

STATE WILL WAIT FOR U. S. MANDATE IN CASE OF FRANK Supreme Court Has Right to Modify Decision in Any Fashion It Pleases Within Thirty Days. WILL PASS SENTENCE WHEN MANDATE COMES At That Time State Automatically Resumes Jurisdiction of the Case—Papers Expected by May 20.

Brookhaven clubhouse, purchase of which was authorized at last night's meeting of the members of the Capital City club, as it will appear when improvements to cost $10,000 are completed.

Judge Ben Hill decided yesterday afternoon that not until he had received the official mandate of the supreme court in Washington would he grant the writ of habeas corpus applied for by Solicitor Hugh M. Dorsey in an effort to have Leo Frank brought before Judge Hill for passage of a new death sentence.

In this connection the interesting statement was made by Judge Hill that the United States supreme court within the thirty days it officially withholds its mandate from the superior court, can affirm or modify in any manner its decision in the case. In question in short, the supreme court, whether it proper, can, between now and May 20 revoke its decision in the Frank case, or modify it, or reconstruct it in any form it sees advisable.

Asked for Resentence. The application for the writ of habeas corpus presented to me by Solicitor Dorsey this morning, said Judge Hill late Monday afternoon, "requested me to direct the sheriff 'bring Frank before the court for the purpose of fixing the date for execution of the sentence passed upon him by Judge Roan'.

Under the rule of the United States supreme court the decision in the Frank case will be held in Washington for thirty days before the superior court of Fulton county is officially notified of it. Until the expiration of thirty days, the supreme court has the right, either with or without an application for rehearing, to change or modify their verdict in any manner.

MAYVILLE, Ga., May 3.—(Special)—After nearly twenty years of separation and legal divorce Colonel Oscar Brown and the bride of his first love were reunited in Homer, in Banks county, yesterday afternoon. Colonel Brown was just Oscar Brown, the young lawyer, when a score of years ago he fell in love with pretty Miss Olline McNorton and married her for the first time. They lived happily for a while and a little boy, Fred, was born to them. But they later had disagreements and separated. Olline followed, and little Fred was placed in his mother's custody.

WASHINGTON, May 3.—Announcement that a wireless message had been flashed for the first time during daylight hours from Panama to Arlington was made tonight by the navy department. The distance is about 2,600 miles and hitherto wireless communication has been at night. The new service is expected to effect a saving in the government's cable bills, as it is hoped to handle all official messages between Panama and Washington by wireless.

Name of Baby Girl, Just 1 Second Old, Put on Cradle Roll

Now comes the North Avenue Presbyterian church Sunday school with a challenge for the claim of the Baptist tabernacle that it enrolled the youngest baby in the world. It was reported in Monday's Constitution that a world's record had been broken when the young son of A. M. Smith, superintendent of the primary department of the Baptist church, entered on the cradle roll when only five minutes old. Dr. Marion McEl Hull, superintendent of the North Avenue Presbyterian church, takes issue with Mr. Smith and has sent The Constitution a signed statement in which he says he has on his cradle roll the holder of the world's record—a baby enrolled at the age of one second. This is little Charlotte Regans, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Regans, 29 Greenwood avenue, and a member of the North Avenue Presbyterian church.

Editor, Constitution: I notice in the morning paper your statement about the youngest baby enrolled in Sunday school. The record is not held by the Sunday school reported, but by the North Avenue Presbyterian Sunday school.

Expensive Smoke Taken By Dr. C. E. Tumlin; Lit Cigar at Church Meeting. Dr. C. E. Tumlin was fined $3.75 by the recorder Monday afternoon for smoking a cigar. It is against the laws of Atlanta for any one to smoke a cigar if the smoke is indulged in inside of a church. Dr. Tumlin smoked his cigar while he was standing in a hall at the corner of Marietta street and Bellwood avenue Sunday night. The hall is used as a church by the Holiness people, sometimes spoken of as the "Holy Rollers."

