

LEO FRANK'S THROAT CUT BY STATE FARM PRISONER

Grave Element Is Added By Attack on the Orduna To the Strained Relations Of America and Germany

Should the First Reports Be Confirmed by Official Investigation the Incident Will Greatly Influence the President and Cabinet in Formulating Next Step Regarding the Activities of German Submarines.

THEORY THAT GERMANY HAD CHANGED METHODS DISSIPATED BY ATTACK

Washington Is Shocked by Attack on Vessel After Information From Berlin That the Submarine Commanders Had Been Warned to Exercise Great Care. Incident Increases Uneasiness Felt Since Last German Note Failed to Give Assurances Asked by the United States.

Washington, July 17.—Into the grave situation that has developed between the United States and Germany over the sinking of the Lusitania was thrust another issue today, when it was revealed that the British steamer Orduna, carrying a score of Americans, had been attacked by a German submarine.

Should first reports of an attempt to torpedo without warning be borne out by the official investigation about to be instigated, it was indicated in official quarters that the United States probably would regard the incident as adding a grave element to the already strained relations between the two countries.

Lacking information as to the circumstances of the attack, officials were unable to predict tonight to what extent the Orduna case would aggravate the situation, but they thought the question would certainly compel serious consideration by President Wilson and his cabinet in formulating the next step in the policy of the United States toward the activities of German submarines and the safety of Americans on the high seas.

GERMAN PRACTICES REMAIN THE SAME.

Although the Orduna escaped unhurt, this, in view of officials, does not relieve the case of grave possibilities. The fact that a belated merchant ship, bound for the United States with Americans on board and without arms and ammunition or contraband

The Season of Change

People shake themselves out of fixed habits in the summer months. They move about more.

They devote less time to work and more to recreation.

It seems natural that they should be particularly open to changes in their buying routine and that warm weather would be a good time to advertise.

To the strangers passing through the city your message in the advertising columns of The Constitution would be a new one.

They would be attracted by it.

And our own people, during the changeable season, are more in the mood for shopping round.

The Constitution brings a high percentage of returns because it reaches people who have money to spend.

BY HALF SECOND ORDUNA ESCAPED LUSITANIA'S FATE

Torpedo Fired by German Submarine Churned the Water Ten Feet Behind the Liner's Rudder.

PASSENGERS SLEEPING WHEN ATTACK WAS MADE

Twenty-Two Americans on the Ship—Baroness Rosenkrantz, Formerly Miss Rebekah Lowe, of Atlanta, on Board With Her Husband. Thrilling Story of Liner's Escape.

New York, July 17.—The Cunard liner Orduna, from Liverpool to New York, with 127 passengers, including twenty-two Americans, was attacked without warning, it was learned on her arrival here today, by a German submarine on the morning of July 9.

Twenty miles from the graveyard of the Lusitania, off Old Head of Kinsale, the Orduna escaped the Lusitania's fate by one-half second of time or ten feet of space. The German torpedo churning the water that distanced behind the liner's rudder. Then the Orduna sped away. She was followed by the submarine, which rose to the surface, manned a gun and shelled the fleeing steamer.

PASSENGERS MOSTLY ASLEEP.

The attack was timed at 5:50 o'clock in the morning, when all but a few of her passengers were asleep. Aroused by stewards, the passengers dressed hurriedly and went to the upper deck, where they donned life belts and took their places at the lifeboats. They heard the scream of the shells and saw the ocean spit up columns of water where the missiles struck. When the fire grew hot, they were ordered, for their own protection, to the next deck below.

For half an hour the Orduna showed her heels to the assailant. Through marine glasses the passengers watched the low-lying German warship coming on with a lunge in her teeth, but the Orduna's flight was faster than the pursuit, and after seven shots had been fired, without effect, the submarine gave up the chase.

A wireless call for help was sent out by the Orduna when the torpedo was seen. She was then 37 miles south of Queenstown. The reply, Captain Taylor says in his official report, was that help would be given within an hour. It was four hours before the first British vessel, a small armored yacht, the Jeannette, appeared.

AMERICAN OFFICIAL TO MAKE PROTEST.

Protest will be made to the American government by at least one citizen of the United States and possibly others, who were aboard. William O. Thompson, of Chicago, counsel to the federal industrial relations commission, who went abroad in his official capacity last March, and was returning to make his report, is the passenger who said today that he would make vigorous protest to his government.

As an American citizen, employed in an official capacity by the government to go abroad, I feel that I should bring the government's attention to the attack," said Mr. Thompson.

"I felt that I had a right to return home on the Orduna, although she is the British flag, because she is

Jugular Vein Severed Partially, Has Slight Chance For Recovery

Attacked by William Creen, Convicted Murderer, at 11:10 Last Night, Frank's Condition Is Critical, According to Prison Officials. Was Asleep in Prison Dormitory When Creen Rushed Upon Him—Physicians Sew Up the Wound and Operation May Save Life.

"SEEMS THAT THEY HAVE GOT ME," HE MUTTERED WHEN DISCOVERED BLEEDING ON FLOOR BY GUARDS

Creen Made Attack With Butcher Knife Smuggled Into Prison—Rushed Upon Him in Dark. Frank, Though Weak and Sinking Slowly, Retains Consciousness and Directs Physicians How to Stop Flow of Blood—Creen Confesses, and Says He Is Sorry.

Milledgeville, Ga., July 18.—At 3 o'clock this morning Dr. Compton, the prison surgeon, stated that Frank's chances for recovery are slight.

"There is danger of blood poisoning," said the doctor. "There is danger of the stitches in the jugular vein slipping, either one of which might cause death."

Milledgeville, Ga., July 17.—Leo M. Frank, serving a life imprisonment sentence for the murder of Mary Phagan, a 14-year-old Atlanta factory girl, was attacked and his throat cut by William Creen, a fellow prisoner, at the state prison farm here. Physicians announced late tonight that the wounded man's condition was serious, but that he had a chance to recover.

The attack on Frank was made while he was sleeping in the prison dormitory in company with the other inmates. The knife used was made of a file and had been used by the prisoners in killing hogs during the day. Frank's throat was cut for a distance of several inches and the jugular vein partially severed.

Some animosity has been shown Frank since he arrived at the state prison farm after his death sentence was commuted to life imprisonment, but the prison officials said tonight that they had not thought for an instant that an attack would be made on him.

William Creen, 45 years old, who is doing a life term from Columbus, Ga., on a charge of murder, has confessed to cutting Frank's throat. Creen has been put in a dungeon.

Doctors completed sewing up the wound in Frank's throat at 1:15 o'clock this morning. They had joined the jugular vein and they believed the operation was successful. Frank was taken to the hospital. He was still conscious.

The inmates of the prison occupy one large room at night, a sort of a dormitory, where the strictest of rules are observed by the prisoners. All are allowed the freedom of the floor until 8 o'clock, but after that hour a prisoner is not allowed to move without permission from a guard.

The attack on Frank tonight came so quick that no guard had time to interfere. Creen is alleged to have drawn the knife from his prison clothing, where he had secreted it for the murderous attack, and uttering a curse, thrust it across the throat of Frank, the attack being from behind.

Frank fell to the floor, uttering a cry of pain. The lights were quickly switched on and the guards saw him prostrate upon the floor, blood spurting from his wounds, while a prisoner was trying to make his way back to his bed.

A knife that had been made of a file and which the convicts used in killing hogs during the morning was

"At Peace With God, Ready To Die," Says Leo M. Frank, Wants Assailant Pardoned

Milledgeville, Ga., July 17.—After Frank's wound had been dressed, he turned to the physicians attending him and asked: "Am I going to die?" "We don't know," said Dr. George B. Compton, the prison surgeon. "If I am going to die," replied Frank, "I am not afraid. Nothing stands between me and God. I hope that the man who attacked me will be forgiven."

If Frank survives the attack it will be because of the prompt attention given him by Dr. McNaughton, it was stated here tonight. It was only two or three minutes after Frank was slashed before Dr. McNaughton had had him carried to his room, and had begun his attempt to stop the hemorrhage.

found on the floor of the prison where the attack occurred. How the knife was smuggled into the prison is a mystery.

GUARDS FOUND FRANK'S CONDITION ALARMING.

The guards found Frank's condition alarming. Prisoners were excited. Dr. George B. Compton, the prison surgeon, was immediately called, but before he could reach the prison dormitory, two well-known Georgia surgeons who are serving terms in prison were at Frank's side, administering first aid to the wounded man.

One of these physicians is Dr. J. W. McNaughton, of Swainsboro, who is doing a life term for murder, having been sent to prison after four trials, and the other physician who attended him first was Dr. L. M. Harrison, of Columbus, doing a long term.

"I guess they've got me," Frank is quoted as having uttered to the doctors who stood over him.

Frank was conscious from the start and continued to talk. He suggested to the doctors how the flow of blood could be stopped. He was gradually growing weaker.

Within a few minutes Frank was placed in the operating room in the hospital department of the prison. Dr. Compton, the prison surgeon, assisted by the two doctors who are doing time there, started to sew up the wounds.

At 1 o'clock this morning Frank was still on the operating table in the hospital ward of the prison. Doctors had not succeeded in stopping the flow of blood, but they had checked it. Frank was growing weaker at that time, but was still conscious.

Prison officials who had been with the doctors during the operation stated that Frank had a chance to recover, but they admitted that it was a small chance.

GREEN SERVING LIFE SENTENCE.

William Green, who attacked Frank, was sentenced to a life term in prison from Muscogee county (Columbus) on June 13, 1913.

Leo M. Frank was brought to the state farm in the early morning of June 21, after a midnight flight from the Fulton county jail in Atlanta, by a train to Macon, Ga., and thence by automobile to the prison.

A few hours after his arrival here it was officially announced that the then Governor Slaton had commuted his sentence to life imprisonment.

After his arrival here Frank insisted that he would in time prove to the world that he was innocent of the charge of having murdered Mary Phagan, the 14-year-old Atlanta pencil factory girl.

Less than a week ago the state militiamen here and at Macon were ordered held in their armories, a report having reached the ears of state officials that an attempt would be made to force an entrance to the state prison, get Frank and lynch him.

SORRY I DID IT, DECLARES CREEN.

While Frank was on the operating table, Warden Smith and other prison officials had Creen brought before them and his statement was taken.

"I'm awfully sorry that I did this," he said. "At the moment I thought that I was doing what was right. I thought that I was doing something that ought to be done."

"If I had to do it again I wouldn't do it for anything in the world. I am especially sorry that I attacked Frank, now that I realize the seriousness of the crime. I am sorry because of the criticism that it may bring on the officials of the state farm, especially of Warden Smith. I wouldn't do a thing in the world to injure him in his position. He had confidence in me, and I have violated that confidence. I am ready to suffer the consequences."

Creen was questioned to some extent as to how he attacked Frank. He said that Frank lay asleep in the bed in the dormitory of the prison where there were a hundred others. He slipped up behind Frank in the darkness and slashed his throat. There was only one knife wound. Frank was asleep when attacked.

Immediately after Creen had made his statement he was taken to the basement of the prison, where he was placed in solitary confinement. He was also put in irons. The cell in which he is confined is of concrete and steel. It is practically a dungeon, although not so termed by prison officials.

CONFESS TO MANY BURGLARIES HERE

Harris Mason, Age 23, Who Is Now in Police Toils, Claims to Have Committed Series of Crimes.

With finger tips sandpapered to the quick after the fashion of Jimmie Valentine, Harris Mason, age 23, of Orlando, Fla., alias Herty Lou, who began his spectacular career as a professional crackman at the age of 13 in Chicago, Ill. where, the police say, he shot down a 'blue coat' in an encounter with the 'bulls' while doing his first job in a small bank there, has robbed many safes in Atlanta according to his confession to Chief of Detectives Newport Lanford and City Detectives B. P. Gillette and J. L. Vickery at police barracks last night.

Life of Yeggman Gay. "The life has been a gay one," said Mason who is a tall well built lad of dark complexion. "There has always been plenty of money to burn plenty of girls to love, plenty of liquor to drink plenty of thrilling experience, but I no more that I am going to pay for."

Several times I have made up my mind to settle down but have been unable to find my sweet little wife and baby girl, who several years ago was the Chicago detective who single-handedly made me because of the life I was leading."

Mason was discovered sleeping in a vacant house on Rhinehardt street early Saturday morning by police officers A. F. Ford along with another lad who gave his name as Irving Wood. They were sent into police barracks and the charge of loitering docketed against them.

Years ago Detective John Starnes was in Chicago when a policeman was shot twice by a boy yeggman at a small bank, two bulls' having raided the youngsters. The boy yeggman had the Chicago detective who single-handedly made me because of the life I was leading."

For ten long years Detective Starnes had carried that picture. Calling Mason to his side, after going to his private desk, Detective Starnes confronted him with a picture of himself taken when a boy yeggman in the Chicago detective had managed to force Mason's boy-yegg pal, who was captured, to tell where it could be obtained.

Mason confessed to this crime late last night, after scores of Atlanta robbers had been charged to him by the detectives, and he had been forced to confess to them. It was that same night that he was arrested that he had robbed a safe of $38 under the shadow of police hands in the European delicatessen, 120 Decatur street. Here Mason overlooked $380 which he left in the safe, which he had entered by the Jimmie Valentine sandpapered finger tips method.

Series of Robberies Traced. Other Atlanta robberies placed upon him, to which he confesses are the Rosenfeld robberies 100-8 Madison avenue, where his tracks on the floor led to a muddy night, betrayed him Saturday Samuel Wilkins store, 27 1/2-28 street where Mason broke his nitro glycerin spray cast it underneath the safe where the detectives found the next morning the combination lock the safe with his finger tips, which he sandpapered to the quick to feel the delicate click of the combination as he turned it around Dittler Bros. 218 East Hunter street where he secured the loot for his pants. West End Pharmacy corner of Gordon and Leo streets where $116 was taken, after Mason had entered the store by cutting a telephone wire by which he let himself down the skylight a coffee house at 44 Edgewood avenue where he secured $30 John J. Woodie's warehouse Edgewood avenue, where he robbed the safe of $700 worth of worthless deposit checks, and three Decatur street warehouses.

His Pal Not Implicated. Wood is not implicated in any of the robberies by his own confession, although Mason involves him in one robbery. Mason states that during his ten years as a crook he has robbed no less than 180 safes, and secured fully $25,000 the most of which he declares, he sent to his old mother in Orlando.

Eight months ago he secured $800 from a store at Milledgeville, Ga. and five years ago from this same place he robbed a store, securing $400.

Worked Many Cities. From a Cartersville, Ga., store he recently secured $175. From a gent's furnishing store at Savannah, Ga., six years ago he secured $400. He says he has worked in Jacksonville, St. Louis, Cincinnati, Memphis, Chattanooga, Kansas City, San Francisco, Dallas, New York and scores of other cities. In June of 1913 he secured $3,000 with Will Jones, another yegg, from a bank at Apopka, Fla. A short time ago he robbed a warehouse near Rome, Ga. Mason came to Atlanta last April

Accused by Young Daughter Maine Survivor Charged With Murdering His Wife

Rome, Ga., July 17.—(Special.)—Billy Brown, a Maine survivor was arrested tonight three miles from here charged with killing his wife, and jailed in Rome.

Last Monday Brown told the sheriff that his wife had abandoned him and three little children to go with another man. The story was believed and he gained the sympathy of people at his home eight miles from Rome. Then his child, 3 years old, told neighbors she had seen her father kill her mother with a razor and buried her after cutting apart her body. The wife's father R. L. Stone had quarreled with Brown three miles from here and Stone overpowered Brown tied him brought him to Lendale in a wagon, kept him tied all night and released him Friday morning. Brown then had Stone arrested for assault.

Continued the latter says by the child's story Stone today swore to a warrant for Brown's arrest on a charge of murder.

The body of Mrs. Brown is being hunted tonight and the neighborhood at Brown's home is aroused.

with a determination to go to work and settle down. He worked for the city cleaning concrete forms, but this work gave out at the end of three weeks and he went back to his old life again.

CAMPAIGN TO EXCLUDE COTTON FROM GERMANY

London July 17.—Sir William M. Ramsey, the well-known British scientist discussing today the statement of W. F. Reid, that cotton is not necessary for production of high explosives, renewed his campaign for the supreme necessity for excluding cotton from our enemy's supply.

In charging shells while Sir William referred to firing the charge when he said that modern propulsive explosives are not made without cotton.

Sir William asserts that during May nineteen times as much cotton as its normal supply is allowed to enter Holland and adds:

It is certain that it passes into Germany, although maybe indirectly. We wish to see the fighting against our lives. We indirectly are killing our own men.

The scientist concludes that when exportation of cotton to the central powers is stopped it will not be long before we see the end of the war.

TRANSFUSION TREATMENT.

An effort was being made at the time The Constitution went to press this morning to secure an Atlanta surgeon to go immediately by automobile to Milledgeville to attempt to save the life of Leo M. Frank by a transfusion of blood.

Solicitor Hugh Dorsey first learned of the attempt on the life of Frank from The Constitution, and expressed surprise. He said he had no statement to make at that time and probably would have nothing to say on the matter.

"I don't see that there is anything for me to say," said Mr. Dorsey. "I would like to know more of the facts in the case."

Solicitor Dorsey stated that in the event Frank succumbed to his injuries that his assailant could be tried for murder and if convicted could be sentenced and hanged. He said that the fact that Creen was serving a life term for murder did not prevent his being tried for a subsequent offense.

When notified by The Constitution of the affair Harry A. Alexander, attorney for Frank, said that he had no statement to make.

Attorney Luther Z. Rosser was asked for a statement, but he stated that until he knew more of the details he had nothing to say.

"If the poor fellow dies I may have some statement to make," said Mr. Rosser.

Finest Corn Crop in History Of Georgia, Say Gainesville "Boosters" After Big Tour

By J. Walter LeCraw.

North Georgia's corn crop is the finest in the history of the state, with an increase of at least 25 to 25 per cent over last year, according to the news brought in by the Gainesville boosters, who have just completed a three days automobile tour of north Georgia.

As a result of their observations they also declare that the cotton crop throughout the section traversed is at least 20 per cent smaller than the crop of the year before, indicating that at least in the northern part of the state the effort which Georgia has been making since the European war broke out to displace "King Cotton" and exalt "King Corn" has been to a large extent successful.

Thomas M. Bell, congressman from the ninth district, who made the entire trip with the boosters, declared that the prosperous condition of the fields along the route was an eye opener.

"It's the finest corn crop the state has ever produced, if the fields we saw are a true barometer for the rest of Georgia," said Congressman Bell. Among the other enthusiasts who joined him in outspoken praise of the corn crop were B. S. Barker, president of the Gainesville Chamber of Commerce; A. S. Hardy, editor of The Gainesville News; J. Fletcher Carter, secretary of the chamber; John H. Hoach and G. C. Reed.

Went to See for Themselves.

The two hundred some-odd residents of Hall county who made the trip started out from Gainesville Thursday morning with the avowed intention of "seeing for themselves" just what kind of a crop north Georgia was going to produce this fall, and from all expressions heard everybody was satisfied with the looks of things.

