

AN especially attractive suit for country wear is the Norfolk suit whether it be of pique, linen, or cloth. Illustrated at the right is a very smart model in tan colored gabardine with a coat box-pleated but beltless and a circular skirt that is perfectly plain buttoned down the front and finished with a corded hem.

THE frock at the left buttoned from neck to hem with blue buttons is of white tussore with a blue and white silk girdle. The latter, however, only appears on the sides as there is a panel back as well as front. The sleeves button nearly to the elbow and neck and sleeves are frilled with white organdie. Pleats on the sides give ample fullness to the skirt.

THE blue and white striped frock is of linen with collar and cuffs of white handkerchief linen finished with pleated frills. The skirt is pleated and has an overskirt cut so that the stripes run crosswise. It is longer on the sides and in the back than in the front and is pleated over the hips. The girdle is of plain blue silk.

SYNOPSIS.

Sanford Quest, master criminologist of the world, finds that in bringing to justice Madougal, the murderer of Lord Ashleigh's daughter, he has but just begun a life-and-death struggle with a mysterious master criminal. In a hidden hut in Professor Ashleigh's garden he has seen an anthropoid ape skeleton and a living imbricant creature, half monkey, half man, destroyed by fire. In his rooms have appeared from nowhere black boxes containing sarcastic threatening notes signed by a pair of armless hands. Laura and Lenora, his assistants, suspect Craig the professor's servant of a double murder. The black boxes continue to appear in uncanny fashion. Craig is trapped by Quest but escapes to England where Quest, Lenora and the professor follow him. Lord Ashleigh is murdered by the Hands. Lenora is abducted in London and rescued. Craig is captured and escapes to Fort Said where Quest and his party also go, and beyond into the desert.

IN THE DESERT

CHAPTER XXIII.

Quest was the first the next morning to open his eyes, to grope his way through the tent opening and stand for a moment alone watching the alabaster skies. He turned lazily around, meaning to summon the Arab who had volunteered to take Hassan's place. His arms—he had been in the act of stretching—fell to his sides. He stared at the spot where the camels had been tethered incredulously. There were no camels, no drivers, no Arabs. There was not a soul nor an object in sight except the stark body of Hassan, which they had dragged half out of sight behind a slight knoll. High up in the sky above were two little black specks, wheeling lower and lower. Quest shivered as he suddenly realized that for the first time in his life he was looking upon the winged ghouls of the desert. Lower and lower they came. He turned away with a shiver. The professor was still sleeping when Quest reentered the tent. He woke him up and beckoned him to come outside.

Quest pointed to the little sandy knoll with its sparse covering of grass, deserted—with scarcely a sign even, that it had been the resting place of the little caravan. The professor gave vent to a little exclamation.

"Our guides," he demanded, "and the camels? What has become of them?"

The professor hurried off towards the spot where the encampment had been made. Suddenly he stood still and pointed with his finger. In the clearer, almost crystalline light of the coming day, they saw the track of the camels in one long, unbroken line stretching away northwards. He glanced around a little helplessly. Quest took a cigar from his case and lit it.

"No good worrying," Quest sighed. "The question is how best to get out of the mess. What's the next move anyway?"

The professor glanced towards the sun and took a small compass from his pocket. He pointed across the desert.

"That's exactly our route," he said, "but I reckon we still must be two days from the Mongars, and how we are going to get there ourselves, much more get the women there, without camels, I don't know. There are no wells and I don't believe those fellows have left us a single tin of water."

Laura put her head out of the tent in which the two women had slept.

"Say, where's breakfast?" she exclaimed. "I can't smell the coffee."

They turned and approached her silently. The two girls fully dressed, came out of the tent as they approached.

"Young ladies," the professor announced, "I regret to say that a misfortune has befallen us, a misfortune which we shall be able without a doubt, to surmount, but which will mean a day of hardship and much inconvenience."

"Where are the camels?" Lenora asked breathlessly.

"Gone!" Quest replied.

"And the Arabs?"

"Gone with them—we are left high and dry," Quest explained.

"And what is worse," the professor added, with a groan, "they have taken with them all our stores, our rifles and our water."

"How far are we from the Mongar camp?" Lenora asked.

"About a day's tramp," Quest replied, quickly. "We may reach there by nightfall."

"Then let's start walking at once, before it gets any hotter," Lenora suggested.

Quest patted her on the back. They made a close search of the tents but found that the Arabs had taken everything in the way of food and drink, except a single half-filled tin of drinking water.

They started bravely enough, but by midday their little stock of water was gone, and their feet were sorely blistered. No one complained, however, and the professor especially did his best to revive their spirits.

"We have come farther than I had dared to hope, in the time," he announced. "Fortunately, I know the exact direction we must take. Keep up your spirits, young ladies. At any time we may see signs of our destination."

They struggled on apace more. Night came and brought with it a half-soothing, half-torturing coolness. That vain straining of the eyes upon the horizon at any rate was spared to them. They slept in a fashion but soon after dawn they were on their feet again. Suddenly, Quest, who had gone a little out of his way to mount a low range of sand hills, waved his arm furiously. He was holding his field glasses to his eyes. It was wonderful how that ray of hope transformed them. They hurried to where he was. He passed the glasses to the professor.

