

THE EARLY VACATIONISTS

THE early vacations will no doubt be spent by the sea, probably at a more or less fashionable resort, where an opportunity is afforded to exhibit one's prettiest clothes. A soft white summer silk, plentifully sprinkled with big green roses, has been used for the three ruffles composing the skirt of the first costume.

The scalloped edge of each ruffle is bound with the green taffeta which is used for the short fancy jacket. The green hemp hat worn with it has for a brim a double thickness of chiffon bound with black velvet, between which is laid a wreath of small roses.

The second frock has for its foundation a simple slip of plain and embroidered white batiste. Over this is worn a sleeveless coat of corn-colored linen bound with striped silk in brilliant green and orange, laced in the front with orange ribbons ending in tassels. The bright orange-and-black parasol adds a pleasing color note to the lot ensemble.

Earlier in the season the popularity of the Norfolk jacket developed in crepe de chine was demonstrated at Palm Beach. The summer girl will undoubtedly want one in her wardrobe. Worn with a tailored white linen skirt, a sheer waist with high standing collar, a roll-back cuff in striped blue and white, white and black buckskin sport shoes and a white sailor hat with blue and black band, a Belgium blue jacket of this description is decidedly chic.

TENTH INSTALLMENT

SYNOPSIS

Sanford Quest, master criminologist of the world, finds that in bringing to justice MacDougal, the murderer of Lord Ashleigh's daughter, he has but just begun a life-and-death struggle with a mysterious master criminal in a hidden but in Professor Ashleigh's garden he has seen an anthropoid ape skeleton and a living inhuman creature, half monkey, half man, destroyed by fire. In his rooms have appeared from nowhere black boxes containing arsenic, threatening notes, signed by a pair of armless hands. Laura and Lenora, his assistants, suspect Craig, the professor's servant, of a double murder. The black boxes continue to appear in uncanny fashion. Craig is trapped by Quest but escapes to England, where Quest, Lenora and the professor follow him. Lord Ashleigh is murdered by the Hands. Lenora is abducted in London and rescued. Craig is captured and escapes to Port Said.

THE SHIP OF HORROR

CHAPTER XXII

Quest leaned a little forward and gazed down the line of steamer chairs. The professor, in a borrowed overcoat and cap, was reclining at full length, studying a book on seagulls which he had found in the library. Laura and Lenora were both dozing tranquilly. Mr. Harris of Scotland Yard was deep in a volume of detective stories. "As a pleasure cruise," Quest remarked grimly, "this little excursion seems to be a complete success."

Laura opened her eyes at once. "Trying to get my goat again, eh?" she retorted. "I suppose that's what you're after. Going to tell me, I suppose, that it wasn't Craig I saw board this steamer?"

"We are all liable to make mistakes," Quest observed, "and I am inclined to believe that this is one of yours."

Laura's expression was a little dogged. "If he's too clever for you and Mr. Harris," she said, "I can't help that. I only know that he came on board. My eyes are the one thing in life I do believe."

"If you'll excuse my saying so, Miss Laura," Harris ventured, leaning deferentially towards her, "there isn't a passenger on board this ship, or a servant, or one of the crew, whom we haven't seen. We've been into every stateroom, and we've even searched the hold. We've been over the ship, backwards and forwards. The captain's own steward has been our guide, and we've conducted an extra search on our own account. Personally, I must say I have come to the same conclusion as Mr. Quest. At the present moment there is no such person as the man we are looking for on board this steamer."

"Then he either changed on to another one," Laura declared, obstinately, "or else he jumped overboard."

Quest struggled to his feet and threw back the rug in his chair. "Come on, Harris, you and I promised to report to the captain this morning. I don't suppose he'll be any too pleased with us. Let's get through with it."

The professor came ambling along towards the table. "I fear that I am a few moments late," he remarked, as he took the chair next to Mrs. Foston Rowe. "I offer you my apologies, captain. I am very hungry."

"Well, you'll have to stay hungry a long time at this table then," Mrs. Foston Rowe snapped. "Seems to me that the service is going to be abominable."

The steward, who had just arrived, presented a cup of bouillon to Quest. The others had all been served. Quest stirred it thoughtfully. "And as to the custom," Mrs. Foston Rowe continued, "of serving gentlemen before ladies, it is, I suppose, peculiar to this steamer."

Quest hastily laid down his spoon, raised the cup of bouillon and presented it with a little bow to his neighbor. "Pray allow me, madam," he begged. "The steward was to blame."

Mrs. Foston Rowe did not hesitate for a moment. She broke up some toast in the bouillon and commenced to sip it.

The spoon suddenly went clattering from her fingers. She caught at the sides of the table, there was a strange look in her face. With scarcely a murmur she fell back in her seat.

There was a slight commotion. The doctor came hurrying up from the other side of the saloon. He bent over her and his face grew grave. "She had better be carried out," he whispered. "Was it a faint?" Lenora asked.

"We shall know directly," the captain replied. "Better keep your places, I think. Steward, serve the dinner as usual."

The man held out his hand to withdraw the cup of bouillon, but Quest drew it towards him. "Let it wait for a moment," he ordered. He glanced at the captain, who nodded back. In a few moments the doctor reappeared. He leaned down and whispered to the captain.

"Dead!" Quest turned around. "Doctor," he said, "I happen to have my chemical chest with me, and some special testing tubes."

"If you'll allow me, I'd like to examine this cup of bouillon. You might come round, too, if you will." The captain nodded. "I'd better stay here for a time," he decided. "I'll follow you presently."

The service of dinner was resumed. Laura, however, sent plate after plate away. The captain watched her anxiously. "I can't help it," she explained. "I don't know whether you've had any talk with Mr. Quest, but we've been through some queer times lately. I guess this death business is getting on my nerves."

The captain was startled. "You don't for a moment connect Mrs. Foston Rowe's death with the criminal you are in search of?" he exclaimed.

Laura sat quite still for a moment. "The bouillon was offered first to Mr. Quest," she murmured. The captain called his steward. "Where did you get the bouillon from you served—that last cup, especially?" he asked. "From the pantry just as usual, sir," the man answered. "It was all served out from the same cauldron."

"Any chance of anyone getting at it?" "Quite impossible, sir." In Quest's stateroom, the doctor, the professor, Quest and Lenora were all gathered around two little tubes, which the criminologist was examining with an electric torch. "No reaction at all," the latter muttered. "This isn't an ordinary poison, anyway."

have found our way, are one of the strangest and fiercest of the nomad tribes. They are descended, without a doubt, from the ancient Mongolians, who invaded this country some seven hundred years before Christ, but have preserved in a marvelous way their individuality as a race. They have the narrow eyes and the thick nose base of the pure Oriental; also much of his cunning. One of their special weaknesses seems to be the invention of the most hideous forms of torture, which they apply remorselessly to their enemies.

WEDNESDAY—This has been a wonderful day for us, chiefly owing to what I must place on record as an act of great bravery by Craig, my servant. Early this morning, a man-eating lion found his way into the encampment. The Mongars behaved like arrant cowards. They fled right and left, leaving the chief's little daughter, Fearda, at the brute's mercy. Craig, who is by no means an adept in the use of firearms, chased the animal as he was making off with the child, and, more by good luck than anything else, managed to wound it mortally. He brought the child back to the encampment just as the chief and the warriors of the tribe returned from a hunting expedition. Our position here is now absolutely secure. We are treated like gods, and, appreciating my weakness for all matters of science, the chief has today explained to me many of the secret mysteries of the tribe. Amongst other things, he has shown me a wonderful secret poison, known only to this tribe, which they call Wademozo. It brings almost instant death, and is exceedingly difficult to trace. The addition of sugar causes a curious condensation and resolves it almost to a white paste. The only antidote is a substance which they use here freely, and which is exactly equivalent to our camphor.

The professor closed his book. Quest promptly rang the bell. "Some sugar," he ordered, turning to the steward.

They waited in absolute silence. The suggestion which the professor's disclosure had brought to them was stupefying; even Quest's fingers, as a moment or two later he rubbed two knobs of sugar together so that the contents should fall into the tubes of bouillon, shook. The result was magical. The bouillon turned to a strange shade of gray and began slowly to thicken.

"It is Mongar poison!" the professor cried, with breaking voice. They all looked at one another. "Craig must be here amongst us," Quest muttered.

"But he was there—a second ago!" Laura cried out. "I beg your pardon, miss," Brown ventured, "but the deck's closed at the end, as you can see, with sail-cloth, and I was leaning over the rail myself when you shrieked. There wasn't anyone else near me, and no one can possibly have passed round the deck, as you can see for yourself."

"Very well, then," she said, "you people had better get a strait-waistcoat ready for me. If I didn't see Craig there, I'm going off my head."

Quest had disappeared some seconds ago. He came thoughtfully back, a little later. "Captain," he asked, "what shall you say if I tell you that I have proof that Craig is on board?"

The captain glanced at Laura and restrained himself. "I should probably say a great many things which I should regret afterwards," he replied, grimly. "Sit down and we'll tell you what has happened in my room," Quest continued.

He told the story, calmly and without remark. The captain held his head. "The ship shall be searched," the captain declared, "once more. We'll look into every crack and every cupboard."

Lenora turned away with a little shiver. It was one of her rare moments of weakness. "You won't find him! You won't find him!" she murmured. "And I am afraid!"

A little boat had shot out from the docks, manned by a couple of Arabs. They could see the professor seated in the stern. He was poring over a small document which he held in his hand. He waved to them excitedly. "He's got news!" Quest muttered.

He came straight to Quest and Lenora and gripped the former by the arm. "Look!" he cried. "Look!" He held out a card. Quest read it aloud: "There is not one amongst you with the wit of a Mongar child. Good-by!"

The professor answered her in her own language. She listened to him in amazement. The anger passed. She held out both her hands. The professor still argued. She shook her head. Finally he placed some gold in her palms. She patted him on the cheek, laughed into his eyes, pointed behind and resumed her dance. The anklet remained in the professor's hand.

"Say, we'll get out of this," Quest said. "The girls have had enough." The professor made no objection. "Congratulations," he said. "I have been a collector of Egyptian gold ornaments all my life. This is the one anklet I needed to complete my collection. It has the double mark of the Pharaohs. I recognized it at once. There are a thousand like it, you would think, in the bazaars there. In reality there may be, perhaps, a dozen more in all Egypt which are genuine."

They all looked at one another. Their relief had grown too poignant for words. "Early start tomorrow," Quest reminded them.

Lenora, a few nights later, looked down from the star-strewn sky which seemed suddenly to have dropped so much nearer to them, to the shadows thrown across the desert by the dancing flames of their fire. "It is the same world, I suppose," she murmured. Laura rose to her feet. "Say, I'm going to get a drink," she announced. The dragoman who had been hovering around, bowed gravely and pointed towards the water bottles.

She took the horn cup from the dragoman. "Have some yourself, if you want to, Hassan," she invited. Hassan bowed gravely, filled a cup and drank it off. He stood for a moment perfectly still, as though something were coming over him which he failed to understand. Then his lips parted, his eyes for a moment seemed to shoot from out of his dusky skin. He threw up his arms and fell over on his side. Laura, who had only sipped her cup, threw it from her. She, too, reeled for a moment. The professor and Quest came running up, attracted by Lenora's shriek.

"They're poisoned!" she cried. "The Veedomsoo!" Quest shouted. "My God! Pull yourself together, Laura. Hold up for a minute." He dashed back to their little encampment and reappeared almost immediately. He threw Laura's head back and forced some liquid down her throat. "It's camphor," he cried. "You'll be all right, Laura. Hold on to yourself."

He swung round to where the dragoman was lying, forced his mouth open, but it was too late. "I am all right now," Laura declared. Quest felt her pulse and her forehead. They moved back to the fire. "We are within a dozen miles or so of the Mongar village," Quest said, grimly. "Do you suppose that fellow could have been watching?"

1—Off for the Mongar Camp. 2—"Craig!" She Cried, "Craig! I Saw His Face There!" 3—"A Message From The Hands! Look!"

"And the bouillon," Lenora cried, clasping Quest's arm, "the bouillon was meant for you!"

There seemed to be, somehow, amongst all of them, a curious indisposition to discuss this matter. Suddenly Lenora, who was sitting on the lounge underneath the porthole, put out her hand and picked up a card which was lying by his side. She glanced at it, at first, curiously. Then she shrieked. "A message!" she cried. "A message from The Hands! Look!"

They crowded around her. In that same familiar handwriting was scrawled across the face of the card these few words: To Sanford Quest: You have escaped this time by a chance of fortune, not because your wits are keen, not because of your own shrewdness; simply because Fate willed it. It will not be for long. Underneath was the drawing of the clenched hands.

"There is no longer any doubt," Lenora said calmly. "Craig is on board. He must have been on deck a few minutes ago. It was his hand which placed this card on the porthole. Listen! What's that?"

There was a scream from the deck. They all recognized Laura's voice. Harris was out of the stateroom first, but they were all on deck within ten seconds. "What is it, Laura?" Lenora cried. She swung round upon them. "Craig!" she cried. "Craig! I saw his face as I sat in my chair there, talking to the captain. I saw a man's white face—nothing else. He must have been leaning over the rail. He heard me call out and he disappeared."

"Professor," Quest asked, "how long would it take us to get to this Mongar village you spoke about?" "Two or three days, if we can get camels," the other replied. "I see you agree with me, then, as to Craig's probable destination?" Quest nodded.

"What sort of fellows are they, anyway?" he asked. "Will it be safe for us to push on alone?" "With me," the professor assured him, "you will be safe anywhere. I speak a little of their language. I have lived with them. They are far more civilized than some of the interior tribes."

They disembarked and were driven to the hotel, still discussing their project. The professor had disappeared for some time, but rejoined them later. "It is all arranged," he announced. "I found a dragoman whom I knew. We shall have four of the best camels and a small escort ready to start tomorrow morning. Furthermore, I have news. An Englishman, whose description precisely tallies with Craig's, started off only an hour ago in the same direction. This time, at any rate, Craig cannot escape us."

They made their way back to the hotel, dined in a cool, bare room, and sauntered out again into the streets. The professor led the way to a little building, outside which a man was volubly inviting all to enter. "You shall see one of the sights of Port Said," he promised. "This is a real Egyptian dancing girl."

A girl, who seemed to be dressed in little more than a winding veil, glided on to the stage, swaying and moving slowly to the rhythm of the monotonous music. She danced a measure which none of them except the professor had ever seen before, coming now and then so close that they could almost feel her hot breath, and Lenora felt somewhat vaguely disturbed by the glitter of her eyes.

Suddenly Laura leaned forward. "Look at the professor," she whispered. They all turned their heads. A queer change seemed to have come into the professor's face. His teeth were gleaming between his parted lips, his head was thrust forward a little, his eyes were filled with a strange, hard light. He was a transformed being, unrecognizable, perturbing. Even while they watched, the girl floated close to where he sat and leaned towards him with a queer, mocking smile. His hand suddenly descended upon her foot. She laughed still more. There was a little exclamation from Lenora. The professor's whole frame quivered. He snatched the anklet from the girl's ankle and bent over it. She leaned towards him, a torrent of words streaming from her lips. The professor answered her in her own language. She listened to him in amazement. The anger passed. She held out both her hands. The professor still argued. She shook her head. Finally he placed some gold in her palms. She patted him on the cheek, laughed into his eyes, pointed behind and resumed her dance. The anklet remained in the professor's hand.

"We are within a dozen miles or so of the Mongar village," Quest said, grimly. "Do you suppose that fellow could have been watching?"

They all talked together for a time in low voices. The professor was inclined to scout the theory of Craig having approached them. "You must remember," he pointed out, "that the Mongars hate these fellows. It was part of my arrangement with Hassan that they should leave us when we got in sight of the Mongar encampment. It may have been meant for Hassan. The Mongars hate the dragomen who bring tourists in this direction at all."

They talked a little while longer and finally stole away to their tents to sleep. Outside, the camel drivers talked still, chattering away, walking now and then around Hassan's body in solemn procession. Soon they stole away—a long, ghostly procession—into the night. "These fellows seem to have left off their infernal chattering all of a sudden," Quest remarked, lastly, from inside the tent. The professor made no answer. He was asleep.

Why Man Has Always Had to Go A-Courting to Win His Bride

It Is Nature's Law That the Male Shall Seek Out and Win His Mate.

By DELIA AUSTRIAN.

MR. MAN, you must not shrug your shoulders with bland indifference and say: "I do not want to go a courting. I want to woo and win my sweetheart in haste. If I have to court her at all let me propose to her in a hurry by wire or by long-distance telephone.

Shucks, Mr. Man; you do not know the first thing about love and its psychology. You ought to know that when birds go courting they sing their most beautiful love songs and strut and stride to display their fine plumage. All along the line the man has to play a more active and the woman a more passive part. Laugh if you like, but facts are facts. The fighting for the female happens among insects and is of universal prevalence among all animals with a backbone.

There are certain peoples who are willing to put their pride in their pockets and show their brawn for the women they wed. Among a number of North American Indian tribes when a man wants to court a girl he goes out and wrestles for her. He does not object to this strenuous test, because he believes that this is the right way to go courting. From boyhood they wrestle with each other to make them strong and manly by the time they are grown. They know that if they are weaklings they will have to be satisfied with the most unattractive women in the village. This willingness to fight for an attractive woman does not always end with their marriage. Occasionally a strong man asserts his right to take the wife of another, providing he can fight for her.

Sometimes the generous use of elbow grease is not considered enough of a test for an ardent lover. Among some native Mexicans rival suitors fight duels with knives or fists. It sometimes happens that all the lovers of the girl take part in a sort of battle royal and the most powerful is the victor.

You can scarcely imagine anything funnier than the wrestling matches seen in Samoa. These tests are not for the world's championship. The men are simply willing to try their strength for the belle of the place. These contests reach a splendid state of fun when they become pulling matches. At such trials a girl places herself in the center of a circle with a suitor on both sides. They take hold of an arm and she is pulled first in one direction and then in another. The stronger man is the victor, but the girl usually pays the price for a time at least for his strength and dexterity.

There are plenty of beans and belles in Samoa and in the Fiji Islands, and in these places there are more quarrels about love affairs than anything else. In many parts of

The Female of Every Order of Life Plays a Passive Part in Courtship.

South Africa men will make desperate fights for the women they would wed. The people of Wadal are known for their desperate fights where a pretty woman is concerned. The fights sometimes last for days with slight intermissions.

Many hundred years ago it was a custom with the Hindus of India when a princess became marriageable to hold tournament. Many presented themselves in this contest, and the bravest and the strongest was the victor.

The same was true in Greece, and occasionally a man thought it was easier to steal a beautiful maiden than to fight for her. This was what Paris did to Helen, and his folly created the Trojan war. He was not the first nor the last one guilty of this act. Theseus had carried her away as a girl, and some years after the Trojan war Achilles wooed and won her by force.