The Gainesville Chamber of Commerce, which inaugurated the boosters' tour, did so for a twofold purpose—to bring the residents of the entire section closer together, and thus to boost north Georgia, and also in order to let the Gainesville people learn everything possible about the entire section of north Georgia. The remarkable success of the tour is proven by the fact that an active plan has already been instituted to make the tour was entered in the tour by the North Georgia Agricultural college, at Dahlonega, which spread literature of the institution along the entire route. No one feature of the entire party attracted more attention than the band itself, which played at nearly every town the party passed through, and seemed to never get tired. The members of the band, Roy George and Roy Newman, were highly praised by every one for the patriotic work of the organization.

Among those who are given principal credit for the success of the tour are B. S. Barker, J. Reed and J. Fletcher Carter, the officers of the Gainesville Chamber of Commerce; A. S. Hardy, of The News; C. Rudolph, former secretary of the chamber; B. M. Stallworth, head of the Pacolet cotton mills and former president of the chamber; E. R. Barrett, Sam Brown, H. H. Estes, John H. Hoach, B. H. Merck and H. M. Newman.

Leave for Home.

"Bright and early," as is the custom in the mountains of Hall county, the Gainesville "boosters" tourists arose and checked out from the Piedmont hotel at daybreak Saturday night. At night the last lap of their three-day trip over northeast Georgia.

The tour extended into the heart of the mountains Saturday, taking in Dahlonega, Roswell, Murrayville, Aurora and back to Gainesville at night. The "boosters" tour will live in north Georgia history as one of the biggest undertakings of the Gainesville Chamber of Commerce—and one of the most momentous in that part of the state.

DAHLONEGA ENTERTAINS GAINESVILLE BOOSTERS

Dahlonega, Ga., July 17.—(Special.)—The Gainesville boosters arrived here at 5 o'clock from Atlanta, Cumming and Dawsonville. A number of local cars went out here to greet the boosters and escort them to this city. Refreshments and speeches were given before the boosters put on their best dress for the occasion. The visitors were kissed by mountain girls on arrival, and the perfume of forests drew a sigh of regret from the guests as they left The Atlanta spirit still pervaded the entire party.

AID IS PROMISED FOR COTTON CROP

State Department Assures Atlanta Chamber Every Effort Is Being Made to Help Dixie Farmers.

Assurances from the state department at Washington that it was keenly alive to the difficulties experienced in the south in making shipments of cotton to Europe and that it was doing all that could be properly done to relieve the situation were received yesterday by the Atlanta Chamber of Commerce in reply to a telegram addressed to President Wilson several days ago.

While it was impossible for the department to outline the methods by which the embargo would be lifted by England, the department stated that the chamber could rest assured "that strong representations looking toward the protection of the interests of this important commodity and those connected with it are being and will be made." The letter also stated that the department was attempting to find through its consular officers any openings for cotton in foreign countries which would relieve the situation due to decreased exportation to Europe.

Letter to Cooper.

The letter from the department of state to Secretary Walter G. Cooper follows:

DEPARTMENT OF STATE, WASHINGTON, July 14, 1915.

Mr. W. G. Cooper, Secretary Atlanta Chamber of Commerce, Atlanta, Ga.

Sir: The department acknowledges the receipt of your telegram dated July 2, 1915, directed to the president of the United States in regard to the difficulties being experienced in making shipment of cotton to Europe at this time.

There are enclosed copies of the British order in council of March 11, 1915, and the department's reply thereto. The British order in council is still the subject of diplomatic discussion between this government and the government of Great Britain.

The department keenly appreciates the difficulties surrounding the exportation of cotton from this country and is endeavoring to do all that it properly can to relieve the situation.

While it is not possible to outline the exact methods to be pursued by the department you may rest assured that strong representations looking toward the protection of the interests of this important commodity and those connected with it are being and will be made. Further than this assurance, the department would not care to indicate the method at this time.

Realizing the limitations of the market for cotton-raising from the war situation the department has from time to time called for reports of the market for cotton in foreign countries in order to consult officers stationed abroad with a view to indicate any possible openings for cotton that might relieve the situation due to the decreased exportations to Europe.

Copies of these reports may be obtained from the bureau of foreign and domestic commerce of the department of commerce.

How and Why, —the GOODRICH "Fair-List" Propaganda now saves Car-Owners, yearly, over $25,000,000 on Tires

THERE are 1,923,951 Automobiles now State-licensed, and running, in the United States.

Of these, 1,803,951 are Pleasure Cars—i. e., exclusive of Trucks, etc.

More than 90% of them, or about 1,623,555, use Pneumatic Tires. Each car will wear out and replace on average, about one Set of Four Tires per year.

Therefore, the interests of each Car-Owner as well as each Car-Manufacturer, each Car-Dealer, and Salesman, is vitally and personally affected by the price of Tires to Consumers.

Because—Tires and Gasoline are the two big items of consumption in the operation of Motor Cars.

The Owner who used his Car 1,000 Miles less per year, than he would have done, because of the "high-price of Tires and Gasoline," received that much less return from his entire investment in the Car proper.

The potential, or prospective, Car-Owner who fails to buy a Car because of "the high cost of Tires and Gasoline,"—he who sells his Car and does not buy again because of "the high cost of Tires and Gasoline"—or he who, for the same reason, stores his Car and does not run it during a considerable part of the year, is a direct loss to

- 1st—Automobile Manufacturers, as a class.
- 2d—Automobile Dealers, as a class.
- 3d—Garage Owners, as a class.
- 4th—Lubrication & Gasoline Manufacturers, as a class.

But,—he is a greater loss to TIRE Manufacturers, and Dealers, as a class, than to any others.

Because,—

- Gasoline and Lubricants, for instance, can be sold to the Owners of Motor Boats, Stationary, and other Motors.
- But,—Automobile Tires can only be sold, in the ultimate, to the man who OWNS a Car, and who wears out Tires through using it.

EVERY mile that each Automobile runs means an automatic Sale of Tires to replace that mileage with new Tires.

But, all the Salesmanship, and all the Advertising, under the sun, could not increase, by a single Tire, the total sales of Tires beyond the number of Cars owned by Consumers, and the number of Miles each Consumer runs his Car yearly.

The Market for Tires is therefore limited inflexibly to the number of Cars running, and the Mileage which each Owner is induced to run yearly.

Therefore, we opine that to promote greater Sales, and greater use, of Automobiles, few better incentives can be offered than markedly-lowered cost, TO CONSUMERS, for Tires and Gasoline.

Just as we recognize that the only legitimate expansion open to the Tire Industry, as a whole, would be due to the Sale of more Automobiles each year to Consumers, with a greater average Mileage USE, per year, of each Car by each Owner.

That is why we favor the lowest possible price for Tires,—to Consumers, consistent with maintenance of high quality and a fair profit, to Dealer and Mfr.

So this, then, is a leading reason why WE initiated, and propagated, that Goodrich "Fair-List" Movement which we publicly announced in the press on Jan. 31, 1915, and which caused practically every Pneumatic Tire Manufacturer in this Country to follow our lead and bring his prices down to a fairer level.

THIS is also the reason why some Tire Manufacturers who could not, or would not, "meet" our BASIC prices for Pneumatic Tires (even though our "Fair-List" Propaganda obliged them to make heavy reductions off their former Lists) might erroneously suppose that "Goodrich" Tires have been cheapened in Quality, as well as in price.

Hence this explanation (to the Public, to Car-Manufacturers, Dealers, Car-Salesmen, Garages, and Tire Dealers generally) that we deem it "good business" to sell the best Goodrich Tires (of fabric construction) we have ever made, at the fairest price possible for such quality.

Hence, too, the following TEST offer to Consumers.

—We will cheerfully pay for any Goodrich Safety "Non-Skid" Tire, sold since our "Fair-List" price-reduction (announced on January 31, 1915), which when cut open shows any reduction in quality, in number of layers of Canvas, in thickness, or quality of Rubber, when compared with any other Goodrich Safety "Non-Skid" made by us, and sold at our higher prices current before the Goodrich "Fair-List" Movement.

And,—this is further to authorize any Tire-User to extend this Offer (at our expense) to any Tire Dealer, or Manufacturer.

We ask Car-Owners, and Tire Consumers, in their own interest, to see that no "implication" of lowered quality in Goodrich Tires goes unchallenged—just as we have protected their interests, for our own sake, through our "Fair-List" Propaganda.

BECAUSE of that GOODRICH "Fair-List" Propaganda, every Car-Owner who now buys any make of Tire sized 37x5, now saves on each set of 4 Tires, an average of about $46.27.

—Every Car-Owner who uses 34x4 Tires, of any make, now saves, through the Goodrich "Fair-List" Propaganda an average of about $26.15 per Set of 4 Tires.

Made as always

- The same reliable Construction.
- The same dependable Service.
- Nothing whatever taken out of materials or Quality, no matter what reductions in List-Price are ever made.

—Every Car-Owner who uses 30x3½ Tires, now saves, through the Goodrich "Fair-List" Propaganda, an average of about $14.70 per Set of 4 Tires.

Other sizes in proportion.

The 1,623,555 State-licensed Car-Owners who use Pneumatic Tires now save about 20% of what they last year paid for ANY make and size, whether they be Goodrich or competing brands,—equal to more than $25,000,000 per year.

And, don't forget that this giant saving to Car-Owners was never mentioned to the Public by other Tire Manufacturing Concerns until the Goodrich "Fair-List" Propaganda made it imperative that they extend the Saving to Consumers on their Tires, or lose business to the Goodrich Co.

But, notwithstanding all this,—the fact which should loom largest to TIRE-USERS is the contrast of 10% to 40%, in prices that still exists between the low price of the best Non-Skid Tires (of fabric construction) that money can buy, or the largest Rubber Factory in the World produce,—(to wit, GOODRICH Non-Skid Tires) and all other "responsible" Tires in the field.

Compare prices and see!

Then, if you are not already a Goodrich User, do yourself (and us) the justice to buy at least one GOODRICH "Non-Skid" Tire.

Test that out for Quality, Mileage and Resilience against any other Tire, at any price, which you are now using.

The result of such Test will cause you to wonder why you ever paid more for Maximum Quality, Mileage, and Resilience than the Basic price of Goodrich Non-Skid Tires?

Let Us Find Out. We argue for the utmost in a tire. If others give it they deserve your favor. If they skimp their tires they don't.

What Extras Cost. It will cost us $1,000,000 this year to make our All-Weather treads double-thick. Many anti-skids are merely regular treads made rough.

Goodyear Fortified Tires contain five exclusive features employed by no one else. They contain other features which are rare. These extras will cost us on this year's output $1,635,000.

Our latest improvements, just added this year, will cost us $500,000 during 1915. So it means something in these days to build maximum tires.

Travelers Lose Third Straight To the Crackers

Took Eleven Innings to Beat Them Saturday—Exciting Game for the Fans. Locals Traveling Fast.

The Crackers continue on their winning ways. They took eleven innings to beat the Little Rock Travelers Saturday afternoon, but they finally came out on top by a score of 3 to 2. The game was a real battle, with the Crackers leading in the first, second and third innings, when the Little Rock heavy hitters came in and before they could get going the locals by the aid of the time-honored squeeze play put across the tully that gave them a clean sweep during the first three innings. It was a great battle, with sparkling fielding on both sides, with each infielder striving to outdo the other in making several plays, and the outfielders handling several difficult catches. The crowd was on its tip-toes through the game, and it was a contest well worth seeing. The locals are now playing a brand of ball worth watching and they were rewarded by having a splendid crowd turn out to the Saturday matinee.

The Crackers have been blazing their way along at a splendid clip since they returned to their home lot. They started off a little bad by losing two out of the three games with the New Orleans Pelicans. Then something happened. The team suddenly began playing the kind of ball which we have all along thought them capable of playing, and whipped the Chattanooga locals in the first game. Then came the Memphis chicks, and the Crackers when getting the breaks got away with two out of three games, the weather man cutting in and keeping the Crackers from winning up the series in the fourth game. The Travelers have just left us and we are looking for a pretty good game. The Nashville folks came Monday for four games, but they were not our jinx for some time, but the way we are traveling at the present moment we are going to give them a good battle in every one of these games.

Valdosta Plays Brunswick For Flag League Pennant; Series to Start Tuesday

Otto Jordan's Valdosta Millionaires, by winning a double-header from the Gainesville Sharks Saturday, captured the second half pennant of the Flag League, beating out the Waycross Moguls by a half game, who were interceded but half a game ahead of the Dothan Alagars. The second half season was to have run until August 5, but the directors, at a meeting in Waycross Friday, determined financial conditions were such that it was imperative that the season end at once, scheduling double-headers for Saturday as a result. The Brunswick Pelicans won the first half handily, capturing ten straight games and clinching the race. The post-season series between Valdosta and Brunswick will begin next Tuesday, the first two games being scheduled for Valdosta on that date and Wednesday, the games Thursday and Friday to be played in Brunswick. This was determined at the directors' meeting Friday at Waycross by the flip of a coin, President Hopkins, of the Brunswick club, calling tails and the coin falling heads. The best four out of seven games will determine the pennant winner. The fifth game will be played in Valdosta and the sixth in Brunswick, the seventh, if necessary, to be played either in a neutral city or to be decided by the flip of the coin. Both teams will be permitted to make four changes in their line-ups before the first game is played, the umpires to be notified of such changes prior to the game. No more changes will be permitted.

Jeff Hunt Is Winner Of City Tennis Title; Also Wins in Doubles

Jefferson Davis Hunt again won the city tennis tourney by downing Ben Rhett in the final Saturday in straight sets, 6-3, 6-4, 6-2. This is the second straight year that Hunt has proven the peer of all city tennis players. Although the scores of the three sets played Saturday would indicate that Hunt had an easy time in downing Rhett, the reverse is true, as Rhett played a great game, and several times threatened to become dangerous. Both Rhett and Hunt played practically the same game, a back court steady return game, and time after time during the match, the ball would skim back and forth fully ten times before the point was decided. The first set was won by Hunt, 6-3. Hunt took the first game, but Rhett took the next three, playing great tennis. Hunt here rallied and won the next five games to set the second set was evenly contested until the sixth game had been completed. The third set was the easiest of the three for Hunt. Hunt won the first game, and after Rhett had evened the count won the next four, and after downing the seventh, he set the match in great style, taking the set and the match. Hunt played a much better game than he did against Esmond Phelps in the semi-finals of the southern tennis tourney. His cross court shots were exceptionally good, and time after time he would draw applause from the large gallery by his expert placing of back court returns.

SOUTH ATLANTIC CLOSING TUESDAY

Columbus, Columbia and Augusta Have a Look-in With Only Two Games to Be Played.

The South Atlantic league second half season will come to a close with the games scheduled to be played Monday and Tuesday. Three teams will have a look-in for the pennant, with Jim Fox's Columbia club at the top, leading the Columbus club by a half game, and the Augusta team, which is in third place, by a like margin. It will take the games Monday and Tuesday to determine which team wins the pennant. For Augusta to win the pennant, she must win both of her remaining games while Columbia loses both and Columbia breaks even. An even break for the three teams will give the pennant to Columbia. A draw in the game, which would break the tie between the Columbus and Augusta teams, will give the pennant to the Gamblers. If all three win their last game, and the first will finish just as they stand now. The winner of this second half pennant race will end Tuesday's match play. The winner of the first half, in a post-season series to determine the pennant winner for the year.

ATHLETIC RECORDS. New Marks Set at Meeting in Chicago.

Chicago, July 17.—Athletes of the central states in a tourney for the Pan-Pacific meet today smashed national and central A. A. U. records. Biggs Diamond, near runner of the University of Chicago, set a new national A. A. U. record of 48-3.5 in the 44-yard dash, the old mark, held by Burke, of Boston A. A., since 1896, being a second slower. At the University of Wisconsin, Glenn, twice broke the discus record, the old mark of 137 feet 1 1/4 inches in winning a 137-foot 1 1/4 inch discus in an exhibition tournament. Glenn, credited to Muller, of the New York Irish-American Athletic club, in 1913. Joe Ray, of the Illinois Athletic club, set a new mile record of 4:16.2.5, breaking the old mark of 4:17.5, set by two and one-half seconds. In the 200-yard dash, the Illinois Athletic club, won the 340-yard hurdle in 56-2.5, lowering the record of W. A. Meaney, of the Boston Athletic club, who took the new event last year in 57-4.5. Sol Butler, a negro, set a new broad jump record of 24 feet 10 inches. The central A. A. U. committee accepted these men among others to represent their districts in the national championships at the Panama-Pacific exposition. This A. A. U. committee consisted of H. L. Smith, J. G. # Paige "Fairfield Six" Is Popular Because of Its Style and Service

The new Paige "Fairfield Six," shown at the Dabney show rooms in Atlanta. In the car, reading from left to right, are W. B. McKerral, manager of the service department, W. M. Perryman, manager of retail sales, W. J. Dabney, state distributor, Alfred F. Green, recent Atlanta purchaser of a "Light Six," W. H. Nunnally, Paige owner, of Monroe, Ga., Erwin O. Angier, southern factory representative, and W. E. Cookerly, supervisor of agencies for Paige.

The Paige-Detroit Motor Car company has announced its new Big Six, 1914—an improved edition of the Fairfield Six '46' first shown to the public last January. Like its predecessor, the new Fairfield Six is a seven-cylinder car and retains all the vital features and characteristics of design that first won success for the Paige company in the field of sixes.

High cost of living has diminished purchasing of the dollar in many directions. This general tendency does not, however, alone apply to the automobile industry, and, with earlier models and their price in mind, it is amazing to observe how much can now be purchased for less than $1,300.

At a meeting of the board of directors held yesterday in this city Mr. Albert Russell Erskine was elected to be president of the Studebaker corporation. This announcement reveals one of the great stories of American opportunity. Mr. Erskine became treasurer of the Studebaker corporation in 1911, and in 1912, at the request of Frederick S. Fish, president, with whom he was intimately associated, Mr. Erskine was elected first vice president and treasurer. In this position Mr. Erskine had

At a meeting of the board of directors held yesterday in this city Mr. Albert Russell Erskine was elected to be president of the Studebaker corporation. This announcement reveals one of the great stories of American opportunity. Mr. Erskine became treasurer of the Studebaker corporation in 1911, and in 1912, at the request of Frederick S. Fish, president, with whom he was intimately associated, Mr. Erskine was elected first vice president and treasurer. In this position Mr. Erskine had excellent opportunity to demonstrate his ability, do big things and make good. He impressed his worth as an executive and thoroughly trustworthy official upon each individual member of the board of directors, and gained the confidence of the entire Studebaker organization, and now, following a fixed policy of pushing good men to the front and throwing upon them the responsibility for success, at the suggestion and request of Mr. Fish, he is chosen as president of the Studebaker corporation.