"A caravan!" he exclaimed. "I can see the camels, and horses!"

The professor almost snatched the glasses. "It is quite true," he agreed. "It is a caravan crossing at right angles to our direction. Come! They will see us before long."

Presently three or four horsemen detached themselves from the main body and came galloping towards them. The eyes of the little party glistened as they saw that the foremost had a water-bottle slung around his neck. He came dashing up, waving his arms.

"You lost, people?" he asked. "Want water?" They almost snatched the bottle from him. It was like pouring life into their veins. They all, at the professor's instigation, drank sparingly. Quest, with a great sigh of relief, lit a cigar.

"Some adventure, this!" he declared. "The professor, who had been talking to the men in their own language, turned back towards the two girls.

"It is a caravan," he explained, "of peaceful merchants on their way to Jaffa. They are halting for us, and we shall be able, without a doubt, to arrange for water and food and a camel or two horses. The man here asks if the ladies will take the horses and ride?"

They started off gaily to where the caravan had come to a standstill. They had scarcely traversed a hundred yards however, before the Arab who was leading Lenora's horse came to a sudden standstill. He pointed with his arm and commenced to talk in an excited fashion to his two companions. From across the desert, facing them, came a little company of horsemen galloping fast and with the sunlight flashing upon their rifles.

The Mongars! the Arab cried pointing wildly. "They attack the caravan!"

The three Arabs talked together for a moment in an excited fashion. Then without excuse or warning they swung the two women to the ground leaped on their horses, and, turning northwards galloped away.

I am not at all sure, said the professor in an undertone to Quest, about our position with the Mongars. Craig has a peculiar hold upon them but as a rule they hate white men and their blood will be up. See! the fight is all over. Those fellows were no match for the Mongars. Most of them have fled and left the caravan.

The fight was indeed over. Four of the Mongars had galloped away in pursuit of the Arabs who had been the temporary escort of Quest and his companions. They passed about a hundred yards away, waving their arms and shouting furiously. One of them even fired a shot which missed Quest by only a few inches.

The professor suddenly leaned forward. There was a queer change in his face. From somewhere on the other side of that soft bank of violet darkness came what seemed to be the clear, low cry of some animal.

It is the Mongar cry of warning," he said hoarsely. "Something is going to happen."

"I wish that beautiful girl would come and let us see her again," she murmured.

She, the professor explained, "is the chief's daughter, Feerda, whose life Craig saved."

"And from the way she looks at him," Laura observed, "I should say she hadn't forgotten it, either."

The professor held up a warning finger. The girl herself had glided to their side out of the shadows. She faced the professor. The rest of the party she seemed to ignore. She spoke slowly and in halting English.

My father wishes to know that you are satisfied," she said. "You have no further wants?"

"None," the professor assured her. "We are very grateful for his hospitality. Feerda?"

Want you talk to us for a little time?" Lenora begged leaning forward.

The girl turned suddenly to the professor and spoke to him in her own language. She pointed to the signs upon the tent. She drew her finger along one of the sentences, flashed a fierce glance at them all and disappeared.

Seems to me we are not exactly popular with the young lady," Quest remarked. "What was she saying, professor?"

She suspects us, the professor said slowly, "of wishing to bring evil to Craig. She pointed to a sentence upon the tent. Roughly it means Gratitude is the debt of hospitality. I am very much afraid that the young lady must have been listening to our conversation."

The professor suddenly leaned forward. There was a queer change in his face. From somewhere on the other side of that soft bank of violet darkness came what seemed to be the clear, low cry of some animal.

It is the Mongar cry of warning," he said hoarsely. "Something is going to happen."

Quest glanced cautiously around. They were surrounded by thick vegetation, but they were only a very short distance from the camp.

"Seems to me," he continued, "we shall have to try it some day or other and I'm all for trying it soon. Even if they caught us, I don't believe they'd dare to kill us, with the English soldiers so close behind. I am going to get hold of two or three rifles and some ammunition. That's easy, because they leave them about all the time. And what you girls want to do is to hide some food and get a bottle of water."

"What about Craig?" the professor asked.

"We are going to take him along," Quest declared, grimly. "He's had the devil's own luck so far but, it can't last forever. I'll see to that part of the business, if you others get ready and wait for me to give the signal."

They all looked around. There had been a little rustling amongst the canopy of bushes. Quest peered through and returned, frowning.

"Feerda again," he muttered. "She hangs around all the time, trying to listen to what we are saying. She couldn't have heard this time, though. Now, girls, remember. When the food is about this evening, see how much you can get hold of. I know just where to find the guns and the horses."

They dispersed in various directions. It was not until late in the evening, when the Mongars had withdrawn a little to indulge in their customary orgy of crooning songs, that they were absolutely alone. Quest looked out of the tent in which they had been sitting and came back again.

"Well!"

Laura lifted her skirt and showed an unusual protection underneath.

"Lenora and I have pinned up our petticoats," she announced. "We've got plenty of food and a bottle of water."

Quest threw open the white Arab cloak which he had been wearing. He had three rifles strapped around him.

"The professors got the ammunition," he said "and we've five horses tethered a hundred paces along the track we came by just behind the second tree turning to the left. I want you all to go there now at once and take the rifles. There isn't a soul in the camp and you can carry them wrapped in this cloak. I'll join you in ten minutes."