WOODWARD'S VETO BEATEN, 19 TO 9

Mayor Woodward went down in defeat again Monday when the general council by a vote of 19 to 9 declared void his veto of the amendment to the ordinance creating the city purchasing department. By the amendment the department is put under the supervision of the council. The faithful few stood by their guns and strenuously opposed the passage of the motion to override, but the majority, which had the city attorney and assistant city attorney with them, gave no heed to the mayor's appeal to "keep the department out of politics," but went roughshod over him. Friends of the mayor in council have had rough sailing for several weeks and for any of them to initiate a certain defeat. Just two weeks ago council set aside the mayor's veto of the Pryor street paving resolution providing for a brick pavement and the work is now being done without his approval.

Illegal, Claims Mayor. The mayor declares the action in both matters was illegal and he may take the purchasing agent matter into the courts, as he threatened to do when the Pryor street matter. One member of council has volunteered to defray half the expense of taking the former measure into court.

When Councilman Smith offered a motion that the phrase, "council only voting," be stricken, Councilman C. L. Ashley protested, saying it was plainly an Aldermanic paper and that it would be a bad precedent to establish a general council to handle matters involving the expenditure of money without sending them to the Aldermen. Councilman Farlinger said the measure provided for the expenditure of money in that it extended the term of purchasing agent from one to two years. Since the Aldermanic board acts separately on matters involving the expenditure of money, he said, it ought to go to the Aldermanic board.

Those voting on veto. The mayor were. Aldermen Kelly, Thomson, Maddox, Barnes, Armstrong, Owens and Seawright. Councilmen Alverson, Knight, McCord, Hall, Freeman of the north, Lee, Wood, White of the ninth, White of the seventh, Smith, Reynolds and Manning.

Denver, Colo., May 3.—Fred Farrar, attorney general of Colorado, commenting upon the conviction of John E. McNamee, said: "I think this is the first case on record where a leader of a union has been convicted of crimes of violence against the non-union workmen of a business. The McNamee case was based on a confession. The Lawson case was not."

VISIONS OF WEALTH For Leader Busts New "Jitney" Club

Having visions of wealth for their president, J. F. Hazelton, it is claimed, practically every member of the "Jitney Bus" club deserted the organization, with the result that it was dissolved Monday. Mr. Hazelton announced he would attempt to organize another club, and said he had several pledges to join him. The club elected Mr. Hazelton president several weeks ago, and agreed to pay him 15 cents per day per car operated, for the privileges afforded by the central waiting room on Walton street. As the club membership increased, some of the members, it is said, figured that with a membership of 1,000 cars, Mr. Hazelton would be receiving $150 per day, and they determined to get a share of the profits. Efforts were made to take over the club, but none of Hazelton's propositions were satisfactory.

LABOR LEADER LAWSON CONVICTED OF MURDER

Trinidad, Colo., May 3.—John R. Lawson, member of the International executive board of the United Mine Workers of America, was found guilty of murder in the first degree today in connection with the death at Ludlow, Colo., October 25, 1913, of John Nimmo. Lawson was sentenced to spend the remainder of his life at hard labor in the Colorado penitentiary.

Under the Colorado statutes, the jury, which had been deliberating since Saturday night, was empowered to return a sentence either of death or life imprisonment. Thirty days were given attorneys for the defense to file a motion for a new trial. Lawson was released temporarily in custody of his counsel. He talked quite philosophically of the verdict. He said: "So, a few weeks ago, they can't defeat the cause of labor. I'm not worrying about myself, it's the working men that I am interested in—and that will go ahead. Even for me, it's a long way to the penitentiary. My attorney will not give up until everything possible has been done to save me."

Denver, Colo., May 3.—Fred Farrar, attorney general of Colorado, commenting upon the conviction of John E. McNamee, said: "I think this is the first case on record where a leader of a union has been convicted of crimes of violence against the non-union workmen of a business. The McNamee case was based on a confession. The Lawson case was not."

CAPITAL CITY CLUB BUYS BROOKHAVEN

At the meeting of the Capital City club held last night, the members voted to purchase the Brookhaven estates, known for the past two years as the Capital City Country club, was exercised in the unanimous adoption of the following resolutions, which were introduced by Alfred C. Newell, their adoption being moved and seconded in eloquent speeches by R. F. Maddox and Clark Howell. The Capital City club has afforded pleasure to the entire membership of this club and to their families, and the Capital City Country club has added some three hundred to its membership. It is the wish of those who by this club entered a moral obligation to the maintenance of the Country Club, that it be sold to the Capital City club.

Option Taken Two Years Ago.

