment station, near Knoxville. The studs are to be available to farmers along the right-of-way of the N. C. & St. L., and those convenient to the experiment station. They are to be operated under plans designed by the University of Tennessee. On the part of the railroad, the initiative is chiefly due to E. F. Smith, vice president, and L. P. Bellah, general agent.

The results of this broad-minded policy on the part of a public utility can be made far-reaching. The cost of establishing these studs will be negligible by the side of the ultimate returns which may soon be expected to manifest themselves. The policy is a far-sighted one, so far as the railroad is concerned, since whatever makes for improved agricultural conditions in any territory increases the earning power of the lines serving it.

We commend the foresight of the management of the N. C. & St. L., and the Holston National bank.

If the railways operating in Georgia adopted the same policy with regard to horses and thoroughbred beef shires, they would perform a public service and at the same time build for their own prosperity.

A ROYALIST EXODUS.

A report from Geneva says that many members of the house of Hapsburg, the rulers of Austria, are making large deposits in Swiss banks, and that the Austrian members of the aristocracy are following suit generally with regard to foreign investments.

If the report is well founded, it means just one thing, and that is that those in a position to know in Austria see the end approaching and are preparing to flee, with hoards, abroad to support them when the time for the exodus arrives.

Of course, the Russian hordes could overrun Austria and invest Vienna and Budapest, without dealing the cause of the Teutonic allies a death-blow. But the moral effect would be tremendous. The rumor at least is interesting. The indifferent showing of Austrian arms gives it plausibility.

VON BERCHTOLD.

Count von Berchtold, minister for foreign affairs for Austria, has retired. Historians of the nineteenth and twentieth centuries, and of the European war now raging, will pay a good deal of attention to Von Berchtold. Blame has been variously distributed for the crisis that precipitated the war, but there is very little dissension from the view that Von Berchtold was one of the guiding spirits. His retirement, now, is in the nature of shutting the stable door after the horse has gone.

Von Berchtold, first, has long been one of the most sinister influences in European diplomacy. From the beginning to the end he has been under German influence and in thorough and conscientious sympathy with German militaristic ideals. It is told reliably that his wonderful, and Machiavellian, strategy was the deciding factor in many diplomatic crises not only of the Austro-Hungarian empire, but of Europe as well.

By nature equipped for intrigue, he had at his fingers' ends the arts of persuasion, by direction and indirection. He knew, to the dimensions of a science, the art of playing human passions against each other, of keeping alive hatreds that would otherwise have died of starvation, and of arousing international suspicions where no genuine ground for them existed.

The man's method of reason and his outlook are survivals of the middle ages with their conception of the "divine right" of kings. He held democracy in abomination. The masses of the people were valuable in so far as they forwarded his schemes or, to use the German phrase, furnished "cannonfuter," or fodder for cannon.

It was he, undoubtedly, who dictated the demand, compliance with which meant the national obliteration of Serbia. How shortsighted he was is shown in the fact that the troops of his own nation have been beaten even by the Servians, and have proved more a liability than an asset to their German allies.

The political consequences of his retirement cannot be foretold. Both Germany and Austria are too deep into it to quit fighting now, if they desired. At least an anachronistic and mischievous figure has been officially exiled. Whether his private influence will continue unabated is another question.

In his picture, taken with General Scott, Villa doesn't look as different as he acts.

Doubt that former Governor Bleasie "is to embark in literature." Literature would never pardon him for that.

Another good thing about the country is that it doesn't stand still to hear the philosophers tell how they could run it.

Sympathizers Hurt the South, Anderson Says

(From The New York Times.) The south has been injured by misguided sympathizers, by the buy-a-bale-of-cotton movement, and by newspaper articles setting forth the "poverty" of the people, according to J. G. Anderson, vehicle manufacturer of Rock Hill, S. C., and originator of the plan, which curtailed the cotton growth of the south in 1912 and increased prices at a critical time.

Mr. Anderson is emphatic in his belief that the "troubles" of the south are at least two-thirds "psychological." They will right themselves this year, he maintains. He pointed out yesterday that the south had suffered during the last ten years when cotton sold as low as 5 cents a pound, as against the prevailing 7 to 8 cents which the farmer usually gets.