Mr. Erskine is a young man, as corporation presidents go. He was born at Huntsville, Ala., on January 24, 1871, making him 44 years of age. His first position of large responsibility was with the American Cotton company, of New York, as general auditor, from 1898 to 1904. The following six years Mr. Erskine was treasurer and member of the executive committee of the Yale and Towne Manufacturing company of New York in 1910 and 1911. He was vice president of the Underwood Typewriter company, which position he resigned to go with Studebaker, so it is seen that the new president of the Studebaker corporation has had a comprehensive experience in big industrial organizations.

SEASON OF SURPRISES IN MOTOR CAR INDUSTRY

Willis-Knight Automobile Offered to the Public Now at $1,095.

This is a season of surprises in the motor car industry. The new developments have taken the form of multiplying the cylinders of the old type of motor, of radical price reductions, or a combination of all three. The Willis-Knight announcement which offers two radical changes—one in motor design, the other in price. The price of $1,095 is the lowest at which a car with a Knight type motor has been offered to the public.

world. One of its chief advantages is its characteristic of improving with use. It is an established fact that the Knight type of motor gives even greater satisfaction and succeeding years than the first. Its simple design and small number of parts insure it against the various evils that frequently come under the head of motor troubles. Retuning is never necessary. There is no extra work. The entire action is positive and never failing.

The important difference of the Knight type motor from a poppet valve motor is in the valve arrangement. The Knight type is a sleeve valve motor. The valves are merely sliding sleeves. There are two—one inside, the other sliding up and down between the cylinder wall and piston. In each opening are placed which, at the proper time in the action of the motor, come opposite to each other so as to permit the charge of fresh gas from the carburetor to enter the combustion chamber and similarly for the burnt gases to pass from the cylinder out into the muffler.

World's Greatest Road Record Made by the Cadillac Eight

Los Angeles to San Francisco in a Night, 493 Miles in 12 Hours 10 Minutes, Averaging 41 Miles an Hour Over Mountains and Desert

In a race with the "Lark," the fastest train on the Southern Pacific Railroad, an eight-cylinder Cadillac, stock touring model, with four passengers, and full equipment, during the night of June 3 and 4, made this phenomenal record, the greatest in automobile history, and beat this famous express train by one hour, thirty-five minutes. Never before has man traveled between these cities in so short a time.

The Cadillac Eight, traveling over good and bad roads, crossing both the Sierra Nevada and the Coast Range Mountains, and the Coronado Desert, made this run in eleven and a half per cent better time than the powerful, high speed express train, which ran on smooth rails, and over a route ten miles shorter than that traveled by the Cadillac Eight.

One of the many thrilling incidents occurred just after leaving Bakersfield, where drivers were changed, because no one man has the strength and endurance for such a test as this (even the express train made three changes of engineers and locomotives). Since the new driver had been over his stretch of the route a pile of loose rock had been placed on a curve. Into this the car crashed at high speed, and two tires burst. Because the rims were also damaged, it took twenty-four minutes to fit new tires.

646% Increase Tells the Story of Nation-Wide Chandler Demand

Chandler History and Convincing Increases

Chandler Light-Weight Six, the first high-grade six-cylinder car weighing less than 3,000 lbs. and selling for less than $2,000, introduced to the public during the Chicago Automobile Show, January, 1913.

Ground broken for Chandler factory, April 6th, 1913.

Delivery of Chandlers in quantities began July 30th, 1913. Selling price, $1,795.

The year 1914 brought very general recognition to the Chandler car. Leading dealers sought the Chandler salesmen and sales leaped forward. Selling price, $1,595. Chandler Light-Six idea was now thoroughly established.

Official tests by Chicago and New York Automobile Clubs proved Chandler economy beyond shadow of doubt.

Year 1915 opened with the announcement of the new Chandler price, $1,295, a record-making low price for a high-grade six.

Such a car at such a price stamped the trade toward the Chandler.

Two new factory buildings and a large addition to the main factory, completed by March 1st to take care of added production.

Chandler production increased rapidly. By April 1st we were shipping 40 cars per day by May 5th 50 cars per day, by May 20th 60 cars per day.

April shipments showed 233% increase over April, 1914.

May shipments showed 493% increase over May, 1914.

June shipments showed 646% increase over June, 1914.

These Figures Tell the Story of Chandler Success

Register or Seven-Passenger Touring Car, $1295

Facts to Remember about the CHANDLER SIX $1295

What is the reason for this tremendous growth in Chandler demand? Just ask yourself this question. The answer is obvious when you know the Chandler car.

It's simply because, regardless of price reductions, regardless of new models, there is no other car of such superior character at a similar price.

No other car selling for less than $2,000 possesses all these high-grade features of design, construction and equipment found on the Chandler:

- The marvelous Chandler motor, of Chandler design and built in the Chandler factory. A powerful, quiet, economical, beautifully finished motor any man may well be proud of.
- Boch Magneto, and Boch Spark Plugs.
- Gray & Davis Electric Starting Motor.
- Gray & Davis Electric Generator.
- Rayfield Double-Jet Carburetor.
- Mayo Genuine Mercedes Type Radiator.
- Worm-bevel Rear Axle, smooth running silent.
- Cast Aluminum Motor Base extending from frame to frame.
- Three Silent Chains, enclosed and running in bath of oil, for driving motor shafts.

The World's Lowest Priced Knight Motored Car

THIS announces the greatest achievement in the history of the automobile business.

Practically every royal and titled family in Europe owns one or more Knight motored cars.

The Willys-Knight has the same advantages and is just as efficient as those costly European Knight cars.

The Knight is the automobile motor that revolutionized the entire motor car industry of Europe.

The Knight type motor is the nearest approach to 100% efficiency.

As we build more cars in a single week than most European manufacturers build in a whole year, we are able to utilize every modern manufacturing economy.

The Daimler of England, the Panhard of France, the Mercedes of Germany, the Minerva of Belgium--in fact practically all of the costly European cars--are equipped with the famous Knight type motor.

This motor differs from other motors in that where all others deteriorate with use, this improves; to all others carbon is harmful, here it is beneficial; size for size it has more power.

That is why our price is so much less. The Willys-Knight, in our opinion, has the least vibration and is the smoothest, quietest and most economical car made.

And these are the motor cars that cost from $4,000 to $8,000 each!

It has no noisy poppet valves; no noisy cams; no uncertain valve springs; no troublesome valves to grind; practically no wearing parts.

Have your demonstration at once. Immediate deliveries.

SOUTHERN MAKES RECORD Handles 16,000,000 Passengers in Year With 1 Fatal Injury.

More than 16,000,000 passengers—a number greater than the combined population of Virginia, North Carolina, South Carolina, Georgia, Alabama, Tennessee and Kentucky—were transported by Southern railway during the year ended June 30, with only one fatal injury to a passenger while on a train, and the one was standing on a car platform in direct violation of the company's rules. Of this great number of passengers not one was killed in a train accident. This excellent record was shown in the official figures given out in Atlanta Saturday indicating the high degree of safety that has been attained in the handling of Southern railway passenger trains. In marked contrast are figures reported by President Fairfax Harrison of Southern railway, showing that during the same period twelve persons riding in automobiles were killed in accidents at public highway crossings every one of which accidents were reported in newspaper articles. Miss Mary Peacock, of Atlanta, and Mrs. R. Ray Mitchell, of Pensacola, Fla., driver of the car observed the familiar warning, Stop, look and listen!

A veritable army of skilled mechanics, working in three eight-hour shifts, seven days a week—that's what it requires to keep pace with the enormous demand for Mitchell Sixes and Eights that is sweeping the country like a fifty-mile gale. The enthusiasm of the motor public is so intense and contagious that Mitchell dealers have their hands full taking care of the folks who call to look at the Mitchell marvels and to get a ride in them. No mere sentiment nor faddish sensation could create such a demand. The reason is simple and clear cut: more genuine quality is being built into Mitchell cars than in many machines selling at much higher figures. Car buyers know this and continue to come, to look, to ride, to buy. Arrange NOW for a demonstration. See and ride in THE SIX OF '16—some for a spin in THE PERFECT EIGHT. Reconstructing Tires Saving the Motorists Many Thousand Miles

Hundreds of motorists in and around Atlanta have awakened to the fact that they can have their tires reconstructed, thus obtaining from two thousand to seven thousand more miles of service after they have thought the casing ready for the discard.

THE GEORGIA DOUBLE TREAD COMPANY

The Georgia Double Tread Company, since it opened its offices at 66 Edgewood avenue, seven weeks ago, has had at all times a waiting list of orders to reconstruct old tires. At first, autoists were somewhat inclined to doubt its practicality, but the method employed in its repair work, as stated by the company—but since it has served hundreds of satisfied patrons, who have given these repaired tires several weeks of service, all doubt has been removed, and the company is now working night and day to keep up with its orders.

Beautiful Atlanta Girl Goes To New York As Sculptor's Model

MISS GLADYS WILLIAMS, pretty young Atlanta girl who goes to New York as a sculptor's model.

Gladys Williams, a 19-year-old Atlanta girl, left the city last week for New York, where she enters one of Manhattan's famous art colonies as a sculptor's model.

ers and sculptors alike prophesy a brilliant future for the Atlanta girl, who has already commanded local attention as a model.
She attributes her perfection of figure and hardihood of health to swimming and diving. Since the season first began she has missed hardly a day at Lakewood, where she excelled all other fair bathers and outdid many of the male performers. Only last week she established a woman's record by re-

JUDGE BOWER HONORED BY BAR OF BAINBRIDGE

Handsome Portrait Ordered Hung in Decatur Superior Courtroom.

Bainbridge, Ga., July 17.—(Special.) The lifelong services of one of the most prominent citizens of south Georgia received deserved recognition recently when the bar association of Bainbridge, Ga., presented to the county commissioners of Decatur county a handsome portrait of Judge Byron B. Bower, of Bainbridge. The portrait has been ordered to be hung in the superior courtroom in the new courthouse at Bainbridge.

JUDGE BYRON B. BOWER, of Bainbridge, Ga.

of the city court of Bainbridge, where he served for six years, and the judgeship of the superior court of the Albany district, where he served for sixteen years.
Now, at the age of 76 years, Judge Bower walks five miles every day, is a splendid shot, never using glasses except for reading, and is in sound health. He serves as an example to the youth of Bainbridge, for he completely abstains from every sort of stimulant and tobacco.

Commenting on Judge Bower's remarkable record, The Bainbridge Post-Searchlight says:
"Judge Bower is deserving of every testimonial of this nature that could be made him. Many times his advice saved the county of Decatur, and the county of Bainbridge from embarrassment in public matters of importance. There is no man residing here, solid advice who has ever hesitated to go to Judge Bower and get that sound and practical wisdom so badly needed. The commissioners and the bar association hit upon a happy idea when they saw fit to make this commemorative portrait of the life and service of Judge Bower."

Those who were present and took a prominent part in the presentation exercises were Judge W. M. Harrell, president of the Bainbridge Bar association; W. V. Custer, J. C. Hale, W. D. Martin and Judge H. E. Spunner, composing the committee from the bar association. The commissioners are W. I. Fall, chairman, J. W. Drake, W. E. Griffin, J. L. Gray and J. W. Napier.
At the exercises Judge Bower made a short and characteristically modest speech. As in every act of his patriotic life, he disclaimed all credit for achievements, concluding that he had merely done his duty.

POLICE PERSONALS

George E. Johnson, Atlanta police recorder, who is gaining for himself by his abundance of "kindheartedness" the name of "Atlanta's Golden Rule Recorder," is now saving his spare time by working out a method whereby the families of those who are addicted to the whisky or drug habit will not suffer when they are sent to the stockade from the county and city courts.

JUDGE GEORGE JOHNSON, the city owns 700 acres of farm land, which Judge Johnson wants to turn into a farm for these unfortunate, where they can be sent to work to raise vegetables for the city's live stock, and their families be given $3 weekly during the time of their incarceration. Judge Johnson held a number of conferences with well-known prison authorities last week, and is preparing for a meeting of prominent citizens, county commissioners, probation officers and city officials for next Friday night to take under advisement his plan.

"I can't send these poor fellows to the stockade," said Judge Johnson, "and see their families suffer while they are there. If I can get this farm, along the lines of the one in Cleveland, we can pay the families of these poor fellows $3 a week while they are being cured on the farm of the whisky and drug habits."

"The county and city can join together in this enterprise and a large class of delinquent citizens will be greatly benefited by the move."
Judge Johnson has figures to show that this farm will be self-sustaining within one year.
City Attorney Mayson is drafting a charter to introduce before the legislature for this farm for inebriates.

Sergeant of Detectives Burnett, recently elected to this newly-created position as assistant to Chief of Detectives Newell, has a list of his friends among the city detectives in his new position.
It was only a few months ago that Sergeant Burnett was a traffic officer, stationed at Five Points in the day time. His election as sergeant of police and late election as sergeant of detectives by the police board, may be truly characterized as a "reward of merit."

Judge Johnson lingered late at police barracks Friday night. When his work was over Judge Johnson dropped into the call officers' room for a social visit with one call officer and reporter. He reminisced many old stories of political battles while he was a member of the police board.
Judge Johnson related a recent occurrence in police court of how Zeno, an aged negro, told why he changed his name.
"Zeno was working for a firm that went into the hands of the sheriff," said Judge Johnson. "It was pay day. Zeno informed me, and he had gone into the office to get his pay envelope. 'I wuz told, Judge Johnson, sed Zeno, dat de sheriff done closed up de place, an' de paymaster done got down to me.' 'De sheriff told me, Judge, dat as my name was below M's I didn't get no pay.' 'Zeno got him another job,' related Judge Johnson, 'and he pulled down a big book from the shelf to write his name down.' 'What is dat fer?' queried Zeno. 'To take your name for the pay roll.' 'Yassir, Wall my name was Zeno, but you put it down as Aaron.'"

Uncle Jeff Whitley, turnkey at police barracks, who was recently granted a pension by the police board, holds the view that he is still able to perform his duties, and anxious to do so in order to finish the education of his young daughters, will not go on a pension, but will continue to perform his duties as turnkey.
Uncle Jeff told his story to Commissioner Edwin Johnson, who, at last week's meeting of the board, saw to it that Turnkey Whitley's pension was revoked.

Open-Air Services.
Beginning Sunday, July 18, Rev. William Sentell, pastor of Gordon Street Baptist church, will hold open air services on the lawn of the church, corner Lucile avenue and Gordon street. Good singing, led by Gordon Singleton, will be a strong feature of the services, which will continue throughout the summer. The entire service to last only one hour. Everybody invited.

Take Lime For Tuberculosis

In the Journal of the American Medical Association (July 27, 1912, Page 206), Dr. C. E. Dixon, of Minneapolis, holds that "deficiency of calcium" (lime) is responsible for the physical conditions which lead to tuberculosis, and the therapy he advocates rests on this basis.

One of the reasons for the widespread success of Eckman's Alternative in the treatment of tuberculosis is its ability to supply the deficiency. It contains a lime salt in such combination with other valuable agents as to be readily assimilated by the average person. Many cases seem to have yielded to it.
We make no exaggerated claims for it, but prefer that it be tried on the same basis as any other prescription, and since it contains no opiate, narcotic, habit-forming drugs, it is safe. From your druggist or direct.

McDaniel Gets Rude Shock When Customer Proves Faker

Wouldn't it far your riddles on these hot, dull days to have a "nice" man walk into your place of business—a nice man who is just what you need in "G"—and tell you that he had come to buy a nice bill of goods, and then you hop around real lively and get him up a good, big order, believing all the while you had found a brand-new customer, and just about the time you got the goods in the depot you found that the "nice" man was an imposter.

SUMMER PASTIMES

Club meetings are suspended during the mid-summer months after the regular season from October to June...

The inspiration from the district meetings will be felt during the summer and their value will be realized when the annual convention gathers Georgia's club women in Savannah October 26, 27, 28 and 29.

For the leisure ones during the summer vacation, books and gardens have a wonderful charm. Care stops when you enter a garden of beautiful flowers with your favorite author as companion...

The Question of Food

In an article appearing in The American Club Woman by the president of the International Pure Milk and Food League, Mrs. Edward Hooke, is the important, if not new, statement that the great problem, the burning issue of today, which confronts housewives of all classes...

It is an established fact that, from lack of such knowledge, some of the most nourishing foods, both solids and liquids, are eliminated from our regular diet. Education along these lines is the basic principle for a successful solution.

The writer hopes to stimulate among the more than two million club women of the United States a desire for investigation and liberal education along these lines: First, to know the value of a perfectly balanced diet; second, to acquire an intimate knowledge of the danger of adulteration and sophistication of all foodstuffs...

But, since "we live not upon what we eat, but upon what we digest," the responsibility of the housewife does not end with the buying. It is commonly remarked by those who study the conditions of living among people of limited means that, for substantial improvement of their household economies, two things are needed. They must be informed as to the high nutritive value of the cheaper foods as compared with the costlier kinds, and the methods of cooking must be improved.

The value of food for nutriment, we all know, depends mainly upon its composition and digestibility. The composition of foods is determined by chemical analysis. The first effective impulse to the systematic study of the chemistry of foods was given by Liebig about fifty years ago...

For people in good health only two rules need be observed in the regulation of the diet. First, is to choose the things that "agree" with them, and avoid those which cannot be digested and assimilated without harm. Second, is to use such kinds and amounts of food as will supply all the nutrients the body needs and at the same time avoid burdening it with superfluous material to be disposed of at the cost of health and strength.

The cheapest food is that which supplies the most nutriment for the least money. The most economical food is that which is cheapest and at the same time best adapted to the needs of the user. Then the importance of proper cooking cannot be overestimated. Things which please the palate stimulate the flow of the digestive juices; for this reason food should be made appetizing. An attractive diet pleases the aesthetic sense; hence refinement in food habits is as desirable as in other phases of our daily life.

AESTHETIC VALUE OF GOOD ROADS IS BEING SHOWN

It is noticeable that along improved roads there is a visible tendency toward the improved appearance of the homes and outbuildings. Thus aesthetic value of good roads seems to stimulate latent self-respect into practical expression...

The Missouri state board of agriculture has sent out as its monthly bulletin on household arts a most interesting pamphlet which should be in the club woman's collection...

The first work of the new Kansas child hygiene bureau will be to publish a directory for mothers on the proper rearing of children. Dr. Lydia De Villiers, who has been appointed head of the bureau, has recently undertaken a project which will include the experience of many mothers in various parts of the state...

The re-election of Mrs. George W. DeWitt as state president of Tennessee clubs was a pleasure to her many friends, outside as well as within the state...

Seven clubs in Arkansas are composed of young women in the schools. One city federation of twenty-four clubs is working for the betterment of the conditions of living in the municipality. They will demonstrate to other clubs the power of co-operation and unity.

A state endowment fund, raised by voluntary contributions, is a matter of great interest to Texas club women. Mrs. W. M. DeWitt, state president, and every club woman made some sacrifice, where she had intended to spend the money on her own personal needs...

Political study will be a part of the work of the Georgia Federation of Women's Clubs next season. The property of the state government and also their relation to the state government will be among the subjects to be considered at the annual convention...

It would be a conservative estimate to say that our club women are saving $3,000,000 of the waste, due to ill-cooked food, that they are making it ten times that amount by carrying on a permanent campaign for health and cleanliness.