This option was taken two years ago by the Capital City club, with the understanding that it would have three years within which to exercise it. Thus far, the club has not exercised the use of the property for one year longer on a rental basis, but it was deemed advisable not only by the club, but by the management of the Brookhaven estates, which had in addition agreed to give the club $10,000 in cash for the remodeling of the club building, or to undertake the remodeling of the building along the line of the plans and specifications submitted and approved—all costs for the remodeling, according to these plans and specifications, to be borne by the Brookhaven estates.

Agrees to Accept Offer. The club last night agreed to make the payment of $80,000 in 5 per cent twenty-year bonds, and it authorized the governing committee to accept the offer of the Brookhaven estates to undertake the remodeling of the building according to the plans and specifications submitted—this in lieu of the alternative $10,000 offered for the remodeling of the building.

TURKS WORSTED AT DARDANELLES Information Reaching Athens Shows That Allies Are Advancing—Turks Burning Villages as They Retreat.

Paris, May 4.—(12 20 a. m.)—The allies' operations against the Dardanelles are developing favorably, according to information reaching here from different sources, says Havas' Athens correspondent. "Heavy fighting continues, in which the Turks are constantly being worsted. The guns of the fleet land effective aid to the troops. The allies have occupied several villages which were in ruins. The Turks, it seems, burn all villages as they retreat."

London, May 3.—(12 20 a. m.)—The allies' operations against the Dardanelles, 23 miles south of the town of Gallipoli. The British admiralty has not commented on these reports. "Unofficial dispatches agree that the allies are progressing toward the narrow under cover of the fire of their naval guns which are inflicting great damage on the Turkish defenses, including the reported total destruction of the town of Dardanelles."

Berlin and Vienna Officially Announce That the Entire Russian Center Has Been Crushed Along a Front of Many Miles in Western Galicia.

AUSTRO-GERMAN DRIVE MEANS TEMPORARY HALT TO THE RUSSIAN ADVANCE

In Fact, if the Berlin-Vienna Claims Are Borne Out, the Whole Russian Campaign in the Carpathians Will Be Seriously Affected—Comparative Quiet on Western Front.

London, May 3.—According to Berlin and Vienna, the German and Austrian armies have achieved a notable victory in west Galicia, smashing the entire Russian center along a front of many miles, or as the Berlin official statement puts it, across the whole western tip of Galicia, from near the Hungarian border to the point where the river Buzajec joins the Vistula, right at the frontier of Poland. Though the 6,000 prisoners the Teuton allies say they have taken does not compare with the number which some of Field Marshal von Hindenburg's rushes netted him in the north, the achievement, if subsequent reports bear it out, will mean at least a temporary check to the Russians hammering their way westward since the fall of Przemyśl.

GERMANS RAIDING BALTIC PROVINCES. In the fighting in the Baltic provinces also Berlin finds cause to rejoice. Reflecting the Russian contention that it is only a sporadic cavalry raid, Berlin wireless comment received tonight says it seriously threatens the Russian right, and the fact that troops could be moved so far northeast before they encountered resistance is considered a reflection on the Russian intelligence system.

RUSSIAN REPORT VERY RETICENT. Beyond the admission in the Petrograd official communication that a desperate battle had been engaged in since last Saturday night on the front from the lower Nida river to the Carpathian mountains, no further news has come through concerning the fighting, in which both Berlin and Vienna claim a victory. The reticence of the Russian official communication, though it may indicate that the battle is still unfinished, is the more noticeable because of the fact that the Russian situation is so serious.

Miss Berry Tells the Story Of Her Mountain School

The feature of the meeting of the Martha Berry circle yesterday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Preston Arkwright, "Pinebloom," in Druid Hills, was the presence of Miss Berry, the founder of the Martha Berry school, its promoter and guardian angel, and an address made by her with stereoscopic views.

The meeting opened with the reading of annual reports by officers and chairman and then followed the address by Miss Berry. With stereoscopic views she showed first the beauties of the mountainous country in which the school centers; then groups of the people of the mountain, the type of boys and girls who come to the school and finally the way they appear on leaving the school and their subsequent achievement.