"What about Craig?" the professor inquired.

"I am seeing to him," Quest replied. Lenora heattated.

"Isn't it rather a risk?" she whispered fearfully. Quest's face was suddenly stern.

Craig is going back with us," he said. "I'll be careful, Lenora. Don't worry."

He stroiled out of the tent and came back again. "The coast is clear," he announced. "Off you go. One moment," he added, there are some papers in this little box of mine which one of you might take care of."

He bent hastily over the little wallet which never left him. Suddenly a little exclamation broke from his lips. The professor peered over his shoulder.

"What is it?"

Quest never said a word. From one of the spaces of the wallet he drew out a small black box removed the lid and held out the card. They read it together.

Fools, all of you! The cunning of the ages defeats your puny efforts at every turn.—The Hands.

Even the professor's lips blanched a little as he read. Quest however seemed suddenly furious. He tore the card and the box to pieces, flung them into a corner of the tent and drew a revolver from his pocket.

"This time," he exclaimed, "we are going to make an end of The Hands! Out you go now, girls. You can leave me to finish things up."

One by one they stole along the path. Quest came out and watched them disappear. Then he gripped his revolver firmly in his hand and turned towards Craig's tent. Then, from the thick growth by the side of the clearing, he saw a dark shape steal out and vanish in the direction of Craig's tent. He came to a standstill, puzzled. There had been rumors of lions all day, but the professor had been incredulous. Then the still, heavy air was suddenly rent by a wild scream of horror. Across the narrow opening the creature had reappeared, carrying something in its mouth, something which gave vent all the time to the most awful yells. Quest fired his revolver on chance and broke into a run. Already the Mongars, disturbed in their evening amusement, were breaking into the undergrowth in chase. Quest came to a standstill. It was from Craig's tent that the beast had issued!

He retraced his steps. When he reached the meeting place, he found the professor standing at the corner with the rest. His face showed signs of the most lively curiosity.

"From the commotion," he announced, "I believe that, after all, a lion has visited the camp. The cries which we have heard were distinctly the cries of a native."

Quest shook his head.

"A lion's been here all right," he said, "and he has finished our little job for us. That was Craig. I saw him come out of Craig's tent."

The professor was dubious.

"You see that tree that looks like a dwarfed tree?"

"What about it?"

"Craig was lying there ten minutes ago. He

1—"If You Value Your Lives, You Will Do as You Are Bidden."

3—Abandoned in the Desert.

"They say they are coming back," the professor muttered. "Whos this?" It's the chief and—

"Our search is over, at any rate," Quest interrupted. "It's Craig!"

They came galloping up, Craig in white linen clothes and an Arab's cloak, the chief by his side—a fine, upright man with long, gray beard behind, three Mongars, their rifles already to their shoulders. The chief wheeled up his horse as he came within twenty paces of the little party.

"White! English!" he shouted. "Why do you seek death here?"

He waited for no reply, but turned to his men. Three of them dashed forward their rifles, which were fitted with an odd sort of bayonet, drawn back for the plunge. Suddenly Craig, who had been a little in the rear galloped shouting, into the line of fire.

"Stop!" he ordered. "Chief, these people are my friends. Chief, the word!"

The chief raised his arm promptly. The men lowered their rifles. Craig galloped back to his host's side. The chief listened to him and nodded gravely. Presently he rode up to the little party. He saluted the professor gravely and talked to him in his own language. The professor turned to the others.

"The chief apologizes for not recognizing me," he announced. "It seems that Craig had told him that he had come to the desert for shelter, and he imagined at once when he gave the order for the attack upon us, that we were his enemies. He says that we are welcome to go with him to his encampment."

Craig turned slowly towards them. It was a strange meeting.

"It is necessary," he told them, "that you should pretend to be my friends. The chief has ordered two of his men to dismount. Their ponies are for the use of the young ladies. There will be horses for you among the captured ones from the caravan you der."

They all turned towards the chief, who remained a little on the outside of the circle. The professor raised his hat and spoke a few words in his own language, then he turned to the others.

"I have accepted the invitation of the chief," he announced. "We had better start."

"This may not be Delmonico's," Laura remarked, a few hours later, with a little sigh of contentment. "but believe me that goat-stew and sherbet tasted better than any chicken and champagne I ever tasted."

They moved to the opening of the tent and sat looking out across the silent desert. Laura took the flap of the canvas in her hand.

"What do all these marks mean?" she asked.

"They are cabalistic signs," the professor replied, "part of the language of the tribe. They indicate that this is the quest tent, and there are a few little maxims traced upon it, extolling the virtues of hospitality."

Lenora leaned forward to where a little group of Mongars were talking together.

2—Quest—"I'll Be Careful, Lenora. Don't Worry."

The whole encampment was suddenly in a state of activity. The Mongars ran hither and thither, getting together their horses. The chief, with Craig by his side, was standing on the outskirts of the camp. Camels appeared from some invisible place. Men already on horseback, were galloping hither and thither collecting firearms and spare ammunition. Packhorses were being loaded, tents rolled up.

"Seems to me there's a move on," Quest muttered as they rose to their feet. "I wonder if we are in it."

A moment or two later Craig approached them.