This sex struggle is not always of a violent kind. As Darwin pointed out some years ago, many males use peaceful methods to charm the female. This is true among birds and civilized men. Among lower mammals and savages force and combat are used instead of song and persuasion.

Gyrostatic Force Illustrated With an Egg

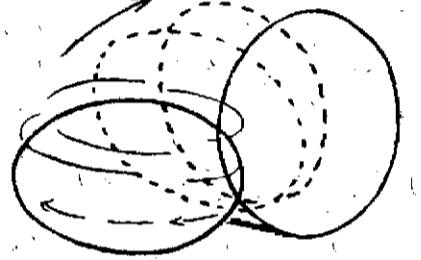

FOR a simple illustration of gyrostatic action you need go no further than the hen coop for properties with which to experiment. Boil one egg hard and leave another in its raw state. Then you are ready for the experiment.

Place the hard-boiled egg on its side on a smooth surface. Give it a spin and it will rise on one end and revolve on its tip like a top.

Make the same experiment with a raw egg. It will not rise and spin. In fact, you will find that its habits are quite different from those of the hard-boiled egg. And now you shall see the reason.

Eggs were used thus as a favorite illustration by Lord Kelvin in demonstrating gyrostatic motion before his classes at Glasgow University. In a recent lecture before the Institution of Electrical Engineers Professor A. Gray repeated the experiment with the following comment:

"The first experiment made was always that of the equilibrium of this nearly egg-shaped piece of wood, which, scientifically described, is a homogeneous prolate ellipsoid of revolution. Its surface may be imagined to be generated by the revolution of an ellipse about its longer axis. I lay it on its side, and we see that in that position it is stable for fore and aft inclinations, 'pitching' I may call the motion, and in indifferent equilibrium for port and starboard course, all without spin.

"If, however, I apply to the solid, as it lies on the tray before me, an impulsive couple with my fingers, so as to make it rotate about one of the minimum diameters (that is, of course, a diameter about which the moment of inertia is a maximum), the solid shows that when spin is applied the equilibrium is unstable. The ellipsoid at once sets itself on one end, and then rotates in stable equilibrium with the long axis nearly vertical. This is a very remarkable result. The center of gravity has been raised, and the equilibrium is now stable. The spin has altered the conditions of equilibrium completely.

"Of course, it was pointed out to us that all these phenomena are well shown by the ordinary spinning top, spun by the unwinding from it of a string when the top has been skillfully thrown from the hand. The swaying round of the axis of a top when rising just after spin to the 'sleeping' position, and the similar conical motion of the axis when the top is about to fall, give examples of precessional motion, of, in fact, the astronomical phenomenon called precession of the equinoxes."

A raw egg will not rise to spin on end because of the unstable condition of its contents. These, being liquid, are agitated by the spinning motion and a series of whirl-pool-like motions is set up in them; these produce such a confusion of forces that any slight gyrostatic effect is stopped.

Criminals' Children Become Good Citizens

THE same tendencies that make geniuses of some individuals make hopeless criminals of others.

Environment, which means proper education and precepts, is the factor which decides whether the boy of unusual mental and physical energy becomes a law maker or breaker.

These are the conclusions of criminologists who have just completed a most exhaustive quest for information concerning the source of criminal tendencies in penal institutions in eastern states. They refuse to believe that heredity has any important bearing upon the future of a child.

Environment, however, exercises such a marked influence over a boy or girl that it is suggested that the only solution of the crime problem is the improvement of conditions under which children are brought into the world and educated.

Conclusions of two physicians who had a part in reaching these conclusions may be found in reports made by Dr. Edith H. Spaulding, resident physician for the reformatory for women at South Framington, Mass., and Dr. William Healy, director of the Juvenile Psychopathic Institute, Chicago. Their reports are based upon a careful study of 1,000 young criminals of both sexes.

Drs. Spaulding and Healy analyzed the whole thousand cases in a paper read before the American Academy of Medicine in Minneapolis and now just published in pamphlet form.

"In no one case of the thousand," they say, "have we been able to discover evidence of anti-social tendencies in succeeding generations without also finding underlying trouble of a physical or mental nature, or such striking environmental faults or maladjustments as often develop delinquency in the absence of defective inheritance."

They say there is much evidence of the indirect inheritance of criminal tendencies—that is to say, a child born of criminal parents is almost certain to be brought up in an environment that would tend to make him a criminal even if he had been born of the most moral parents; disease in the parents is often inherited and often leads to crime; disease may also, though not transmitted to children, produce a weak constitution, a stunted mental or physical development that, given the proper environment, will produce a criminal.

It is impossible to say where heredity leaves off and environment begins. "With inherited imbecility, no environment could make a good citizen. On the other hand, if a normal individual were brought up in dives of vice from infancy, with no moral enlightenment, he, too, would be a poor type of citizen."

They regard habitual drunkenness as an expression of nervous weakness which may be either inherited or acquired. Commenting on one of the cases that seemed suggestive of criminal inheritance, they say:

"The boy, however, suddenly waked up in the midst of his atrocious environment, broke up his gang, reformed the worst member of it and thereby upset our evidence that he had inherited any criminal tendencies. This made us skeptical about acceptance of 'proof' in the future."

Drs. Spaulding and Healy note two factors in producing young criminals that sometimes run in families and that are factors of genius, as well as of crime. These are superabundant energy and lack of inhibitions. The first, with ideal environment and wise guidance, will make a man a valuable member of society, but with repression and undesirable associates is likely to make a criminal. The second manifests itself in a spirit of abandon and absence of fear that make its subjects seek adventure.

Language of the Barnyard

AN EXPERIENCED poultry raiser gives the following rules, a careful study of which, he says, will aid in determining the sex of fowls by the noises they make:

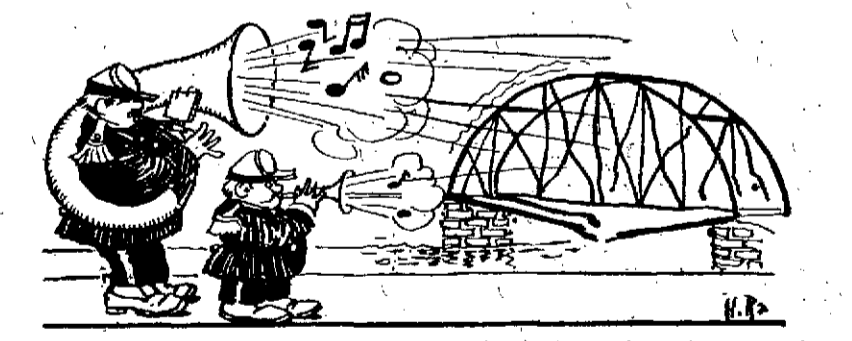

"The drake wheezes, the duck quacks. The guinea cock and hen both have a peculiar, disagreeable chatter, but the hen sometimes says 'buckwheat,' or 'go back,' which the cock never does. The peacock can be distinguished, even when only a few months old, by the fox red plume feathers of his wings. In the case of turkeys the breast bone of the cock is turned out at the front point, while that of the hen is straight.

"As to geese, the gabble of the common, the Embden and the Toulouse ganders is faster, finer and higher than that of the goose, which is a slow, low bass; and the screech of the gander is fine, loud and clear, while that of the goose is a rough bass. Both gander and goose of the English gray geese have a common screech and gabble, but the screech of the goose is lazy and seems to be partly broken, making two sounds, while the gander gives one clear, loud screech without any break in it.

"The screech of the African gander is loud and hoarse, while that of the goose is clear and stops abruptly, as if bitten off at the end. The Chinese gander gives one loud, clear screech, but that of the goose seems to be broken, making two different sounds, as if the first were made by forcing her breath out and the other by drawing it back."

Music Destroyer of Bridges

DOES music weaken metallic or other bridges? This question recently asked of a well-known bridge builder brought this reply:

"Measured vibrations are more trying to any kind of bridges, and particularly to suspension bridges, than irregular agitation. Music alone would not strain a bridge enough to injure it materially, but a regiment of troops keeping step to music when crossing a suspension bridge would subject it to a very severe strain. Consequently, it is customary to stop the music before troops reach the bridges, and let the men break step, and march more or less irregularly.

"The reason for all this is obvious. The structure naturally will suffer least strain when at rest. When in uniform motion the bridge acquires a momentum equal to its entire suspended weight multiplied by the velocity of the motion. It is manifest that, in the case of a heavy structure, a uniform downward vibration, be it ever so small, would develop a momentum of many tons in the direction of a breaking strain. The same disturbing forces acting irregularly, so as to counteract one another, would be far less trying to the structure.

How Microbes Sour Milk

IF IT were possible to keep milk from the air it would not turn sour. But the mischievous microbe, say those who study its ways and ravages, is constantly in the air, alive, though invisible, and ready to drop into the milk when it can.

But how do microbes turn the milk sour? you ask. Well, they are very fond of sugar and delight in gratifying their liking by turning the sugar in milk into an acid which sours the milk.

Warm milk is particularly inviting to the microbe and favorable to its operations. The microbe does not get along well under chilling conditions, and that is why the sweetness of the milk can be preserved if it is kept cold.

Boiling milk changes the sugar in such a way that the microbe cannot feed upon it.

Why Is Yeast Needed in Bread?

WHY is yeast used in bread? This question may sound foolish to most housewives, but let them try to answer it scientifically before passing judgment.

In the dough from which bread is made there is a lot of sugar, which contains carbon, hydrogen and oxygen. It is necessary to ferment this sugar to make bread edible, and yeast is used because it has the power to do this.

It is made from the plant having this quality. Fermenting sugar is equivalent to burning it, and there are two results. One is the formation of carbonic gas. A great deal of this gas is caught in the dough in the form of large or small bubbles, and some of it escapes into the air. The part that cannot escape causes the dough to rise and makes the bread light.

The holes in the bread are the little

Red Sea Colored by Weeds

THE drowning of Pharaoh and his host in the Red Sea had nothing to do with its name. It takes this from a peculiar reddish color remarked at certain seasons of the year in parts of this sea, due to marine plants, or to reddish animalcules, called by sailors "whale feed," which float on it like scum; or to the reefs of red coral which abound in many parts of it; or, possibly, to the fact that its upper course was one of the boundaries of Edom, "the red." No biblical scholar of any repute has ever asserted that the sea took its name from the overthrow of Pharaoh.

Diamond Oldest of Riches

THE discoverer of diamonds is unknown. From references in Exodus it is apparent that the diamond was a precious stone in Egypt in those early times; and even before that it was known in India, where probably it was first obtained. The name is derived from the Greek word "adamas," meaning "unsubduable."

From Pliny, a writer of the first century, we learn that the diamond was regarded as the most valuable of all things, and only a few kings ever could afford to buy them. But as no means of artificial polishing had been discovered the stone depreciated in value, so that the ruby and the emerald became more precious. The discovery by Ludwig van Berquen, in 1476, of a mode of polishing and cutting it at once returned this gem to the first place among precious stones.

Human Hunters Scent Game

SINCE so many nations have actually gone to fighting there are few good sportsmen left. If you want to find a thoroughbred sportsman you must look among the natives of the Brazilian forests. Especially among the Botocudo, to whom tracking game is the chief business of life. He does it with such skill that he fills the white man with awe and wonder.

However enthusiastic a huntsman you are you will feel yourself a poor sportsman after watching him for a little while. The Botocudo hunter glides stealthily through the forest. He understands every sign and habit of bird and beast. He knows how high up an armadillo displaces the leaves of the tree in passing. He can distinguish the tracks of the snake and the tortoise. He can follow the tortoise to its burrow by the scratches of its scaly armor on the mud. His sense of smell is so keen it helps him a great deal in hunting. Hidden behind the trunk of a tree he can imitate the cries of birds and beasts to bring them within range of his deadly poisoned arrow. He can even entice the alligator by making her rough eggs grate together where they lie under leaves on the river bank. If he shoots at an ape and the animal does not fall he will climb up after the animal by a hanging creeper where no white man would climb. However dark the forest is he is indifferent to this darkness. Laden with his bag of game he finds his way back to his hut by the sun and the lay of the ground.

His only rival is the Australian native. He will lie in wait behind a screen of boughs. He waits until the kangaroo comes to drink or he will track him for days in the open. He will camp by his fire to be ready for his pursuit at early dawn. He keeps unseen to leeward.

When a number hunt together they will put up a brush fence in two long wings, converging toward a pit, and so they drive the kangaroos into it. They also form great hunting parties for a battle surrounding half a mile of bushland, and with shouts and clatter they drive all the game to the center, where they can close round and dispatch them with spears and waddies. In fowling they show the same adroitness. A native will swim under water, breathing through a reed. He merely covers his head with water weed till he gets among a flock of ducks, which one by one he pulls under and tucks into his belt. They rarely need to make use of dogs in hunting, though they had learned this way of hunting long before the white man knew anything about it. They used the dingo or native dog.

Said the Countess to the Count: "Get a Job!"

So What Alternative Had He but to Pack Up His Duds and His Title and Go Forth in Quest of Work? What Will He Do? Well, That's Up to Him, and Not One Penny of Aid Will He Get From Countess Czaky's Millions.

By BERT LENNON.

THE Countess Czaky doesn't give a snap of her titled fingers what sort of a job the count accepts. Soda clerk, shoe salesman, chauffeur—it's all the same to her. She might even bear of his entering the fiscal arena without the flicker of an aristocratic eyelash.

For the countess stamping a jeweled heel by way of emphasis insists that the Hungarian nobleman must prove he can make his own living before she will hand him a duplicate key to the Czaky money box. Repeating in said box are enough dollars to give the ghost of Croesus the nightmare.

I made it plain—and the count agreed—that it is not fitting for a man to live on his wife's money. The Countess Czaky has told her friend in San Francisco, so we have parted temporarily at least. If the count proves that he can be independent of my fortune—why matters will be placed on an entirely different footing. There will be no objection to our living together again.

Will the Count Stand by His Guns?

And if the count stands by the verbal guns he fired some few years ago he will stand by the bargain he made with the countess. The American people do not understand the Hungarian heart. He said at that time: "When a Hungarian loves he will do anything for the woman he loves."

Of course, he did not add, even go to work, but that was supposed to be included in the all-embracing "anything."

Regardless of Countess Czaky's talk about a trial separation there are some who doubt if the countess will ever again live with her titled husband. They base their belief on the many love tides that have come and gone in the lives of both. Ever changing affection has kept them in the spotlight of romance.

The Countess Czaky is the daughter of the late William Howard, an attorney prominent in Chicago years ago. When quite young she became the bride of Montgomery Bryan, and upon his death inherited several millions of dollars. With this as a wedge the pretty widow went to Europe and soon pried the lid from haughty royalty, princes and counts and barons—poor as church mice, but willing if properly coaxed to jawn a little green with fungus, courted her assiduously. She was the find of the season.

But the American widow hid her dollars behind a barricade of cold indifference. As yet a castle, even though mortgaged meant nothing to her count. He—besides, she was still in mourning. It was on her return to New York, but she met Count Kalman Czaky, Koroszelej, a cousin of Count Laszlo Szachonyi, who married Miss Gladys Vanderbilt and $20,000,000 of good American coin. Count Czaky had appeared in America and naively declared his intention of duplicating his titled cousin's feat.

Countess Czaky, who has tied a knot in the purse strings of her money bag, and who says the Count must go to work.

Mrs. Jan Kubelik, the first wife of Count Czaky, whose love for the violinist brought about a divorce.

Disclaims Fortune Hunting.

I appreciate that the American woman is the woman par excellence of the entire world, said the count not long after meeting the pretty Mrs. Bryan. We shall be married shortly and it is a question whether we shall go abroad on our honeymoon. And because New York and Newport had considered the previous declarations of the count a bit too blunt he added: "I am not a fortune hunter. I am not seeking the Bryan millions. My family is eight hundred years old and I come of the best blood in Hungary."

When anything seemed to be running smoothly in the international romance the widow received several anonymous letters. They told of a previous marriage of the count. Mrs. Bryan one fair day exploded a bombshell under her blue blooded suit-by refusing to wed him until he had proved he was divorced—and that no stigma attached to him.

To go back to the early marriage of the count.

In 1900, when Kubelik, then in the first flush of his newly discovered musical genius, was wooing the continent with the sweet strains of his violin, he stopped at the City of Dobruca-In. He gave a concert and was entertained at the home of President Von Szell of the Hungarian senate. Von Szell had a daughter—19 and beautiful. Kubelik, then only 20 years old, fell desperately in love with her.

Bravely Keeps Her Word.

The love of the boy violinist was returned by the girl, but she was engaged—and to none other than Count Czaky, who was then as now the son of an impoverished Hungarian family of noble rank. She asked her fiance to release her from the engagement but he refused. So in spite of her tears and the lamentations of Kubelik, they were married. If Count Czaky thought that his wife would forget the violinist he was mistaken. She corresponded with Kubelik frequently and so haunted her love in the face of the count that finally he saw no way out of it except to give in to her wishes and consent to a separation. A divorce was obtained subsequently.

Count Retains Cheerful Air.

In July 1904 the first Countess Czaky was married to Kubelik and to them have been born the famous Kubelik twins.

For fully twenty-four hours Count Czaky gave an excellent imitation of a man whose life had been wrecked—then he again appeared on the boulevards of Budapest in attire gay and manner debonaire. He seemed quite willing to forget his blighted domesticity.

To return to his affair with Mrs. Bryan. While the count was busy looking up documentary proof of his divorce—and the fact that no stigma attached to him—the wealthy Mrs. Bryan came to Chicago. So did the Hungarian nobleman. He was pressed for money, the widow confided and the constant drain on her purse caused a break between them. Besides, it had reached her ears that the count had been seen motoring with the widow of a wealthy Chicago lumberman.

Next followed a big surprise for friends of the couple. On Jan. 4, 1911, Mrs. Bryan was married in Chicago to R. D. Inman, a wealthy lumberman of Portland, Ore. In five weeks later came another surprise—the newly wedded couple were divorced. Rumor had it that the lumberman was convinced that his wife still retained her love for the count.

Mrs. Maud Howard Bryan Inman gave a different reason. Mr. Inman did not take his daughter into his confidence, she said. They expected him to marry a woman of at least 50 years. I was a shock to them. They made things disagreeable. Conditions became intolerable and we reached a mutual agreement which ended in a divorce. Count Czaky was in no way connected with the affair.

The woman and her titled wooer did an exit from the stage of romance for a time. But in October of the same year they bobbed up again. At last Mrs. Maud Howard Bryan Inman had become the Countess Czaky.

Talk of Business Bore Countess.

The American man is too self-centered, she said. He loves to talk but he does not understand. There is a difference between talk and conversation. The American man does not understand that you get terribly bored on the subject of business.

An educated woman needs a good deal more to occupy her mind. I am very fond of reading and music as many people know. Altogether, the life that a fortune offers a woman is entirely different from that which an American has to offer. You know and I know that if a woman is pretty and charming she does not want to have to think so, but she wants to be told the same old story, not once but a hundred times.