Miss Berry's story is always a beautiful theme—her interest first in the children who came to the cabin Sunday school on her father's estate; finally the beginning of the school. Then follows the inspiring growth of the institution; her faithful work for it; her going north and promoting interest in it; the organization of Martha Berry circles and the securing of an endowment of $100,000; the continued growth of the school and the adding to it of the dormitory classes and facilities for educating mountain girls, and finally the school regarded as a model of its kind.

The everyday life at the school, the bringing together of the academic and industrial training and the preparation of the boys and girls for life make a story romantic as well as inspiring.

Miss Berry, who is now in her 80th year, explained many parts of the curriculum and the pedagogic phases of the school.

A beautiful reception completed the evening. The social hour was assisted in entertaining by her lovely young daughter, Miss Dorothy Arkwright, and a group of young girls.

Miss Berry is the guest of her sister, Mrs. J. Bulow Campbell.

May Day Is Celebrated By Girls at Agnes Scott

Before an audience of more than 600 people the Agnes Scott students who participated in the annual May day festivities yesterday afternoon on the college campus presented an artistic and entertaining program that delighted the large crowd who attended the celebration.

The young ladies marched out in procession to music, and clad in their varicolored costumes presented a picturesque sight. Miss Gertrude Amundsen, a student of Agnes Scott, was the interpreter of Emerson's "May Day," Longfellow's "Spring" and other appropriate poems was in every way artistic.

The first part of the program was a pantomime representing the banishment of winter, with sleet, snow, wind and rain and the return of spring, the girls being costumed as the different seasons. Spring was represented by Miss Jeanette Victor, who gave a beautiful symbolic dance, "The Spirit of Spring." A graceful and classic dance was "The Song of the Robin," given by three young girls, who danced for joy upon hearing the robin singing. Especially effective was the dance of the "Daffodils," by twelve girls dressed in yellow and green costumes representing daffodils.

The latter part of the program was given over to the May Queen. After the reading of Corinna's "Maying," the village girls bring offerings of flowers to the throne, and then unite in an English country dance. At the sound of the bugle the Queen and her attendants approach the dance, and dancing in gala mood.

The May Queen was Miss Ray Harvison, who made a lovely picture in her flowing robes and crown of flowers, and seated under a canopy of beautiful flowers.

There followed artistic dances before the Queen, including a stately "Minuet" by ladies of the court; a unique dance, called the "Maypole" by girls dressed in green costumes and waving large red banners, and last came the ever-popular "Maypole" dance, always a pretty feature of May day festivities.

Seats of honor were reserved for the seniors of the Atlanta and Decatur Girls' High schools, who were invited as special guests and came in a body.

THE ART OF MARY ANTIN

"Mary Antin combines the wisdom of a sage with all the dramatic art of Alis Nazimova," said Mrs. Percival Sneed, librarian of Atlanta's Carnegie library, in reference to the former's lecture here Thursday night.

"I heard her speak at a meeting of the American Library association when she thrilled her audience with the power of her thought and her dramatic expression of it."

Her book, "The Promised Land," is read in all library schools as containing a just presentation of the particular theme she chooses to study and exploit. She is still under thirty years of age, though she has spoken on the platform with the wisest men of the land in their discussions of the most vital of national problems. She is a graduate of the public schools of Boston; of the Latin high school there, and later of Barnard College. She has written two noted books and contributes to leading magazines.

She is a student of the public institutions which train for national life, and she stresses the public school system as the test of American faith. That will be the subject of her lecture here Thursday night at the Atlanta theater. Reserved seats may be secured at the box office.

The lecture is under the auspices of the Council of Jewish Women.

Mrs. Peel to Give Garden Party

Mrs. W. L. Peel will entertain at an afternoon on Thursday afternoon at 4 o'clock in compliment to the 376 members of the Joseph Habersham chapter.

The ladies have been at work on a very unique plan for adding to their building fund, and more than three hundred reports will be made showing what each has done. These reports will be exceedingly brief, interesting and amusing, after which the young ladies of the chapter will serve frappe on the lawn.

Every member is cordially invited to be present.

MONTH OF APRIL DRYEST ON RECORD

Except that it had more rainless days and a shorter degree of rainfall than any other April in the history of the local weather bureau, the April just passed was not, after all, such an extremely exceptional month.

The dry days for April numbered twenty-one. On each of these Atlanta and territory basked in sunshine. There were only eight moist days in the entire month. The degree of rainfall did not exceed 0.35. The nearest approach to this record was in 1896, when the rainfall for the month dropped as low as 0.55.