"Word has been brought to the chief," he announced, "that the Arab who escaped from the caravan has fallen in with an outpost of British soldiers. They have already started in pursuit of us. The Mongars will take refuge in the jungle, where they have prepared hiding places. We start at once."

"What about us?" the professor inquired.

"I endeavored," Craig continued, "to persuade the chief to allow you to remain here, when the care of you would devolve upon the English soldiers. He and Feerda however, have absolutely refused my request. Feerda has overheard some of your conversation, and the chief believes that you will betray us. You will have to come, too."

They all rose at once to their feet, and a few moments later horses were brought. The little procession was already being formed in line. Craig approached them once more.

"You will mount now and ride in the middle of our caravan," he directed. "The chief does not trust you. If you value your lives, you will do as you are bidden."

"You can call this fairland, if you want," Laura remarked, gazing around her, "I call it a nasty, damp, oozy spot."

Quest motioned them to sit a little nearer.

"I had a moment's talk with Craig this morning, and from what he says I fancy they mean to make a move a little farther in before long. It'll be all the more difficult to escape them."

"You think we could get away?" Lenora whispered, eagerly.

CHAPTER XXIV.

sprang up when he heard the yells from the encampment, but I believe he is there now.

"Got the horses all right?" Quest inquired.

"Everything is waiting," the professor replied. "I'll have one more try then, Quest declared. He made his way slowly through the undergrowth to the spot which the professor had indicated. Close to the trunk of a tree Craig was standing. Feerda was on her knees before him. She was speaking in broken English.

"Dear master, you shall listen to your slave. These people are your enemies. It would be all over in a few minutes. You have but to say the word. My father is eager for it. No one would ever know."

Craig patted her head. His tone was filled with the deepest sympathy.

It is impossible, Feerda, he said. You do not understand. I cannot tell you everything. Some times I almost think that the best thing I could do would be to return with them to the countries you know nothing of.

That's what you are going to do anyway," Quest declared suddenly making his appearance. "Hands up!"

He covered Craig with his revolver but his arm was scarcely extended before Feerda sprang at him like a little wildcat. He gripped her with his left arm and held her away with difficulty.

Craig, he continued, you're coming with us. You know the way to Fort Said and we want you—you know why. Untie that sash from your waist quickly!"

Craig obeyed. He had the stupefied air of a man who has lost for the time his volition.

Tie it to the tree," Quest ordered. Leave room enough."

Craig did as he was told. Then he turned and held the loose ends up. Quest lowered his revolver for a moment as he pushed Feerda towards it. Craig, with a wonderful spring, reached his side and kicked the revolver away. Before Quest could even stoop to recover it he saw the glitter of the other's knife pressed against his chest.

Listen," Craig declared. I've made up my mind. I won't go back to America. I've had enough of being hunted all over the world. This time I think I'll rid myself of one of you at any rate.

Will you?"

The interruption was so unexpected that Craig lost his nerve. Through an opening in the trees only a few feet away Lenora had suddenly appeared. She too held a revolver her hand was as steady as a rock.

Drop your knife," he ordered Craig.

He obeyed without hesitation.

Now tie the sash around the girl."

He obeyed meekly. Quest took Craig by the collar and led him to the spot where the others were waiting. They looked him over to a horse. Already behind them, could be seen the flare of the torches from the remaining Mongars.

You know the way to Fort Said, Quest whispered. See that you lead us there. There will be trouble ahead if you don't.

Craig made no reply. He rode off in front of the little troop, covered all the time by Quest's revolver.

So far as my instinct tell me the professor agreed. I believe that we are heading in precisely the right direction."

They galloped steadily on. The moon rose higher and higher until it became as light as day. Often the professor raised himself in his saddle and peered forward.

This column of soldiers would march at night," he remarked. "I am hoping all the time that we may meet them."

Quest fell a little behind to his side, although he never left off watching Craig.

Look behind you, professor," he whispered. In the far distance were a number of little black specks growing every moment larger. Even at that moment they heard the low long call of the Mongars.

They are gaining on us," Quest muttered. The two girls, white though they were bent over their horses.

Well stuck to it till the last moment. Quest continued. Then well turn and let them have it.

They raced on for another mile or more. A bullet whistled over their heads. Quest tightened his reins.

No good," he sighed. "Wad better stay and fight it out, professor. Stick close to me, Lenora."

They drew up and hastily dismounted. The Mongars closed in around them. A cloud had drifted in front of the moon and in the darkness it was almost impossible to see their whereabouts. They heard the chief's voice.

Shoot first that dog of a Craig!

There was a shriek. Suddenly Feerda breaking loose from the others, raced across the little division. She flung herself from her horse.

"Tell my father that you were not faithless!" she pleaded. "They shall not kill you!"

She clung to Craig's neck. The bullets were beginning to whistle around them now. All of a sudden she threw up her arms. Craig in a fury, turned around and fired into the darkness. Then suddenly, as though on the bidding of some unspoken word there was a queer silence. Every one was distinctly conscious of an alien sound—the soft thud of many horses' feet galloping from the right, then a sharp English voice of command.

Hold your fire men. Close in to the left there. Steady!"

The cloud suddenly rolled away from the moon. A long line of horsemen were immediately visible. The officer in front rode forward.

Drop your arms and surrender," he ordered, sternly.