The American man does not think it necessary to make love to his own wife.

It does seem now as though the Countess Czaky had changed her mind a bit and would just as soon be bored on the subject of business with the count during the talking—and having some sort of a business talk about.

It really does seem so.

Women Suffer War's Wage

By FRÉDÉRIC STARR

[Professor of Anthropology, University of Chicago]

HOWEVER much we deplore war and its horrors, I believe one of its compensations will be a stronger, better race of men. In spite of the awful heartaches that come to men in leaving their families and having their natural ties broken, there is certain inspiration in the thought that on the courage and dexterity of its armed men depends the future integrity of the various European countries.

Woman's outlook and opportunities are to be enlarged. Thousands of responsibilities are finally to be thrust on the shoulders of myriads of women. Responsibilities they have never known or only in a small degree. In England women are replacing men in factories and doing work they have never attempted before. These positions are being offered to them at men's wages, a higher scale than women have ever known.

In Germany great numbers of women are doing service as street car conductors, motor men, guards at railway stations and even railroad conductors. The schools are being closed and every available inch of land is being filled and cultivated by the women and the children. As the war goes on more and more will women be voked to toil and forced to try themselves in new occupations. Hundreds of others are learning lessons of self-reliance and steeling their nerves on battlefields as Red Cross nurses and in hospitals. Women and society both will pay the price of these added responsibilities; they are forced to accept. I believe this is a terrible catastrophe which will not be rectified readily.

I honestly believe that too many women are already doing work that men should be doing for them. This is a fact in America and certainly will be truer in Europe as a result of the war. Many dire results must come through women trying to do men's work. Any kind of work which overtakes woman's strength means weakening of her strength and the vitality of the future. In many kinds of work it weakens the quality of the work and the general standard of efficiency.

EVERY SUNDAY IN THE ATLANTA CONSTITUTION OUR COUNTRY By OUR PRESIDENT

A Fascinating, Inspiring History by President Woodrow Wilson
An Intensely Absorbing Story of the History of the United States

Why You Should Read This Series

You have probably neither the time nor the inclination to read page after page of ponderous volumes of history, mostly written in a very dry and tedious style.

But this series constitutes a tabloid history of the United States, written in easy to read English of the best kind.

It makes clear and comprehensive much that is vague or entirely incomprehensible in our present relations to and attitude toward the warring European nations.

It gives the origin and history of the Monroe doctrine, how it may be interpreted; our rights on sea and land; what really led up to the war of 1812 with England; the stopping and searching of our ships at that time; the position it took then and how it compares with our position today.

The younger members of the family will find this history invaluable as an aid to them in their school and college studies. They will read it as they would a story, and look out for it each Sunday.

Teachers in public and high schools, academies and colleges will recommend their pupils to read this history because it will give them in a concrete, easy to understand form the history of their country.

Those who have already made a special study of this subject will welcome the opportunity to read President Wilson's presentation of the facts of history and the deductions he makes from these facts.

There has never been a time when it has been more important for every citizen to be familiar with the history of our country, and with our position and rights both as a nation and in relation to other nations.

WOODROW WILSON

A Short Extract From President Wilson on the War of 1812, Showing How History Is Repeating Itself in the War of 1915, and the Value of This Series in Giving an Understanding of Present Conditions.

"The trade of the shipping ports had of course suffered immensely at the hands of both England and Napoleon. But the profits of the neutral carrier were enormous, nevertheless, in that troubled time. Ship building went forward very prosperously in America despite every order and decree of the belligerents; and so long as there was no embargo to restrain and make them outlaws at home, merchants almost cheerfully took the risks at sea. The embargo which immediately preceded the war was intended, of course, to call the shipping in for its own protection; but merchants hurried every available vessel to sea as soon as they heard it was to be passed, in order to be beforehand with it and take the risks congress sought to protect them against.

"Congress was obliged to resort at last to the very excise taxes which all republicans had so hotly condemned the federalists for imposing; to lay direct taxes on such articles of personal use as household furniture and watches; and finally, when the war was over but not the difficulties of finance, to re-establish the Bank of the United States (April, 1816). A few light duties on imports could not support the government when every principal harbor of the country was blockaded.

"For almost three weary years the war dragged on. It was a war upon the borders; the long northern frontier; the defenseless coast, the easy points of approach on the gulf. As in the Revolution so now, the heart of the country went untouched. * * * On the coasts English fleets swarmed thicker and thicker until almost every important port was effectually closed."

L'AGLON AND MARIE LOUISE IN THE PATH OF NAPOLEON 100 Years After His Downfall

By JAMES MORGAN

THE FATE OF THE BONAPARTES

Mr. Morgan tells today the pitiful story of poor L'Agion, who lost the crown of the King of Rome and lost his very name. The checkered life of Marie Louise also is outlined, and the last resting place of the ill-starred mother and son, in the gloomy dusk of the Hapsburg mausoleum beneath an old church in Vienna, is sketched.

- DATES AND EVENTS
April 15 1816—Marie Louise entered the duchy of Parma.
Mar. 1817—Birth of her daughter.
1820—Married Neipperg.
August 7, 1821—Death of Elisa Bonaparte at Trieste aged 43.
May 5, 1821—Death of Napoleon aged 51.
June 9, 1825—Death of Pauline Bonaparte aged 44.
February 22 1829—Death of Napoleon aged 21.
July 22 1832—Death of L'Agion, aged 21.
February 17 1834—Marie Louise married Bombelles.

July 4 1841—Death of Joseph Bonaparte at Florence aged 67.
June 29 1849—Death of Louis Bonaparte at Florence aged 67.
June 24, 1850—Death of Jerome Bonaparte at Paris aged 73.

After passing through blood from L'Agion to Moscow in his ambition to crown a Bonaparte, L'Agion Napoleon occupied a crown of sorrow and a heritage of misfortune to his race. While he reigned in captivity, the greatest walls of the world were his prison walls. In 1821 he was sent to St. Helena and he lived there until his death, which he met in the same prison walls.

EUROPE AFTER NAPOLEON.

After Napoleon's fall, the fatal destiny that he saw came from the hands of the victors. The people of Europe were divided into two camps. The victors were determined to keep the peace, but the vanquished were determined to restore the empire. The great powers of Europe were divided into two camps. The victors were determined to keep the peace, but the vanquished were determined to restore the empire.

THE FEAR OF FRANCE.

The fear that the French volcano might burst forth again had greatly troubled the councils of the allies. The Prussians and some others indeed had insisted that there could be no guarantee of peace until France was partitioned. But more prudent spirits dared not attempt the extermination of the French nationality.

THE UNKNOWN FATHER.

With the nations dreading and his own maternal kindred regarding his existence amidst plots for his assassination, which were fomented by a hatred of his blood and plots for his destruction, L'Agion was a man in a perilous position.

THE LITTLE EAGLE.

A faint and pathetic shadow on the face of young L'Agion, the little eagle, was the shadow of his mother's death. He was born in a prison, and his mother was executed before he was born.

THE WIDOW AND THE ORPHAN.

When the report came to Vienna that the exile of St. Helena had been lifted, L'Agion was a young man of 19 and had not fully recovered from the grief of his mother's death.

MARIE LOUISE'S CONQUEROR.

Never in history has a conqueror's choice of a wife been so unwise as that of Napoleon. He married Marie Louise, a woman of a different race and a different religion.

Perhaps Marie Louise's strange fate was the result of her mother's ambition. She was married three times, and each time she was abandoned by her husband.

The story of L'Agion's dynastic ambition and his fall from power is a tale of tragedy. He was a man of great ambition and great courage, but he was also a man of great weakness and great pride.

To Lighten the Housewife's Burdens

The Housekeeper's Council Table

Conducted by Dorothy Dolan

Why Housecleaning Is Burdensome

By DOROTHY DOLAN.

MOST women find housecleaning a terrible task because they do not approach it as they should. It means—or should mean—to clean the house from top to bottom to have painting and paperhanging done to remodel old things and to weed out the objects that cannot be repaired. In the second place they do not plan the task of housecleaning right and finally they make it a terrible task instead of a pleasure.

The attitude taken toward this large and important work is an essential feature. The dread of most things is largely in the thought. You cannot worry and at the same time approach your work in an intelligent self-reliant manner.

Once a Year.

Be satisfied to undertake this work once a year and when you do make it as efficient and thorough a piece of work as you can. A week or two before you begin take paper and pencil in hand to inspect every room and every cabinet thoroughly.

Make a list of the things you will clean and those things you are going to have cleaned outside. Examine the things to be repaired and charge. Fix repair items as the mend.

Use a System.

The only furnishings that you can take out in all the rooms is the rug and curtains. You must take the pictures and wash the large ornaments in the room. Cover them with cheesecloth to keep them from getting dirty. You will have to take the upholstered furniture in the hall and the rug in the living room. If you have a vacuum cleaner you can do this without upsetting the room.

Divide the Work.

Especially is this true in a small apartment, where space is extremely limited. In selecting the rooms you can either take two adjoining rooms or take one room on each floor but try to keep as much order and system about it as you can. It is often wise to commence in the attic and work your way down. It will give you room for furniture you have discarded and you may find other things that may be of service to you. Put the things that you have no immediate use for in boxes and label them. Also check off the things that you take out, so you will know what you have on hand.

Attack one bedroom at a time. Put it in order when cleaned. Whether the walls are to be cleaned or repaired it is well to take the furniture in the room. This will give you an excellent chance to clean your furniture thoroughly without spoiling the room.

Before putting the furniture back the wood work can be washed and the floors polished. Then you can put back the furniture. Before entering another room you can wash and put fresh paper in the closets and in the bureau drawers.

I wrote you once in regard to dining room furniture and was glad for the advice. Upper part of house will be white enamel trim with gray doors and glass knobs. The first floor will have oak in front parlor.

Hints for Housekeepers

Crimberies should be tucked over all if you wish them to keep long.

To keep the hands white wash them with oatmeal water.

Bedclothing should be thoroughly aired in the sun every day.

A little vinegar added to plums while stewing adds to the flavor.

To curl an ostrich feather sprinkle it with salt and shake in front of a hot fire.

To keep a kitchen table white, wash it first with vinegar then scrub it as usual.

Natural or unpolished rice is far more wholesome than the shiny white kind.

A tablespoonful of vinegar added to a pot roast will make it more palatable and tender.

To keep white paint bright rub it with a clean kerosene cloth after the ordinary cleaning.

Never rub soap on a stain without first wetting it and partly washing it out in cold water.

Yes, you are and you are going to get a raise next week for two reasons. You are worth it and you know how to go about getting a raise.

I wrote you once in regard to dining room furniture and was glad for the advice. Upper part of house will be white enamel trim with gray doors and glass knobs. The first floor will have oak in front parlor.

Hints for Housekeepers

Crimberies should be tucked over all if you wish them to keep long.

To keep the hands white wash them with oatmeal water.

Bedclothing should be thoroughly aired in the sun every day.

A little vinegar added to plums while stewing adds to the flavor.

To curl an ostrich feather sprinkle it with salt and shake in front of a hot fire.

To keep a kitchen table white, wash it first with vinegar then scrub it as usual.

Natural or unpolished rice is far more wholesome than the shiny white kind.

A tablespoonful of vinegar added to a pot roast will make it more palatable and tender.

To keep white paint bright rub it with a clean kerosene cloth after the ordinary cleaning.

Never rub soap on a stain without first wetting it and partly washing it out in cold water.

Yes, you are and you are going to get a raise next week for two reasons. You are worth it and you know how to go about getting a raise.

Novelties In Home Entertainment

By DAME CURTESY.

A GROUP of patriotic young people are going to hold a Memorial Day by having a ball in a hall where will be decorated simply with American flags. The tent will be erected with cleverly arranged trees in front done with red flannel and electric lights. The Boy Scout will give an exhibition drill then there will be a program of old time war songs and ballads that were popular in 61. Some of them will be illustrated by living pictures shown on the small stage and at the close will be "The Blue and the Gray."

Afterward before the serving of refreshments there will be a series of reminiscences by the old soldiers. A bevy of pretty girls will serve to give out free sandwiches and a kind of party will be given as Jack Cross says. A feature will be a sutler who will peddle his wares from a hamper.

A Daisy Fortune Booth.

A very interesting busy booth booth is being set up for the treasury. The booth is now decorated with green crepe paper and paper daisies. Over the booth this huge sign was placed "Let the Daisies Tell Your Fortunes."

What to Do.

My son-in-law hurried out of town and when he returned with his bride I want to give you a receipt. How so you will be the proper and what our in the evening are best? You will find that white or ivory enameled furniture will wear (with care) several years without being done over and for a much longer time if placed in a guest room if it is used only occasionally. I think it is an excellent style and I do like the same insets very much. A French grey enamel or a pale lavender is lovely. Look at all three and then make your decision.

VIVIAN'S Heart To Heart Chat

HAPPILY a day passes but I am asked what type of girls men admire most. The answer cannot be much more definite than the question. The reason for this is apparent. There are as many types of women in the world as there are tastes.

It is well that men and women and tastes should be very different. A lover of flowers will tell you though she has a preference for roses or violets. She loves asters, dahlias, jonquils, orchids and a great many more cultivated and wild flowers. It is just this splendid array of form, color and perfume that makes so many lovers of flowers.

Shakespeare knew that there are as many types of women as there are different kinds of flowers. He loved and taught us to love the shrinking Jessica the roiling, fiery, the romantic Celia the fairlike Ophelia and the self-reliant Portia. He never once apologizes for Rosalind's pranks and vagaries even when she appears in doublet and hose. He lets her go as far as she wants as long as she does not overstep good taste and propriety.

He is equally true to the independent Portia. He encourages Portia to be her own true self at all times, even to pleading in court. Though her words have the character and eloquence of a man, they breathe with the feeling and tenderness of a woman. She is so gracious in her words and manners that she did not even shock the people of Shakespeare's day by pleading in court.

These women of Shakespeare's creation can teach the most up to date emancipated young woman many an important lesson. If you want to be admired and courted worth while be sincere. Insincerity and falseness may win favor for a time but like most things that are played they tarnish readily. If sincerity is among the most lasting qualities modesty is the one that is the most appreciable.

It is one thing to appreciate your good qualities and another to thrust these virtues on others. Rosalind knows that she is pretty and vivacious just as Portia knows that she is brilliant and interesting. Both women are grateful for their blessings but they make no effort to make others appreciate their good qualities.

Dear Vivian: I have been going with a young woman six months and I want to marry her. The only thing that perturbs me is that I have not the courage to propose. Can I write her and ask her to marry me or can I propose over the telephone?

WORRIED.

Dear Vivian: I have been going with a young woman six months and I want to marry her. The only thing that perturbs me is that I have not the courage to propose. Can I write her and ask her to marry me or can I propose over the telephone?

WORRIED.

Worried. If a man thinks enough of a girl to want to marry her he should propose to her in person. There are men who propose to girls by writing and over the telephone but it is certainly not a complimentary way of doing. Love should know no timidity; so if you think enough of the girl to want her for a wife you should be willing to court her in an open and courteous way.

Luxemburg's Girl Ruler and Her Five Fatherless Sisters Form a Pathetic Background to the War

Princess Antoinette Next to Youngest of the Six Sisters—She Is Considered Even More Beautiful Than Her Royal Highness Adelaide

Marie Adelaide, Grand Duchess of Luxembourg—From a Photograph Taken Since the War—Her Costume Is of the Plainest—Almost That of a Nurse

By STERLING HEILIG.

When the German Kaiser entered Luxembourg in 1914, he found a little girl who had stayed a month in the city with her mother, the Grand Duchess. The Kaiser's first sight of her was the first of her kind. Your mother and father had best go home and play a game, said General Von Fritow. Tears started in her eyes as she went.

Thus Marie Adelaide was on her dignity when the Kaiser entered the city. He had heard in his head-quarters in Mavence that the little girl had stayed a month. He put up at the German legation with his general courtiers and coats. Machine guns stood on the roof and the streets around were barred. From his window he had a sweet view of his valleys and little River Alzette, and he would sit long and

As to the Ruins. What are those ruins I see from my window? he asked the grand duchess on his formal call.

Sire, she replied, they are the remains of a fortress constructed by Vauban for the French king, Louis XIV.

Conversation languished. And the old walls beyond the wind mill?

Sire, they were of a chateau built by the Marquis de Créqui after he had dictated peace to the Elector of Brandenburg.

Conversation languished more. Again the polite Kaiser ventured.

And the charming road up to them. Has it any history?

Sire, but little, replied Marie Adelaide. Except that in 1795 along it General Artois forced the imperialists to capitulate.

Then she mentioned her automobile permit. When the Germans entered they promised to respect all constitutional rights. Yet Luxemburgers may not auto mobile over their own roads without permit.

Said Her Royal Highness to the Kaiser: "You have changed all the pretty names of our towns and villages. You have turned Lincieres into Junglinster, and Merise into Mersch. Mersch! La Rochette has become Fels, Rosiere is Roesser, and sweet Andelhem is Hosbert! Is it a military necessity? My people are worried." Said the Kaiser to Her Royal Highness: "What is that delicious perfume you are using?"

side the Alzette. Chauffeur to the right began the wounded beauty. But it was the Kaiser who did the anubbing because his auto swerved into the highway ahead and went scorching toward Traves. To their great surprise, ten minutes later they held the Kaiser coming out of the legation. Quick, the pastry cook's said Marie Adelaide. It took only five minutes, and yet—There's the Kaiser in front, eating plum tart, whispered Sophie, staring at the well known figure in the gray car. What activity?

It's not possible," said the grand duchess. And she told her minister of state that evening. "He cannot be everywhere. Will your highness have the explanation?" asked the genial Eyschen. "His imperial and royal majesty is at the front."

A humble citizen of Sirek, across the border had a similar dilemma when he came on a business trip to Luxemburg. Returning to Sirek, he asserted in the cafes that the Kaiser was not at the front, because he was here. They took him to the police.

"You are accused of spreading false news," said the commissary. "The Kaiser is auf dem front. The proof is that the papers say so."

"But insisted the Streker, "I arrive from Luxemburg. I saw the Kaiser this morning with my own eyes."

"It proves nothing," said the commissary.

Three Kaisers! "There are three Kaisers in Luxemburg. How do you know which one you saw?" And it was true. One real Kaiser and two imitations," said the minister of state to Marie Adelaide. "Two officers, having the build and look of the Kaiser, have received the order to 'make up' as his doubles. They wear the great blue cloak falling low over the back, the cap with garnet band they wax their mustaches and black their brows to meet over the nose. They even reproduce his voice. Captain Weiss actually barraged the troops yesterday. And they circulate in great gray automobiles with the garnet stripe and black imperial eagle constantly outwitting the curious. No spy or assassin can keep up with the Kaiser. He is simultaneously in the faubourgs on the road to Traves, and at the flower market. In reality, he is working at the legation.