Continued fair weather is the prediction for today and tomorrow, with no present prospects for rain for an indefinite period.

HE DID NOT LEAVE COMPANY STRANDED, ASSERTS MANAGER

Zeno Perkins, who is manager of the De Boto theater, on Whitehall street, Monday denied he left town Saturday night, leaving his company stranded.

Perkins states that he left the theater to get lunch about half an hour before closing time. He was a little late in getting back, and the company had left, reporting to the police that he had left town. He was in touch with the company on Sunday morning, and arranged settlement with them.

CRITICISM OF MILITIA
RESENTED BY AUGUSTA
Merchants' and Manufacturers' Association Cites North Carolina Report.
Following the criticism of conditions at the militia encampment at Augusta, in 1914, which criticisms were contained in the annual report of Adjutant General J. Van Holt Nash, of Georgia, the Merchants and Manufacturers' Association, of Augusta, have protested vigorously that the criticism was not altogether warranted, and cite the report of Adjutant General Lawrence W. Young, of North Carolina, whose militia was also present, in support of Augusta's position. Here are some excerpts from the North Carolina report, which are at variance with the Georgia report.
"The location of Camp Wheeler near Augusta, could not, in my judgment be improved upon from every standpoint or from any standpoint as a mobilization camp or concentration camp for the troops of the sixth militia division. The scenery is beautiful, the roads well kept, the soil pervious yet firm, and the terrain the maneuver purposes could not be excelled. The water facilities, both for bathing and drinking, were all that could be desired, and the sanitary condition of the camp most excellent. The location of the camp was a great help, and the terrain the maneuver purposes could not be excelled. Woodward Will Oppose
Commission to Decide
Crematory Controversy
Mayor Woodward is going to oppose the plan to have a commission settle the crematory controversy. That much he told a reporter for The Constitution Monday morning.
Judge Newman suggested about a week ago that a commission might be appointed which would settle the crematory matter without any further litigation and court costs. The city attorneys and the attorney for the New York Destructor company have considered the matter and are to let the judge hear from them soon.
In the meantime the mayor has looked into the matter and states that he does not favor any such plan.

For Proposed Branch
Of Carnegie Library
Council Monday adopted a resolution providing for an annual appropriation of $1,700 for the maintenance of the proposed new branch Carnegie library to be erected shortly on the site recently purchased at the corner of Georgia and Capital avenues.
In introducing the resolution Councilman Farlinger stated that the Carnegie corporation, of New York City, had agreed to furnish $17,000 for construction of the building. The city will guarantee an annual appropriation for its upkeep.
Plans for the building have already been accepted and as soon as the contract is, which will probably be next week, actual work will begin.

CHILDREN PRESENT
AT SESSION MONDAY
OF GENERAL COUNCIL
Among the interested spectators at the meeting of general council Monday were members of the sixth grade of the North Avenue school and their teachers, Miss Emma K. McDonald. They were present at the invitation of Councilman Claude Ashley, who not only is very fond of children, but who devotes much of his time to looking after the interests of North Avenue school.
Frequently Mr. Ashley makes talks before the classes at this school and recently he delivered a series of talks on such subjects as "Heat," "Light," "Electricity" and "Kindred topics." He dealt with facts not in the children's textbooks, but which were learned from personal experience. The children seemed to take great interest in the proceedings of council and an institution about which they had so often heard and knew so little.