The Mongars, who were outnumbered by twenty to one, obeyed without hesitation. Their chief seemed unconscious, even of what had happened. He was on his knees bending over the body of Feerda, half supported in Craig's arms. The officer turned to Quest.

"Are you the party who left Fort Said for the Mongar camp?" he asked.

Quest nodded.

"They took us into the jungle—just escaped. They'd caught us here, though, and I'm afraid we were about finished if you hadn't come along. We are not English—we're American."

"Same thing," the officer replied, as he held out his hand. "Stack up their arms, men," he ordered, turning around. "Tie them in two. Dennis, take the young ladies back to the commissariat camels!"

The professor drew a little sigh.

"Commissariat!" he murmured. "That sounds most inviting."

SCIENCE AND NEAR-SCIENCE UP-TO-DATE

You May Not Know

ATCUMBLER with a compartment that can be filled with ice or hot water to keep its contents cold or warm has been invented.

ELECTRICAL apparatus has been invented to set up pins in bowling alleys as accurately and more rapidly than manual labor.

GERMAN electrician claims to have invented apparatus by which he can measure the ten-millionth part of a second of time.

THE shaft in a new egg heater has only a vertical motion and is claimed to do more work with less exertion than rotary devices.

AMONG the space-saving household novelties is a folding wash tub which may be fastened against collapsing when filled with water.

ECUADOR plans the installation of a number of powerful wireless stations that will permit communication with all parts of the world.

FOR refrigeration purposes a Californian has invented machinery that pumps warm air out of a freight car and replaces it with cold.