"Two million club women are not asking for anything but to serve and make the world better," said Mrs. W. E. Andrews, general federation director, at the state convention of the Virginia Women's Clubs. She paid tribute to Miss Margaret Wilson, daughter of the president for her good work in making social centers and public school buildings. Among its activities are the state federation, paying special attention to the improvement of rural schools, Miss Helen Cummings, elected president for the coming year.

Others may take vacations, but Mrs. W. S. Jennings, state president of Florida, expects to visit every town in the state this summer. Her legislative program is to visit every school for girls, vital statistics bureau and the formation of canning clubs among the year groups.

An aggressive campaign for the protection of children is being undertaken in Ohio. Perhaps conditions are not as bad in this country as in other states, but a preliminary survey has revealed the usual pitiable neglect where children are left to fend for themselves. The children may be made through the co-operation of the women's clubs with the state board of charities.

Supervised playgrounds will be continued on a larger scale this season by the club women of Plattsburg, N. Y. They have already acquired a valuable playground of 150,000 sq. ft. last year on school lawns and playgrounds.

STATE SETTING ASIDE DAY FOR RURAL LIFE

In several states one day of the year is being set apart for rural life. Rural Life Day in Georgia has recently celebrated this occasion in Athens in such a way as to emphasize the importance of agriculture and call attention to the worthiness of tilling the soil, cultivating plants and breeding stock of animals.

OWNERS OF BEST KEPT YARDS WIN PRIZES IN MACON

Macon is one of the garden spots of Georgia. "Back yard tea" in Macon, Ga. is a special feature of entertainment for the spring of 1915.

Lawn parties are a back number in the middle Georgia since the ladies in charge of civic work have promoted the home garden movement, and all the business houses have offered prizes for artistic back yards.

The following is from The Macon Telegraph: "For second best lawn and front yard, $5 worth bulbs and plants, D. C. Horgan—Mrs. W. P. Coleman. For best kept back yard, $5 worth bulbs and plants, D. C. Horgan—Mrs. W. P. Coleman. For best picture, W. L. Williams Art store—Dr. W. H. Walker, Vineville.

HOME GARDEN CALENDAR FOR THE YOUNG FOLKS

- Sunday 18.—Do you ever pay attention to your front lawn? Monday 19.—Mow your own lawn. Tuesday 20.—Weed your flowers and vegetables. Wednesday 21.—Are you selling your surplus crop? Thursday 22.—Have you been down on the watchful to sell your vegetables and flowers? Friday 23.—Save your corn and thin out your beets. Saturday 24.—Spray your tomatoes and pick off all rotten fruit and put in the garbage can.

Letter Box For Little Gardeners

Dear Miss Mathews: You should see my onion and radishes. They are going to seed. My garden is not a large one, but it is large enough to keep green all summer. My tomatoes are doing well. Are we going to get money prizes for tomatoes? Editor's Note—Full up your radish plants after you have gathered the dry seed. Cultivate and enrich the soil and plant these same seed and see what the result will be. You will find it an interesting experiment.

FEDERATION NOTES

It is the sense of the Georgia Federation expressed through the executive board that the Georgia work which the women are interested in carried on along lines more pleasing and effective than lobbying in the capitol. Concerted action on the part of club women must be the result of carrying out the plan of action which was adopted at the annual meeting.

The citizens of Monroe have recently given $1,000 for the building of a woman's club house in that town. Less than $500 remains to be raised to complete the building. Amount of $10,000.

Kindergarten in the grammar schools would enable a child to complete the course in six years instead of eight.

Complying with the request of the Savannah City Federation the annual meeting of the federation will be held November 2, 3, 4, 5.

Mrs. J. H. Downey, of Gainesville, is the new president of the ninth district succeeding Mrs. F. E. Shippen, resigned.

The federation now has a membership of 272 clubs. believe that work is work whether we find it, but that work with Nature is more inspiring than work with the most intricate machinery. I believe that the dignity of labor depends not on what you do, but on how you do it, that opportunity comes to us in the form of a task, often as to a boy in the city; that life is larger and freer and happier when we are engaged in a task which we succeed in doing; that our success depends not upon our location, but upon myself—not upon my dreams, but upon what I actually do. I believe in working when you work, and in playing when you play, and in giving and demanding a square deal in every act of life. EDWIN OSGOOD GROVER. Then follows "The Footpath of Peace."

SOCIAL LIFE IN MACON

Macon, Ga., July 17.—(Special Correspondence)—Miss Helen Fisher, of Pensacola, Fla., who is the attractive guest of Miss June McBrier, has been charmingly entertained at a number of delightful gatherings of friends for tea and theater parties, which are the chief forms of amusement during the summer months. Miss Fisher was an admired guest at the dinner-dance at the Idle Hour Saturday night last Saturday. Tuesday evening Mrs. M. E. Ross invited a few friends to meet Miss Fisher at her home on Forsyth street. Mrs. Ross and Miss Fisher enjoyed the pleasure of an European trip together two summers ago. Another delightful informal gathering for this attractive visitor was on Wednesday morning, when Miss Nona Shaw entertained six friends in her home.

One of the brilliant affairs of the season was the dinner-dance at the Idle Hour Saturday night. A large number of tables were taken, and a number of out-of-town guests were present. An unusually attractive musical program was given by Guttenberger's orchestra. The dinner service was promptly at 7:30, and dancing at 9 o'clock. Among those entertaining were Mr. and Mrs. Guy Paine; Mrs. Margaret Holt; Mr. and Mrs. R. L. From a table beautifully decorated with daisies, where a number of guests were seated, the maidens served delicious nectar. Miss Frances Hardwick, of Tennessee; Miss Virginia Gunn and Miss Margaret Wise assisted the hostess in serving.

Camping this summer seems to have taken strong hold on a number of young people, and after a week or two at Lakeside, Holly Bluff, Mr. Howard Smith's suburban home near Macon, and Lakeside, lured a party looking for ease and comfort and an informal way of spending the summer. There the following party was chartered by Mr. and Mrs. Richard Lawton, are whiling away the summer days: Miss Elizabeth Baker, Miss Gonty, Charlie Hall Johnson, Ruth Ralston, Sarah Lee Conroy of Hawkinsville, Corbelle Adams of Athens, Anderson, Mr. Thomas Fort Sellers, Mr. Pearson's Health, Mr. John McKay and Dr. H. This is not a condensed milk or patented food. Holstein milk is the milk of the Holstein breed of cow—the largest, strongest and stoutest of all dairy animals. This particular kind of milk is very rich in cream and fat, superior in body-building qualities. Besides it is perfectly easy to digest, as easy as mother's milk. If you will try Holstein milk you will probably find it the food your baby needs, especially if the little one seems improperly nourished.

In the Social Whirl

By Isma Dooly.

The father and son golf tournament which took place at the Brookhaven Country Club on Saturday is properly called the Country Club of the Capital City club—might have well been called the family unity game, for it brought the entire family to the clubhouse to see how near "beating his father, son would come."

Housekeepers, no matter what genre wives they be, have much complaint against their husbands who are golf addicts, for these latter sporty individuals enjoying their game, the late summer afternoons entirely forget that supper is kept waiting at home. The chicken gets dry, the rolls the same, and "Dinah" beats it to and from the kitchen to the front door to see if "the boss ain't come yet."

thing is the one for the human family, and the same of the pleasure or amusement which brings men and women together and people of all ages is the wholesome one.

I have never understood why on the part of the many who do not dance there could be the prejudice there is about dancing. During the last few years, since dancing has been revived as a popular amusement, it has brought people of all ages to the same entertainments, whole families frequently attending the same ball.

Previous to that society had almost segregated the parent element in society. They got tired going and sitting against the wall, and finally they did not go at all.

Why this objection? They certainly could not have been a cheerless element at all the dances which were always having a good time. It was notable that there were certain young women at all the dances who would indicate that they for some reason had no objection to their married friends.

Comradeship of men and women in the home is a question which would be noticed frequently that those women who enjoy the companionship of their husbands and their husbands' friends are involved far less in petty gossiping quarrels, and in the circulation of rumors than those who do not have intimate relations with one another.

Women naturally like to please men, and when they are with them they are doing their best to please them by going or another. When they are sure of the admiration, the friendship of the men, they are really pleased.

Women who become that self-indulgent that they neglect their duties that requires mental effort of any kind, who are not willing to adapt themselves to whatever company they are in, soon become as uninteresting as that element of women who boast that they do not read the daily papers, nor take an interest in the real news of the day.

Opera by American Wins $30,000 Prize in California

Music lovers everywhere are interested in the success of the presentation in Los Angeles early in July of the $30,000 prize opera, "Fairyland," composed by Horatio Parker, with libretto by Brian Hooker.

The prize had been offered by the city of Los Angeles, the production of the opera to be the climax of the exposition year biennial of the National Federation of Music Clubs in Los Angeles, this convention now recently adjourned.

Three thousand people attended the first performance of the prize composition, and sixteen hundred heard the dress rehearsal the night before, each audience representative of the best citizenship of Los Angeles, and including also some of the most distinguished musical artists, teachers and promoters of music in America.

Alfred Hertz conducted, his triumph with the orchestra the result of two months' rehearsal. Orchestra, chorus, staging and financing—everything but the principals—were provided by Los Angeles.

Among the principals were such well-known artists as Marcella Craft, Kathleen Howard, William Hinshaw, Ralph Errolle, Albert Reiss and Albertina Beach, who was premier danseuse.

The score is declared to be an embarrassment of musical riches, much of it entrancing beauty, but possibly too scholastic and ideal for general popularity.

The occasion was made a gala night for Los Angeles and everybody concerned, and the music, the performers, composer, librettist and directors were given great ovations.

It will be remembered that Horatio Parker won also the prize offered several years ago by the Metropolitan opera directors, and Brian Hooker also provided the libretto for that earlier work, "Nona," which was presented in elaborate manner by the Metropolitan Opera company.

Should it be decided by the Metropolitan directors that it would be possible to add "Fairyland" to the Metropolitan repertoire, it is quite probable that this will be done, since the directors have always proved their willingness to put forward the work of American composers. And in case New York hears the prize opera, it may be that Atlanta will be likewise fortunate.

It was with deep displeasure that we had an avowal to one David Silverman, erstwhile exponent in this territory of those masterpieces of filmic science, "The Fred Romance," and "Three Weeks," who went out to the wilds of Broadway last Monday morning, and who is an o. k. fellow except for his associates, having hung much around the Grand theater as it glimmered Casely.

Anyhow, here's luck on Broadway, Dave! But look out for them fly janes, some of 'em are as good as something awful!

"No! It ain't so that the legitimate speaking stage won't come back. It will. There'll come a day soon when you'll see the big feature movies sharing bookings with the big road attractions. The two and one-reel series will come back into popularity. Two-reelers and husband programs will occupy the regular movie houses at five and ten a throw, and the six-and-higher features will play the legitimate theaters at legitimate prices. They'll be only worth-while features, then, and they won't be as profane as now."

Criticisms
By Fanny Panitall.

"Midnight at Maxims"
There is at least one redeeming feature about "Midnight at Maxims"—you don't have to stay through it unless you want to.

"Midnight at Maxims" is a frothy film filled with fairies from the chorus of a New York musical show. It is a celluloid leg-show, and is, no doubt, meant to be the opening wedge for a wildly-kept extravaganza into the movies. We hardly expected the movies would ever come to this.

It was evidently designed for the tired business man. It won't take the tired business man long to get tired of this sort of thing.

"Midnight at Maxims" is a wishy-washy production filled with ensembles of girls in airy costume, group dances, solo and team dances, and a sort of haphazard plot which is hard to comprehend even if you sit through the whole performance. (Warning: There are three reels of it.)

The main scenes are supposed to be replicas of Maxims' famous New York restaurant.

The dances are set to music which is evidently sent along with the picture, and there are a number of songs that haven't reached this part of the country. We hope they never will.

Meeting adjourned until next Sunday.

UNUSUAL SETTING.
Huge Stage Built for D'Orsay Success.

In "The Earl of Pawtucket," the big feature in which Lawrence D'Orsay is starring for the Universal company, Mr. D'Orsay, in conjunction with Frank Berford, lecturer of the University of Chicago, designed an exact reproduction of the lobby, lounge and restaurant of the Waldorf-Astoria for the biggest scenes in the play. They conferred with the famous "Decor" or the Waldorf-Astoria, secured sketches, plans and a complete property list of the furniture, furnishings, and other statuary necessary for the huge set.

Fifty masons, carpenters, scene painters, decorators and electricians worked steadily for more than a week before the completion of what is purported to be the largest hotel lobby scene ever filmed. The services of five structural iron workers were also enlisted for the sole purpose of installing two steel elevators leading off the lobby. The stage on which the set is built was especially constructed, and is 150 feet deep and 75 feet wide. One hundred and twenty-five pieces of furniture, such as leather settees, tables, tabourettes, etc., are arranged in the lobby and lounge adjoining the restaurant. The restaurant and the lobby are decorated and set with costly linen, cut glass and silver and are filled with chairs and tables.

Five thousand yards of muslin was used in the sun diffuses, which were made especially to diffuse the light, and were handled by ten stage hands like sails on a ship.

Sixty scenes will be enacted on this immense stage, some showing its entire length and width, others different sections, as the restaurant, lobby, registry desk, and the two grand elevators, etc. It is estimated that $2,000 has been expended on this scene, which will be used only for about twenty hours.

Harry Myers is not only directing but also playing the lead, while Rosemary Theby is playing opposite Lawrence D'Orsay.

Wearing décolleté gowns out in the open on raw, rainy days is anything but a pleasure, as Mr. Ince and Ollie Kirkby, the two Kalem stars who appear in the two-act drama, "The Straight and Narrow Path," can testify. Miss Sals and Miss Kirkby shivered in the raw wind for three days, before they could change to the street clothes demanded in other scenes.

Two Big Film Successes to Be Shown This Week

Scenes and Players Who Will Appear in Atlanta Picture Houses

AN ALL-STAR CAST FOR MARIE TEMPEST

Marie Tempest, supported by Lee Moran, Eddie Lyons, W. Graham Brown and Billie Rhodes, is featured in the production of a four-reel comedy—"Mrs. Plum's Fudding"—written and directed by Al E. Christie, of Nestor comedy fame! Let some one with a wild, untrained imagination name a cast of characters which he thinks might excel, or even equal, the above. That the picture will be a success goes without saying, for Marie Tempest has made a success of everything in the way of comedy she has ever taken hold of. Now it is comedy of the pastime variety put over without words before the eye of the camera. Success has always dogged her footsteps, and it is from past performances that we have to make prophecies.

In the production she plays the part of Mrs. Plum, whose barn is knocked down by an oil gusher which makes her a millionaire. Together with her son (Eddie Lyons) she starts east to enter society. With the help of her money she negotiates this difficult bit of road and her son promptly falls in love with the daughter of a Mrs. Van Sant. About this time an English lord will have been stung by Mrs. Plum's bank roll. They are to be married when suddenly it is learned that the papers proving Mrs. Plum's title to the oil well have been stolen. Follow comes a great activity. The lord cannot see Mrs. Plum without the roll, Mrs. Van Sant cannot see Eddie for the same reason. But hold! Enter the world-famed Detective Potts (Lee Moran) with his eagle eye trained on the trailing of elusive "papers."

And this is where the complications "begin" as Mrs. Plum, being wise in her generation, has hidden the real papers and allowed a fake set to be stolen, so that she may learn who are

VICTOR MOORE IN "CHIMMIE FADDEN"

Following the success of the first public showing of the new photo-comedy, "Chimmie Fadden," with Victor Moore as the star and produced by the Lasky Feature Play company, arrangements immediately were completed by Samuel Goldfish, treasurer and general manager of the Lasky company, to present Mr. Moore in a series of "Chimmie Fadden" film-comedies. First of these will be "Chimmie Fadden in the West," work on which already has started in the Lasky studios at Hollywood.

Mr. Moore, in "Chimmie Fadden," was the principal feature of the first week of its release in theaters booking Paramount productions all over the country. The laughter it provokes and the score of letters commending exhibitors and the Lasky company, inspired were causes contributing to the

PAVLOWA DANCES IN UNIVERSAL FEATURE

When Anna Pavlova signed with the Universal to dance for a big eight-reel feature, arrangements were made at once to start production. However, she had been booked to appear in Chicago for a number of weeks and it was deemed advisable to postpone her screen appearance. The Universal did not fancy waiting, so, dispatched Bert Adler, their Coyotesville manager, to Chicago and had an outdoor stage built in an empty lot near the theater so that Miss Pavlova could pose for the screen during the day, and in this way have no interference with her regular work. A telegram was sent to Universal City, California, the master producers, together with a company of fifty to rush to Chicago ready to film as many scenes in the big dance production as possible.

As soon as Pavlova's Chicago engagement is filled the entire company, including her company of forty several artists, will journey to the movie city in California, where the remaining and most elaborate scenes will be filmed.

William C. Dowling is at work on a Universal story by Leonora Ainsworth, entitled "Mere Money." The play is particularly worthy in point of plot and is expected to cause considerable comment upon its release. Violet MacCallan and Mr. Dowling appear in the principal roles.

LAURA HOPE CREWS AT GRAND MONDAY

Wonderful American Actress Appears in Lead in "The Fighting Hope."

There has been a splendid list of photoplay attractions engaged for the Grand for the week that starts on tomorrow afternoon and that continues all the week. The program will be made up entirely of Paramount features, two of which are positively first run and the other is a re-issue of one of the greatest features ever seen on a screen.

Monday and Tuesday Laura Hope Crews, the wonderful American actress who has quite suddenly become a drawing card star in the movies, will appear in the lead of a star feature, "The Fighting Hope," a Helasco-Lasky production. The picture has never been seen on the Grand before and Atlanta will offer it at precisely the same time that it is released all over the country. The producers have been careful that "The Fighting Hope" will eclipse the bits of any picture of the present time. It is alive with interesting detail and effect.

Wednesday and Thursday "Hearts Adrift" the picture that made Mary Pickford famous, brought her salary from a small figure to $104,000 per year, will be the offering. The Grand has had thousands of requests for the picture, and has just now been able to induce the Paramount officers to secure a re-issue of the picture. The picture is all that has been claimed for it and will attract a multitude during the two days it will be offered.

Friday and Saturday Lenore Ulrich, a very popular actress appearing in a Morosco feature, brought her salary will be the offering that promises to break every attendance record the Grand has had on "Friday" and Saturday. The Morosco producers have made a wonderful picture of the story and that is an interest never known that indicates great attendance.

Well! Anyway the "MOSQUITO FLEET" is ORGANIZED!

How 25,000 Vessels in All Parts of the Country Will Form a Reserve For Uncle Sam's Navy.

ALMOST overnight the fleet which America keeps for the defense of her shores has been increased by 25,000 vessels.

In the entire history of the world no fleet of war vessels has been so enlarged. And the strange part of the amazing augmentation of the naval forces of the United States is that each one of the 25,000 vessels is actually a seaworthy boat, capable of proceeding under its own power and capable of doing at least one of the many varieties of war duties.