BECAUSE
Nothing to our minds, affords more pleasure in the mercantile field than seeing real high-grade clothing.
To those who have been brought up in the atmosphere and refinement which surrounds a store like this—cajoling to the classes who insist on the best to be had—has been one of the joys of our existence. We love it.
There is something positively fascinating in the high-priced suits. To finger them and to see the maker's wish of the luxurious silk linings as the customer glides into the coat room, and to see the customer's satisfaction on his face while he shares the pleasure with you is one of the joys of our existence. We love it.
Until recently, or about the time war was declared in Europe, men came to us and they were getting value received in satisfaction and fit, whether they did in the wear or not, for it is a recognized fact that the most expensive garments do not always render the greatest service.
Just about this time men began to renege on their buying.
A great many of our high-priced customers concluded they could get all through the season without buying any new clothing—clean up and clean up the old. Other men, who were so well provided with last season's clothes found it necessary to replenish, but lots of these folks had about a $60 limit.
The man accustomed to $40 and $45 suit seemed to be mighty well satisfied with the $20 suit. He had seen those who had formerly paid from $25 to $35 could imagine the most beautiful things in our $15 and $18 suits.
AND IN THE MEANTIME our stock of real fine suits was not diminishing—seemed to grow. Began to look as if we would carry over the greater part of it into another season—and last year's clothes are just about as valuable to us in proportion as faded flowers is to the florist.
Mind you, this is not a pessimistic view. On the other hand, we're inclined to credit ourselves with an optimistic attitude. We begin to feel as if the people were right—that they're recognizing the value of their own, as it were.
We can't attribute this condition to a scarcity of money. If you entertain such an idea as that, you work to read the bank statements—refer to their deposits—and especially the savings deposits.
As a matter of fact, business is pretty good with more or less everybody, but somehow or other we see, or at least we think we see, the HIGH PRICED SUITS in so far as high priced suits are concerned, and we propose to get from under.
This is our feeling in the matter. It is this belief that prompts us to take such drastic action, and as a result you are going to buy the finest clothing you have ever worn at the same price you're accustomed to pay for the mediocre.
This announcement is our answer to the present situation—WE'RE THROUGH WITH THE HIGH PRICED SUIT BUSINESS.
GOOD-BYE!

GOOD-BYE to the High Priced WOOLEN SUITS
We're through—with the high-priced woolen suit business.
The economy wave, which is sweeping this country, has educated the people to the fact that they've been paying too much for their clothing. Not too much, maybe, for the character of clothes they've been buying, but more than is necessary to obtain good style, good looks and good service.
You can well imagine what a big pill it is for us to swallow after being engaged these many years in handling only the very finest of clothing.
It does get next to one's pride to be forced to admit it, but sentiment is one thing and business a thousand.
Conditions do not warrant the immense stock of high-grade suits we have on hand to-day.
People expect more—they demand more intrinsic worth for their money than they're accustomed to getting. This condition looks very plain to us, and in the future we propose to see that they have it, so—
Beginning Tuesday Morning, May 4th, We Will Cut the Very Life Out of Every Woolen Suit in This Store
Suits we've sold heretofore at $35 and $40, are reduced in this sale to $24
Suits that have been selling before at $27.50 and $30, can now be had at $21
Suits which were $20 to $25 have been reduced for this sale to $18
$15 and $18 Suits Reduced to $14
While we are principally interested in disposing of the high-priced clothing, have concluded, inasmuch as these suits are woolen, to include our popular priced numbers, of which we show a very beautiful range of patterns and styles. The reduction on these grades is, of course, not in proportion to the more expensive suits, but considering their desirability the price quoted is most exceptional for this time of year.

ATLANTA REAL ESTATE.

There is nothing more indicative of the substantial underlying foundations of a community than the maintenance of its real estate values, regardless of what hits.

Current transactions in real estate, although not numerous, are strikingly indicative of this fact. In no instance where property of consequence has changed hands has it shown decline in value.

Atlanta real estate values have maintained themselves not only through the European war period, but through a period of severe depression which preceded it.

Atlanta real estate values have maintained themselves not only through the European war period, but through a period of severe depression which preceded it.

It has been proven that market inactivity does not mean decline in value when it comes to Atlanta, Ga. The value is there and it sticks because it is Atlanta.

The renewal of activity in the Atlanta real estate market is another sign of good business. The upward trend has come after one of the longest known periods of depression, and it is headed in the right direction to stay.

THE TARIFF AND POLITICS.

Just now when the national mind is least upon the tariff because tariff-making has ceased for a period, and business conditions have adjusted themselves to the new arrangement, it is perhaps not amiss to consider the practicability of removing tariff-making altogether from the realm of politics.

The tariff law is strictly a business proposition. Its primary purpose is to raise revenue for the support of government.

Why burn the midnight oil for posterity when one flash of a movie film will do the work?

How kind of the Colonel to trail a "robe of righteousness" over the red war-columns on the front pages.

a great service to the country if they would, regardless of party prejudices, disapprove the customary method of tariff making, which usually involves a two years' period of doubt and unrest.