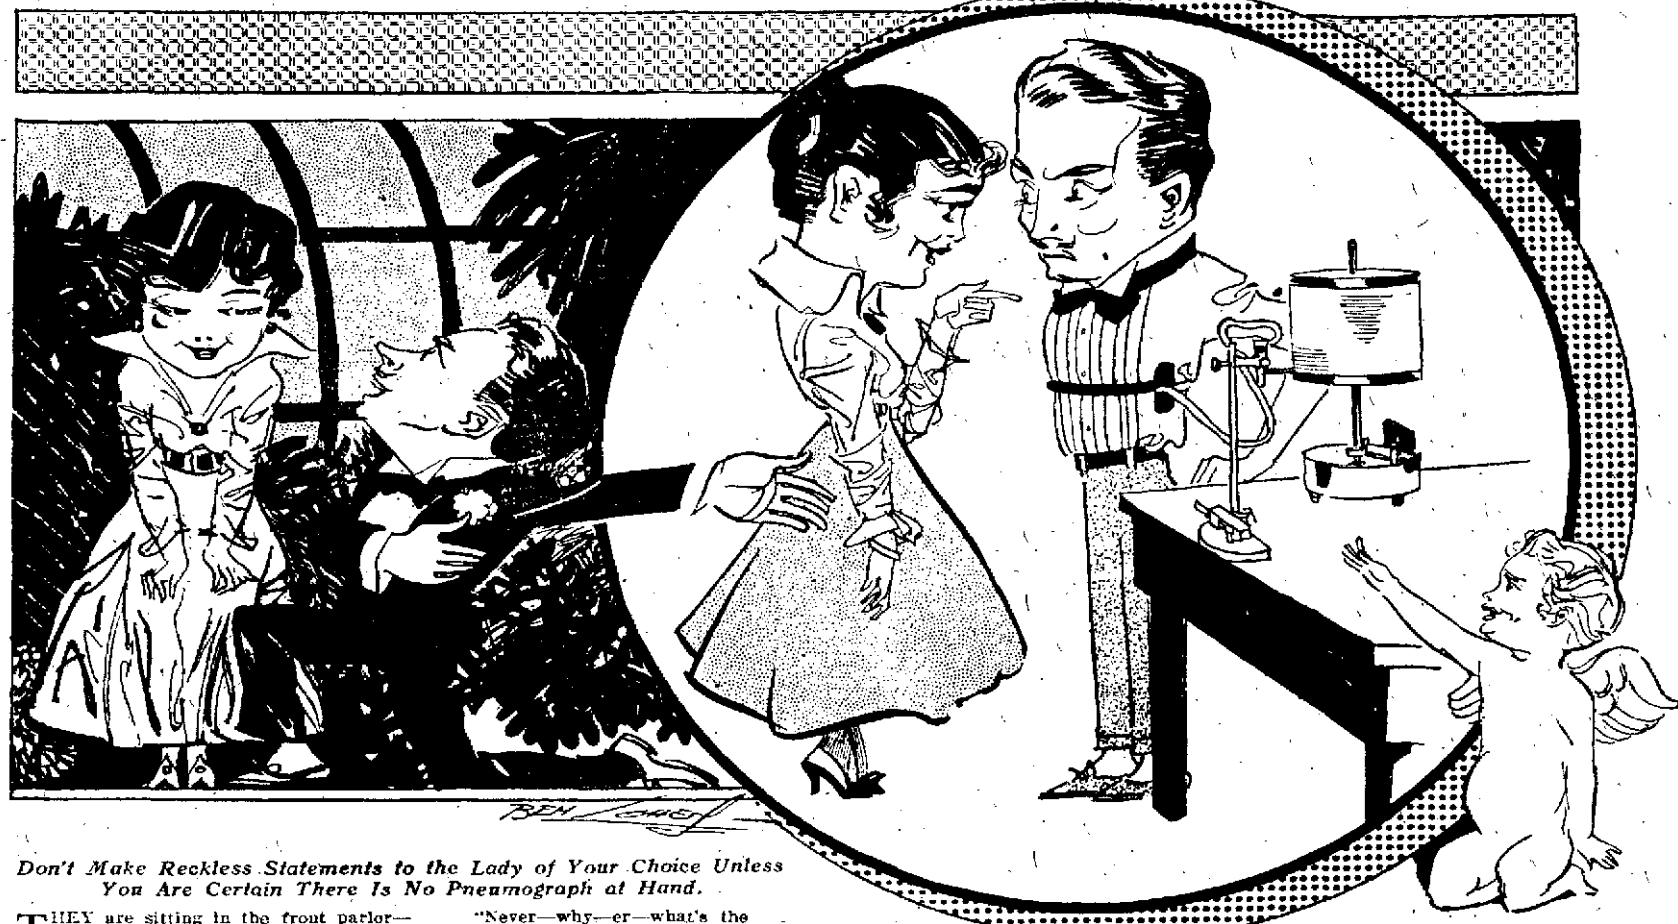

Carbonic Acid Gas As a Plant Nutrient

THE value of carbonic acid gas as a plant nutrient has been the subject of considerable recent literature, including an interesting paper by H. Fischer, describing experiments in Germany. The author found that the development of both foliage and flowers was stimulated by an excess of carbonic acid in the air, while the yield of tomatoes increased 12.5 per cent by carbonic acid treatment.

It has generally been held that .03 per cent of carbon dioxide in the air is sufficient for plant growth, but Mr. Fischer thinks that more than this can be utilized, provided there is ample light, and that experiments in this direction might have valuable results.

On the other hand, I. F. Kidd, an English investigator, finds that an excess of carbon dioxide in the atmosphere retards or inhibits the germination of seeds, but without injuring them. He suggests that the production of carbon dioxide in nature by the decay of vegetable matter may play a part analogous to that noted in his experiments.

Ardent Lover, Beware of the Pneumograph!

Don't Make Reckless Statements to the Lady of Your Choice Unless You Are Certain There Is No Pneumograph at Hand.

They are sitting in the front parlor—John and Mary. Father and mother and pestiferous little Willie, the latter a brother of Mary, have gone to bed. The gas is turned low—very low.

"I love you," whispers the young man. Mary nestles a bit closer to him. It sounds too good to be true. She wonders if John is telling the truth or merely toying with her affections.

"I have never loved anyone else," says the modern Romeo.

Mary cannot stand the suspense longer. She leaves the room for a few moments and returns with a curious-looking instrument. She tells him to adjust it about his chest.

"Do you love me?" asks Mary.

"Why—er—certainly," replies John.

"And you have never loved anyone else?"

"Never—why—er—what's the meaning of all this?"

Mary does not reply—yet. She turns up the gas and peers anxiously at a revolving cylinder attached to the instrument. Then she bursts into tears.

"Go," she cries. "Leave this house immediately! You have deceived me!"

And John, unable to dispute the word of science, makes a hasty exit.

What is the instrument that Mary used in this imaginary love scene to ascertain the true feelings of her sweetheart? Nothing more or less than the pneumograph, an invention of a Frenchman named Marney.

Primarily, it is an invention for detecting whether a person is telling the truth when called to the witness stand in court procedure. It is even suggested for use in testing criminals, as in the Bertillon method of measurement. And if it proves successful, why not employ it in the game of love? It might be the means of preventing many tears and broken hearts.

Vittorio Benucci, professor of experimental psychology of the Imperial and Royal University of Graz, has made some tests with the pneumograph. The instrument, which records the action of the chest in respiration, was adjusted to a subject and connected with a tube leading to a rotating cylinder on which a pointer traced the record of each inspiration and expiration.

According to Professor Benucci, when the person answered a question truthfully his pneumograph record was like that of normal breathing. In that the time of inspiration was slightly shorter than that of expiration. But when he answered falsely his respiration was modified in such a manner that the expiration was shortened.

Some New Facts

TWO Wisconsin inventors have patented a device to count persons entering street cars by electrical mechanism connected with the steps.

CRYSTALS of sodium nitrate so pure and perfectly formed that they can be used in optical instruments have been made by a Paris scientist.

A new globular life preserver to be strapped upon the shoulders of two persons can be packed flat and opened for use by revolving a crank.

MASSACHUSETTS students of wireless have had good success with experiments in sending and receiving messages with aerials laid on the ground.

ALUMINUM caps and masks through which hot or cold water can be circulated have been invented by a Vienna surgeon for use as surgical compresses.

A saddle has been patented by a New Jersey inventor which includes leather flaps to cover the buckles which frequently wear out riders' clothing.

CONCRETE arches resting upon bed rock have been built in a New Hampshire cemetery to support grave stones in land too soft to support them itself.

BOTH the transmitter and receiver of a new French telephone can be hidden in a vase of flowers, a table ornament or any other inconspicuous object.

THE United States navy will establish a wireless station on Cape Cod especially equipped to guide vessels along the Atlantic coast in time of fog.