He said that the cotton now held in the south is worth to the farmer an average of 3/4 cents to the farmer in the end. A rich country like the south, which had the facilities for producing two or three staple crops a year, he said, would never become impoverished under such conditions.

The measure by which he is helping gauges the measure by which the country-at-large is helped.

Based on a loan of $1,000 at 6 per cent, as against 10 per cent, the farmer is paying to usury the difference to the value of a good crop, which the farmer would have had three years the loan runs—think of it!—and then wonder, if you can, not that the small farmer remains in poverty's grip, but that he is out of the bankrupt court.

The statistical branch of the federal government goes to considerable expense each year through specially appointed agents and officers, to get information as to manufacturing articles at the various factories, utilities, and other plants of the country. Their work is very thorough; they go into the minutest details with reference to the number of employees and the rate of wage from the captain of industry to the humblest laborer.

Why is it not perfectly feasible for commissioners to be appointed in like manner to act with state commissioners of various states to arrive at the loan value of various farm within such states?

This information spread on the county record books or given the owner in the form of a government certificate, with an abstract appended thereto, would, in itself, set a loan value on the property, and the farmer, being charged an enormous fee, could obtain a loan at a rate of interest far trap now thought to be necessary and which is chiefly an excuse for such outrageous charges.

Until some needed action is taken, the farmer will continue to be handed the end of the stick, and by the same interests that are dominant in either of the great political parties today.

Instead of grinding the face of the farmer he should be graced, for properly organized he could quote the price of food staples in this country today, and carried out on the same lines he could be a mighty force in shaping the politics of the country.

The impression is being created that a bill has been called on rural credit legislation by the national government, because of the antagonism of large vested interests which do not favor special banking facilities for the benefit of American farmers.

Secretary Hays, in a recent visit to Kansas, in a speech, said: "Farm loans in the future as in the past would largely have to be handled and obtained through private parties and investment companies." This is a statement which need look no further to the national government than it looks to J. F. SAUNDERS, Atlanta, Ga., Jan. 19, 1915.

As to Farm Loans.

Editor Constitution: I have read for some time the letters on the subject of rural credits, your recent fine editorials, also the letters of Mr. Harvie Jordan, Rev. Sam Small and Dr. Royall J. Miller.

They have my ear, the writer is personally interested in a financial way, being a borrower. I might say a victim, I will leave that to the object of this letter is to show by comparison that this section is and has been legislated against for many years, and just as long as the farmer stands for it, just that long he will have to stand for it.

At the outset I will say that in making a comparison of values in farming property I will speak only of states in which I have lived a longer or shorter time and had ample opportunity to judge.

Comparing then—Maryland, Pennsylvania, Virginia, Tennessee, Missouri, Kansas and Georgia—I am persuaded that, everything considered, Georgia is undervalued as to farm lands instead of overvalued. Therefore, a loan on a Georgia farm of 50 per cent of its value should be a good loan.

At 5 and 6 per cent the farmer can live at 10 per cent, if the loan be continued long, you drive a small owner hard against the wall, and if continued long enough, foreclosure and the bankrupt court is staring him out of countenance.

But, says the incredulous, surely the farmer don't pay 10 per cent, does he?

Let me cite a case: A buys a farm from B, pays on the place $500, makes some improvement, and later, by a wrong turn of fortune, cannot meet his other payments; B might carry him, but that is a chance that A does not care to assume. He goes to C for a loan. C has the property examined, charges a commission of 8 per cent and 8 per cent on the loan, the same running for five years. Just figure it out and you will find that the farmer is paying very close to 10 per cent; and I have heard of cases where it is more.

It has been well and truly said that "the farmer feeds us all"—put him out of business, and you have just as surely killed the fowl that lays the egg of gold.

The measure by which he is helping gauges the measure by which the country-at-large is helped.

Based on a loan of $1,000 at 6 per cent, as against 10 per cent, the farmer is paying to usury the difference to the value of a good crop, which the farmer would have had three years the loan runs—think of it!—and then wonder, if you can, not that the small farmer remains in poverty's grip, but that he is out of the bankrupt court.

The West-to-South Highway.

Editor Constitution: To my way of thinking, the article in a recent Constitution from R. L. Williams, Jr., of Macon, Ga., advocating the construction of an airline highway from Atlanta to Macon by the way of Indian Springs, is worthy of an entire editorial page in the Constitution and other dailies of Atlanta and Macon being devoted to this one subject.