How Shall She Resist. How shall a romantic girl resist such doings? Few women resist the personality of the Kaiser. Her subjects have criticized the grand duchess for inviting him to a second dinner after the state affair. But remember, all her ladies of honor are Germans and all her officers of the palace except one, who is grand ducal. It is hard to stand against such influences.

Slender girl among great and terrible things! The worst is that she is only 21 beautiful, unmarried and has five younger sisters to look after each prettier than the other. Charlotte is aged 19, Hilda 18, Antoinette 16, Elizabeth 14 and Sophie 11.

I shall not marry," says the grand duchess.

We shall not marry, repeat Charlotte, Hilda, Antoinette, Elizabeth and Sophie.

Yes, but young things must marry. It is their nature. And whom shall they marry? It is very complicated. The Luxemburgers want their say about it. They dread the fate of their cousin, Queen Wilhelmina, for them.

They have no brothers. Their father is dead. And the law of 1907 rules the eventual succession of the female line in these six girls.

They are white doves among eagles.

Marie Adelaide defends her people with bill picks.

You have stopped our telegraph and telephone service, she said to the Kaiser. My merchants are losing money. You have taken over our mail service. German soldiers replace my postmen.

The Kaiser said he would see to it. A month later telephone subscribers were allowed to send local messages.

You have seized our railroads, she continued. My people may not ride without a dated permit, and 500,000 German soldiers have ridden free. The rolling stock is ruined. Yet you signed us a treaty never to use our railroads for military purposes.

The Kaiser coughed. You have changed all the pretty names of our towns and villages. You have turned Lincieres into Junglinster and Merise into Mersch. Mersch! La Rochette has become Fels, Rosiere is Roesser, and sweet Andelhem is Hosbert! Is it a military necessity? Do you seek only right of passage, as you promised? It has the odor of annexation. My people are worried.

The Kaiser sniffed the air. What is that delicious perfume? he inquired to change the subject.

Marie Adelaide gave him a harder bill pick.

On the Kaiser. "It is called (Champs Elysees)" she answered handing him the bottle with the name on—latest triumph of the Guerlain house of Paris. The Kaiser had no right to see an impertinence. Yet, at that moment, all Luxemburg was joking about 'the landau of the Champs Elysees'.

It was a magnificent open landau which came to the little city empty. German soldiers escorting it said with awe: "It is the carriage in which our Kaiser will enter Paris—down the Champs Elysees in triumph. And they put it in the best garage.

Daily thereafter the bourgeois of Luxemburg made their afternoon walk past the garage. They wanted to see the landau of the Champs Elysees. But it remained in its shelter. So thereafter each time that there was a rumor of Paris being taken the Luxemburgers said: Nenni, the landau is still there.

No Great Riches. Except for their rich mines they are a peasant democracy. You can scarcely distinguish between classes. Grand old names are borne by poor people. A Luxemburger is always active, runs the proverb. The same man may be a wine grower, tanner, miller and storekeeper. They are very honest, real, they call it. Every family has its house and garden. The roof is tight, walls white, garden cultivated, and flowers in the windows. Like the Swiss they receive much among themselves. Their grochen wine from the Luxemburg Moselle, harsh, thin and sweetish, makes you shut one eye and can't open the other. It costs 8 cents the liter, and the Germans buy it to make champagne.

Such a people might seem tempted to make a good thing where Belgium made ruin. The comparison strikes anyone. And the grand duchess, with her army of 400 men could only protest.

The occupation of Luxemburg is contrary to the law of nations, and the protestation of the grand ducal government is justified," said Chancellor Bethmann in the Reichstag on Aug. 4. "We shall repair the harm we cause as soon as our military end is attained."

When Germany paid an account of $100,000 for damages to houses destroyed, farms sacked, fields trenched and cemented, vehicles and stock requisitioned, etc., German papers represented the "good affair" which Luxemburg had made.

"Good affair?" repeated the grand duchess. "We have spent $2,000,000 in hospitals and Red Cross—nothing for wounded Germans. Yet French wounded and prisoners who ought to be interned do not receive anything. Our neutral status may not receive a cup of coffee from us if the railroad stations. Still, this smells an annexation."

The Kaiser scratched his nose (they say).

And our mines and factories. You put out their proprietors and interned them yourselves. Will you reimburse? Will you pay damages? Do you keep accounts? When proprietors complain to me, I have to arrest them. You have requisitioned our food reserve. Paying in paper money, at your own estimate. We have no horses left to till the ground nor wheat to last till harvest. We shall come to bread tickets yet."

The girl ruler's prediction has come true. Luxemburg is on bread tickets. When the imprisoning habit grew Marie Adelaide wrote the Kaiser.

More than 100 Luxemburg lawyers, professors, land owners and proprietors have been sent to Prussian prisons. Was the complaint. Your majesty can imagine the feelings of my people when they see honored citizens led to the railroad station by a squad of Prussian soldiers. By international law no country gives up its own citizens, even criminals, to be judged in a foreign land.

And She Is Reproved. Her subjects have criticized her for accepting what they call the Iron Cross, from the hands of William II. It is exact. What she accepted was a kind of medal reserved to the high dames of the German Red Cross, a little jewel not beautiful, of no importance.

As much say she is a woman. And there is the marriage problem. I shall never marry, she says.

"We shall never marry," repeat Charlotte, Hilda, Antoinette, Elizabeth and Sophie.

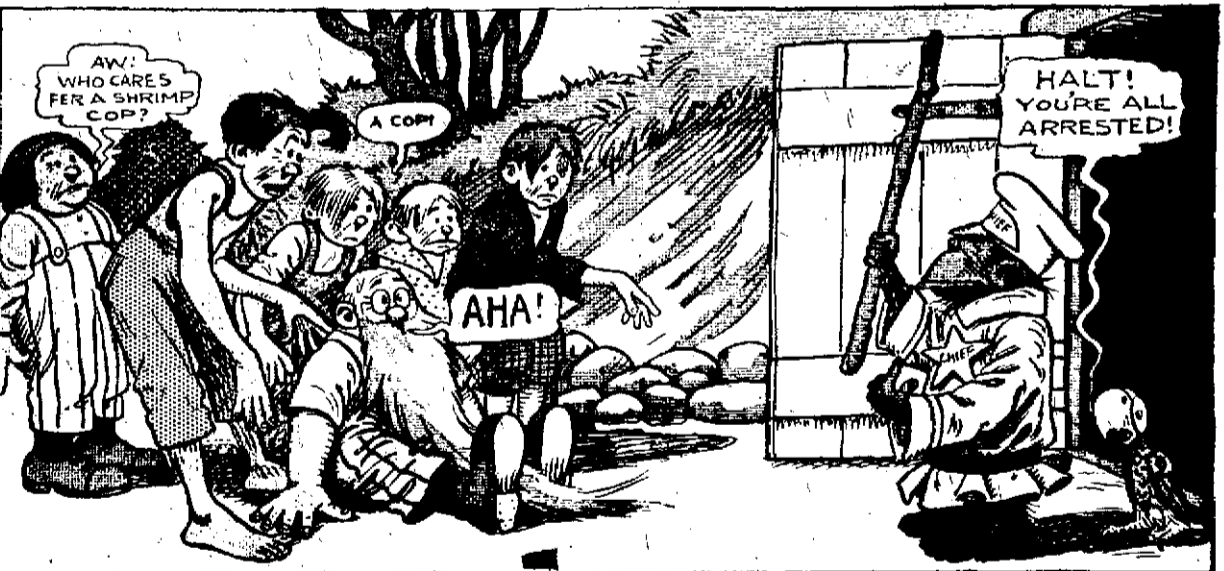

But, but. And who is there to marry but a German princeling?

So some say. Our grand duchess is a heroine. And others. "Our grand duchess is—grand duchess. The big and little highnesses have made it up together."

HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES U. S.
WASHINGTON, D. C.
APRIL 5, 1915

MY DEAR SIR—

On March 4 the writer assumed the duties of the office of Representative in Congress from the Twenty-first District of New York.

In fulfillment of my ante election pledge I have established an office for the transaction of official business at No. 67 West 124th Street, New York and will be there from 10:30 A. M. to 6:30 P. M. on weekdays from three to six and eight to ten o'clock P. M. At the same time my secretary will be permanently employed in my Washington office.

Seeds and government literature are not placed at my disposal until the opening of the next session—on December 1, unless a special order should be called. I have however procured a limited supply of seeds and miscellaneous publications which I shall be glad to distribute to you those who apply for same.

On July 1 I am assigned a quota of Farmers' Bulletins from which selections of not more than two numbers can be made according to the enclosed list.

If in writing to me you will specify your occupation it will enable me to determine what publications which may be issued from time to time are of interest to you.

Let me avail myself of this opportunity to express my sincere appreciation of the honor which has been conferred upon me and to assure you that I shall serve you to the best of my ability as your Representative.
Sincerely yours,
(Signed) MURRAY HULBERT

While I read the letter Representative

CONGRESSMAN
MURRAY HULBERT

Hulbert beckoned to the leader of the waiting line. He was an elderly man who wanted the Representative to fixing up a pension application. Very thoroughly his data were checked Down to the smallest detail Mr. Hulbert made note and with his own hand Then came a man who pointed out that he could go to work at a place that very afternoon if the Representative would back him up. The banker was promised immediately. Next a man in uniform asked aid in obtaining a passport for a relative. The aid was assured. And then the widow of a man who had voted for the Representative.
She was told that any help within the power of Mr. Hulbert was hers for a certainty. The line thinned at the rate of one every five minutes. Some what away pleased with a positive promise that had consumed only a minute of time in the asking and the giving.

No, I don't believe there is an office just like this in the entire country, went on the Representative during the brief breathing spell. I never heard of one before. But I made up my mind when I accepted the nomination that if I had the good fortune to be elected I'd apply the principle of business to my public service.

I had often heard it charged that a Representative's job was principally confined to attendance during the session at Washington and the putting of an O. K. on applications for seeds and public documents. The Representative was not obliged to show himself to the people who elected him save at a caucus of July elections and during campaigns for reelection. The rest of the public service was rendered through his secretary. It would be against time honored privileges for a Representative to be found by a voter when wanted.

Now politicians have opened offices before now and new office holders have used them before this day the better to launch their popularizing schemes and more effectively rally their backers and supporters about them. So in between Mr. Hulbert's talk I began to wonder if the boss or the leader would appear Now and then a man would arrive who asked as if he might have been such and when he came through the door I'd sit I look and listen. If it was an other constituent with an appeal.

Will you hatch in my campaign
—hence here. I queried with a conciliatory smile to dull the brusque edge of the question.

The office is solely for my constituents use, said the Representative very seriously. In fact he was all seriousness during the entire interview. Several times I hinted that there was a droll angle to the opening of the office if a fellow took the view that it was droll for a Representative to want to be found by the men who had elected him.

I am possessed with the idea that of freshness in the municipal county State or federal employ should be just as much a matter of business as is a commercial venture," said Mr. Hulbert. Why not tackle a government job in an out and out business way? Handle everything connected with it in business shape.
That's what this office means. It is a thing more than what any business man would do in connection with his business.
He would want to get in direct contact with the men with whom he had contracted for services. You can rest assured he wouldn't want to keep away from the men who had signed him up to work for them. He'd want to feel their pulse all the while to see how he stood.
He wouldn't about himself from the firm that engaged him. It's logical, I maintain to keep close to where those in control abide.

Understand, when I talk of conducting things in a businesslike way I do not mean that business and politics should be joined. I mean business and political officeship. Business methods in carrying on the duties of public office do not imply the close association with business for the benefit of politics. Inject politics into the affairs of the banker and the merchant and you make trouble. Inject the banker and the merchant into politics in the sense of making use of the banker and merchant or merchant (taken in political schemes and you make trouble again. These should not mix. But let a distant head in a public office conduct that department the same is it would be conducted in trade manufacture commerce and finance and you have the ideal of incompence.

Have you constituents proved the value of your innovation Representative?

Indeed they have. I opened this office the last Wednesday in March and there has been a constant stream. Two and three hundred calls in an afternoon and evening shows how they appreciate the opportunity of meeting the man they have elected and to whom they look for such services as a public official should always be on hand to give. But in a way up to now I'm a sort of political anomaly.

Because of opening an office to show you are in office?

No, but because while I am being paid for serving as a Representative since March 3, nevertheless in some things I am not yet a Representative. I have not yet served in a Congressional session and I am not yet entitled to the franking privileges on literature and seeds which Representatives are asked so constantly to send out.

most the requests of constituents. I've born a seed from other Representatives. I've thought some I've had them sent one way or another although I have not yet obtained the privilege of regularly procuring them and sending them out on my own responsibility and initiative.
This will come later. In the meantime I consider it is my business to furnish seeds and public documents and literature to those of my district who apply for them.
So I'm trying to attend to this business.

The way that Representatives take and leave office with respect to the opening and closing of Congress makes rather a mix up of matters. A new Representative must feel his responsibilities for months before he has had a chance to take part in the deliberations of the House of Representatives. He's a member of it, but from spring until winter he's a sort of legislative outcast. There's nothing to do in a deliberative way because there's no session. It's generally considered a compulsory loss. But I've opened this office as a sort of innovation to indicate to the people of my district that I am ready to serve them in all other capacities proper for me apart from that of law-making.

After my election I made up my mind that I would go down to Washington and sit through a good part of the session as an interested spectator. So down I went and was there on and off for two or three months during the winter. I think it was of great benefit to me and will make me a better legislator for my district. I kept tab on what was needed for my district and have a good working knowledge of just what was done and what failed of being done affecting the interests of my electorate. This I did of course of my own volition, as the district was represented during the session by my predecessor. But it was well worth the expense and the trouble.

"Do you think your office innovator will have a tendency to force a change of this sort?"

Maybe, so but whether it does or not I intend to keep it going. It's the best way to show you feel the responsibility of your job during the months that Congress is not in session. Why do you know that men have made trips to Washington to find their Representative only to discover he wasn't there. He's home they went and hunted in vain for him there. Finally they have had to give up looking and repeat an expenditure of money and temper they could ill afford. Had there been a place where the constituent could have put his hand on his Representative whenever he wanted to do so the individual and effective affairs of the district would have received the better attention and the political map would have been traced a little differently many times perhaps as a consequence.

A new line of constituents had been forming. Representative Hulbert cast a rapid glance over them and remarked—There are just thirteen of them. I must attend to them at once.

Why the unusual haste for just thirteen? I asked when he had expeditiously disposed of this batch giving however, courtesy and comfort to every applicant. Are you a believer in the psychic significance of the number?

Mr. Hulbert nodded his head in sage seriousness. I could hardly credit a national lawmaker with attaching so much importance to a superstition and I scented and suspected a joke trap.
But the Representative looked at me seldom through his gleaming eyeglasses and backed up his belief thus—Without a doubt there's something to that thirteen. I've noticed many things portentous to me mixed up with that number. I am recorded in Rochester, N. Y. as having been born there May 14, 1851. But my father said it was May 13. There are thirteen letters in the name of Murray Hulbert. Thomas Jefferson was born on April 13 and I delivered an address at his birthday celebration a few days ago. My name was the thirteenth on the ballot when I was elected. I live in Apartment 13 of my house, No. 600 West 140th Street. The number 67 West 124th Street where this office is located, has a dash of it, for six and seven of course, take their turn. Oh, yes, that strikes me as meaningful. I don't feel to make.

You understand that if the opening of this office was in the moment of a promise I made in the campaign of 1914, I ought to make the promise on the stump and in the moment some business man would have truthful man the promise was made since I I know it was a promise. I've been told I've opened the office there. I've been told a score of voters who have been told of the so purpose of my office. I've been told an I the man who kept a reputation of That's all they desired. I shall let it an individual. After I've had shaken my hand and departed I was more than convinced that the voter had only just such a rallying cry in mind as needed it ever since there has been such a thing as an electorate.

In addition to the various things
I've done in person I have received more than three hundred letters in regard to the circular announcement of the opening of the office. This is a proof that the constituent has found a place to which he can refer and which knows his individual representative.

Some of the questions asked these three days and nights is stranger than the most I could not say. The representative of the humorous and good of the path. But all of it was apparently genuine and I put it in out to a man in the tent.

The topics broached include suggestions for the proper treatment of the woman suffrage question, the defense question, the improvement of New York Harbor, the government trade in the present tariff, the wide prohibition, world disarmament and white slave legislation. One letter from a constituent who calls upon me in the field performance of my duty to ascertain what has become of his wife who went to Russia to visit her parents just a year ago this month. She has not been heard from since and perhaps it comes within my functions to get some sort of a report upon the case. At any rate an inquiry has been started.

Representative Hulbert went to New York City in 1914 and secured a position as office boy with the Firm of Importers. In 1915 he took a certain amount of money and he had been earning with I was O. Van Doren in order that he might study law.

All my constituents should be viewed in the light of my case, neighbors, he said at parting. I do hold them responsible. I must be such as they are in my own district. But the district is so situated that there is no means of continuous transportation from one end of it to another. In fact you have to go out of my district to get into it.
How so? Why the circuit lines are so laid that in order to get across town in the district you have to get out of it to find a trolley connecting the east and west. I could hardly expect my constituent neighbors to go to such an inconvenient place to see me or call on me. I am proud of my district. The establishment of this office on 124th Street makes it much easier to meet and greet.

Another string of questions had formed and was looking toward me with importuning eyes.

Goodby, said the innovating representative as he rose to give me a three-well clasp of the hand. If I can do you a favor at any time and any way let me know and it will be done.

Whether I live in your district or not? I queried with attempted bluster.
That went with a particle of difference, answered the innovator. I long ago determined to do a favor for any and every man who asked me—if it lay in my power.

And if you'd felt the clasp of the Hulbert hand and caught the unbridled gleam of the Hulbert glance I'll wager you'd have believed every word that was said—the same as I believed.

STATUARY IN COLORS, done by MODERN ITALIANS IN ANCIENT GREEK STYLE.

THE GREAT PANAMA PACIFIC EXPOSITION

The Pompeian Girl. This life-size figure of a girl of the ancient city on her way to the fountain with her water jar is an excellent example of delicate work on the part of the sculptor. The modeling is exquisite, the draperies handled with remarkable skill.

The Algerine Girl. This figure, three-quarter size in height, is done in bronze and marble. The girl herself is in white Carrara, the vase in yellow marble and sienna, the dark draperies in bronze. This is one of those lifelike figures which seems to be that of a real girl, rather than a statue.

Cleopatra, by Antonio Frilli of Florence. This striking figure, done life size, is executed in white Carrara marble, with the draperies and the bit of Egyptian wall which forms the background carried out in colored marble. This statue shows the most delicate work and understanding on the part of the sculptor. It is of the highest type of decorative art. It is not intended to tell a story, it is intended simply to be a thing lovely in itself.