Meaning of the Barber Pole

IN FORMER times the barber served his customers in the capacity of surgeon, and when the operation of bleeding was extensively practiced he was in the habit of performing in that line. The spiral red stripe so frequently seen on the barber's pole is said to symbolize the winding of a ribbon or bandage round the arm when the blood-letting operation was resorted to.

War as Aid to Aeroplane Invention

THE suddenly increased importance of the aeroplane as a means of warfare has resulted in numerous devices to make their use practicable and safe.

In carrying out scouting observations with military aeroplanes it is necessary to have two men in the machine. The one is a pilot and his duty is to operate and to steer the craft. The other gives his undivided attention to scanning the ground below him and to making sketches of fortified works, observing the disposition of the enemy's guns, the movement of the troops, etc.

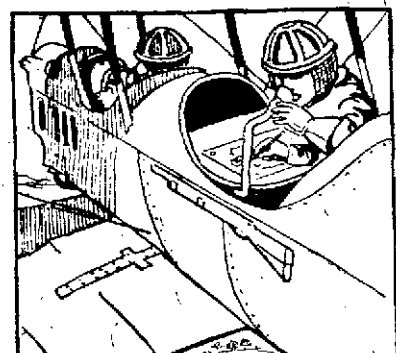

Unfortunately, the great noise made by the motor renders it impossible for the two men to carry on any conversation. Often this proves a drawback for a right understanding between pilot and observer. To eradicate this difficulty a loud-speaking telephone system is now in use in most of the cars. Each man is provided with a special helmet fitted with receiver over the ears and a transmitter located in convenient range of the mouth. This is a practical and easy way of carrying on a conversation in spite of tremendous noises made by the motor.

Another argument in favor of the telephone helmet is that it protects the wearer from gun deafness.

Leading French and English scientists have made a thorough investigation on how the soldiers' hearing is being affected by the war. They are of the opinion that the cannonading is making many a man partially or completely deaf.

The injuries to the drum and the nerve endings are due to sudden condensation or rarefaction of the air in the external auditory meatus. Strangely, one ear is affected more than is the other. Gun deafness is in a measure preventable. This is most easily accomplished by keeping the mouth open, for in this way the atmospheric pressure is equalized. Naval officers intuitively chew toothpicks. This seems to accomplish the same end while the big guns are being fired. Some plug their ears with cotton, but this is not considered sufficient. Jeweler's wax is considered better for plugging the ears.

Where Woman's Voice Is Never Heard

For hundreds of years soldiers have guarded the gates that no woman might steal through and profane the cloistered holiness in which the good monks live. Comprising twenty monasteries, a dozen villages and many scores of lonely dwellings, this monks' republic governs itself after the rules of the Greek church as a true theocracy.

Karyas, reached by boat from Salonica, is the capital. It is a picturesque village on the eastern slope of the holy mountain. Overhanging rocks are studded with hermitages and honeycombed with lonely cells. The council chamber is at one end of the single street.

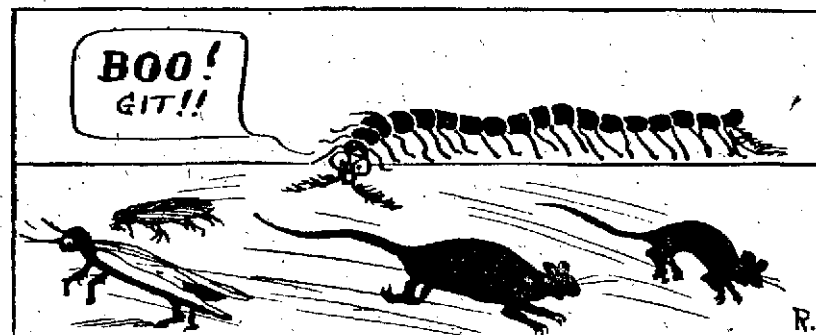

To the synod the monks send twenty-four delegates, who elect a president every four years. He, with a privy council of four, rules the tiny republic and administers its foreign affairs.

Located in the heart of the territory, so recently wrested by Greece from Turkey, the foreign relations of Athos have been completely interwoven with the Balkan troubles, and Bulgaria and Serbia have contended with each other for nominal possession.

Yet through all the strife of war the lonely hermits and the silent monks have not broken their daily routine of prayers and service, and this strange womanless theocracy still persists, a picturesque and romantic relic of the middle ages.

Have a Centipede Watch Dog?

EVER thought of making a household pet of a centipede?

Probably not, but you might find it not only a valuable but a harmless one. Its value as a miniature watch dog is so great that any possible danger of poisonous bites are more than outbalanced.

The common house centipede is not a creature to be dreaded, although its bite is more or less poisonous, but there are so few cases on record of its biting human beings that the danger from this source may be said to be negligible. On the other hand, the centipede is a valuable destroyer of other and far more disagreeable vermin.

According to a bulletin of the United States Department of Agriculture, it feeds on house flies, cockroaches, moths, bedbugs and other such pests. It does not eat holes in blankets, curtains, carpets or furniture.

The centipede thrives in damp places, such as bathrooms, closets, cellars and conservatories; it loves hot water pipes and steam radiators. It is not an insect, but one of the order of myriapods.

If by chance a person be bitten by a centipede, bathing the spot with ammonia will speedily cure it.