The fleet of 25,000 added to Uncle Sam's original fighters is a fleet of privately owned motorboats and yachts. They can be turned over to the naval authorities upon the instant that war is declared and under the arrangements that have been made they will become one of the strongest protections that the sea coast cities of this country can have.

Already enthusiasm among owners of small water craft has reached such a pitch that the United States Volunteer Naval Reserve has been formed with the backing of some of the most prominent figures of yachting in the United States. Headquarters have been opened in New York city and the officers of the organization predict that with only a minimum of effort on their part they will shortly have enrolled in the organization practically every owner of small water craft in the United States.

Once the organization is under way it is planned to drill yachtsmen in navigation in various phases of warfare and to hold frequent maneuvers. By this plan an auxiliary naval force numbering at least 25,000 has been added to the regular naval forces.

This swarming mosquito fleet can be of inestimable service to the country in time of war. If the United States is attacked by any foreign power this huge flotilla of small craft can practically prevent any submarine warfare that the power might attempt to make.

The small speedy boats will be able to act as scouts and can swarm up and down the coasts bringing in valuable information as to any enemy's ships. They will be able to sight the periscopes of any enemy submarines and with the small guns that will be mounted upon their decks they can do as much havoc to these small craft as the largest destroyer or battleship. It will be almost impossible for the submarine to fight them back.

Besides being engaged on the actual battle line a great part of the small craft especially the slower boats can be used for mine layers and mine draggers. Over night a fleet of them would be able to lay enough mines completely to guard any American port from hostile attack by ship. They will also be able to render invaluable aid as transports, supply boats and Red Cross auxiliaries. The tremendous amount of help which the amateur motor lists of Britain has rendered to the regular English fleet along these same lines has been the inspiration for the American idea.

Under the direction of the Waterway League of New York the central organization of yacht clubs owners of pleasure craft in and about New York have been invited to join the auxiliary defense league for New York harbors. Owners of craft in New Jersey have received similar invitations from the Waterway League of New Jersey.

It is intended to enroll the owners of pleasure crafts in all parts of the country for duty in time of war. Each state will have its own division and headquarters. Commodore J. Stuart Blackton has been named as commander of the motorboat division which will include the fastest and stanchest motor craft in the world.

Both these organizations will offer their services to the navy department when their scheme of organization has been perfected. The vessels will be divided into divisions and will be equipped and arranged for armament according to their capacity. Drills and maneuvers will be held regularly and there will be courses in signaling work and in navigation.

This scheme for an auxiliary defense by a powerful mosquito fleet of the coast cities of America was outlined to the Waterway League of New York by Commodore M. J. Harrington of the Life Saving Service, Ninth district of New York. Commodore Harrington is assistant secretary of the public service commission and was for some time secretary of the department of docks and ferries in New York.

Since the committee on membership was named recently more than 2,000 owners of various types of vessels have sent in applications for membership from New York yacht clubs. In New Jersey 1,000 owners of vessels have enrolled with the New Jersey Waterway League.

Each applicant is sent a specification sheet in which he places the capacity, tonnage and type of his craft. He also is obliged to give its carrying capacity, size of crew, speed, type of engine, date of construction, name of builder and all other data likely to be of value at the time of need.

All of this information is being filed away and it will be used when the formation of classes and divisions is under way.

It will only take about a year," says Commodore Harrington, "to put us in such a position that we will be able to offer to the navy department a fleet of pleasure vessels capable of doing excellent service in war time as an auxiliary coast defense numbering 25,000. This fleet will be divided into squadrons with commanders and will be equipped for immediate service.

The speedy vessels those which can make more than fifteen knots an hour will be used for scout duty patrol boats and submarine harriers and destroyers. The craft of lower speed say from eight to fifteen knots will be available as supply boats Red Cross transports, mine layers and druggers. They will also make of effective weapons against submarines.

There is no question in my mind but that England could have saved $100,000,000 worth of water carried commerce if she had had such a fleet guarding her shores when war broke out. In the first place they could have sighted the periscopes of many submarines and with one pounder mounted on them they could have been as effective as destroyers as the mightiest dreadnaughts.

Eight or ten little launches scurrying about are poor targets for a submarine. At the same time they can make them almost ineffectual against a bigger target.

The vessels comprising this fleet will not be a jumble of untrained regiments. Under Lieutenant Edward W. Fitzgerald, a graduate of Annapolis and for fifteen years an officer in the navy, during which time he served in the Spanish-American war, constant drill will be held.

There will be courses in navigation signaling and gun practice both with small arms and larger guns. There will be every twenty-two foot vessel can be equipped forward with a one-pound gun.

The waters of the harbor of Constantinople and the Dardanelles are being patrolled by motor craft of the Turkish government. The boats are twenty-eight feet long are built on rakish lines and develop thirty-five horsepower. They can travel at a rate of fifteen knots an hour and have so far done invaluable service as patrol boats on several occasions giving warning of the English submarine which penetrated the Dardanelles mine field and sailed up to Constantinople itself.

The French the Belgians the English and the Germans have used hundreds of motor boats to good effect both as offensive and defensive weapons on the hundreds of rivers and canals which crissclassified work will be begun to bulkhead the decks and lay the plates to carry the guns.

The guns will be placed on the plates only in time of war. All that will then be necessary will be to have mechanics from the navy just slip them into place.

Such a fleet of course could sow the harbors of any coast city with mines over night making it impossible for any hostile fleet to enter.

The New York league will include all the yacht clubs in the vicinity of New York. It is expected that from these clubs in New York alone at least 3,000 craft will be available. New Jersey will produce at least 600 more making a minimum of 3,600 auxiliary craft available for the protection of America's largest port. They will all be divided into separate classes and the first review is hoped will be held within a month.

When the New York and New Jersey organizations are effected pleasure craft owners in all the Atlantic coast states will be asked to join and headquarters will be established there. The coast owners of pleasure craft will also be asked to aid in making the auxiliary coast defense a great national movement on both coasts.

Particularly will the owners of the great and speedy yachts be asked to join the league to insure having when needed, the larger craft to be used as Red Cross vessels and cruisers.

The membership committee of the Waterway League of New York includes Commodore F. H. B. O. C. Marine Yacht Club W. J. Moran Jamaica Yacht Club John Jerome Rooney president Harbor Terminal League and M. J. Harrington. Any of these committees stand ready to answer inquiries or accept offers of help from any yachtsmen in any section of the United States whether on the coast or on the interior lakes and rivers. They hope to make it a national movement in every sense of the word.

Some idea of the effectiveness of this mosquito fleet may be gained from the extraordinary work that these little craft have done in the present war. For years Europeans have bought motor boats in the United States and it is only natural that these motors owing to their fitness for hard service should figure prominently in dispatches from war torn ports.

The waters of the harbor of Constantinople and the Dardanelles are being patrolled by motor craft of the Turkish government. The boats are twenty-eight feet long are built on rakish lines and develop thirty-five horsepower. They can travel at a rate of fifteen knots an hour and have so far done invaluable service as patrol boats on several occasions giving warning of the English submarine which penetrated the Dardanelles mine field and sailed up to Constantinople itself.

The French the Belgians the English and the Germans have used hundreds of motor boats to good effect both as offensive and defensive weapons on the hundreds of rivers and canals which criss-cross southern Belgium and northern France. They have been used to transport soldiers, artillery and munitions of war. Machine guns have been mounted upon them and used with terrible effect in surprise attacks. On the larger boats even small caliber field artillery has been mounted and used directly on the firing line. In fact motor-boats in the present war have come to be of as much importance upon water as automobiles are upon land.

Tennessee and Victoria Claflin Once Monopolized Limelight; Now Living Quietly

LIKE an echo of the past, a ghostly whisper of the generation of more than forty years ago, comes a little brochure from the pen of M. F. Darwin. It deals with two of the most interesting characters two continents have ever known but whose names mean little or nothing to those of today, and who are only dimly remembered by the middle-aged. They were known in the early seventies as Tennessee and Victoria Claflin. They were the original advocates of eugenics, they were ardent workers for votes for women, they were bankers and stock brokers in Wall street they lectured, wrote, ran for office and aroused such antagonism that they were arrested numberless times, but never convicted.

They are still living, but in England, where they went when conditions became unendurable in the United States. Tennessee is the wife of Sir Francis Cook and Victoria's husband is John Biddulph Martin a London banker. It is long since anything has been heard of them, and this little volume that sketches the outlines of their stormy careers recalls some mighty exciting chapters in New York history.

The sisters were born in Homer, Ohio. They were well educated and inherited considerable capital. They early became interested in the suffrage propaganda and took an active national part in the movement, soon being recognized as leaders. Their slogan was equality between men and women both in the affairs of government and in affairs of morality. Resolving to show the world that women had the ability to conduct larger affairs of life, they established themselves in New York in business such probably as women never before engaged in—banking and brokerage. They invaded that battleground of giants, Wall street, and no operator on the stock exchange possessed more financial acumen in six weeks they had profits of $750,000, and their venture was the talk of New York. They handled every detail and proved themselves able to cope with Gould, Fish, Cornelius Vanderbilt and the other Goliaths of dollars of that day.

The papers were full of them, they were the talk of the town and they were shrewd enough to take advantage of the publicity so cleverly gained in order to advance the causes they so warmly advocated.

Their ambition was limitless, their daring without bounds. Having proved their business brains were as good as those of any man, they renewed their efforts to demonstrate their rights to political preferment, to the ballot, to everything that had previously been regarded as the special privilege of the trouser-wearing sex.

Bold? Those Ohio young women were as bold as lions. It was not long before they had succeeded in forming an Equal Rights party, and it nominated Victoria Claflin for president of the United States. Nor was Tennessee less active. She was nominated for Congress by the German-American Protective Association of New York. Victoria appeared before the house judiciary committee and presented a memorial for woman suffrage, which she supported in an elegant speech.

But the desire to bring about the adoption of a single standard of sexual morality for both men and women brought about the storm that for years beat about their fair heads. They established a newspaper, Woodhull & Claflin's Weekly. They advocated all the things the disciples of eugenics nowadays contend for, and in language no more frank and plain than those energetic and earnest persons employ, but forty years ago people weren't accustomed to seeing such sentiments in cold type. They objected with a howl that could be heard for miles. The writings of the sisters were denounced as obscene, indecent, lewd, and there was a whirlwind of invective that swept Tennessee and Victoria into jail again and again. Powerful financial interests which they had antagonized organized a systematic fight upon the two devoted women and the government began prosecutions charging sending obscene literature through the mails. The police were enlisted in the battle and tried to prevent the sisters from speaking in public.

The prosecutions came to naught, but the enemies had triumphed. Broken in health, their banking business wrecked, and held up as worse than scarlet women, the devoted pair were forced into temporary retirement. They were ostracized and finally forced to leave the country. Seeking a haven in England they were warmly received their lectures heard by throngs and it was not long before they made highly advantageous marriages.

For some time they carried on the campaign but in a rather desultory manner, never with the old vigor.

Now they are old and well nigh forgotten yet the principles for which they were pilloried are pressed by thousands of the most respectable men and women of the nation. Suffrage a fact in many states may soon be national the fight on vice is practically country wide and the eugenics movement is progressing rapidly. That may be some consolation to the valiant women in the twilight of their lives.

Where "Round Robin" Originated

THE name "round robin," given to a written petition or protest, and signed by a number of persons in circular form so that it may not appear who signed it first, is supposed to have originated among the ancient Greeks. It later was used by the Romans.

The officials of the French government used the "round robin" in medieval times. As for the name, that is of very uncertain derivation. Some say it comes from the French words, rond ruban, a round ribbon, but this is not at all probable. In some parts of England a pancake is called a round robin, and the question is: Was the circular petition named from or did it give the name to the pancake?

It has also been supposed that the petition was named for some person who suggested to his companions this peculiar method of declaring their sentiments, and Robin is a proper name, an old and familiar form of Robert. Another conjecture, however, given by Wheeler in his "Familiar Allusions," has greater probability:

"The small pieces of yarn or marline that are used to confine the upper edge of a sail to the yard or gaff are called rope bands, corrupted by sailors to robands, or robbins. Now, a robbin of this sort encircling a yard bears an easily recognizable, though rather fanciful, resemblance to a ring inclosing a petition or other writing. As 'round robins' are frequently made use of by British sailors, it is quite possible that this is the true origin of the name."

Milk in Form of POWDER New BABY SAVER

MOTHER is downtown with baby. Baby cries—he is hungry. Mother wheels him into a store and asks for a little water. Does mother think baby is thirsty—not hungry? Mother does not. She knows full well what she is about. Leave it to mother.

Opening a glass jar conveniently lying in the bottom of the buggy, mother pours some of the white powder contained therein into baby's bottle. Then she adds some of the water. Mother shakes the bottle vigorously and gives it to baby. A few happy gurgles, and baby settles down to enjoy his liquid repast.

Has mother given baby a substitute for milk? Mother has not. She has given him milk—real milk.

Milk powder, which the up-to-date mother carries with her on trips to the bargain counter, is the solids contained in the fresh milk, retained in its natural condition without having undergone any chemical change in its process of manufacture.

Milk powder is being manufactured both with its original butter fat content and with the butter fat removed. For baking and cooking by far the bulk of the business at the present time is in the skim milk powder. Up to the present time this product has not been put on the market extensively for household purposes but it soon will be sold from the grocery shelves and the same as condensed or evaporated milk.

Milk powder has the natural milk flavor and can be used for any and all purposes that fresh milk is used. It also is much cheaper than liquid milk with the butter fat in it and should be a valuable addition to the kitchen of the housewife. It is not necessary to keep the product on the ice. Neither does all of a package have to be used at one time. It will remain sweet for an indefinite period.

The government, say those who deal in powdered milk, recommends it in preference to liquid milk on account of its ideal keeping qualities, and there are a number of physicians who have recommended it to hospitals for the use of the patients and for baby food, because of its low bacteria and acid contents.

It will prove a boon, particularly in the congested districts of the great cities, according to settlement workers. Recent statistics show that improperly prepared milk costs the lives of hundreds, sometimes thousands, of babies every summer. In thousands of families ice is a luxury that is beyond the reach of the providers. Since milk will not remain fit for food for more than two or three hours unless kept on ice it is plain that ordinary cow's milk will not serve the purpose.

"As a life-saver there is no telling how important this means of handling milk will be," said Frank J. Manning, a Chicago settlement worker. "Even where we are able to provide ice for poor families it seems like an unbalanced investment to buy 10 or 15 cents' worth of ice every day to keep 5 to 6 cents' worth of milk."

"It is because many parents look upon the ice question in the same way that babies lose their lives with every warm spell. I believe that I could take the burial permits for any great city and, without looking at dates or other records, tell when hot waves struck it. The death rate jumps with every rise in the temperature. If this new milk will do what I think it will thousands of lives will be saved."

Real milk with nothing but the water removed—that is the way dealers analyze milk powder. By adding the original measure of water it contained real milk is the result.

Fireproof Clothes May Now Be Had

AT THE safety exposition held in New York recently Dr. Charles Frederick Fahst demonstrated how to make fireproof clothing. He poured from one pound to a gallon of cold water in a solution of ammonium phosphate. Then he took an eight-inch strip of ordinary cotton gauze and dipped it in the ammonium phosphate solution. He dried it with an electric fan and held it in a flame for thirty seconds, but it did not burn. He took another strip of gauze that had not been treated with the solution and on igniting it it burned in four seconds. He advised that the whole family washing should be made fireproof. The expense for an average-size family would be about 15 cents a week.

Eat Fruits in Plenty—They Hold Health and Happiness for You

THE season for fruit is with us. Eat of it if you would enjoy the blessings that nature thus has lavished upon us. The use of many fruits during the time they are seasonable—which means when they are cheapest—will give you a robust health.

Fruits and vegetables are similar in composition, but differ in some very significant respects. Both contain much water, mineral matter, some cellulose and protein. Those foods nourish most that have least water. Among vegetables potatoes, corn, peas have least water. Fruits, like vegetables, are of two somewhat distinct kinds, though this is not readily seen except by comparison of the extremes, as bananas and oranges. As starch decreases in vegetables so sugar does in fruits. Fruits are sometimes distinguished as "food" and "flavor" fruits in recognition of this difference. But all fruits have flavor and value besides furnishing heat energy, which both their sugar and acids give as these are broken up in the body.

Mineral salts in fruits, such as potassium, are especially important to the body. They are in a form in which the body can use them. It is only as these are associated with organic matter, as they are in fruits through plant growth, that the body can assimilate them. The flavor in fruit is produced by their complex oils, with their organic acids, sugar and water. Organic acids in fruit, though much alike, are not the same. Apples contain malic acids, as do tomatoes; oranges and lemons citric; grapes tartaric.

Degree of ripeness of fruit affects its value and usefulness as food, since its composition changes as it matures. Unripe fruit contains more cellulose, starch, pectin and acids.

Some foods are palatable both wild and cultivated. This is true of strawberries, though wild differ from cultivated. Mountain cranberries are more palatable and delicate than those of the lowland bog cultivated. But by cultivation only are such foods brought into form to render them acceptable human foods. Apples intended return to a wild state—that is, a stage in their development below the level where they became a desirable addition to the diet of humanity. Cultivation of fruit has greatly increased of late years, due to the great importance attached to it as food and to development of regions especially suited by soil and climate to its growth combined with extension of transportation facilities. Green fruits contain much starch. The plant as fruit matures has the power to change starch into sugar. As fruit decays or fruit juice ferments sugar is changed further and alcohol is formed. This is the process of wine production from grapes that are themselves from one third to one-half sugar. Cider is thus derived from apples that are from one-twentieth to one-seventh sugar.

To have fresh fruits for out of season use they must be transformed or stored. Bacteria usually are the foes of food. Low temperature delays bacterial growth. Temperature lowered sufficiently to do this, but not so low as to freeze the fruit, preserves fruit palatably during transportation or for six months of storage for reserved use. It is this fresh fruit is made available throughout the year, but at high cost out of season. Fruits are dried and preserved by cooking for deferred use. Drying deprives fruit of moisture until desired for use. Returning water to it revives it and its flavor somewhat. Dried fruits lose freshness, but in losing water increase the proportion of their nutrients. Grapes and raisins differ thus, as do also plums and prunes. Such fruits are concentrated foods, because in small bulk there is a high percentage of nourishment. Such dried fruits are wholesome, but are not substitutes for fresh fruit.

Why You Can't Put One Drop of Water on a Red-Hot Stove

WHY is it impossible to throw a few drops of water on a red-hot stove? Perhaps you never knew that this cannot be done.

The bottom of the drop changes at once to steam or vapor on coming close to the hot surface. This vapor is supplied by the drop as it gradually goes away—in other words, the drop rests on a cushion of vapor until it has entirely disappeared.

You may ask why the drop is not immediately evaporated or changed to steam. The answer is this: The water vapor that intervenes between its under surface and the red-hot stove is not a good conductor of heat; consequently the full intensity of the heat cannot get to the water itself, the only amount available for this purpose being that transmitted through the vapor.