Maternal Love. In expressing here the spirit of maternity the sculptor has done more than merely to grave a decorative figure. This is one of the most beautiful pieces in this group of statues. The modeling of mother and child is well nigh perfect and the expressions are real. The piece is more modern in type than the Pompeian girl.

The Merry Widow. This bust is of the most modern type of Italian art. It is a figure of the most difficult execution. The veil is all cut in marble of such delicate sculpture that the effect is that of a real veil. The drapery over the shoulders is of bronze. This figure is interesting for its execution rather than as a work of art.

SOME exquisite sculptures, remarkable not only for their execution, but for the decorative effect produced by the use of colored marble and bronze in contrast with white Carrara marble, are displayed in the Italian Pavilion and the other exhibits of Italy at the Panama-Pacific International Exposition in San Francisco.

The ancient Greeks painted their statues in natural colors. What effect they produced we can only guess, as the color has long since disappeared from the Greek sculpture remaining to us, and as we do not know how skillful they were in employing it. But this modern Italian art may give us at least some idea of how statuary in colors may be made to appear.

This work is not painted in the Greek fashion but obtains its color from the natural hues of the different marbles employed, and from bronze, both of which are used in conjunction with the white Carrara marble in which the sculpture is executed.

These are examples of the finest type of decorative art as contrasted with the monumental type of sculpture. They have remarkable freedom of pose and fairly seem to live. In fact, from the photographs, it seems difficult to believe that these are carved statues and not merely posed human beings.

This is all modern work by contemporaneous sculptors. Some of it does bear the impress of the Early Roman, but other pieces, for example, the Merry Widow, are thoroughly in the current note. These statues were a part of the wondrous freight of art brought over from Europe on the Jason.

WADDOO'S SPLENDID SERVICE

Conception of and plans for the Pan American financial congress which meets in Washington this week are the thought and work of Secretary of the Treasury William G. McAdoo who has thus rendered an international service which will be more far-reaching in important results perhaps than the keenest foresight can now predict.

No time or this gathering could have been better chosen than the present when many of the Latin American countries are almost on the verge of financial crisis as a result of the European war.

While the program of the conference covers many intricate financial details it may be stated generally that its chief purpose is to bring about a better understanding both among themselves and on the part of financial interests of the United States of monetary conditions and needs in these countries in the hope that some solution of their more pressing problems growing out of the European war may be found.

It is not difficult to see how from a conference of this sort there may arise more intimate and friendly relations between the United States and these countries.

In this work Secretary McAdoo who as is well known is a native Georgian, has demonstrated the same high qualities of statesmanship which he has so well shown in his former successes as a developer and builder of great projects.

THE PEASANT WITH THE GUN.

A news item states that under the Russian flag there are enough people to populate Great Britain, Germany and France and have some left. That is why Russia can call a million peasants to arms and when they are mowed down fill the gaps with an easy million more.

of the art of war, they become its easy victims.

In an article on "The New Russia," in the American Review of Reviews, Charles Johnson tells what has been accomplished in ten years for the benefit of the Russian peasants.

Civil and religious liberty. A parliament of two houses, rapidly becoming fitted to the national genius.

Now this wonderful record of progress has been halted and these sturdy toilers of the life supplying fields—these real builders of empire—may fill death pits on the firing line and "when once destroyed can never be supplied.

Their untilled fields their tenantless homes attest the truth of ages that war is force and murder.

WHEREIN WE FAIL

America in dependence upon the foreigner for dyes, stuffs and drugs when no occasion for it exists except our own lack of force and absence of effort to produce them.

It has long been an American boast that we are a self-sustaining nation, that we could be walled in from the rest of the world and still produce everything we need for ourselves and many times our present population.

The European war has constituted just as effective a wall even though it be temporary against our supplies of certain dyes, stuffs, chemicals and drugs as if the actual masonry had been erected.

The government of the United States has been in the habit of indiscriminately granting patent rights to the foreign producers of drugs and dyes, stuffs, that have come into common and daily use without making any provision whatever against the interruption of the supply in just such cases as have now come about.

Taking the other phase of the problem Dr. Jacobs who has made a thorough study of it shows when in we are well equipped by nature to make good our boasted independence but have failed to take advantage of the opportunity.

His own experiences given in Dr. Jacobs article at some length bear out the truth of this assertion while Dr. Jacobs himself has added innumerable other instances of substitution which are used to answer every purpose of the foreign products whose scarcity or temporary absence we are now deploring.

There is no doubt of the fact that we can live wholly at home if we would only prepare for it but here is a somewhat astonishing evidence of our failure of preparation.

THE PRACTICAL WOMAN

The practical woman is the demand of the moment in the countless great things women are trying to do.

It was because of her practical work that Mrs. Nellie Peters Black was called to the leadership of the first organized movement of the women of the south for educational and industrial betterment.

Women have their organizations now—their machines through which they can work but too much time is lost in details the swapping of theories at too frequent meetings, a little too much interest at times in office holding and not enough precaution taken against duplicating effort.

With women in the lead, the type of which Mrs. Black is a noble example, or organizations are needed today in the south as they were never needed before.

HANDLING IT RIGHT

Intimations which come from the white house since the presentation of the American note to Germany upon the sinking of the Lusitania indicate a fast adherence to the firm but conservative line of action so well delineated in that document.

Naturally there will be no further action until the German reply is received and we may take it that this reply will be framed not only to express Germany's exact attitude but to accord as nearly as possible with the state of feeling in Washington regarding which Germany is at all times well informed.

The suggestion for example has come out of Berlin that in exchange for Germany's agreement to discontinue her submarine warfare on merchantmen the United States should endeavor to induce England and the allies to cease using flags of other countries for the protection of their vessels and to discontinue the transportation of contraband of war in passenger boats.

Unofficially yet emphatically it has been made clear that the American demand involving the safety of American lives stands upon its own merits and that nothing short of the assurance of that safety will satisfy this government regardless of the wrongs committed by other nations.

Such modification of Germany's submarine war program as will guarantee the safety of American citizens is all the United States has asked or has the right to ask that was the purport of the American note and President Wilson as is indicated in the current Washington dispatches is standing squarely upon it.

In nothing that has been said or done is there remotest reason for rupture of the friendly relations existing between the United States and Germany nor will there be anything done on the part of this government to cause a break.

The New York Times says that first and last the aggregate expenditure of American money for pleasurable living and traveling in Europe has been between $100,000,000 and $200,000,000 a year of recent times.

Now that there is nowhere to go but home these millions will be spent here—quite a contribution to the prosperity of the country.

And what a profitable investment it will be for people who had to be forced to see America first! The Times takes this view of it.

People will see America who were never west of the Orange before many will see the Panama canal who but for the necessity of traveling this year in their own country might never have seen it at all.

Mr. Bryan has a clear track to Posterity as the man that signed the Note.

Surely, the end of the war must be well in sight, with the claim agents killing them off on all sides at the rate of 40,000 a clip.

And, too the note to Germany is a pretty good subject for a paying chautauqua lecture.

Looks like a clear case of Italy being fired to the firing line.

As a real estate agent Huerta hopes he will be able to hold his ground.

Now, when Villa is in danger of being overlooked, he gets some friendly person to assassinate him in print.

And now Kitchener realizes that the popular idol business isn't always what it's cracked up to be.

The Holland Letter

It is regarded in the financial district here as the least of several fortunate coincidences that only a few days before the meeting of the Pan American financial conference whose sessions begin at Washington on Monday of next week it was possible to report that the large loans negotiated by the United States in all of which half was taken by American bankers have been practically absorbed.

Another fortunate coincidence in the meeting at Cleveland which has for its purpose a campaign of education and agitation which may be followed by the establishment of an international court having final and supreme jurisdiction over commercial or financial questions in which the nations of the western continents may be interested.

Probably the opening of the Panama canal by navigation to utilize it in its present capacity is a fitting of the Pan American conference and in the act thus authorizing the collection of the Secretary of the Treasury Mr. McAdoo was empowered to select the United States which will represent the United States in the world.

The suggestion for example has come out of Berlin that in exchange for Germany's agreement to discontinue her submarine warfare on merchantmen the United States should endeavor to induce England and the allies to cease using flags of other countries for the protection of their vessels and to discontinue the transportation of contraband of war in passenger boats.

Unofficially yet emphatically it has been made clear that the American demand involving the safety of American lives stands upon its own merits and that nothing short of the assurance of that safety will satisfy this government regardless of the wrongs committed by other nations.

Such modification of Germany's submarine war program as will guarantee the safety of American citizens is all the United States has asked or has the right to ask that was the purport of the American note and President Wilson as is indicated in the current Washington dispatches is standing squarely upon it.

HOWHERE TO GO BUT HOME

The New York Times says that first and last the aggregate expenditure of American money for pleasurable living and traveling in Europe has been between $100,000,000 and $200,000,000 a year of recent times.

Now that there is nowhere to go but home these millions will be spent here—quite a contribution to the prosperity of the country.

And what a profitable investment it will be for people who had to be forced to see America first! The Times takes this view of it.

People will see America who were never west of the Orange before many will see the Panama canal who but for the necessity of traveling this year in their own country might never have seen it at all.

Mr. Bryan has a clear track to Posterity as the man that signed the Note.

Surely, the end of the war must be well in sight, with the claim agents killing them off on all sides at the rate of 40,000 a clip.

And, too the note to Germany is a pretty good subject for a paying chautauqua lecture.

Looks like a clear case of Italy being fired to the firing line.

As a real estate agent Huerta hopes he will be able to hold his ground.

Now, when Villa is in danger of being overlooked, he gets some friendly person to assassinate him in print.

And now Kitchener realizes that the popular idol business isn't always what it's cracked up to be.

AN OLD LOVE SONG

By FRANK L. STANTON. WHERE the evening lights and shadows meet The old love song came soft and sweet. As south winds singing where roses grow Why stars and darkness love them so— For the roses dream of the long ago And a song that sings of the days gone by Is bright with a tear, and sweet with a sigh— A dying day and a morning sky.

TWAS an old love song—so simple sweet, Only for Memory to repeat. Folded in dreams from the world away— A world that smiles when the old and gray Kneel at a shrine of dreams to pray Clapping a flower of a withered May But there are dreams that life will keep Till Memory sighs herself to sleep Dreams for tears that a world might weep.

SO the song came sweet through the shadows there And out of the Night and the Everwhere Of weary wand'ring home Love went Back to the land of Heart's Content To the olden hills and rills that seem To murmur still the old sweet dream Of lives that gathered life's pure gold— Of Love that lives when time is old Ever the silence seem'd to say I am the dream of the old and gray But sing the songs of youth again Over the violets wet with rain Even in a lifetime's fading gleams And singing rest with stars and dreams.

MERGER WITH EMORY WILL ENLARGE USEFULNESS OF MEDICAL COLLEGE

By Irma Dooley. Dr. W. S. Elkin, dean of the Atlanta Medical College, is planning to merge the medical department of the Atlanta Medical College with the medical department of Emory University.

When the history of the Atlanta Medical College is considered the place it occupies in the history of the city is of great importance.

Financially the Atlanta Medical College takes the year 1914-15 as its base year. The total assets of the college are $1,000,000.

But besides this financial fact upon which the medical department of Emory University stands it draws its strength and influence from the fact that it is the only medical school in the city which is supported by the city.

The closing of European universities on account of the war has direct to Atlanta if proper facilities are assured as many young men from Mexico, Cuba and South America. Thus the south will be brought into close relations with these countries.

Of this enormous potentiality for the development of the medical department of the Atlanta Medical College there is no doubt.

The Atlanta Medical College was founded in 1878. The leadership of Dr. John T. Westmoreland. The Legislature appropriated $15,000 for a building.

At the following commencement exercises in 1880 Dr. Elkin dean of the college conducted the exercises marking the beginning of its greater service to the professional life of the south and the people at large.

European War Will Make Virtue Out of Necessity If We Utilize Our Own Resources in Producing Dyestuffs and Drugs, Declares Dr. Jos. Jacobs

By Dr. Joseph Jacobs.

In a paper read at the Baltimore meeting of the American Pharmaceutical Association, Dr. Jacobs endeavored to show how the southern states could supply the drug necessities to their armies and their non-combatants during the four years of war between the states (while importations were hindered by blockades) and home manufactures demolished by war.

The lessons of self-dependence that were learned and practiced by our southern people during that time in utilizing the many and varied drug resources of our own country in the absence of the accustomed foreign supplies apply with similar force now to our whole reunited country while the world's peaceful trade and intercourse is shattered by the new strife of the European nations.

Owing to our friendly patronage of foreign manufacturers in buying from them many drug products that we could have made for ourselves and many that we could have dispensed with by the use of our own resources, substitutes we have found ourselves after less than a year of their strifes and disputes that seemed to afford the usual supplies of medicinal at reasonable cost to our consumers. It is therefore of the greatest importance to learn the cause of these conditions and call attention to the remedies for which present and pending circumstances seem to indicate.

DR. JOSEPH JACOBS

Our Patent Laws

If our patent laws had not operated to our advantage, it is probable that foreign manufacturers of chemicals and dyestuffs over our own we could now be in condition to make our American soil all kinds and quantities of chemical products needed at home and abroad to sell at a profit about equal to that of the products of those foreign countries. The patent laws that have been enacted should be created on their own merits. We have allowed foreign proprietors under our patent laws to manufacture in their own countries without any requirements of their manufacture here. Now that our foreign trade is cut off and our demand for the European war is increasing, it is necessary to supply the needs of our people in the drug line at fair and customary prices and at the same time to pay the difference between 25 cents and $1 to the American representative at that time and today to such well known firms as the German chemists, I. G. Farbenindustrie, and others, which do not give us the right to our own resources.

The present war has certainly taught us a few very bitter lessons and would seem to indicate that we should have a demand of our own resources to prevent an article of register a trade mark in the United States that they may establish a factory for its production here.

A List of Substitutes

I here append a list of substitutes that were used by druggists and physicians during the war in large quantities in most of the instances in which the only medicines of the kind to be had were foreign.

For colic and yellow root for stomachic and tonic, where powdered leaves of oregano were used, but for which I had no substitute, but for which I had no substitute, but for which I had no substitute.

near the head of a bed ridden person to keep away flies.

The Castor Oil Bean.

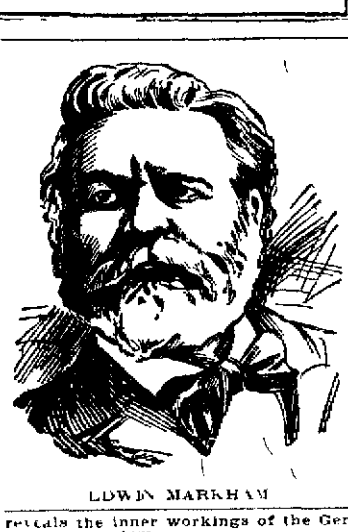

It was quite an industry, I was told by an Atlanta lady, Mrs. Marcus, a bill for the country people to raise castor beans. The crushed beans were boiled and the oil strained off. The oil was used for medicinal purposes. The beans were raised in the mountains of the South and were used for medicinal purposes.

Face Eruptions Have Deep Significance

Often They Indicate Impurities Deep in the Tissues.

The bluntness of the skin and the appearance of the face in the morning is a sign of impurities deep in the tissues. This is a common condition and is caused by the accumulation of waste products in the skin. It is important to take steps to remove these impurities and to keep the skin healthy. There are many ways to do this, including the use of facial creams and lotions, and the use of natural remedies.

The Greatest Health Resort in the World

Battle Creek, like the great spas and health resorts of Europe, is the result of years of experiment and selection of the scientific apparatus most effective in finding the causes of human suffering and ministering to its relief.

For nearly fifty years a staff of physicians and laboratory experts have been observing, selecting and testing out methods of physiologic treatment. The result is that gathered together in this one place is the most complete and effective equipment in existence for the diagnosis and treatment of all physical and nervous irregularities. Nowhere else in the world can you find assembled in one place all the apparatus and facilities which can be found at the Battle Creek Sanitarium.

Patients suffering with ailments requiring a special diet find here a diet system with food so varied and delicious that they feel no sense of deprivation, yet are guarded from all danger of gastric indigestion. Patients suffering from overwork, worry or exhaustion find here the atmosphere and treatment which enable them to regain strength and vigor in the shortest possible time.

 Atlanta Valley, Scottish Rite Masons, last week completed the work of initiating a class of fifty-one aspirants for the higher degrees in Masonry. YORK RITE MASONS TO INITIATE MASONS

The York Rite Masons, who are members of the Council of Royal and Select Masters, are anticipating with much interest the extraordinary assembly to be held in the Masonic temple on Wednesday evening, May 26, at which time a large class of candidates will be initiated into the Cryptic degrees.

This is the occasion of the semi-annual communication of Jason Burr council, which is one of the oldest Masonic bodies in the state. Several officers of the grand council of Georgia are expected, and a number of other out-of-town visitors will be in attendance.

The business session will be held at 8 o'clock in the afternoon, at which time applicants may be elected to receive the degrees at this assembly. Immediately following the business meeting the work of conferring degrees will be entered into, and the three degrees will all be conferred in full form, the degree of super excellent master requiring over forty men in the cast.

Henry Watterson Hit the Nail Squarely on the Head

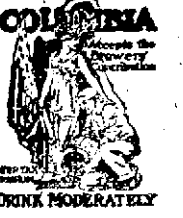

RECENTLY Mr. Watterson, renowned editor, said: "The introduction of beer in America has done more for true temperance than all the temperance societies and the prohibition laws combined."

Honorable H. E. Barnard, State Food and Drug Commissioner of Indiana, said: "It is now a fact that the cleanest and most sanitary food on the market is beer."

Beer is a liquid food. Beer drinkers are nearly always temperate men. It contains so small a percentage of alcohol as to render it absolutely harmless when taken in moderation. Beer does not create an appetite for strong liquors. It satisfies the craving of the human system for a mild form of stimulation and exhilaration.

Give the average man the privilege of drinking good beer—make it convenient for him to get—and you further the cause of true temperance. Deprive him of this privilege and he invariably resorts to some stronger and more harmful substitute. This is a demonstrated fact—not an idle theory.

Beer Means Temperance

Department of Home Gardens

EDITED BY BEAUFORT MATTHEWS

ATLANTA PARKS

The Department of Home Gardens, under the supervision of Mr. Matthews, has been very busy during the past few weeks. The department has been successful in securing a large amount of money for the improvement of the city parks.

In 1914 the following money was used (please note):
 Appropriation, $300.
 City fund, $28.75.
 Subsidies, $33.67.
 Improvements, $69.83.
 Receipts, $100.00.
 Balance, $50.70.
 (Note repairs: None.)

Mudox Park is especially mentioned as a model beauty spot because the children and grown-ups have appreciated Mr. Matthews' efforts in their behalf.