This road can be built within a few months, if the daily papers would use one-tenth of the space that was thrown away on the buy-a-bale movement, which, in connection with the howling from the politicians in congress, did more to injure the south than anything since the war.

Being a native Georgian and going over the state, covering practically the entire state in my auto inspecting farms, as I am in the farm loan business, I realize what a great state we have and the tremendous value that good roads would be to our great state.

If the people of the state and the entire south could realize what first-class roads would mean to them in a financial way, they would rise up as a man and have the main roads completed within a short time.

While touring the east this summer in my roadster, based in New Hampshire I learned that, at the least calculation, $25,000,000 was left in New Hampshire within three months by automobile tourists each summer.

I note that Mr. Williams' article states that few people in Bibb and Fulton counties would contribute to this highway. As I make several trips a year in my machine on inspecting trips and sometimes taking capitalists through the states, showing them what we have in the South, I believe it is not difficult to build this road, our company would be willing to contribute $50 or $100.

As it is now, the road between Atlanta and Macon by the way of Griffin is almost impassable in winter and about two miles of the road a little south of Griffin.

Right here is where we are in vital need of a state highway commission with authority to force the different counties to work on the principal connecting lines between the high-traffic centers and country seats. On the principle that I believe we ought to work is "The greatest good for the greatest number of people."

I am glad the Constitution is taking the lead in this matter, and believe that the road ought to be built up without calling for contributions outside, except between Macon and Atlanta and intermediate points—but if necessary to build it, as stated above, on a contract can be counted on for their part of the cost.

MOUTRIE M. SESSIONS, President Sessions Loan & Trust Co. Marietta, Ga., Jan. 18, 1915.

W. Morgan Shuster Declares General Disarmament Impossible.

In his article on "Peace and Disarmament" in the February Century Magazine, W. Morgan Shuster, the recent treasurer general of Persia, asserts that each nation must continue to maintain defensive forces. Supporting his argument, Mr. Shuster says: "No one can know when this war will end, yet every one in the whole world is yearning in his heart for the day of peace to arrive. So we ask ourselves: of what nature will the peace be? And how shall it be permanently secured? And this self-questioning leads to many fond delusions."

Because for the normal yearning for an end to dangerous conditions, and while the whole world is still stunned by the spectacle of a few hundred million people at war, a few super-optimists find breath to say that there will never be another great war, and that the one silver lining to the clouds is the probability of disarmament, partial or complete, after the nations of Europe and Asia shall have fought themselves to satiety, victory, or defeat, as the case may be.

But this hope is so misleading, its inducement so vain, and yet so natural, that it seems proper, even at this indecisive stage of the conflict, to point out some of the reasons why the approaching general disarmament cannot take place.

The term "disarmament" is apt to be used vaguely to represent anything from the cessation of naval construction and the withdrawal of troops from the purely idealistic condition when banners would be furled, standing armies be dispersed to their homes, and war vessels be transformed into commercial craft, or remain dismantled, as interesting relics of a vanished past.

The latter state is manifestly impossible to expect, at least within many decades, that it may be promptly dismissed from consideration. To mention only a few of the material objections: There are millions of men who are substantially untrained in any other profession than that of arms, on land or at sea. Society, industry and commerce have long since adjusted themselves to their existence as a major police force, and to a great extent their preparation for a more successful war would create no little disturbance.

Professional fighters could not be expected to take quietly to mere idleness, even on pay, nor would they be content to be regarded as mere pensioned-off appendages of a peace policy.

Then the preparation of all nations for war, even during periods of peace, has created vast industries, official and private, largely dependent upon the existing armaments, navies being maintained and expanded, and the preparation of a more successful war would create no little disturbance.

"ATLANTA FOR CHRIST" TO BE REVIVAL SLOGAN

Religious Census of the Entire City Will Be Taken on January 30.

Dr. Marion McE. Hull, chairman of the executive committee in charge of the Chapman-Alexander evangelistic meetings, which will be held in Atlanta during the four weeks beginning February 14, announced Wednesday that on the afternoon of January 30 there will be taken a religious census of the entire city. It is planned to complete the census in two hours, and it will be the first of its kind ever made in this city.