New Disappearing Jitney Bus

ONE of the most surprising of the summer novelties to be seen in the vaudeville houses is the disappearing jitney bus. An energetic promoter rides out upon the stage in a jitney bus that has four seats and seems capable of offering accommodations to eight persons and seeks to sell it to a farmer.

But the farmer fails to succumb to the silvery tongued orator. Suddenly the auto owner, becoming impatient, seizes his machine, pushes a few buttons and it collapses, is wrapped up and suddenly becomes a narrow trunk.

Did Man Learn Military Tactics From Birds of the Far South?

DID man learn his military formations from the birds?

Recent observations of explorers in antarctic regions indicate that he did. At any rate he must have taken some hints from feathered aids.

The most interesting phenomenon of bird life was closely observed by Mr. G. Murray Levick, who thus describes it in his book "Antarctic Penguins":

"Many thousands of birds were on the sea ice between the ice foot and the open water leads; then about a quarter of a mile distant.

"As we watched it became evident that something very unusual was going on. First, from one of the small bands, a single bird suddenly appeared, ran a few yards in the direction of another small band, and stopped. Quick as a flash the entire band from which he had come executed the movement 'Left turn,' which brought them all into a position facing him.

"Then from the small band the single bird had approached another single bird ran out, on which his own party went through exactly the same maneuver that the first band had performed, so that the two bands now stood facing each other, some fifteen yards apart. Then spontaneously the two bands marched straight towards each other and proceeded to form one body. After that we saw the same maneuver executed in many other places

Uncle Sam's Experts Are Seeking Deposits of Potash at Home

THE United States geological survey is still continuing its work in hunting for deposits of potash in this country. The government appropriated a sum of money for this purpose and a great deal of work has been done. Potash has been found in several deposits, mostly in California and in parts of the desert lands in the West. In one or two places these deposits are promising, but these places are so far removed from transportation and are so inaccessible at present that it will be years before potash found there can be utilized.

Some of this potash is found in brine taken from salt mines. In other places, it is in the form of a mineral. Great quantities of potash are found in the kelp and seaweed along the Pacific coast, and it is well known that many of the granite rocks throughout New England contain fair amounts of this material. In none of these places, however, has potash been found in such quantities that the price could compare with the potash from the German mines in time of peace.

Heart to Heart Chat by Vivian

GO BACK, if you will, please, aided by memory, to your own sweet childhood days. They were happy, oh, so happy, notwithstanding the simple cottage or even humbler farmhouse in which you were born and spent at least part of your girlhood. Those simple gingham frocks and blue calico aprons were in tune, they increased the charm and beauty of those simple surroundings.

There were splendid riches in those days, because you were not only one selfish and lonely child. There were half a dozen or at least that number of older and younger brothers and sisters. What a splendid crew of jolly youngsters you all were together. Yes, every last one of you, including big brother Bill, Tom and George, against Helen, Kate, Alice and perhaps Louise. What splendid pals you all were together. You smile as I call you pals and you remember the daily feuds in which two at least and sometimes the whole six and seven were engaged in one deadly encounter. These were merely passing differences, and you came out better and stronger friends. You could not keep all your toys, and when you outgrew your pretty frocks and coats they were passed down to the younger children. You need not worry about this incident, because the younger children were happily awaiting their splendid heritage.

Toys of Childhood.

No less was true of the books and the toys. When you finished reading your fairy tales, your "Robinson Crusoe," Dickens and George Elliot, they were not stowed away in the nursery chest or in the garret, never to be used again. In spite of the marked passages and folded corners they were enjoyed by one and all. The marked passages you made were an indication of joy to the younger children as they read and enjoyed the same things that you had read and enjoyed a year or two before.

It was all true of the building blocks, dolls, tin soldiers and mechanical toys they were used and enjoyed by one and all. When you played snow balls, climbed fences and coasted downhill on a small sled or on a large toboggan it was not one lonely child trying to amuse itself alone. It was a live, large, lusty crew, whose numbers grew daily through the assistance of cousins and friends.

You six or seven were a great responsibility to father and promised plenty of work for mother, but they did not seem to mind as long as you were well and happy. Why should they have minded, for they shared and enjoyed your pleasures with you. Although mother's days were crowded with toil, keeping all her darlings clean and the house in order, she found plenty of time to play with you indoors and out. If you recall the stories that are dearest to you now and are still fresh in your memory you will see that those were the favorite stories mother told you time and again when you were a child. Father had to hustle to keep the boys in shoes and stockings, which wore out so rapidly, and to get new frocks for the girls, which they seemed to outgrow overnight.

Parties Were Rare.

There were not parties and celebrations day in and day out, but when they came they were planned with care and were so delightful that they were not easily forgotten. You might have forgotten most of these facts altogether if it were not for the older people, who love to tell of the days when they were young. Look now into your own daily existence. The halls are lonely and the large, well equipped nursery is bare. There is not a child's happy voice to be heard. Yes, there comes one little, sullen miss or perhaps two quarrelling boys worried and fretting to death because they lack companionship of brothers and sisters. They get tired of their own companionship and the neighbor's child cannot be with your own little darlings all the time.

Somehow you tire of the nursery and your lovely home no less quickly than does your child. Your household responsibilities are easily taken care of and most of your recreation is enjoyed outside of your large and attractive home. You are cheating yourself no less than your own child of her natural heritage. You are eager to keep young for many years and you hope that the bloom will not readily fade from your lovely face. Remember that God has covered the earth with flowers and grass so that it will ever be young and He expects you to fill your home with happy, loving children for the same purpose. This is the privilege of motherhood, the richest heritage the world knows and shall ever know. Grasp it before it is too late.

How to Pack the Vacation Trunk—Minimize the Worry And Use System to Get the Maximum of Recreation

Place the Soft, Fluffy Petticoats on Top.

Much of Your Pleasure Depends Upon the Attention Given to This Preliminary Work and You Can Scarcely Give It Too Much Time.

By DOROTHY DOLAN.

HAVE you ever known a woman who planned her vacation with exquisite care? She knew weeks ahead where she was going; she bought and made herself the prettiest and most modish kind of summer frocks. In spite of all this thought and effort her summer outing was only half a success, because she did not have the right kind of trunk and she did not understand the art of packing those she had.

I have seen more than one woman put twice as much in a trunk as it could possibly hold, and, notwithstanding that she punched the clothes down deep into the trays and sat on the lid of the trunk, she had the pleasure of repacking the trunk before it could be completely closed.

Packing Easily Learned.

However splendid the trip you have planned and anticipated may be it will lose much of its charm and pleasure if you go through any such experience as I have described. It does not take genius to learn the art of packing a trunk easily and quickly, but it does take some common sense and reflection.

You may boast of having packed your trunk successfully at the eleventh hour; if this happens put it down to chance and not to good judgment. If you have the old-fashioned type of trunk, the more need of your packing it carefully. A day before setting to work you had better take your dresses and suits out of closets and look them over for repairs. This will save you just so much time and labor when you start off on your holiday.

Give each dress a careful brushing and assort them. By doing this you will weed out those you do not actually need, which means that either they will go back into a packing trunk or into your closets. Be sure to put the heavy things at the bottom. If it is possible, put forms in all your shoes, and should you not have enough keep those you have for your low shoes and handsome evening slippers.

Heavy Garments Next.

You can either buy or make shoe backs of cretonne or colored linen. The prettiest are trimmed with a bit of hand embroidery. A simple substitute for bags is silk tissue paper. Be sure to wrap your bottles in some old chemise or anything soft. Likewise put your raincoat, books and umbrellas at the bottom.

small sheet of linen or cretonne. A few sheets of silk paper make a fairly good substitute. Keep the small side trays for hats, scarfs, gloves and handkerchiefs. You will do well to lay your gloves and delicate scarfs in bags or in handkerchief and glove cases. Since hats are either large or of a peculiar shape, it is well to have a hat trunk. Because if you do not need the entire trunk for hats the space left over can be utilized for shoes and odds and ends.

Whether you pack your hats into the old-fashioned trunk or have a special trunk for them, give as much care to them as you do to your dresses. A good arrangement is to lay the large hats below and the small and flimsy ones on top. The only way to keep the hats firm is by pinning them to the cushions with a number of cheap hairpins. By pinning them firm they will be protected from any amount of jarring they may get.

Hat Trunk Convenient.

If you are making a trip for a week or two you can use a hat trunk as a good substitute for a large trunk or a more modern innovation trunk. The upper tray can be utilized for blouses and outing skirts. You can slip the shoe bags into the corners without spoiling your hats by exercising a little care.

Still, if you want to travel in real comfort, enjoy the wardrobe trunk of the most improved kind. It will save you a great deal of time and worry when it comes to the packing and un-

Place a Shoe Form in the Oxfords Before Packing Them and Their Satisfactory Appearance Is Guaranteed.

Packing, because you are always packed. You will not worry about closet room when you reach a summer hotel where the rooms are none too large and the closet room is less. This type of trunk is so good looking it is almost as much an ornament as it is a matter of comfort and convenience. If you decide to travel with a wardrobe trunk, do not have it too large; they are hard to handle and are extremely clumsy when placed in a small bedroom. A steamer innovation should be large enough if you are alone; you will need it a little larger if you want it to contain the children's belongings as well as your own.

Hangers for Gowns.

Compartment for Shoes.

The best equipped of these have a compartment below in which you can pack three or four pairs of shoes and slippers. Then there are two large drawers, one for handbags and the other for your best underwear. There is a large deep drawer with an adjustable cushion for hats and smaller ones for jewelry and other finery. It is hard to think of any chifferlaw or set of drawers as convenient as your wardrobe trunk. Besides, you have no dread of suffering from an aural discharge every time you do your packing and your unpacking.

Talks for the Girl Who Works

YOU may be extremely practical about everything that pertains to your daily work and still use poor judgment when it comes to arranging affairs of the home and your social life. If you have this shortcoming it may not mar your career as a business woman, but it will certainly tell on your health and your nerves in time.

By being practical I mean that you should get up in time to dress leisurely and not tumble into your clothes. Worse still, to make a desperate effort to eat a hearty breakfast of eggs, toast and coffee all in the limited space of five minutes. The dilatory girl has calculated her time so poorly that even with this amount of scrimping she is compelled to run all the way to work or at least that distance she walks after she leaves the car.

This type of girl is equally shortsighted in making her business and social engagements. Of course, like other girls she has her luncheon engagements during the week, and plans to enjoy a Saturday half-holiday with some good friend. One of two things is sure to happen. Though she knows that she has a poor memory, she makes no effort to strengthen it, nor to record her engagements on a pad or in an engagement book.

Therefore she never thinks of her promise to meet her friend at luncheon or at the matinee until a day or two later.

When she does not forget an engagement she calculates poorly. She always selects those days for social recreation when she knows that her work is going to be heaviest. What happens? Just what always happens to this type of girl. She has to break her engagement at the last moment, which means a real disappointment to herself and to her friend. Much the same thing happens when she accepts an invitation for dinner or for theater. Instead of taking a night at the end of the week it must be Monday or Tuesday when the work has been the heaviest during the day.

This type of girl is as extravagant with money as she is with the expenditure of her leisure hours. To use a bit of slang "money burns a hole in her pocket." She lets it go in trinkets and when the time comes when she really has need of something worth while she has nothing set aside for that purpose. To be sure she knows that she can open up a savings account or get a small bank with little effort but she has never exerted herself to the point of making this venture.

What more can you expect of this type of business woman than that she has as little judgment in apportioning money as time. She refuses to reckon what she can afford for her luncheons and simple amusements at the beginning of the week and long before the next week's pay day arrives she is "dead broke." She really intends to lay aside some money every week for pretty summer clothes and a fortnight's holiday, but when the time comes to do the things she really wants to do she has not half enough left.

She does not seem to realize that to be honest and fair with others you should be so with yourself. This means to take account of your time and money and learn to apportion both. It may seem an effort at first, but by exerting yourself a little you will soon find that you will save yourself much futile worry and have plenty of time and money for yourself and for your friends.

Hints for Housekeepers

WHEN eggs crack—When they crack in boiling, add a teaspoonful of salt to the water. The white will not come through and be wasted.

Airy cupboard—All cupboards and wardrobes need frequent airing to be healthy. Remove all clothes and open wide on a sunny day, and leave so for several hours each week.

A saving in gas—Take a large sheet of tin and place it over the burner. This will keep several saucepans boiling.

Kid gloves—To renovate black kid gloves at small cost mix a few drops of black ink with a teaspoonful of olive oil. Apply this with a feather and dry in sun.

Cleaning brooms—They will last twice as long if they are given an occasional soaking. Dry in the open air and always stand with the heads upward.

Caring for the Baby

MOTHER, if you want to give your child a good, honest start in life, you will feed your child at the breast. Physicians are of the opinion that nature's way of giving the child nourishment is the safest and best way. If you decide to nurse your own baby, nurse it regularly by the clock and see it gets nothing but water between feeding times.

Most babies thrive best if the intervals between feeding times are rather long. The interval may be six hours until the milk is established. From that time on feed the baby at three-hour intervals until it is six months old, then you can make the intervals four hours each. Your baby should not be fed longer than twenty minutes at a time.

If you are unable to feed the baby through the entire nine or ten months in which milk is the main diet, be comforted by the thought that you have at least given your child a good start. The only proper artificial food is cow's milk, modified to suit the baby's age and development. If your baby has been nursed for a time and you put it on cow's milk, it is well to give it a somewhat weaker mixture at first than the one indicated for her age.

The food can be strengthened every few days until it suits your child's age. Some babies have peculiarities and with them rules can not always be followed, but for most children regular rules should be followed from the start. And there will be little trouble later on.

Whenever there are indications that the milk disagrees with the baby it should be diluted. Give nothing but a little plain boiled water until you or the doctor sees fit.

Be sure to clean the bottles every time you fill them. New bottles should be annealed by placing them to boil for twenty minutes. Allow them to stay in the water until it is cold. Bottles treated thus will not break readily when filled with boiling water or when the food is being cooked in them. Each bottle should be emptied as soon as the baby has finished nursing. Then rinse with cold water and let it stand and fill with water until the bottles for the day have all been used. At a convenient time scrub all the bottles with hot soap suds, using the bottle brush on the inside.

The Made in America Dancer

Every Year Her Art Is Becoming More Brilliant and She Bids Fair to Kick Over the Pedestal of the Imported Coryphee—From Novice to Premiere Danseuse Is a Long and Toilsome Road—How the American Girl Travels It.

Will the nimble toes of the Made in America dancer kick over the pedestal of the imported coryphee? Every year the art of the American ballet girl is becoming more brilliant and the American premieres are steadily growing in numbers until the toe dancer trained in the United States is likely to become as efficient as the artists who blossom out under the fostering care of the czar and the directors of the Russian imperial ballet schools.

Chicago has had its own opera ballet and will have again this season, and New York has a number of ballet schools for the training of young women who come from all parts of the country. The art of the ballet is still young on this side of the Atlantic, but the few teachers there are, such as Mme Chavalazzi, Albertieri and others, are busily training the vigor of American girlhood into the artistic and lithesome grace and agility of the flaring skirted girl of the opera chorus.

More and more the eccentric gyrations of the vaudeville and musical comedy stars is becoming modified into something approaching the artistic. Girls who might otherwise be toiling at some unskilled and unskilled task are finding a profession and a good salary in the ranks of the ballet.

Chicago's own opera chorus, which begins its practice for the season in October, will be recruited from the ranks of aspiring American girls probably to a great extent instead of from those bearing the imported label.

American Dancers Recognized.

American dancers as such have been enormously handicapped. They could not receive their training in this country because America has had until recently no ballet schools of her own. Now all that is changed.

And one of the best known of the Made in America toe dancers, Mme. Dazie, declares that the American dancer is but now coming into her own.

"The Made in America dancer is just beginning to be recognized," said Mme. Dazie. "Abroad they foster dancing carefully under government direction and the dancer is given every encouragement to become a great artist. In this country until a very few years ago we have overlooked the ballet. Now we are beginning to realize its greatness. Our ballet schools are turning out wonderful material. The American girl is intelligent, ambitious, graceful, animated, emotional. She has all the requirements and will blossom wonderfully if she is cultivated carefully."

"The craze for the Russian dancer woke America up. Until then the opera corps de ballet had to cross the Atlantic every season."

"Then Andreas Dippel and Signor Gatti-Casazza came and the rise of the American ballet girl began. The Metropolitan School of Ballet Dancing was started to train dancers for the chorus of the Metropolitan Opera House. The tuition was free, with only one obligation. The girl when through her education was to sign a contract to dance in the Metropolitan ballet for the last three years of her training at a salary of $15 a week for the first year, $18 for the second and $20 for the third."

The American professional dancer, authorities say, should begin training when very young. Nine years old is not too early. For the first year the exercises are very simple, as too much exertion is not good for the ballet pupil. It is not well to over-exercise, because it has a loosening effect on the joints and it is harder to control the muscles under these circumstances. The professional ballet girl must never drink water while she is practicing. She may only chew a sponge, or hold a little iced water in her mouth, but never swallow it. For the would-be premiere there must be exercises—many of them—all practiced at the bar for many hours every day. The positions number five—all of which must be repeated with a bar. The battements and the ronds de jambe on the floor are the principal ones.

"Everything for strength," is the dancer's motto. The thighs must be immovable and the back absolutely reliable. There must be many months and many years of routine before the ballet art has become perfected.

The first and most important principle of the American ballet girl is balance. She must be able to execute any number of intricate steps while standing on the toes of one foot. The arms and the body must be gracefully managed, but the muscles of the leg on which the dancer is depending for support must never waver.

And the American dancer must be trained as the European is to make dancing the spontaneous expression of a personality. Her smile must not be forced. It must be as alive as her arms and legs.

The Ballet Girl Must NOT—

- Drink Water While Practicing.
- Exercise Violently Enough to Make the Muscles Hard.
- Rest From Practice.
- Neglect to Work at "Bar."
- Swallow Ice While Chewing.

SEEKING FOR POT OF GOLD AT BASE OF THE RAINBOW, AND FINDING IT, FUR TRADERS BLAZED CANADIAN WAY.

A pot of gold at the base of a rainbow—fabulous fortunes in far-away lands—wealth in every possible shape has led men and will probably ever lead them to venture from their hearthstones, to suffer privations, hardships and death. Explorers ever were prompted by Dana Ford to blaze a way which has shown the far-away pastures greenest and with softest, most inviting colors has painted the distance.

The navigator Christopher Columbus sailed to a whole new continent merely trying to find a shorter trade route to the riches of India. Seas, continents, mountains, the greatest barriers Nature has erected, never daunted the fortune hunter. Fur traders, gold seekers, plunderers blazed the way for civilization.

And it is strange, almost weird, how straight these hardy men went to their goal. If a continent stood between them and the pot of gold, they traveled almost straight through it, and the millions who built behind them followed their blazing.

Scarcely one hundred years have passed since these fur-trading, gold-seeking men of iron first struck out from Atlantic to Pacific. Now almost 60 years ago the last spike was driven in the Canadian Pacific at Craigellachie, thereby completing an everlasting monument to the men who first trapped away the path now followed by the steel.