Mr. Charles J. Hudson and Mrs. M. J. Jordan have contributed in this work by donating a large amount of money. No spirit of vandalism is shown here. You are the whole community, and the children are the most important part. They are the ones who will be the future of the city.

Another example of parks that is of special interest is that of Mudox Park. A large amount of work is being done here. The park is being improved all over the western and middle west. It has been found that the best way to improve a park is to have a model garden where people can study methods used in agriculture.

Model Nursery Two Years Old.
 Two years ago Mr. Matthews asked the school board to start a nursery in Mudox Park in spite of the fact that there was no appropriation. He is now a nursery in Mudox Park. It is now a nursery in Mudox Park. It is now a nursery in Mudox Park.

This year the nursery was operated at a total cost of $500.21, of this amount $488 were spent for labor, $25 for seed and $37.98 was expended for some shrubs from which cuttings could be obtained.

A large number of shrubs were given by interested friends in Washington, and Mr. Matthews has been very successful in securing the park board are to be congratulated upon having done the very thing that the Atlanta Home Gardens League is most vitally interested in seeing expanded in our parks.

So far so good.

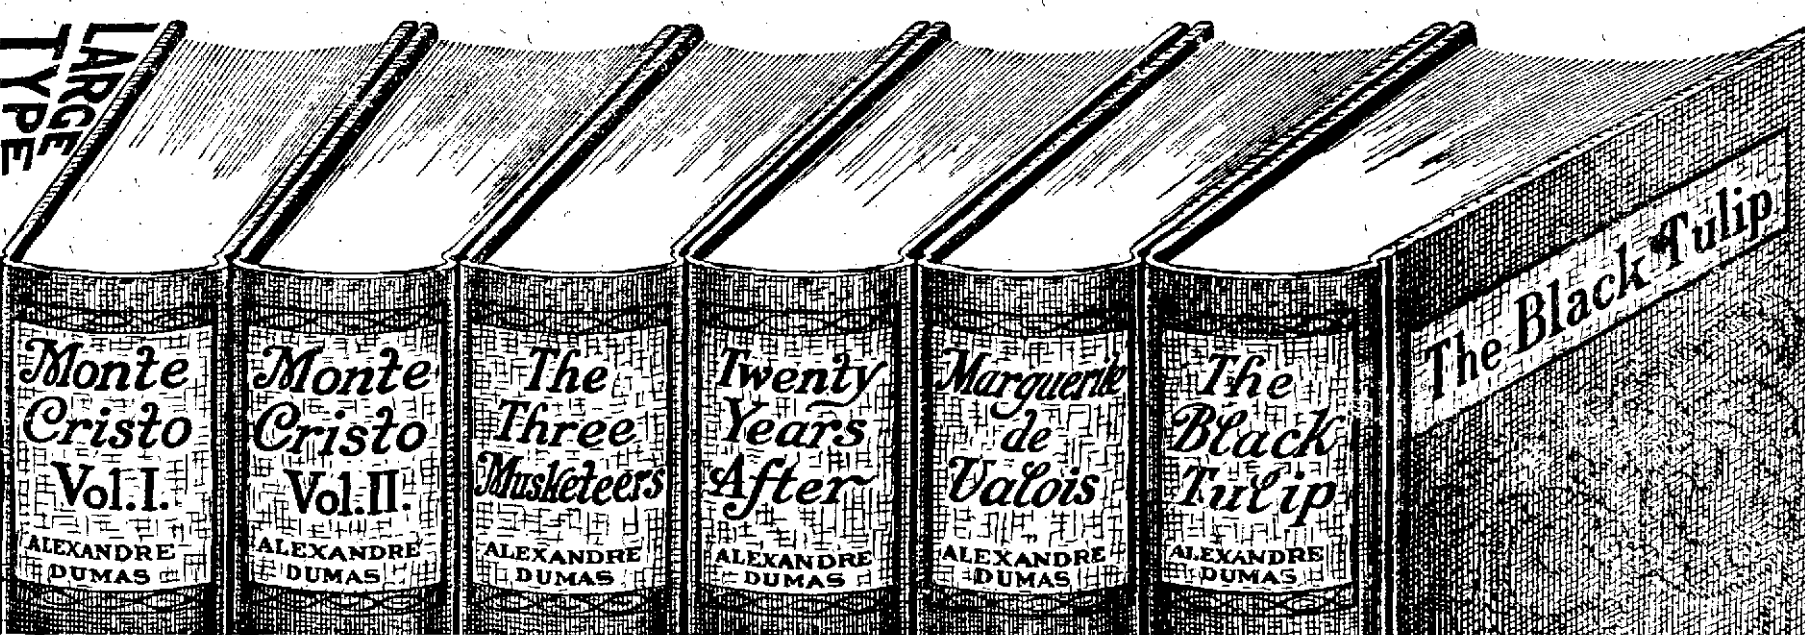

It is interesting to note the result obtained in Mudox Park with an expenditure of $539.21.

Gardening is an important part in our parks:
 219.8 bushels of corn, $1.25 = $219.80
 12 barrels of carrots, 12.50 = 150.00
 1 sack Irish potatoes, 22.50 = 22.50
 2 sacks of turnips, at $2.25 = 4.50
 2000 bunches of fodder, at $2 = 4000.00
 57 loads of hay at $3.50 = 200.00
 12,895 plants in nursery . . . 1,223.28
 $1,945.93

Mr. Cochran's model garden has the hearty indorsement of the Atlanta Home Garden League and the City Corporation.

at 8:30 o'clock in the afternoon at the Atlanta Valley Library, on Luckie street. Register for the money prizes offered by H. G. Hastings for the finest lettuce, onions and radishes in May.

DUMAS' IMMORTAL ROMANCES

6 Vols., Cloth Bound, Large Type, Bible Paper, Illustrated
 The Chance Is Yours
 To Meet Famous People Over 3,000 Pages of Matchless Entertainment

Such characters as D'Artagnan, the inimitable, and his cronies, Athos, Porthos and Aramis, the Three Musketeers, will never die. They are known, the world over; and their deeds and misdeeds will continue to delight a dull world. The Count of Monte Cristo, Marguerite de Valois—these are names endeared to all who enjoy a bright, strong tale. No one can entertain as Dumas does—though many have tried to imitate the easy style, the merry manner and sprightly genius of the famous Frenchman. You must add Dumas to your library.

Robert Louis Stevenson, himself a world-genius, said: "My dearest and best friend outside of Shakespeare is D'Artagnan. I know not a more human soul, nor, in his way, a finer." You will thrill and gasp with the adventure with which D'Artagnan and his three friends circumvent Cardinal Richelieu, save the honor of Anne of Austria, and enjoy themselves characteristically while doing it.

For old and young. Every one reads and heartily enjoys Dumas. "Monte Cristo" is one of the most thrilling stories which have ever been written. It has been translated into almost every language, and is as popular today as ever. "The Three Musketeers" is the forerunner of the best romantic stories of the present day, and is, without a peer among them all. The character of D'Artagnan, his adventures, bravery, fidelity and unselfishness have endeared him to all book-lovers. Of all the books which Dumas wrote, these are the best, most entertaining, and most enjoyable.

Good Books--Worthy Books

Each set is enduringly bound in red ribbed English buckram cloth; gold lettered and embellished. The paper used is a strong Bible finish, and the type is new, large and clear. Each volume has a striking frontispiece illustration, the work of a notable English or French artist.

The Woman's Study Club.

The last meeting of the year was held by the Woman's Study Club Tuesday afternoon at the Y. M. C. B. in the hall.

The study of the year has been the constitution of the United States of America. The history of each state was given as they came into the union and a native of that state would give the opening address.

Miss Sarah Whaley gave an attractive course of lessons on the constitution which she will continue in the fall.

Mrs. Elizabeth McCarthy, chairman of the nominating committee, proposed the following names for officers for the year who were unanimously elected:

President, Mrs. A. Helmer; first vice president, Mrs. Jack Hawkins; second vice president, Mrs. W. W. Hargrave; recording secretary, Mrs. Harry Smith; corresponding secretary, Mrs. J. M. Hines; treasurer, Mrs. J. M. Hines; and auditor, Mrs. J. M. Hines.

The first meeting of the club in the fall will be September 16.

Flower Day.

Flower day last Wednesday, conducted by the ladies of the Sacred Heart church, carried a reflection of spring beauty out of doors into Atlanta institutions for the shut-ins—the local hospitals and other homes of the sick.

There was a generous response to the request for flowers and the contributions of ladies who distributed them were received with a cordial welcome everywhere for themselves and their burden.

Flower day is an annual event but it has encouraged the practice among individuals of repeating the successful mission on many days throughout the year.

PREP LEAGUE RACE WON BY BOYS' HIGH

Boys' High school has been officially declared winner of the prep school league championship of Atlanta.

It has been made public by President Robert S. Brown at the past week's meeting of the league. There has been a general misunderstanding as to how the winner has been judged in the prep race.

The general opinion has been that the team that had the highest percentage after playing two games with each other would be declared the champion. This is a mistake. But in the present instance, the boys' high team has been declared the winner because it has the highest average at the close of the season. The boys' high team has each played a third scheduled game. Boys' High winning nine out of ten games and losing one. The girls' high team has each played one game and won it. This boys' high has the highest average and according to President Brown, it is declared the winner, which will be presented in due time.

The prep league rules stand it is not necessary that the games be played off simply the team with the highest percentage of wins of ten games winning the title.

22 VOTES PLEDGED FOR IMPEACHMENT, DECLARES KELLEY

Councilmen Ready to Strike at Woodward Because of His Refusal to Preside Over Election on Monday Afternoon.

CONFERENCE IS HELD BY FRIENDS OF MAYOR

Jim Key Taking Part in Fight—Members of Council Already Discussing Who Will Succeed Woodward.

Mayor James G. Woodward's finish at the hands of the majority faction of general council was freely predicted Saturday by leaders who are planning impeachment proceedings against him following his refusal to preside at the election of a purchasing agent last week.

Impetus to the movement to impeach the mayor and the friends of the franchise him was given when it was announced by Alderman C. H. Kelley, one of the leaders, that twenty-two members of general council had pledged to support the move. Only twenty votes are required.

The mayor was plainly agitated Saturday for the first time since talk of impeachment began ten days ago. He had refused to take the matter seriously until the secret caucus held Friday night in the office of Alderman Albert Thomson disclosed the fact that the required number of votes had been assured to proceed against him.

Mayor Calls Conference. He called some of his friends into private conferences and their appeal to him to accept the situation as grave he assured them that he realized that the majority faction was determined to remove him and intimated that he would fight with the friends of the franchise.

James I. Key, an avowed enemy of the mayor, who was re-elected last week as secretary of the board of education is serving as legal advisor to the majority faction of council. He was in the city on Friday and advised with the members directing them in the proper course.

Mayor Very Busy. So busy was the mayor Saturday with some of his close friends in council that he had little time for reporters and in fact refused to discuss the proposed impeachment.

The certainty with which the mayor's downfall is expected was emphasized when discussion of a successor to fill his unexpired term was mentioned. Mayor Pro Tem I. N. Raggsdale would serve for thirty days after the date of impeachment and during that period the charter has it that an election shall be called and a mayor shall be elected.

Alderman Jesse W. Armistead, former staunch supporter of the mayor, but now one of the most ardent advocates of impeachment, is considered one of the strongest possibilities, while Councilman Edwin Johnson, of the sixth ward, and one of the few remaining supporters of the mayor is being spoken of as a compromise candidate.

Some members of the majority faction stated that they would be willing to withdraw their opposition to the mayor if he would publicly apologize to the council for his refusal to preside at the election of a purchasing agent. They do not expect the mayor to relent and agree to these terms after his open defiance of the council.

Objections to this course were pointed out by other councilmen who contended that if the mayor continues in office it will mean one round after another of bickering and discussions and inimicable to the best interests of the city.

Dixie Highway Selected In Form of Great Circuit Linking Lakes With Gulf

Michigan Extension Will Give Excellent Roads Along Both Shores of Lake Michigan, While Florida Will Build West Coast Strip.

DELEGATES ARE TOLD THEIR ROADS MUST BE READY WITHIN YEAR

All Routes in Georgia Have Been Selected Except East Route South of Macon, Which Will Be Picked Within Ninety Days.

Chattanooga, Tenn., May 22.—The Dixie highway from the Great Lakes to the Gulf of Mexico, was given definite form here today when the commissioners, two each appointed by the governors of seven states adopted the route of the highway after a three days session. Chicago was selected as the northern terminus and Miami as the southern.

The commission designated a west and an east route on various rival links of thoroughfare between Indianapolis and Miami, but a plan was adopted late today looking toward connecting up the north portion of the two lines with a road along the eastern and western shores of Lake Michigan and connecting the south portion with a road from Miami along the west coast of Florida, thus making a continuing loop of the highway. This scheme was suggested by Commissioner Carl G. Fisher, of Indianapolis, who proposed extending the road from Chicago to South Bend, Ind., thence north to Mackinaw, thence south via Bay City to Detroit.

Michigan to Join. In adopting the plan the commission voted to invite Michigan into the association to provide the lake loop and pledged itself to extend the east route from Dayton, Ohio, north through Toledo to Detroit. The commissioners also were authorized to investigate extensions of the road from Miami up the west coast joining the highway between Tallahassee and Jacksonville. Among the principal cities on the west route between Chicago and Chattanooga are Danville, Ill., Indianapolis, Louisville and Nashville, while south from Indianapolis on the east route are Cincinnati, Lexington, Ky., and Knoxville, Tenn.

Before adjournment of the executive session tonight the Dixie Highway association adopted a charter, perfected a permanent organization of twenty-one directors, comprising the fourteen commissioners and the seven original incorporators, and adopted plans for constructing the highway. A resolution which was adopted provided that the various links in the road must be complete within a year from today, and it was proposed that the highway be dedicated next November, probably on Thanksgiving day. A resolution was adopted notifying each county and municipality through which the highway has been designated, that their links must be completely and satisfactorily constructed in accordance with the association's specifications, within a year from today. The association reserved the right to change the location of any part of the highway if the county or city fails to meet requirements.

To Encourage Branch Roads. Another resolution presented by Commissioner George W. Harris, of Cincinnati, recommended to the directors that construction of branch roads connecting with the main highway be encouraged. It also recommended that each state not now represented, but which has farming land much jewelry was also found but no will has yet been presented, and it has been practically agreed by both sides that no such document is in existence.

The safe was opened at noon in the presence of the dead man's stenographer Miss Edith Coggins, Reuben Arnold, attorney for the widow, George Schoen, a lifelong friend of the dead clubman, George Palmer, attorney, J. E. Denton, of Columbus, Mrs. Light's father and a representative of the law office of Moore & Branch, attorneys for Mr. High during his divorce troubles.

Dr. John E. White To Be Called Today By Anderson Church. That the Second Baptist church of Atlanta may lose Dr. John E. White as its pastor in the near future is indicated by a news dispatch from Anderson, S. C., last night, which stated that "Dr. John E. White, of Atlanta, has agreed to accept the pastorate of the First Baptist church of Anderson, and election will be held by the congregation Sunday."

MAP OF DIXIE HIGHWAY SHOWING EAST AND WEST ROUTES

The above map shows the two routes of the Dixie highway as selected yesterday by the fourteen commissioners with three exceptions, which, when finally selected, will make the highway practically a complete circuit, taking in both shores of Lake Michigan and the east and west coasts of Florida.

South from Chattanooga, west route, to Lafayette, Summerville, Rome, Kingston, Cartersville, Marietta, Atlanta. Eastern Route—Chattanooga, Ringgold, Dalton, Calhoun, Adairsville, Cartersville, thence same as other to Atlanta.

DiETING THE PLOUGH HORSE. DiETING the horse that draws the plough may sometimes be carried to undesirable extremes. A man once started to train his horse to live on sawdust—just as he was getting him educated the animal died. Some men start to train their businesses to do without advertising. Just as they get their nicely trained the sheriff steps in and has a nice little auction sale. Business needs the building effect of advertising just as a draught horse needs food. Honest advertising is most productive when used in The Atlanta Constitution.

Goodyear advertisement featuring a large tire image and text: $5,450 Per Day Spent To Fortify Goodyear Tires. The other day we cited our experts to certain well-known tires. And we asked, What could Goodyear save by building tires like these? $1,635,000 a Year. Those are the facts; believe them! We never exaggerate, never misrepresent. Price Reductions. Now note another side. Despite this ceaseless improvement, Goodyear prices are constantly coming down. Our last big reduction—on February 1st—made three in two years, totaling 45 per cent. Yet not a feature is missing, not a item is skimped. And this year we are spending a half-million dollars on newly-adapted, betterments. That's one result of our mammoth output, our new equipment and our modern methods. When we spend such sums to build tires better than rivals, don't you think it worth while to get Goodyears? Most men do. Goodyear tires are selling now much faster than we can build them. Any dealer will supply you. We spend on experts $100,000 yearly to find new betterments to add. In the past year alone we have added improvements which cost us exceeding $500,000 a year. GOODYEAR AKRON, OHIO Fortified Tires. Run Cut—by our No Rim Cut feature. Blow-outs—by our On Air cure. Loose Treads—by many rubber tires. Insecurity—by 1 1/2 ply bridged piano wires. Punctures and Skidding—by our double-thick All Weather tread. 100 Cents on Every Dollar These Men Give It. These men might make more per sale on other tires. But they are GOODYEAR SERVICE STATIONS, and they give the most in value. They could quote you seeming discounts on some makes. But they know that Right Prices in the end count most for their success. And they might, too, suggest some other tire, when you ask for Goodyear. But these are BUSINESS MEN. They know that substitution is unfair to you. So go to them when you need tires. They give you fullest value for each dollar. When such men offer you tires, can it really pay to go elsewhere? RAILROAD MEN ENJOY PICNIC AT GRANT PARK

Members of Roadway Departments of Two Roads Have Great Time in Atlanta.

Members of the roadway departments of the Georgia railway and the Atlanta and West Point railroad, supervisors, general foremen, their children and their wives, totalling 600, enjoyed an outing at Grant Park Saturday as the guests of the roads.

To give the men who watch the tracks an opportunity to enjoy themselves for at least one day has long been the desire of Charles A. Wickens, president and general manager of the West Point route and general manager of the Georgia railroad, and O. T. Nelson, superintendent of the maintenance of way of the West Point route and the Georgia railroad. It was carried to a most happy culmination with the barbecue in the park.

Special trains covering all parts of the two railway systems brought the happy families and the bachelors to Atlanta early Saturday morning. Special trolley cars carried them to the scene of the feast on the grounds.

They were highly entertained through the efforts of reception committees representing the two railroads under the direction of Joe Billups, general passenger agent for the roads. "I've enjoyed the day so much," said everyone as they ate and laughed and talked around the long tables spread with a regular barbecue menu. Not one apparently enjoyed the occasion more than President Wickens, who quickly became acquainted with every feature of the grounds.