Every detail has been arranged by the committee to make this census the most complete count of its sort ever taken in an American city. Every home in Atlanta will be visited by a corps of trained workers, who will seek information concerning the religious affiliations of each household that is expected to help materially in making the coming revival one of the most successful ever held in the south. The slogan of the gatherings will be "Atlanta for Christ."

FAMILY OF INMAN RETURNS THANKS TO MANY FRIENDS

The following card of thanks has been issued by the family of the late Samuel M. Inman for the numerous expressions of sympathy that have been sent to the home and likewise published in the daily press:

"So numerous have been the resolutions and expressions of sympathy on account of the death of Mr. Samuel M. Inman that it would be impossible to acknowledge them separately. We, therefore, desire, in this public way, to express our appreciation and to thank the kind friends whose assistance and sympathy have been such a comfort to us. We have been profoundly moved by the many high tributes that have been paid to his memory and we shall always feel grateful to the generous people of the city and state he loved so well. Master Frank Lake will entertain a number of his young friends at an informal dancing party at the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Lake, on Ponce de Leon avenue.

Suffrage Tea.

The large attendance and great interest manifested in the first of the Wednesday afternoon teas, inaugurated by the ninth ward contingent of the Equal Suffrage Party of Georgia and held at headquarters, 217 Peachtree street, seem to assure the future success of this form of entertainment. The tea-keepers, Misses Caroline and Congratulated themselves upon the marvellous growth of the suffrage movement in Georgia, discussed plans already formulated for an extension of both state and local work, distributed leaflets and pamphlets for circulation and received with delight the announcement of the proposed suffrage school in Atlanta.

To Miss Conroy.

In compliment to Miss Helen Conroy, of East Orange, N. J., who is the guest of her sister, John Morris, Jr., Dr. J. V. Flerson will entertain at the dinner-dance at the Georgian Terrace Friday night.

Reception to O. E. S. Patrol.

On Thursday evening, January 14, Mr. and Mrs. W. R. Neill were hosts to the ladies of the Eastern Star patrol and drill masters, Dr. J. O. Seamans, Dr. F. E. Van der Veer and Mr. Homer Ashford. These gentlemen were presented with handsome scarf pins by the ladies of the patrol as a slight token of appreciation for their great kindness in preparing them for the very beautiful drill presented by this patrol body on the occasion of the Eastern Star ball at the Auditorium on October 28 last. The attractive home of Mr. and Mrs. Neill was decorated with handsome palms and ferns. A delightful buffet supper was served.

Heart-Dice Party.

Miss Eleanor Lawrence entertained yesterday at a heart-dice party at her home in Inman Park. The first prize, a croquetman, was won by Miss Rosebud Bailey, and the consolation prize was cut by Miss Elise Counts.

At the close of the game ices and cakes were served. The guests included the following: Misses Maud Foster, Josephine Wiley, Cecelia Wright, Ruth Hardwick, Eubank, Dorothy Pittman, Lillie Mae Bailey, Rosebud Bailey, Elise Counts, Margaret Chasler, Woodruff, Marion Martin, Virginia Beam, Edwin Hayes and Charles Wells Lawrence.

For Cripple Children Fund.

Through the courtesy of Fielder & Allen, Byrd Printing company and the National Pencil factory, the ladies who are conducting the campaign to raise funds for the aid of epileptic children will be enabled to sell all grades of pencils from their office at 191 Emory building. The project is strictly a business one and will be continued for ten days. Pencils will be sold at regular prices and no orders will be carefully attended to. There is a call for more to solicit orders, which will begin Tuesday morning.

All women's organizations in the city are asked to appoint chairmen to act on committees to assist in the work. Mr. Philip Barbour and Mr. Arthur Heyman have offered the Grand for Sunday, when one of the best moving picture films will be shown from 12 to 10 o'clock. There will be no admission charged but a free will offering will be taken for the fund.

Flag Day in Marietta.

Belgian Flag day will be observed today in Marietta, and Mrs. John Marion Crahan is chairman of a large committee of Marietta ladies who extend to headquarters, 217 Peachtree street, the side of flags for the purchase of supplies in Marietta to be sent the district of Belgium.

The Civic League in Marietta at a meeting this week contributed a generous amount of money to purchase flags and substantial checks have been donated by Miss Cortelou and other well-to-do citizens. The movement is one of the most enthusiastic of all these so successfully conducted in Georgia.