THE FUR TRADERS AND CANADA.

A history of the fur-traders, the gold-seekers and the men of iron in the history of Canada. The railway follows the trail of the fortune hunters and the cities are the trading posts, the lumber and mining camps, the forts and the settlements grown up.

Undisciplined as they most times were, the present generation owes much to the fur-trader and the gold-hunter, for while they merely wished to get their "stake" and get out, caring little for the country except to take its wealth, they paved the way for the success of the steady, plodding and less venturesome colonist to make the land his home.

To many of those who first trod the soil of Canada the vast resources of the country appeared. They had vision to see the future. They profited by it. They barricaded themselves behind vast wealth which was their reward for the risks they took. To the neglect of others, however, Canada meant a land where beaver pelts could be bartered for the Indians for a trinket and gold could be panned from the river beds—a land where fortunes, to be spent in the cities, could be gained easily.

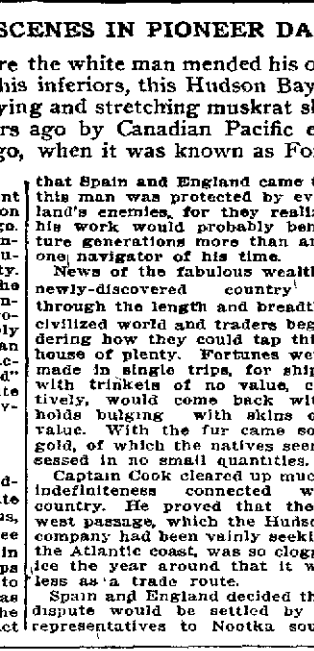

But in their scramble for this gain they left gaps and trails for the more thoughtful men to follow. These later day pioneers found the land good, suitable for agricultural purposes. They found the soil rich and the water on the surface had been removed. They saw wealth in the "white coal" of the mountain torrents and the rapid rivers. The timber was of the world's best. In short, a potent empire was found where development such as the old world never dreamed of was possible.

With the linking up of the last gaps in the railway the population came quickly. In thirty years the numbers swelled from handfuls to millions, and yet only the surface is touched. Millions of acres as fertile as we were found waiting for the plow of those who will.

SHORTEST WAY TO MADRID.

Spain, late in the eighteenth century, after having cut a bloody path through Mexico, thereby establishing a rigorous iron-ruled government, decided to discover if possible the shortest way back to Madrid. The mythical northwest passage was still a dancing mirage to the mind of the world. This sea route, thought the governments of the day, would give the fortunate nation first finding it an unbreakable hold on the treasure stores of the new world, and it is to be regretted that no profit was before some rival appeared on the scene to dispute the possession.

The viceroy, governing Mexico for the Spanish crown, dispatched Juan Perez to the north Pacific coast, finding in short order a route to a profit which the name of the king of Spain and to find out as much as he could about the Northwest passage. Juan Perez sailed from Monterey in June, 1774, in the

STRIKING CANADIAN SCENES IN PIONEER DAYS.

Santiago, a new corvette especially built for the purpose.

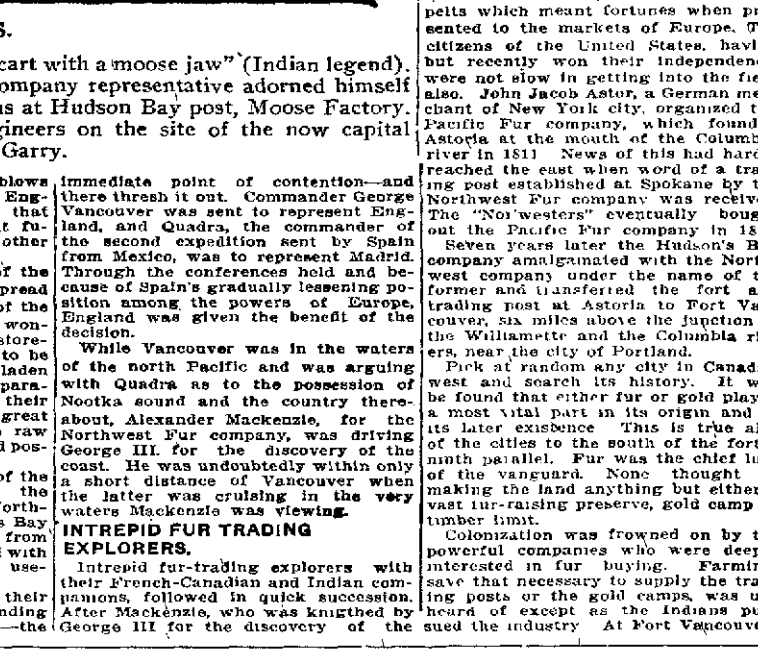

This was the first real exploration of the coast of British Columbia, although there had been previous claims advanced by Juan de Fuca through the agency of Michael Lok, an Englishman of Fuca's time. These for years were credited solely on the reputation of the writer, Professor Edward H. Meany, of the University of the State of Washington, who is regarded as an authority on northwest history, declares, as with many of the other students, that Fuca was a clever seaman who imposed on the good nature of Lok. However, the straits leading into Puget Sound from the Pacific Ocean bear the name of Juan de Fuca. As far as results go Juan Perez did nothing worth while in exploration. His trip is regarded as one of lost opportunities by most writers. He did, however, engage in battle with the Indians, securing for himself and his companions a large share of worldly wealth thereby. He established claims enough to later get his king into trouble with England and through this embroilment to advertise the country as one, at least, worth investigating.

Another Spanish expedition was sent out on the same mission in 1775 on the return of Perez in the Santiago. In the second, the Santiago and another little ship, commanded by Lieutenant Quadra, composed the party. This time Perez was a lieutenant. The Santiago returned after having encountered a storm, but Quadra proceeded in his ship, doing considerably more to bolster up Spain's claims than any of his predecessors, yet not accomplishing enough to "make good" when the matter came up in dispute between England and the Madrid government.

CAPT. JAMES COOK'S EXPEDITION.

The results of this trip were heralded to the world in The Madrid Gazette and another expedition planned. This, however, was not launched for three years and in the interim, 1778, Captain James Cook, R. N. in the good ships Discovery and Resolution, sailed into the north Pacific. Captain Cook was a navigator and explorer whom the whole world respected. Despite the fact that Spain and England came to blows this man was protected by even England's enemies, for they realized that his work would probably benefit future generations more than any other navigator of his time.

News of the fabulous wealth of the newly-discovered country spread through the length and breadth of the civilized world and traders began wondering how they could tap this storehouse of plenty. Fortunes were to be made in single trips, for ships laden with trinkets of no value, comparatively, would come back with their holds bulging with skins of great value. With the fur came some raw gold, of which the natives seemed possessed in no small quantities.

Captain Cook cleared up much of the indefiniteness connected with the country. He proved that the Northwest passage, which the Hudson's Bay company had been vainly seeking from the Atlantic coast, was so close to the year around that it was useless as a trade route.

Spain and England decided that their dispute would be settled by sending representatives to Nootka sound—the great river bearing his name and for his other valuable efforts toward fur discovery and exploration, came David Thompson and Simon Fraser, sent out by the same energetic "Nor'wester" Fur company.

Thompson crossed the Rockies by the Kicking Horse Pass, now used by the Canadian Pacific, and discovered the Columbia river, making Kootenay house, on the shores of Lake Windermere, his headquarters for exploration. Simon Fraser reached the waters of the Pacific via the Fraser river in 1806. Fraser encountered almost unsurmountable obstacles and endured every hardship and privation to accomplish his purpose.

The fur trade was now indeed an incentive for almost superhuman effort. Men would risk anything to obtain the pelts which meant fortunes when presented to the markets of Europe. The citizens of the United States, having but recently won their independence, were not slow in getting into the field also. John Jacob Astor, a German merchant and New York city, organized the Pacific Fur company, which founded Astoria at the mouth of the Columbia river in 1811. News of this had hardly reached the east when word of a trading post established at Spokane by the Northwest Fur company was received. The "Nor'westers" eventually bought out the Pacific Fur company in 1812.

Seven years later the Hudson's Bay company amalgamated with the Northwest company under the name of the former and transferred the fort and trading post at Astoria to Fort Vancouver, six miles above the junction of the Willamette and the Columbia rivers, near the city of Portland in Washington at random any city in Canada's west and search its history. It will be found that either fur or gold played a most vital part in its origin and in its later existence. This is true also of the city of Vancouver, on the forty-ninth parallel. Fur was the chief lure of the vanguard. None thought of making the land anything but either a vast fur-raising preserve, gold camp or timber limit.

Colonial Canada was frowned on by the powerful companies who were deeply interested in fur buying. Farming, save that necessary to supply the trading posts or the gold camps, was unheard of except as the Indians pursued the industry.

HOW RUSSIANS RETIRED BEFORE THE TEUTONS

Eyewitness Tells of the Retreat of the Czar's Third Army.

Headquarters of Russian Third Army, in Retreat Behind River San—(Correspondence by the British Eye-Witness.)—The details of the German advance on the Third Army are clear, the Russian army was not met directly, but pathways were cut and the Russian army corps were concentrated, some of the fresh troops being drawn from reserve divisions on the French front.

Meanwhile the long period employed in parative inaction of the German and bringing up the heaviest German and Austrian artillery and getting the range merely of the Russian lines, but of squares which covered a good part of their rear.

The Attack Diverted.

The enemy's advance was at first directed against what was thought to be the weakest part of the Russian army, namely its right flank, which had sent a number of reinforcements to the Carpathians. But the alertness of the Russian general on this side produced an alteration in the plan, and the attack was diverted to the next army corps in line. This corps sustained heavy losses in the numerous hill-fighting. A gap was forced between the two army corps, and the right flank of the threatened corps was crushed by the pounding fire. The flank retreated in good spirit, but with the heaviest losses, coming into line with the broken forces to the right of it. Meanwhile a tremendous cannonade was directed on the division still further eastward, with the result that some regiments suffered terribly.

The whole advance of the enemy was a counter-attack. The Russian advance was now outflanked and had to come backward. Half of this corps succeeded in rectifying its positions without serious loss, but the other division had the greatest difficulty in fighting its way through and lost heavily.

Meanwhile the enemy's attack was extended to the westward. Here the cannonade was furious and the trenches were in many parts wiped out, all approach to them from the rear for reinforcements being made almost impossible. Ultimately a retreat was ordered by the Russians on their side also.

The Third Army stood on a not extensive front partly in front of and partly behind the river. The apparently endless file of supply and ambulance trains had all made its way along the single line across the river. Whenever they stopped the stations were feasted by the Russian aeroplanes, at one time ten of these flying along the line. In one day three were brought down, all the airmen being killed.

In their distress along the San the Russians had a very difficult stream to guard and could easily be put under a flank. They did not care to do this, but, deeply mortified at the loss of ground for which they had sacrificed so much.

Cannonade Very Intense.

The enemy's cannonade became more and more intense, lasting all night and into the next day. Then the enemy made a footing on the Russian side of the river, was driven back, but returned and finally established himself on a point of another Russian retreat of some miles.

This brings the operations down to the date of filing this dispatch. The Russian army is still in the line, but behind, with those who have lived through them it is only the simple things that count, but they keep coming back new forms of vigor. The staff is in no way downhearted. It is sometimes preoccupied, sometimes in the thought of the necessary reinforcements, but they are full of spirit and energy and all consider that they are only half-way through this battle.

I return to my inevitable conclusion. The Russian retreat has been a big success of technique, and it has wiped out a number of good days. The battle is not over, and the Russians are on the offensive at points which offer hope of better results. The Russian army is firmer than ever, and more men are being poured in.

"WHAT PICTURES TO SEE IN AMERICA."

Mrs. Lorinda B. Bryant, author of "What Pictures to See in Europe in One Summer," "What Sculpture to See in Europe," "Pictures and Their Paintings" has added another interesting book to this series—"What Pictures to See in America."

It is perhaps interesting to the lovers of art to know that America is called a treasure house of the art of the world, and Americans are becoming the greatest lovers of these treasures. A class of tourists are searching the world for paintings by old masters, another is out enjoying the opportunity of seeing and admiring these old and rare paintings now to be found in American museums. In our American cities where paintings are to be found from Giotto through Fra Angelico, Botticelli, Raphael, Titian, Rubens, Rembrandt, and Velasquez, to the modern masters of European and American art.

This book will be of great value to the general tourist, for the author, who has visited all the galleries of America from Boston to San Francisco, points out the masterpieces of the famous artists.

The 200 illustrations are very successful in showing the beauty of the art. J. B. Lippincott Company, New York.

WOMAN SUFFRAGE.

"Common Sense as Applied to Woman Suffrage." A Statement of the Reasons for the Demand to Extend the Suffrage to Women. With Consideration of the Arguments Against the Suffrage presented to the New York State Convention of 1894. By Mrs. M. E. Putnam-Jacobus. With an Introduction by Frances Maule Brinkman.

This book makes a very interesting statement of the reasons which justify the demand to extend suffrage to women, she also makes special reference to the reasons presented to the New York state convention. It presents her address as delivered before the constitutional convention of 1894, which was said to have been one of the strongest speeches ever made to the convention. The question of woman's rights, that is, women's political rights, comes up again. The legislature of New York has placed before the voters of the state a measure to enfranchise the women and again the convention is asked to take the necessary steps that will give woman what she is asking for.

THE END OF THE GREAT WAR.

J. Stewart Barnes, the author, has written a very interesting war story of an American millionaire scientist who has decided that the war must cease. After the scientist comes to this decision he perfects a startling invention which places the uses in supreme control of the world. The hero of the day sails for Europe and manages to get a hearing from the heads of Europe. He gets France and England enthused over his wonderful invention, but Germany refuses to accept the conditions. It is a very interesting story and one that the reader will be sure to enjoy. (G. E. Putnam's Sons, New York.)

J. B. LIPPINCOTT COMPANY.

The American Horse

This is a very important subject at this time and Professor Gay, of the University of Pennsylvania, understands the horse as no one else does. He traces the horse industry from Alpha to Omega. "Productive Horse Husbandry" has just been published and the author, with his eye for the horse, has brought to the attention of American farmers and stockmen to the great importance of preparing for the enormous demand for horses which will come in the next few years. The author is in the close of the war. Among the Americans who have taken a leading part in the development of the American horse is August Belmont.

Romance of the Beaver.

A. R. Diggins is a new book that is worth reading, and in which the author pays a splendid tribute to an old yet well-known industry. He describes his work as follows:

"Throughout North America it is fairly easy to catch millions of acres of the finest cultivated land owe their existence to the beaver. . . . In some cases evidence of beaver work has been found fully thirty or forty feet down; there is fairly good evidence that the dam built by the beaver must have some range in length from a few inches to two thousand feet or more, containing building material up to several hundred tons all carried laboriously by the industrious builders in their tiny hands or with their powerful teeth."

As is well known, these engineering marvels are among the shrewd as well as the most intelligent animals, but the delightful way the author is describing the beaver at every stage of his great engineering feats.

Training of a Pioneer Forester.

Gifford Pinchot, has been considered worth discussing. In the first place his father, Gifford Pinchot, who died in Milford, Pike county, upon coming to this country from France. The family home has been in Milford ever since. The secretary of agriculture made an extended tour of the national forest reserves recently and was aroused to warm admiration by the results that had been achieved with them. The Rev. Dr. Gifford Pinchot is serving as a trustee of the American Forestry Association.

GEORGE H. DORAN COMPANY.

Robert W. Wagner, etc., has been much interested in Ford Madox Hueffer's recent book, "When Blood is Their Argument," an incisive analysis of Prussian Kultur, that he has written to Mr. George H. Doran, the publisher, as follows: "Indeed I did find the keenest pleasure in reading the book in question and I am very grateful to you for giving me the opportunity."

It is rumored now that the last name of Oliver Onions should be pronounced Onions, to rhyme with Lyons, and not like the name of the vegetable. Another rumor is that the name of the author has ceased to be numerous.

Mrs. Helen S. Woodruff, author of "The Little House," etc., was chosen by the Authors League of America as a delegate to the National Conference of Women ever held in the south—the Conference of Southern Women, the Southern Writers' League, and the Educational League, which met at Chattanooga. This is the first convention of any kind to which the Authors' League has ever sent a delegate.

Barnes O'Grady, the famous author of "The Scarlet Pimpernel," etc., has been honored by the English government for his great service in founding the Women's War Relief Committee, a league through which she appealed to the women and girls of England not to stand in the way of father, brother, son or husband. She desired to offer his services to his country, but to encourage him to do his duty. "A Bride of the Plains," written a story of the gray-a Hudson's Bay post, the settlers were induced to farm their land. They did, and sold their products to the trading posts and gold camps as far north as Alaska.

IDEA OF LOCAL GOVERNMENT.

That Canada could raise anything but fur was never dreamed of apparently by the first men who came to the continent. It was not until one day it was discovered that the Fraser river contained rich mineral deposits that the British Columbia and within a few months the country was so filled with settlers, gold seekers and humanity of all descriptions that the British government organized a local government to administer the vast and visionary character to a local government.

An interesting fact that presents itself to those studying early Canadian history is that though the massive gold mine of the early settlers was regarding establishing Canada as a nation, or as an integral part of an empire, the country had not yet been organized into a unit after a few years lifted into the brains of the men at the head of affairs "this is situated in an incident in Victoria's history.

The Hudson's Bay company had received a license from the British government in anticipation of the settling of the boundary question, then in dispute between the United States and Great Britain. The directors of the company seemed to realize that the United States would probably win and that the gold fields which the new city of Portland would eventually come within the limits of the country which had won its independence from George III.

One day the citizens of Victoria were visited by a large number of testaments to the "white coal" of the mountains. The citizens thought at first they were being attacked. Later they discovered that the men who came from the mining camps of California seeking to buy provisions and clothing from the Hudson's Bay store, had offered an offer of gold. The offer was refused, but the citizens were so thankful that it could not be refused. The gold was not taken from his store to the assay's office with a view to having it hammered out and assayed. This was done. The gold was proven to be genuine. Needless to say, the merchants of Victoria sold most of the gold to the assay's office which had been on their shelves for years.

The population of British Columbia grew rapidly that she was strong in her government and the elements which had stood out so long in favor of the Hudson's Bay company. To reserve a vast gold mine or a big lumber camp were thrust aside by those who wished to know what was behind the movement of confederation would do for British Columbia provided the crown colony desired to enter with the other provinces into a Dominion. The federal government at that time held out promises to British Columbia of a home government, that they would enter the Dominion.

BRITISH COLUMBIA WANTED RAILROAD.

British Columbia insisted that they did not wish to be a part of the Dominion unless some provision was made to connect her cities with those of the rest of the country by rail.

This seemed to be a stupendous task. The mountains were little known. There had been some exploration, but not much. Whether there were any suitable for railway construction or not was but faintly known. Nevertheless the British government, which Columbia to connect her with the other provinces by rail.