The barbecue, the Brunswick stew, the salads, the lemonade and the many other things provided for consumption were grand successes, as everyone bore witness. "We turned that department over entirely to Marjory Edwards, the party cook on the president's private car," said Mr. Billups.

The members of the reception committee were J. P. Robinson, A. B. Brownlow and W. L. Winters, representing the Georgia railroad, and F. W. Hensley, J. E. Martin and S. F. Sherman of the West Point route.

The dead included an unidentified boy, who was killed in the arms of his sister, who was returning from the automobile. His sister also is dying.

About fifteen sticks of dynamite were in the automobile. The coroner has started an investigation.

PLAN NEW OYSTER LAWS

Meeting for Purpose to Convene at Brunswick.

Brunswick, Ga., May 22.—(Special.)—For the purpose of mapping out radical changes in the fish and oyster laws of Georgia, which it is expected will be beneficial to the state, representatives of the coast counties of Georgia will hold a meeting in Brunswick on Tuesday afternoon. Representatives will be present from Chatham, McIntosh, Glynn and Camden counties, and the meeting will also be attended by State Game Commissioner Davis and J. C. Arrow of St. Marys, who is slated to succeed Mr. Davis at the expiration of his present term of office. At the request of the Brunswick Board of Trade, an expert of the bureau of Fisheries of the United States will also be in the city for the meeting.

The meeting of representatives from coast counties follows a campaign started some time ago for laws for the betterment of the fish and oyster business in the state of Georgia. It has long since been realized that the oyster industry should be a great thing for the state, but as it is at present very little revenue is forthcoming from the industry, due primarily to the fact that there are no adequate laws. It is the plan of those who have interested themselves in the matter to have all oyster beds along the Georgia coast pooled in future, and to defray the expenses of such revenue will be placed on oysters and those engaged in the business will be taxed probably so much per barrel or bushel.

In the early afternoon the entire party went in wading when the two Logue girls, along with the little daughter of Mr. Harrison, fell into deep water and began crying for their fathers to save them. Every effort possible succeeded in saving only the little Harrison girl.

Double dead air space between three thicknesses of charcoal sheeting, making an absolutely effective insulation.

Provision chambers of heavy galvanized steel, white enamel and genuine one-piece porcelain without a crack or crevice for the lodgment of dirt or germs.

The ice pans made of one piece of galvanized steel and so formed that the refrigerators cannot leak.

Removable flues, leaving no lurking place for germs and rendering cleaning easy and rapid.

Patent interior drip traps, which, with the drain pipes, are easily removed. Center air circulation.

Woven wire shelves. Hardware of cast brass, Roman gold finish.

Only 5% PLUS for the Best "Non-Skid"

Tires

There are 57, or more, Varieties of Non-Skid Tires. Some of these actually prevent Skidding, even in Wet Weather and on slippery pavements. Many of them wear out the Cotton Fabric of the Tire long before its time, through the excessive heat which thick Treads develop in the Rubber, between layers, by friction. And practically all of them, that make serious claims to Non-Skid efficiency, cost you 20% to 30% more than Plain Tread Tires of same brand and material. The makers of Non-Skids say it Costs them this 10% to 30% more to take the Skids off their Plain Tires. We do it for 5%. Here's how, and Why!

FORTY-FIVE more of Rubber working (in what is now the World's largest Rubber Factory) has taught us a few Kinks and Short-cuts that are not common to the Trade.

One of these now comes to the help of your Pocket-book.

Through the simple process of Thinking Hard (and being Candid with ourselves) we have found a Short-Cut to make the best Safety Tread ever put on a Tire cost us only about 5% more than it costs us to make the Plain-Tread of similar quality.

By testing out these Goodrich Safety-Tread Tires on a large number of Taxicabs (where they could be competitively observed and carefully checked up at the end of each day's use) and by comparing their actual performance with that of our own, and other Plain-Treads, of much higher price, we have had this fact forced upon us—Viz:

—That there is SURPRISINGLY more Mileage, in Goodrich Safety Tread Tires, than in our own, or any other make of Plain-Tread Tires. So MUCH more Mileage, for only 5% more Cost looked so good to us that we decided to give Car Owners the benefit. Here's what we now offer you!

The best Non-Skid Safety Tread ever put on the market, at ONLY 5% HIGHER PRICE than our own best Plain Tread.

NO Vibration—no Tread Separation due to isolated Projections—no clumps, Resilience-killing stiffness. But—instead, a practical hinge between each series of Grips, which breaks up the "Traction Wave" in the Tire, and thereby adds enormously to Mileage, at only 5% more Cost. We could well justify an increased charge for this Feature, equal to the increased Mileage which results from it. But we don't take advantage of that. Will you appreciate the Good-Faith behind this offer?

DORSEY TO FIGHT INNESSES RELEASE

The Solicitor and Marshall Nelms Go to Washington to Have Bonds Increased by Justice Lamar.

Marshall Nelms and Solicitor Hugh M. Dorsey have taken the latest move of Victor Innes and his wife, the necessity of $100,000 bond to the prisoners at the West, which has been set before Justice Lamar Monday morning. On the same day the Inneses were yet again in the news, as will be put up by both sides. The Inneses have engaged a brilliant team of counsel headed by former Senator Joseph B. Scales of Texas, who is now practicing law in Washington.

The attorney in chief of the state court in Texas, who is now in the city, is expected to return from the hearing Wednesday.

States supreme court, and, at the recommendation of the Texas attorney general, permitted the reduction of the bond. The Inneses pleaded ill health of Mrs. Innes, advising the attorney general that she would not survive many more months in prison.

The move was followed by Justice Lamar, who upon advice from Dorsey, commanded Texas authorities to increase the bond to $100,000 temporarily until the question could be thrashed out at Monday's hearing in Washington. Dorsey has been employed by Mrs. Innes to fight the case and has been appointed by Texas authorities to represent them.

The Inneses were extradited from Oregon through the aid of the Texas attorney general, and were taken to the Inneses' home at the moment they were about to take themselves on the reduced bond.

Expected by United States From Germany, and Nothing Less Will Satisfy—German Reply Coming Soon.

Washington, May 22.—Such advice as has been received from Ambassador Gerard within the last few days, it became known tonight, have given no intimation as to the character of the German reply to the recent American note beyond the generality that it will be friendly in tone.

The German answer is now expected to reach Washington late next week. Until then the situation as between the United States and Great Britain over alleged violations of international law in connection with the British order in council will not be developed by officials here. After the German note is received, however, it is practically certain that representations on the general subject of the commercial embargo imposed by the allies on intercourse with Germany will be made.

From Generation to Generation

ASHLEY STILL IN FAVOR OF CENTRAL HIGH SCHOOL

Will Ask Council to Defer Action on Recommendation of the Bond Committee.

Councilman Claude L. Ashley has completed a tour and personal investigation of the four high schools of the city and will ask general council Monday to delay action on the recommendation of the bond committee that three new high schools be established to replace the four now in operation.

At the last meeting of general council Mr. Ashley introduced a resolution directing the mayor pro tem to name a committee of three to work out details for a consolidated high school for both boys and girls; to provide for ample playgrounds and athletic fields and for domestic science and manual training departments.

Mayor Pro Tem I. N. Ragsdale has announced that he will name the committee following the meeting Monday.

If council passes favorably on the plan.

The proposed plan of the bond committee to establish two girls' high schools in different sections of the city and a central boys' high school will not relieve the situation," declared Mr. Ashley Saturday. "By having a big central high school for all the pupils, it would be conducted on the order of a city academy and several new and important departments could be added at no additional expense over the present expense of the four separate institutions."

"I have made a personal inspection of each high school during the past few days and compared with the principals and with those familiar with the operation of such schools and I am more convinced than ever that this is the most feasible plan. I believe that the people at large want the consolidated school and would be more willing to vote for school bonds if they knew such a plan would be established."

Pres. Culberson to Attend Annual Meeting at Tybee Of Cotton Seed Crushers

For the first time in its history, the Cotton Seed Crushers' Association of Georgia will be honored by the presence of the president of the interstate association, Hon. J. J. President Culberson made the statement while in Atlanta en route to New York that he would use every effort to attend the association's annual meeting.

This will be the first and probably the only state association meeting which President Culberson will be able to attend in the southeast, and the Georgia association feels signally honored at this distinction.

Secretary Chivers, of the Cotton Seed Crushers' Association of Georgia, is now formulating the biggest program for the convention, which will include speakers of national prominence, complete details of which will be announced shortly.

The entertainment features provided for this meeting by the city of Savannah among the most elaborate ever planned for a state convention, and the interest in the forthcoming meeting is the largest attendance in the history of the state association will, in all probability, gather at the three days' session.

As previously announced, business sessions will be held in the mornings only, the afternoon being given over to carrying out the entertainment features provided.

FIRST OF NEW BARGES LAUNCHED ON OCMULGEE

Ceremony Marks Revival of River Navigation for the City of Macon.

Macon, Ga., May 22.—(Special.)—Barge No. 1, of the Macon-Atlantic Navigation company, was launched this afternoon in the presence of fully two thousand spectators, who gathered on the bank of the Ocmulgee at the Seventh street wharf, to see the boat take the plunge.

The barge, 120 feet long and constructed entirely of steel, slid into the water like a toy in a basin. There was no mishap, and when the craft had righted itself, it was found that it drew only eight and three-quarter inches of water.

It will take about thirty days to install the engine, after which the boat will be put in active service between Macon and Brunswick.

The launching of the barge is considered one of the most important events in the history of Macon, for it marks the beginning of the revival of river navigation that means a saving of hundreds of thousands of dollars every year to Macon merchants.

Already plans are being considered for the building of several more barges, similar to the one just launched. The barge represents an expenditure of $24,000.

Some months ago a company was organized here with a capitalization of $50,000 to operate the boat line. Many people have been skeptical about the proposition, but the launching of another boat line which proved a failure several years ago. That failure was the result of the use of the wrong kind of boats were used. The draft of the class of the boat launched today is so light that it can operate even when the river is at its lowest stage.

It was announced today that the Macon section of the barge, supported by Congressmen Wise, Hughes, Edwards and Walker, will ask for a government appropriation of $200,000 for three consecutive years for work on the Atlanta system of rivers.

Joseph A. McCord, governor of the Federal Reserve bank of Atlanta, will leave today at noon for Washington, D. C., where he will attend the conference of business men and financiers of the United States with representatives of the republics of South America upon trade and financial relations of the United States and the southern countries.

The object of the conference is to bring about closer trade and financial relations. Transportation, commercial and financial features will be discussed. One of the conditions which the conference will attempt to bring about will be the establishment of a dollar credit system instead of the pound system which has heretofore allowed the London banker to become the middle man between the United States manufacturer and his South American client.

MCCORD TO LEAVE TODAY TO ATTEND TRADE CONFERENCE

Americus, Ga., May 22.—(Special.)—Commencement exercises of the Third District Agricultural and Mechanical college, a state institution, were held here this afternoon, the graduates representing seven counties, receiving diplomas. One hundred and ten students attended the college during the session, probably the largest enrollment of any of the eleven congressional district colleges.

Congressman Charles R. Crisp delivered the annual literary address to the graduates. At 5 o'clock the board of college trustees was entertained at a college banquet. The trustees, in meeting, adopted resolutions requesting the Georgia legislature to appropriate $20,000 to restore the main collegiate building and auditorium, destroyed by fire in April.

For Cars of Business and Pleasure

Maintained car efficiency is largely a matter of tires. While the tire bill itself may not seem excessive, the jolt and grind that ordinary cushion tires transmit to the engine, and the car itself, frequently means a car out of commission—loss in time, money and service.

Motz Cushion Tires have solved the tire problem on many pleasure electrics and light delivery cars.

Motz Tires have the resiliency of properly inflated pneumatics. This resiliency is due to the dual treads (A) and the Motz undercut sides (B) and slantwise elastic bridges (C) that give and yield (D) like the air in a pneumatic tire.

MOTZ Cushion Tires

The Guarantee

Motz Tires are guaranteed for ten thousand miles on electric pleasure cars; seven thousand miles on commercial cars, when applied according to their rated carrying capacity. Many have traveled twenty thousand and even twenty-five thousand miles without trouble.

Proof Positive.
Celestia, the goddess in "The Goddess," emerging from her artificial heaven in the mountains. It occasions for the first time a man. It occasions this subtitle:
"Are you a man? Then this surely must be the world."
There! She has all the evidence.

But the question is, where did Celestia ever hear of the man tribes? There are supposed to be only angels in even an artificial heaven. Maybe there were some possible in Celestia's paradise. Of some old maid who could not resist, twirling their recklessly romantic youthhoods?

Anyway, she recognized it was a man when she saw it.

Can you imagine Celestia?

The ultimate in feminine idealism is achieved in Celestia, the goddess. From the time of her birth of cunning parents to the age of innocence she is reared in the isolation of a mountain cave, called from the world and led to believe that her plans of nativity are paradise. As she grows she is brought back into the world. Innocence personified. Her first experience is a meeting with a man.

Can you imagine Celestia?

KING BAGGOT AT SAVOY IN NEW DRAMA TUESDAY

Francis Ford, Mina Cunard, Mary Fuller, Ella Hall Also on Bill This Week.

The productions shown at the Savoy this past week fully prepared its patrons for the exceptionally fine bill to be presented the coming week.

Those who were fortunate enough Wednesday to see the wonderful film "The County Lad" and the man over the dandy summer are still marveling at this fine picture of the Universal Film Manufacturing Company.

The irony of fate was fully exemplified when the gay sportive mood of the passengers were shown a splendid film of the "County Lad" below.

Tuesday, Mary Fuller in "The Witch of Salem" and King Baggot in "The Imp Comedy" will be featured.

Wednesday, Leonard and Ella Hall will be seen Wednesday in a new release. There is no more popular actor than King Baggot in this comedy. As David Linges transferred from the first goods to the management of the soda fountain he is peevish because he is compelled to wear a white coat and is chagrined by the fact that he has succeeded in obtaining a position as one of his assistants. Miss Astor, a wealthy society girl has been robbed while drinking a glass of soda. Baggot succeeds in recovering the lost articles and goes to Miss Astor's house to restore them. The funny predicaments in which Baggot is constantly placed makes this an unusually interesting comedy and coupled with the splendid acting of King Baggot and the superb production of the picture, this episode is one of unusual merit.

In "A Witch of Salem" Mary Fuller plays the part of a girl who is the daughter of a man who is a witch. She is the daughter of a man who is a witch. She is the daughter of a man who is a witch.

Quitman Ga. May 22.—(Special)—Willson, fifteen leading southern roads—about one fire for the round trip good for a week—and with eight of these roads running special excursion trains to Quitman railroad station. The executive committee of the Brooks County Industrial club that they estimate the attendance at the second annual annual industry convention at around 9,000 people and advises Quitman people to be prepared to feed at their big free dinner about 20,000 if they wish to be on the safe side.

As evidence of the interest being manifested locally in the big day at Quitman the towns in the immediate territory are all declaring legal holidays in order that the citizenship may attend en masse. The following cities have already issued such proclamations: Thomasville, Boston, Moultrie, Barwick, Pavo, Nashville, Adel, with nearly a dozen other towns passing resolutions now asking the mayor and council to declare May 25 a legal holiday. Following close behind the farmers' floats will be the live stock floats. These will be made up of various parts of the state, Georgia and north Georgia. The live stock floats will be open to the thousands who will line the streets where the parade moves. After the farm floats will come the display of live stock and it is estimated that there will not be less than two hundred head of mules, one hundred head of horses and other live stock all of which will have either been raised in Brooks county or in other parts of Georgia.

As a grand finale to the parade will come the parade of automobiles which comes from all parts of north Georgia and the leadership of the Georgia Chamber of Commerce will take part in Quitman's big day. NEW SYNOD VOTED BY PRESBYTERIANS

Southern Assembly Decides to Establish Synod of Appalachia to Unify Work Among Mountain People.

Newport News, Va., May 22.—The general assembly of the Presbyterian church of the south, in the fifty-fifth annual session here exhausted the docket today and was forced to recess shortly after noon because of a lack of business to consider. Important events of the day included the election of a new synod, consideration of the report of the campaign committee, and the reading of a memorial on the evangelistic strike before the assembly tonight conducted by Rev. Dr. J. Wilbur Chapman of New York City.

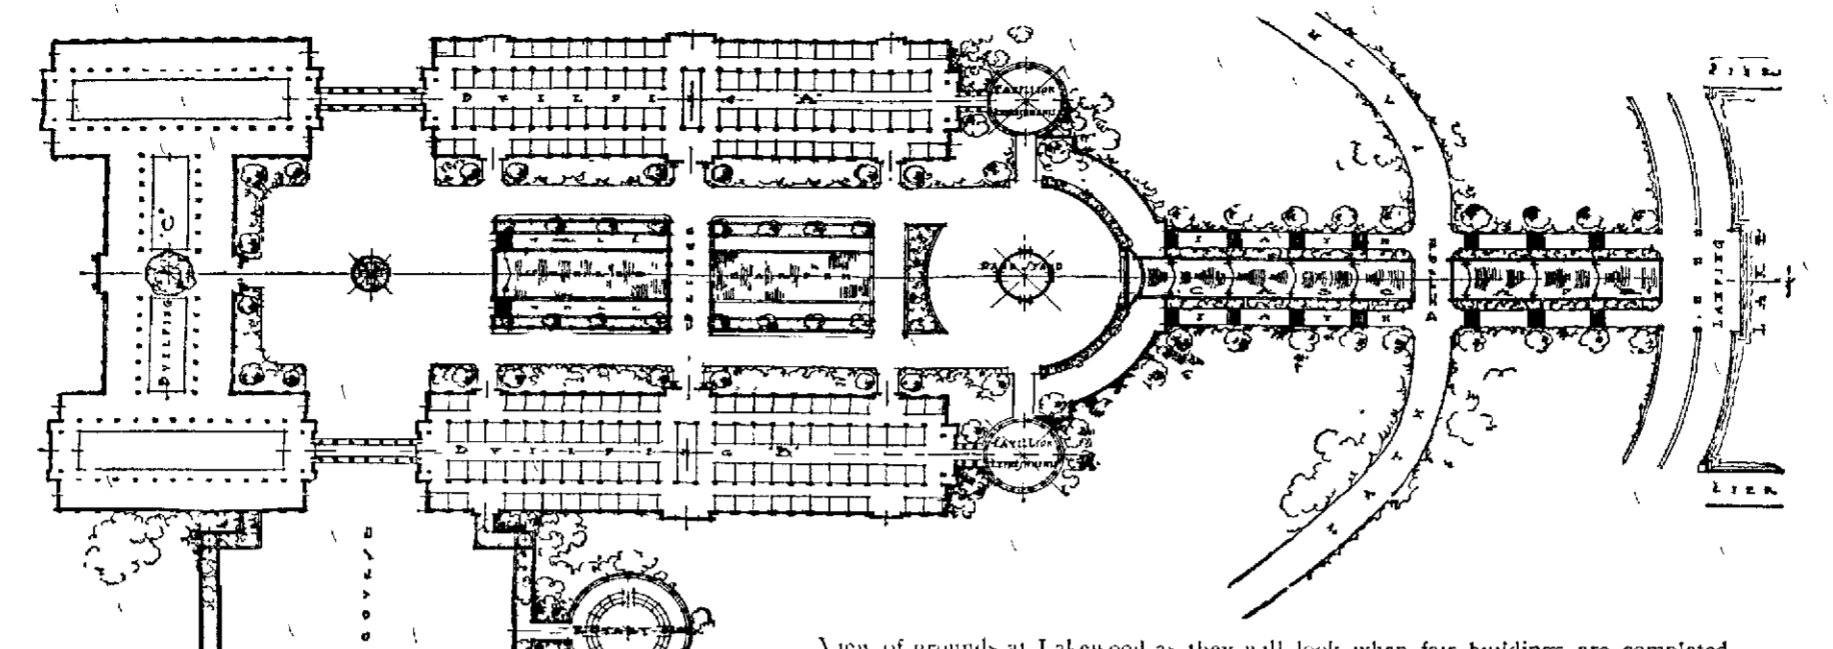

The commissioners went in a body this afternoon to the plant of the Newport News Shipbuilding and Dry Dock company, where they witnessed the launching of the eighth submarine. The launch was under supervision of the New York and Porto Rico Steamship company. Many of the commissioners had never before seen a submarine, and the launch, which was held in the ways and out of the ways, was a most interesting sight. The launch was a 100-ton boat, and it was launched by means of a derrick.