Experience has shown that every general reconstruction of the tariff, whether for better or for worse, means at least two years of doubt, hesitation, bad business.

President Hill is pretty nearly right in saying that it perhaps costs the country more to undergo a two years' agitation period than to live on under what may be considered a bad tariff.

Whether the tariff commission, as proposed several years ago, or some other system, is the right remedy, there ought to be comparatively little difficulty in devising a method that would at least eliminate periodic tariff agitation.

No administration, no congress, could do a better work for the country than to take the tariff effectively from political control and put it on the substantial business pedestal upon which it belongs.

READY TO HELP BUSINESS.

Real and substantial co-operation with big business and trade extension is promised by the newly-created federal trade commission.

The time has come, not only for a better understanding, but for co-operation of the right sort between government and business. We may assume that big business as at one time conducted needed a lesson; whether properly administered in every instance or not, it was administered, and if, on occasion, it went to radical extreme, it was the fault of the extremist in ignoring and violating the law.

It is not only timely and proper, therefore, that encouragement should replace antagonism from the standpoint of business interests themselves, but from the national viewpoint. There has been enough, too much, of discouragement the last few months in the business world, due largely to the European conflict; and for the general good, knowing that business is inclined to put itself and keep itself in accord with the law, it should be both government duty and government pleasure to afford it every possible co-operation and encouragement.

Happily, this is the attitude of the federal trade commission as expressed in the conference with the Chamber of Commerce of the United States. Trade encouragement must come before trade expansion.

In co-operating with big business and seeking to extend our trade in foreign countries, the federal commission will not even in remote degree lay itself liable to the condoning of violation of law. Business not only understands law, but is in better accord with it today than it has ever been; it understands the necessity for keeping itself so. Conditions are ripe, therefore, for every encouragement and co-operation that can be given for constructive commercial building both at home and abroad; and the federal trade commission is an instrument which seems most happily in accord with the times.

Substantial government co-operation means not only more and better business, but more employment both in the supplying of raw material and in the making of the finished product. It means, too, a bigger trade balance in our favor, and, in fact, every condition that contributes to an abundant and plentiful prosperity.

This is not the first time that similar assurance has come out of Washington. Its repetition will serve to strengthen underlying foundations, and the whole country will feel that it is building more effectively and more permanently than it has ever built before.

Trade Commission Will Co-operate With Business For Return of Prosperity. Alex. W. Smith has just returned from Washington, where he attended a joint conference of the Federal Trade committee of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States with the Federal Trade Commission.

Mr. Smith stated to The Constitution that at this joint conference a general discussion of the functions and proposed activities of the commission was had, but the most obvious and striking feature of the conference was the spirit of the commission, as disclosed by the expressions of every member of it, in approaching the very important duties with which the act clothes them.

The conditions now existing, and attributable to the European war, are such that the merchants and manufacturers of the United States have an opportunity unprecedented in all history for securing a large percentage of commerce which has hitherto gone to Europe.

Savannah Man Urges Old Capital Route. Editor Constitution: The Dixie highway commissioners should seriously consider the line from Atlanta south to come via Savannah, for it is the shortest possible route from Atlanta to Jacksonville.

Florida has spent many thousands of dollars in building a road from Jacksonville to Savannah, and the result is a road that is now being traveled. It is true there are several rivers to cross, but the Altamaha river now has the most modern mode of transportation across by the traveling public with any degree of satisfaction.

Many of the plans for the automobile tour to be conducted May 22 under the auspices of the Georgia Chamber of Commerce were changed yesterday at a enthusiastic luncheon meeting of the chamber held in the Atlanta Chamber of Commerce cafe.

The Cry of Hungary. Editor Constitution: I am enclosing some verses written by Thomas Hoag, a member of the Georgia poet, which, in view of the European war, now involving Hungary, and of the recently revived attention to the poetry and careers of poets, may be of interest to some of your readers.

The verses were published in 1850, about the time of the revolution in Hungary followed by the subjugation of that power by Austria assisted by Russia. A copy of the poem is herewith enclosed, a copybook once belonging to Dr. Chivers, but no the property of a gentleman in Baltimore.

Our wishes were few, yet we asked them in vain; We cried out for bread, but red scorpions were granted.