History Classes Entertained.

Mrs. Vasser Woolley entertained delightfully yesterday afternoon at home for the ladies of the Nineteenth Century History class, the occasion assembling also the Evelyn Saturday class and the history class of the Woodruff school. A reading by Miss Carolyn Cobb was the feature, Miss Cobb giving a beautiful paper on the life of the late Mrs. Woodruff. The house had tasteful decoration in American Beauty roses and carnations, and a dainty luncheon was served.

Miss McCarty's Luncheon.

Miss Mignon McCarty will entertain a luncheon today at home to compliment to Miss Hazen, of Orange, N. J., and to the guests of the house party. Miss McCarty attended last week in Trifton, when Messrs. Ames and Willingham gift were the hosts. Miss Marion Goldsmith, Miss Mary Sturtevant and Mrs. Thomas H. Daniel, covers will be laid for ten.

To Miss Hazen.

In compliment to Miss Mildred Hazen, of Orange, N. J., who is the guest of Miss Mignon McCarty, Mr. Curry Moon will entertain on Friday night at the dinner-dance at the Georgian Terrace.

Xmas Cantata Repeated.

The Ponce de Leon Avenue Baptist church choir will repeat, by special request, the beautiful Christmas cantata, "The Eve of Grace," by J. S. Matthews, at the 7:15 p. m. service Sunday, January 24. The public is cordially invited. Mr. Walter Peck Stanley, A. A. G. O., is organist and choirmaster.

To Miss Le Gost.

Mrs. George Forrester will entertain the members of her senior class this morning at the home of her visitor, Mrs. Adolph Le Gost, of New York.

Board of City Missions.

The board of city missions met at Wesley house on Tuesday morning. After the reading of reports, the annual election of officers resulted as follows:

CALVIN HUNNICUTT, PIONEER, IS DEAD

Funeral Services Will Be Held Friday Morning at 10:30 O'Clock at the First Methodist Church.

Calvin Welborn Hunnicutt, Atlanta's oldest pioneer citizen and one whose efforts in business and public life have aided strongly in the upbuilding of the city, died of pneumonia shortly after noon Wednesday at his home, 848 Spring street. Had he lived until February 27 he would have been 88 years old.

The funeral will be held Friday morning at 10:30 o'clock at the First Methodist church. Dr. H. M. DuPose and Dr. W. E. Glenn will officiate, and interment will be in Oakland cemetery.

Mr. Hunnicutt was a man of many friends, and his death brings sadness to hundreds of hearts in this city.

In 1857, Mr. Hunnicutt married Miss Letitia Payne, who died September 24, 1886. He leaves one son, J. E. Hunnicutt, and three daughters, Mrs. Albert Green, Mrs. Letitia A. Drake and Mrs. W. R. Prescott. An elder son, L. L. Hunnicutt, and a daughter, Mrs. Charles O. Tyner, died several years ago.

Citizen of Mariettaville. He came to Atlanta in 1847, when the town was known as Mariettaville, and lived here continuously except for a few months when he clerked in a store in Cartersville.

Mr. Hunnicutt was born in Mecklenburg county, North Carolina, February 27, 1827. With his parents he moved to Cobb county, Georgia, in 1838. In 1847 he came to Atlanta and worked in the clothing store of Haus & Levi for his board. After two months' trial his employers gave him $12.60 a month at a branch store in Cartersville, Ga. In 1848 he returned to Atlanta and worked for the same employers until 1852, when he opened a dry goods and clothing store with John Silvey under the firm name of Hunnicutt & Silvey. He disposed of that business in 1853 to D. O. Dougherty and entered the drug business with Dr. James A. Taylor. In 1856 he embarked in the plumbing business, and the firm of Hunnicutt & Boringhath was for many years one of the best known concerns in the city.

Only twice did he enter public life, although often urged to accept places in the city council in 1855, and in 1857 he was one of the Fulton county commissioners for fourteen years, and held its chairmanship for eight years.

When the civil war broke out Mr. Hunnicutt organized the Fulton Dragoons, a cavalry company, and was elected captain, but resigned his office for his friend, Caleb Whaley, and became a lieutenant. Later he went to the front and served in a few of the medical department of the confederate army.