Grounds at Lakewood Are Being Prepared for the Big Southeastern Fair; Stakes Have Been Driven for Buildings, Trees Felled and Stumps Removed

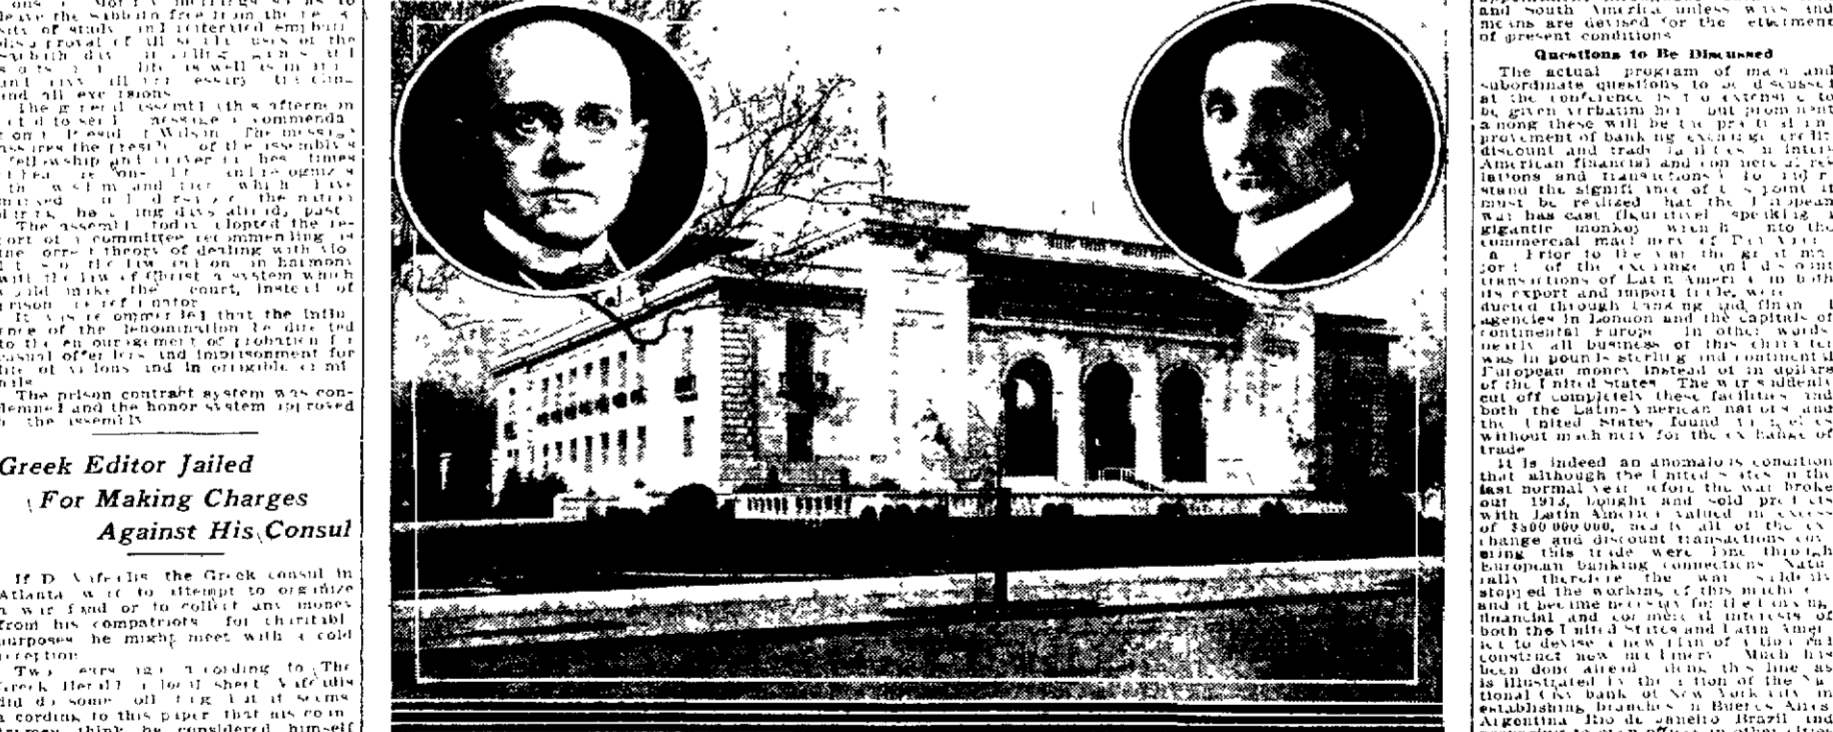

View of grounds at Lakewood as they will look when fair buildings are completed

The grounds at Lakewood have been laid off and the stakes driven for the sites of the buildings. Trees have been felled and stumps taken up so that the necessary grading can be done. All of the fair buildings will be located on the north side of the lake so as not to disturb the park grounds at Lakewood. No shade trees have been molested and the site for the buildings have been selected with a view of combining the fair grounds with the park. The plan is to have a main building on the north side of the lake, a smaller building on the east side, and a large building on the south side. The buildings will be built of brick and will have a modern architectural style. The grounds will be landscaped with lawns, walks, and drives. The fair is to last six days that have been decided upon by the directors.

HORNADAY SILVER FOUND ON PORCH; NEGRO ARRESTED

Officers Evans and Maddox standing at the corner of Currier and Peachtree streets, were approached by a negro named Willie Cook, living in the rear of 179 Courtland street, late Saturday night. He told them that the gentleman living at 179 Courtland street, J. F. Hollbrook had found a silver sack full of silver on his porch and had sent him after a policeman. The officers went immediately to the house where a large amount of silver—put hers dishes and candleabra—was tied in a sack on the front porch, and a copy of a newspaper was in the bundle, telling that Miss Hornaday would give more than the intrinsic value of the silver stolen, and ask no questions. The officers planned the negro under arrest and he was taken to the station. All about the goods in the sack telling them before it was opened what it contained and that the newspaper was in it. The silver was identified by Miss Hornaday as hers.

Baseball on the Uplift; Feds No Longer a Menace; Cobb Sizes Up the Field

BY TY COBB.
(World's Champion All-Round Ball Player.)

EDITOR'S NOTE—This is the first of a series of weekly articles written by Ty Cobb, exclusively for The Constitution. They appear each Sunday.

The championship races in both leagues are fast becoming the most important of the year. No particular club in either organization stands out as a top favorite for the title. The field is so wide that no one club has any chance for a pennant and by the same token no club can expect to be eliminated out of the first round.

Now to my mind this is a sure sign that a change for the better has come over baseball. And I think that before the season is much further advanced you will find the pendulum swinging back to such conditions as prevailed in the old days when every player was a ball player. Within the past two or three years the game has been gathered too much hands, the money is too much, the players are too many, the clubs are too numerous, the general public is too interested in the game, and it is my opinion that the general public is too interested in the game to let it go.

Many persons who are of the opinion of good fellowship was tolerated by managers to such a degree that it almost became a duty for them to have the best of their players. The aim and motives of the fraternity were to have the best of their players, but some of the players were not true to their principles in their conduct. They were not true to their principles in their conduct. They were not true to their principles in their conduct.

Feds a Lever.

In the first year of the fight with the Federal League, organized baseball was put so much on the defensive that it was almost impossible to find a lot of opposition from the players. It is a well known fact that the Federal League was organized in 1914, and since that time it has been a constant menace to the National League. The Federal League was organized in 1914, and since that time it has been a constant menace to the National League.

Autoists Are Aided By Touring Bureau of Goodrich Company

The European war may have its share in increasing touring in the United States this year, but possibly the ban on France and San Diego expositions coupled with the improvement in the road conditions has induced what will have still greater effect on the number of cars which travel across the continent.

Not only do the expositions hold forth attractions, but over 400 expositions have been scheduled for San Francisco this summer. Women's congresses, agricultural societies, business organizations, educational clubs, fraternal societies, colleges, trade unions, professional, religious and scientific labor and industrial organizations and many others comprise the list which will draw thousands to the scene of the Panama Canal.

TRIBUTE PAID HUBBARD BY AUTO MANUFACTURER

J. J. Cole Deeply Touched by Death of World Author on Lusitania.

Although both America and Europe are mourning the death of Hubert Hubbard, the world famous author and editor who was killed when the Lusitania was sunk, the automobile industry in this country is mourning the loss of a man who was a true friend of the automobile.

Hubbard was a close student of the motor car industry from its earliest days just as he was a keen investigator of everything else that was going on in the world. He was a man who was a true friend of the automobile.

PRESIDENT BAUGH ANSWERS CRITICS

Under the criticism as with a defense I am willing however to say in my opinion I believe that the public has been misled by the press in its opinion of the present situation of the automobile industry.

The automobile industry is not in a position to meet the demand for cars. The automobile industry is not in a position to meet the demand for cars.

Booklet Tells How To Get the Best Use Of Storage Battery

People who expect to do much touring this summer will do well to heed the advice of the Willard Storage Battery Company on this subject.

Proper practice is to charge at a rate not over one-tenth of the total capacity of the battery. For example if the battery has a capacity of 80 ampere hours it should not be charged at a rate of more than 8 ampere.

TESTING METHODS PROVE DURABILITY OF EMPIRE TIRES

Every claim the Empire Tire and Rubber Company, of Trenton, N. J. makes for the superior durability of its tires is backed by rigid tests and authentic data of performance. It is only because of this knowledge that gained and verified that the company is able to underwrite its product with its extraordinary guarantee.

The testing methods of the company involve a big day, for the investigation is constant effort never being spared to find out the ultimate a tire will stand and to make this data the basis of still further striving to increase its mileage.

ACCURACY DEMANDED FOR STUDEBAKER CAR

Differences of One-Thousandth of Inch From Standard Are Barred.

One one thousandth of an inch is a difference so small that should the various parts of a motor vary from the standard measurement by several times that amount it would seem that it would make no difference especially where the motor is built enough to propel an automobile. Yet a difference of one one thousandth of an inch is just the difference between success and failure.

The Studebaker motor is a masterpiece of accuracy. The Studebaker motor is a masterpiece of accuracy.

This company has in operation which bore twenty-four holes in a cylinder casting in one operation. These holes in each cylinder bear exactly the same relation to each other, because the boring mechanism is always guided through dies that will not admit of one one thousandth part of an inch difference in any operation. These machines cost $15,000 each. Studebaker cylinders are reamed out after they are cast. These reaming machines which operate through dies with unvarying accuracy to one one thousandth of an inch cost $6,000 each. As there are 1,000 individual machines used in making a Studebaker cylinder, many of them demanding accuracy to a hair the fortune invested in machinery is enormous. But the Studebaker demand is for perfection and the engineers decide what they need then the purchasing department is ordered to get it.

If You Wanted to Give

Some important news to as many people as possible, would you go into a cornfield and tell the farmer and his helper and let it go at that? Or would you shout it out on the crowded streets to all who could hear?

It's the same question in business. If you want to tell the people about how you can help them save money, tell it where the crowd will get hold of it. Put it in "the want ad paper," because that's where they look for your items.

THAT'S JUST COMMON SENSE. Phone your want ads to Main 5000. Ask for Classified Ad Dept., Atlanta 5001.

IT'S ABSOLUTELY A CRIME TO ROB THE WIDOWS AND ORPHANS, BUT TO BUY PROPERTY AWAY UNDER ITS VALUE RIGHT NOW DEMONSTRATES YOUR SHREWDNESS
MR. J. H. WHISENANT is recognized as one of the best judges of the value of vacant lots in Atlanta.

It was the great big value he got for his money that made Mr. Whisenant buy the lots at once. He bought these lots for $1,000 less than they are worth today.

MRS. ROSA HUTCHINSON bought a lot in this property and closed up the trade Saturday. She bought a lot because the price was $300 less than the lot is worth.

It's an honest fact, I am selling these lots for $200, $250, $300, $400 and $500 less than they are worth, and I don't see how on earth any living human can refuse to buy right now.

Buy 1, 2, 3, 5 or 10 of these lots immediately and you will be $250 to $5,000 to the good, according to the size of your investment.

THE LOCATION: The section is ideal. Right opposite Grant Park, on South Boulevard, McLeod, Rosedale, Marion, Confederate, Atlanta and Home Avenues.

STOCKS BOOSTED
BY ITALIAN PLUNGE

Previous Million-Share Session Dwindle to Daily Volume of Two to Three Hundred Thousand Shares

New York, May 22.—Judging from the course of today's stock market, Wall street, or at least the speculative fraternity, is proceeding on the theory that Italy's participation in the conflict is destined to shorten the conflict. This theory is hardly to be reconciled, however, with the fact that the steel market, which was the mainstay of the market, was again made by the war specialties. Crucible steel, which made a maximum gain of 3.8 per cent, about 22 cents, to the first part of the week. The entire list took part in the rise, which was most active in the afternoon, after which trading dwindled, with some effect on values. London was observing a holiday on the 22nd, and without guidance from that quarter. The statement of the president of the United States Steel Corporation, that the output of the company's plants has increased to 75 per cent as against 50 per cent last January was doubtless responsible for the strength of the steel shares. Mercantile agencies also reported more favorable conditions in the market, with a consequent rise in total sales, par value, of $1,000,000. United States Steel Corporation registered a gain of 1.4 per cent on call during the week.

Notwithstanding Short Session, Heavier Business Than Previous Days of the Week.

New York, May 22.—The foreign situation continued to dominate financial affairs. The increase in cotton being manifested in all quarters. Trading in stocks fell to an average daily output of 200,000 to 300,000 shares, instead of the million-share sessions of previous weeks. In the main prices held steady, but a few specialties described the bulk of speculative attention. There was occasional evidence of further recovery in the market, but the very delicate state of Europe's finances was reflected in low rates for exchange to all leading European countries. Demand sterling on London declined to the lowest rate since 1873, and francs and lire also made moderate gains. Demand for gold was also increased in any special degree by additional gold imports from Canada, Mexico and other countries. Bankers were plainly concerned over this latest phase of the situation. Panic movements were mostly favorable, although reports of damage to winter wheat affected prices of grains. All other commodities were steady, with many mercantile lines of trade showing steady improvement, but disappointment in expressed demand for railroad equipment. Leading railroads are reporting more activity in recent months, but the financial difficulties of such proportions as Missouri Pacific, Rock Island and Chesapeake and Ohio are roads in the same class have given rise to renewed apprehension.

Figures Heavy on Market.

New York, May 22.—(Special.)—In sympathy with the strength in the stock market, cotton was steady at some advance over last evening, but in the last half hour selling opened from what appeared to be West coast operators on the basis that with Italy at war, Germany would no longer be able to obtain cotton, except through Rotterdam and therefore we might look for lower prices. Transactions were all on a moderate scale with the trade puzzled, awaiting further political developments. The local market was quiet. HUBBARD BROS. & CO., Inc. New York, May 22.—(Special.)—Weather in Arkansas and northern Texas is delaying the completion of planting in those states, but is favorable, any delay was without serious pressure. While crop reports are favorable, any delay is reflected in prices owing largely to the fact that the recent liquidation in thought to have been a long way toward discounting progress in the new crop. Financial questions still dominate the market, notwithstanding this consumption of cotton continues in good volume. The market today attracts support to the market whenever prices show weakness. JAY, BOND & CO. Cotton Region Bulletin. For the twenty-four hours ending at 8 a. m. 7:15 meridian time, May 22, 1915.

Crop Damage Reports Help Grain Market in the Early Session, But Prices Crumble by the Close.

Chicago, May 22.—Action by King Victor Emmanuel, which seemed to have advanced the war, made wheat prices tumble. The market was quiet, but prices advanced due to crop damage reports. There was an unsettled close 1 1/2 to 1/2 off to 1/4 up, and provisions 2 1/2 to 1 1/2 off to 1/4 up, and then receded in company with wheat. Corn advanced and then receded in company with wheat. Provisions larked support. Lower prices for hogs made buyers lag. Following were ranges on board of trade (Saturday):

Investment Position Strong. On the other hand, the market is in a sharp advance. It is present uncertainty of oil favorability and agriculture have improved materially in the two weeks since the last... The market is supposed to be well fortified against any kind of nervousness, but there are unfavorable possibilities which would tumble prices to the lowest level... Foreign Finances. London May 22.—Bar silver 23.9-16 per ounce. Money 11 1/4 per cent. Discount rate, short bills 2 1/2 per cent, three months 3 1/2 per cent. Nothing to be given for it, according to this report.

The Missouri Pacific is the only large western railroad escaping receivership in the panic of 1893. The company is the only large western railroad escaping receivership in the panic of 1893.

Will Gould Gain Control? As some people in Wall street see it, Gould, after throwing the Missouri Pacific into the hands of receivers, could expect no consideration from the hard-headed bankers who are now in control of the project. The Missouri Pacific is the only large western railroad escaping receivership in the panic of 1893.

Steel Industry Stimulated. The start of railroad buying of equipment is greatly encouraging the steel market. Large steel rail orders are looked for in the near future, and reports of orders for the next few months have passed, buying by railroads will be close to normal after a year of delay. The steel industry is stimulated.