Then the heroes of Hungary, with voices of thunder. Hurl'd back the gross insult thus treacherously given. Swearing never to rest till they rent them as the lightning the oak, by the vengeance of Heaven.

SQUELCHING THE CROAKERS. HOW ATLANTA SPIRIT DROWNED OUT CRY OF OPERA PESSIMISTS.

Any pessimism that may have been in Atlanta about opera as an annual institution received a signal blow last week in the triumph of the season artistically, socially—and financially. It was about the financial end there was the greatest apprehension among the chronic croakers, and it was just that apprehension that brought out the Atlanta spirit in its full vigor.

But the croakers deserved credit for one thing, and that is the vigor with which they worked up to Friday afternoon. When performance after performance had drawn a crowd, their last chance lay in the fact that tickets for "The Love of Three Kings" had not been selling.

The world was systematically carried by the croakers that the opera would not take in Atlanta; "it was heavy," "so few people in it," "but truth and art prevailed; world critics were true and the opera was a success."

Then there was a faint effort to circulate the report that Miss Farrar was ill; that she would not appear in "Sans-Gene," but the next day performance a perfect picture of health, life, and vitality, and excused herself early that she might rest for her great triumph of the next evening.

A most diligent croaker the early part of the week (though he did not buy a ticket to go to opera and nobody offered to dead-head him) went down to the Auditorium-Armyory, took a seat in the balcony, and he saw, and he could that despite what the papers said, there were innumerable vacant seats, and that financially there was no hope; that the guarantors would be glad to see the opera go.

Those Who Helped. In the beginning it was natural that men of affairs knowing the blow war had dealt certain business activities should have wondered whether Atlanta could risk the venture of opera, which had other city in the country.

While the Atlanta Chamber of Commerce was held in the Atlanta Chamber of Commerce cafe. The meeting was presided over by President Charles J. Haden and W. J. Dabney, general chairman of the tour committee.

W. J. Dabney, chairman of the general committee in charge of the tour, stated to those present that the tour was of great interest in any project. It is quite evident that the people of Atlanta and north Georgia who have automobiles are eager to go into middle and south Georgia and see this great section of Georgia at 31 miles wide it is its best.

They were everywhere in every part of the house, and they will be here next year. The Humorous Croakers. A humorous incident of the croaker club was the conduct of some people who really do not like opera well enough to pay the price of admission, but they actually prophesied a total disaster.

COUNCIL SCHOOL PROBE COMMITTEE WILL HOLD MEETING THIS WEEK.

Chairman Edgar Dunlap, of the general council school probe committee, will call a meeting of the entire committee this week to compile the reports on school conditions secured by the several committees, and to name a date when the entire committee will inspect the four high schools.

One of the most important matters to come before the committee will be that of the proposed consolidation of the high schools into one big central high school to be operated on the coeducational plan.

Other organizations of the city are taking a keen interest in the school situation since the agitation begun by the Atlanta Women's School Improvement association, among them being the Ad Men's club, which Mrs. R. M. Walker, president of the improvement association, addressed on the subject and outlined some of the lines of work of the organization. Ad Men's Indorsement. The Ad men have given their indorsement of the work and unanimously adopted the following resolutions.

Whereas, said conditions are deplorable and are having a ill effect upon the children attending said schools, and Whereas, the facilities conducive to a normal education of the children of Atlanta citizens are woefully lacking in many respects, and Whereas, the children of the majority of the schools are being discriminated against, inasmuch as a few schools are vastly superior in equipment and surroundings, and Whereas, the Ad Men's club of Atlanta, firmly believes in just and equal consideration for each and every citizen and his family, therefore, Be it resolved, That the Ad Men's club, in a spirit of patriotism and in the interest of a markable exposition of the facts in this matter, which she was enabled to assemble into a booklet, and in the interest of the city, and in the interest of the school, and in the interest of the labor, and approves her splendid work, and be it further Resolved, That a copy of these resolutions be presented Mrs. Walker, copies be sent the press and a copy spread upon the minutes of this club in explanation.

Resolved, That a copy of these resolutions be presented Mrs. Walker, copies be sent the press and a copy spread upon the minutes of this club in explanation. Signed: Hubert Anderson (chairman committee), Lindsey Hopkins, Julian V. Boehm, W. W. Orr, W. H. Smith.