At the beginning of the war found him worth about $65,000, which he had made by hard work and industry. He was a member of the Georgia Agricultural Society and had to start life over again, but he was undaunted and was soon a successful grower of corn in a few months which had been devastated by war but

After all, one of the chief pleasures in life is that of appearing in an attractive manner, as possible. "Brownstone" Hair Tint will help you in just this emergency. With it you can touch up the gray spots instantly, and you can in a few moments give to your hair that rich, soft brown, so much to be admired. Or you can make it a glossy black if that is preferred. All this without the possibility of detection, failure or harm to either hair or scalp.

No previous experience whatever is necessary when you use "Brownstone." It is so simple that a child can use it. A sample and a booklet will be sent upon receipt of 10 cents.

Wherever you find drug stores sell "Brownstone." Two sizes, 25c and $1. Two shades—one for golden or medium brown, and the other for dark brown or black. Insist on "Brownstone" at your hair-greaser's.

Hair Tinting Made Easy

Many thousands of women have put up with streaked and gray hair because they knew of no absolutely safe way to overcome the robber of youth and attractiveness.

which was, like himself, to rise above disaster and ruin.

Retired From Business. Mr. Hunnicutt retired from an active business life fourteen years ago, leaving a large home and great wealth.

He was a steward and lifelong member of the First Methodist church, was a charter member and past master of Atlanta lodge of Masons, and was a member of the Pioneer Citizens' society of Atlanta.

In a history of pioneers of Atlanta it was written by one who knew him: "Calvin Hunnicutt is distinctly a business man, a man whose efforts have tended to build up Atlanta and make a great home for the people when the place consisted of only cross-road stores and has always had faith that the city would grow to a large and prosperous metropolis. Modest, plain and unassuming, he has worked his way to his present independent position, respected of the whole community."

BEAUCHAMP, LANFORD FACING LOSS OF PLACES

Reports around the city hall since the first of the year have effected George H. Beauchamp, chief clerk in the assessors' office, and Tom Lanford, superintendent of the city stockade, are to be retired within a few weeks.

Beauchamp has been chief clerk to the assessors for years. He receives a salary of $2,000 a year, and is regarded as the most competent and efficient official connected with the city government. Superintendent Lanford has been at the head of the stockade for years, and receives $1,800 a year. Both are elected by council committees, but in Beauchamp's case he is nominated by the tax assessors and the election is ratified or rejected by council.

New York, January 20.—An early decline in cotton was followed by a very sharp recovery during the active months sold a point or two above the previous best level of the season with the close at a net advance of 13 to 15 points.

There was a renewal of yesterday's advance during the early trading hours, and after opening steady at unchanged prices the market advanced 7 points, the market sold about 5 to 10 point net. Rather a sharp break in Liverpool followed, but the market recovered and advanced 10 to 15 points.

Another carry of cotton is said to have arrived safely at Bremen, and houses with German connections were again connected with buying on the advance here this afternoon. Some authorities are predicting an unusually active demand for linters at the close of the season.

The strength of southern spot markets, the indifference of demand for export were sustaining factors of importance. The only bearish feature in the market was a faint hint, owing to the prolonged rise in prices, landings in some sections of cotton with their tenants later in the session, was added buying for the account of prominent spot buyers.

In the afternoon the market developed considerable activity and there was a net advance of 15 points. The liquidation which has been in evidence during the last few sessions this morning and afternoon was chiefly for long accounts and inadequate to fill the demand.

WHEAT CORN OATS TRIPPED LOSSES AT CLOSED HIGHER

Stock Market Active Late in Day—Early Decline Recovered on Heavy Buying. Many Issues Gained.

New York, January 20.—There were indications at odd moments of today's stock market that the general advance of absorption had been reached, but these were dispelled in the later dealing. The market closed higher, with wheat, corn and oats, all showing a marked decrease from the preceding day's extraordinary activity, but this was more than offset by the gain in bonds, the business in these securities aggregating the largest amount of any day since the exchange reopened.

Aside from continued activity in Missouri Pacific stock and bonds at advancing prices, low priced stocks were less in evidence than has recently been the case. In fact, many shares constituting that group were dull and lower. Rumors were reflected in the market that the Missouri Pacific Steel, common, was inclined to drop, on rumors that no dividends would be paid for a long time.