Sir Stanford Fleming was sent out to investigate the country, although made easier in many ways by the attempts at exploration previously made. The report of the investigation was a systematic exploration bearing on the possibilities of the country and its adaptability for railway construction. The report was made by the Hon. Wm. Van Horne, Lord of the Admiralty, and his associates had assured the government, when they undertook the project, that they would have a railway from Victoria to the interior by a certain date. They promised that the construction of the railway would be undertaken by the government, and that the government would have a railway from Victoria to the interior by a certain date.

November 5, 1888, the last spike of the Canadian Pacific was driven at Craigellachie. The rails connected the Pacific coast with the Hudson's Bay territory with the gold and timber camps of the Pacific coast. They traced in steel the same path that the fur-trader and the fortune-hunter had trod in seeking the pelt and the pot of gold at the base of the rainbow.

DARIO RESTA - The Fastest and Slowest Man who lives today

On the Track This King of Speed Kings Knows No Limit in Alacrity and Daring; Off It He Is the Opposite Extreme—Methodical, Slow of Speech and Movement and Modest to a Point of Painfulness. "Why Do I Win? Because I Have the Best Car and Am Lucky," He Explains

By BERT LENNON.

SOME one once said that the tiger lily was the Theodore Roosevelt of the flower kingdom—sturdy, stanch and virile. The shrinking violet—if a violet really shrinks—might well be termed the Dario Resta of said flower kingdom. Skim the broth from a potpourri of such words as humble, diffident, bashful, unassuming, unobtrusive, unostentatious and unpretending, and you have the composite word which best describes the world's speed king.

That word is MODEST. "I suppose you are happy and proud," I said to Resta after he had won the 500-mile international auto derby in Chicago recently. "I am happy—not proud," he answered. "Not proud?" "No; that is, if you mean in the sense that I have an overweening estimation of my own supposed superiority as an auto racer; yes, if you mean in the sense that I have a feeling of exaltation and happiness at having won first money."

Resta shifted uneasily. He very much disliked being interviewed. Most peculiar, for at that particular moment he towered head and shoulders over others basking in the spotlight of fame. And it is quite the popular thing for baskers to talk themselves hoarse to a man with pad and pencil.

He Tries to Sidestep All Praise.

"I don't want you to print a lot of stuff about me being the greatest auto driver. You'd be libeling the other fellows who make a living in the racing game. I'm a good driver—that I can't deny." (He would if he could.) "But so are all the boys who pit their skill against mine."

"But explain why you win with such striking regularity—why you are picked as favorite in the big races?"

The good ship Modesty seemed in dire straits as this torpedolike question was flung at her bow. But the young pilot wiggled his craft out of danger. "I win for two reasons," he said. "First, because I have the best car, and, second, because I am lucky." Not a bit of credit to himself—all to the makers of the Peugeot and to Billiken. But the ostrich who sticks its head in the sand has as much chance to hide its plump body as Resta has to conceal his wonderful skill at the wheel. In the patter of the vaudeville stage, "it can't be did."

Not so long ago a news item in an eastern newspaper told of an elevator boy winning a hundred-yard dash in ten and a fraction seconds. Nothing unusual in that except that the boy for years had operated the slowest freight elevator in his town. "I was so plumb disgusted with myself when people kidded me about it that I decided to speed up some way," he said. "I couldn't do it with the elevator, so I trained for the footrace."

Resta looks into the other end of life's telescope. The winner of the Grand Prix and the Vanderbilt cup at the San Francisco exposition, the pilot who brought home $23,500 worth of bacon from the international auto derby at Chicago, is a tallender in the bustle and bustle of ordinary life. He will never be afflicted with Americana. He dresses as fast as little Willie does on the morning of school examinations; he walks about as lively as little Willie does when, on

To Anybody Who Tries to Analyze His Success

Here is Dario Resta in His "Speed Clothes." This Picture Was Taken After He Had Won the International Auto Derby at Chicago. He Says He Won Because He Was Lucky, but Speedway Fans Will Tell You That Resta "Brings Home the Bacon" Because He is a Fearless, Daring and Skilled Driver.

an errand, he chances to pass a dog and pony show; he eats his meals with the same alacrity as little Willie when the latter has been promised an introduction to the cat-o-nine tails as soon as he has finished.

But Don't Imagine He's Lazy.

You must not think that Resta is lazy. Far from it. He is always doing something, but he does that something with a minimum amount of energy. He conserves his energy for use on a day when his head is in a hood, his eyes peering from a pair of goggles, he sits in his famous "No. 6" and pursues Victory despite the warning hand of Death. On such an occasion he has cornered enough pep and energy to make him a fit subject for prosecution under the Sherman anti-trust law.

"I take my time everywhere except on the speedways," is the way Resta puts it. "Since coming to your country I have seen thousands of men and women suffering from the effects of too much haste. To be well we need a balance of both mental and physical control. If we are lacking in either we become ill. Lack of self-control of the mind is as harmful as lack of self-control of the body.

"To keep the body and mind well every man and woman needs a certain amount of physical and mental recreation. But they should not overdo. They should not go at it as though everything depended on their putting into such physical and mental recreation all the energy they possess. My favorite game is golf."

When one learns that Resta was international figure-skating champion during 1911-1912 one becomes acquainted with the fact that he practices what he preaches. "I never went in for the strenuous game of speed skating," he said. "I derived all the exercise I needed from the sane branch of the sport." Also one becomes acquainted with the fact that auto racing is the only element of speed mania from which the intrepid Resta suffers.

When Resta told me that his bride of a few months was the sister of Spencer Wishart, the daredevil auto driver who was killed in the Elgin road races last July, it was natural that I should scent a race track romance.

No Romance for Him, Either.

"No such thing," said Resta. Somehow he seemed determined to evade making "good copy." "I was introduced to Mrs. Resta by Mr. Wishart, and, in the ordinary course of events, we came to think a good deal of each other. I asked her to become my wife.

She accepted the proposal. That's all there was to it. Nothing could be more simple—more prosaic."

Dario Resta was born in Livorno, Italy, thirty-two years ago. When Dario was 2 year old his parents emigrated to England, and in later years the boy was educated in the public schools of his adopted land. It was in the Panhard shops near Paris that he first gained experience with automobile motors, and secured the knowledge which today stands him so well.

That he began his racing career by working with motors is characteristic of him. Today he knows more about his machine than any mechanic on the track where he is racing. "Engine trouble" has to be pretty serious to materially interfere with Resta's progress toward his goal.

How Fast Can He Possibly Go?

Just how fast can Resta drive his "No. 6?" He himself does not know. He traveled the 500 miles at Chicago in 3 hours 7 minutes and 27 seconds, or an average of 87.6 miles an hour. That was faster than any man had ever traveled a like distance before. Given a straight boulevard from the loop in Chicago to the Great White Way in New York, Resta, if he maintained this speed the entire distance, could cover the vast expanse of territory in ten hours.

Resta's career as a racer was begun in England in 1907. He won his first race, but was disqualified. The young pilot, undismayed by the streak of hard luck, later in the same year won three races on Brooklands and the Prix de la France.

Victory in the latter event won Resta a place on the Austin team which was sent to France in 1908 for the Grand Prix. Resta finished ninth in a field of forty-eight starters. He next joined the Erol Johnson team, but failed to finish in the Isle of Man race. In 1911 he finished third in the Coupe l'Auto. When the following year he joined the Sunbeam team he drove in the small-car division of the Grand Prix, finishing one minute behind the winner, his teammate, Haghi. He lost the race through an error in timing.

"Auto racing is not my only source of income," Resta told me. "I have a business in England—that of buying cars for the nobility."

I wonder what reply Resta makes to a duke or an earl who compliments him on delivery of an exceptionally fine automobile. I cannot imagine him saying else than, "Well, wasn't I lucky," giving himself no credit for good judgment.

Modesty is Resta's middle name.

Hazardous Work for Uncle Sam's Men on Sandy Hook Proving Ground, Where Government's Powder and Guns Are Tested

Testing a Twelve Inch Disappearing Gun. The Recoil from the Discharge Makes the Gun Disappear Into the Pit.

Mountain Howitzer of Type Ready for Use on Mexican Border. It Can Be Disassembled in One Minute and Packed on the Backs of Mules.

Turret, with Fourteen Inch Gun, To Be Mounted in Manila Harbor.

$5,000,000 Worth of Munitions.

At the Sandy Hook Proving Ground are about a dozen officers of the Ordnance Department of the United States Army, who risk their lives in testing guns and powder in order that the entire army may not be jeopardized by faulty armament or ammunition. The men in charge of this important work—doubly important now when war is uppermost in the minds of so large a part of the population of the world—are engineers rather than soldiers. They have had technical and mechanical training and are more familiar with the work of the shop than with the drilling ground. The importance of their work is tremendous, for it underlies the efficiency of the entire army and all military operations.

being made at that place. The gun carriage will be mounted and tested at Sandy Hook. Special cars had to be built to carry it, as, in addition to its great length, it has a weight of 284,500 pounds. A special car 102 feet long had to be obtained from the Bethlehem Steel Company to carry it, the weight of car and gun together being 480,920 pounds. The big sea coast guns are tested with smokeless powder to about 50,000 pounds per square inch, although the service pressure is only 38,000 pounds. That is characteristic of all the experiments here. Everything is overtested, so that they shall be more than certain to meet ordinary requirements. Although every precaution is taken to insure safety there is always a certain amount of danger attending the making of tests, especially with the high explosive and more powerful guns. Concrete defences, behind which the men who are working on the test can retire for safety, have been constructed, but the officers stand upon a gallery, or bridge, that they may the better watch results, and there is to-day a gouged bit of masonry which bears witness to the necessity for such protection, and an officer who was on the bridge at the time of the mishap was severely injured.

Effect of Heavy Gunfire on Reinforced Concrete.

It is placed in long bags of raw silk, at each end of which are placed circular quilted mats of the raw silk when it is to be ignited. The ideal powder is totally consumed before the projectile leaves the muzzle, and when this does not happen the officers in charge of the test set down a condemnatory record. To find just the right powder for a certain gun and to find it perfect of its kind is the object of all their efforts. Firing a big gun is an expensive as well as a hazardous operation. The powder for a 14-inch gun will cost about $120 and a cast iron projectile about $50, while the armor piercing projectile used in actual warfare would be made of steel and be far more expensive. Tests are made at the proving ground, of armor plate, some of it so thick that it would seem impossible to make any impression upon it, yet there are pieces shown that have been pierced as readily as if they were of wood. Sometimes the hole is not clear cut, the metal having splintered or cracked, showing an imperfection. Tests have been made, too, of reinforced concrete, and the havoc wrought by the guns in the strongest kind of construction work in that line gives one some idea of what must be taking place in Europe, where real fortifications are being battered to pieces.

Few Americans have any conception of the work that is being carried on at this low lying stretch of sand that lies between the regular route of the summer visitors on their way to the New Jersey seashore resorts and the steamships that go to and fro between New York and foreign ports. From Highland Beach a little government train runs down to the point. Sometimes it is not a train but only a kind of hand car, that runs like an automobile on a track. Sandy Hook does not court visitors. On the contrary, the public is distinctly invited to stay away from the territory devoted to the testing of dangerous materials. The sand which makes up the Hook is a great safeguard and is fully utilized by the officers, but now and then, with all precautions possible, there are narrow escapes, as when two women sat down on the beach just behind a structure at which a shell was about to be fired and were discovered just in time.

So much appears in the news these days about the howitzer that the experiments with a new one at the Sandy Hook Proving Ground have a peculiar interest. It is a 3.8-howitzer, which throws a projectile of thirty pounds, and has many improvements over the ones now in use. In the first place, it has a split trail, which affords special facility in pointing the target, getting the elevation and a greatly increased range. The writer had an opportunity of watching a test of this howitzer. First of all, a soldier reported that there was nothing in sight on land or sea. Then the gun was loaded and the officer in charge rang a signal which notified the office at some distance that a test was about to be made. The order was given to fire and the men sought vantage points of safety behind great piles of sand. As the projectile soared through the air it passed through a screen of copper wires on a frame a few yards distant, cutting a circuit, and at a short distance further through a similar screen, cutting another circuit. This was recorded at headquarters and made the basis for computing the velocity, which was so great that an ordinary observer was not able to detect the course of the projectile as it flew through the air. The little

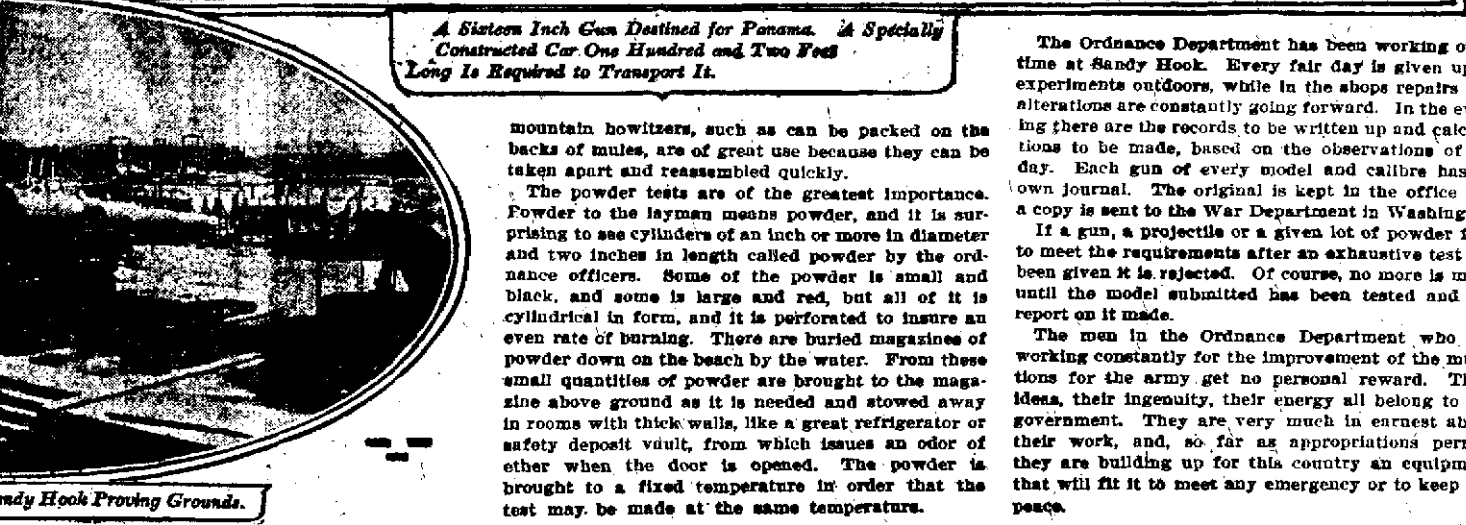

A Sixteen Inch Gun Destined for Panama. A Specially Constructed Car One Hundred and Two Feet Long Is Required to Transport It.

The Ordnance Department has been working overtime at Sandy Hook. Every fair day is given up to experiments outdoors, while in the shops repairs and alterations are constantly going forward. In the evening there are the records to be written up and calculations to be made, based on the observations of the day. Each gun of every model and calibre has its own journal. The original is kept in the office and a copy is sent to the War Department in Washington. If a gun, a projectile or a given lot of powder fails to meet the requirements after an exhaustive test has been given it is rejected. Of course, no more is made until the model submitted has been tested and the report on it made. The men in the Ordnance Department who are working constantly for the improvement of the munitions for the army get no personal reward. Their ideas, their ingenuity, their energy all belong to the government. They are very much in earnest about their work, and, so far as appropriations permit, they are building up for this country an equipment that will fit it to meet any emergency or to keep the peace.

There is a model of every kind of gun used by the United States Army and many that have been rejected at the Proving Ground. The making, testing and placing of a large sea coast gun in position is such a slow process that in understanding it one gets a new light on the necessity of being prepared for defence if it should be necessary instead of imagining that in such circumstances the country could be equipped over night, so to speak. A year is often allotted to the test of a new type. The government makes most of its own guns and powder, but at times under laws or restrictions imposed by the non-military part of the government, which make the tests hazardous and the results unsatisfactory. At the best, the testing is a tedious matter and depends upon many things for its thoroughness. This year there have been many hindrances because of the weather. Only on clear days is it safe to test the great guns, some of which carry sixteen miles out to sea and would jeopardize the shipping in that locality if fired in foggy weather.

There has just been completed a test of an enormous turret, bearing two 14-inch guns, which is to be sent to Manila as a part of the fortification of the harbor. These turrets revolve so that the guns can be pointed in any direction, but always the two being parallel. Tests are being made on other 14-inch guns which are intended for the Panama fortifications. These are the largest guns now in use in this country, except one 16-inch gun, which was at the Proving Ground for a time, but is now at the arsenal at Watertown, Mass., for use in testing the carriage for it that is

THE FOUNDING OF COLLEGES.

There were many ways in which the colonies finished and filled out their lives which showed that they regarded themselves as in a sense independent communities and meant to provide for themselves everything they needed for their life alone on a separate continent.

They had no thought of actually breaking away from their allegiance to the home government over sea; but no man could possibly overlook the three thousand miles of water that stretched between England and America.

AT ENGLAND'S EXPENSE.

English fleets and armies had not been sent to America and equipped for warfare there, sustained in war season and out of it, without enormous expense, and that expense, which had set the colonies free to live without dread of invasion or confinement at any border, England had borne.

THE ALBANY CONFERENCE.

SEVEN colonies were represented at the Albany conference.

THE TEMPER OF THE COLONIES.

It was now more than forty years since the first of the colonies had been put forward as twenty-two years in his 'Poor Richard's' almanac, begun in 1732.

Then the war came, and made things plain. The colonies did not co-operate. They contributed troops, watched their own territories as they could against the redskins, and freely spent both blood and money in the great struggle, but front to the encroachments of the French—a statesman-like object, which no man who wished to serve the interests of the British empire could reasonably criticize.

It was fatal, they knew, to wait. If the English were ever to be driven within the barriers of the Alleghenies, it must be done now, and not later when they would rally to the desperate business.

IN NO AWE OF THE BRITISH.

Now that the French were driven over it was more useless than ever to argue the colonists out of their belief in their right of self-government.

BRITAIN'S SHORTSIGHTED POLICY.

B Y this time the English ministers knew the nature of the task which awaited them in America.

DOWNFALL OF PONTIAC.

FRANCE had ceded to England as a result of the war all the vast territory which lay upon the St. Lawrence and the western mountains, north and south.

Every Frenchman was glad to be driven within the barriers of the Alleghenies, it must be done now, and not later when they would rally to the desperate business.

THE STAMP ACT INOPERATIVE.

THE act was not to go into operation until the 1st of November 1765, but long before the 1st of November it was evident that it would not go into effect at all.

DEFIANCE FROM VIRGINIA.

New England could no longer send her horses, cattle, lumber, casks and fish to the French islands and the Spanish Main, and bring thence in exchange for them, sugar and molasses, she had to carry out her trade in spirits and five thousand of her seamen, idle and starve, must seek elsewhere for a market for her chief products.

The king then the parliament had chartered the colonies, and they conceived their assemblies to be associated with him as parliament itself had been in the old days before the revolution in 1688 to take him as a member of taxation and with his consent make the laws they were to live under.