The Skeleton in the Closet

THERE is a skeleton in the closet. How often we hear this expression. But do you know how it is supposed to have originated?

There is an old story that a soldier once wrote to his mother, who complained of her unhappiness, asking her to get some sewing done by some one who had no cure or trouble. Coming in her search to one who she thought must be content and happy, this woman took her to a closet containing a human skeleton.

"Madam," said she, "I try to keep my sorrows to myself, but know that every night I am compelled by my husband to kiss this skeleton of him who was once his rival. Think you, then, I can be happy?"

The answer is just as obvious today. The skeleton is still a depressing object.

Human Skull as Drinking Cup

YOU may have heard reference made to the human skull as "a soldier's drinking cup." But do you know the origin of this expression?

Thomas Middleton was a dramatic critic who flourished in the early part of the seventeenth century. In "The Witch," one of his most celebrated plays, when the duke takes a bowl and is told that it is a skull, he exclaims:

"Call it a soldier's cup;

Our duchess, I know, will pledge us, 'tho' the cup

Was once her father's head, which, as a trophy,

We'll keep till death."

The barbarous custom of converting the skulls of enemies into drinking cups was a common one in ancient times among the fierce tribes of ancient Europe, and was not unknown to the more civilized regions of the south. The Italian poet, Marino, makes a convale of friends in Pandemonium quaff wine from the skull of Minerva. In his "Wonder of a Kingdom" Terrent makes Dukker say:

"Would I had ten thousand soldiers' heads. Their skulls set in silver, to drink healths To his confusion who first invented war."

The old Scandinavian asces represent as among the delights of the immortals the felicity of feasting and drinking to drunkenness from the skulls of the foes they had vanquished on earth. Maundeville goes further, and represents the Guebres as exposing the dead bodies of their parents to the fowls of the air until nothing but the skeletons remained, and preserving the skulls to be used as drinking cups.

How Shoe Peg Was Invented

The Massachusetts man, Joseph Walker, is due the credit of inventing the shoe peg. Previous to the year 1818 its use had not been known, and its inventor gave a new start to the manufacture of boots and shoes.

Shortly after the introduction of this invention some unscrupulous parties are said to have tried to swindle the unsuspecting by endeavoring to sell shoe pegs as a new kind of nails.

Up to 1818 boots and shoes had been sewed, and the peg, made first by hand, came in to revolutionize the trade. It was, however, the custom of shoemakers who lived away from the manufacturing centers to make their own pegs by hand even as late as 1880, but the machine-manufactured peg has now superseded them.

What the "Death Tick" Really Is

SUPERSTITIOUS people, even in this enlightened age, regard the ticking sound of a certain kind of beetle with terror, believing that it "clicks the hour of death." The name "deathwatch" has been applied from time immemorial to the sound made by this small insect, as it burrows in wood.

The beetle in question is an insect of the genus anobium, there being several varieties, to all of which the name deathwatch is popularly given, as well as to their peculiar sound. The body of this insect is firm, not more than one-fourth of an inch long, its head is rounded, the thorax arched. It is said to make its sounds generally in the night, but probably this idea has arisen from the fact that it is only in the silence of the night that the slight sound becomes audible.

Anyone who has watched through the night hours by the bed of one who is dangerously ill can readily understand how the faint tick, tick within the woodwork of the wall came to be regarded as a sound of evil omen. In order to make this peculiar noise the insect draws in the antenna and intermediate legs, and resting principally upon the median legs, strikes its head against its support by a sort of rocking motion. It is by this noise that the male calls the female.

The deathwatch beetle has the invariable habit of feigning death when seized or disturbed. The simulation is so persistent that when immersed in water, or even in alcohol, the insect remains perfectly immovable, and will allow itself to be burned alive rather than betray itself. The tick made by the deathwatch resembles that made by tapping the finger nail upon the table—so much so that the insect may be led to recommence his sounds by doing this.

About the Early Day Newspapers

AT a very early period daily news letters were circulated concerning public and official acts in Rome, Venice and China. The first printed newspaper was the Gazette, published in Nuremberg in 1457. Other countries followed Germany in issuing printed newspapers in the following order: England, in 1622; France, in 1631; Sweden, in 1644; Holland, in 1656; Russia, in 1703; Turkey, in 1827.

The progress of journalism has been most rapid in America. The first American newspaper, consisting of three pages of two columns each and a blank page, was published in Boston on Sept. 25, 1689, under the caption of "Publick Occurrences, Both Foreign and Domestic," but it was immediately suppressed. In 1704 the Boston News Letter appeared, printed on one sheet of foolscap paper. It flourished for seventy-two years.

The following data will show the advancement in the United States: First printing office in 1639; first newspaper in 1690; first political paper in 1733; first daily paper in 1784.

OUR COUNTRY BY OUR PRESIDENT

Begins Next Sunday In The Constitution

NOW, of all times, you should know the history of your country. When all of the great European powers are at each other's throats; when there's ever the chance that we may be drawn into the greatest struggle in the world's history---you should know your country's history, what the events were that led up to our previous wars, and how, with honor, we averted other encounters.

You will want to know what the precedents are that England cites as justification for seizing our ships; what our relations have been with France and Germany in the past.

You will want to read not a history, but THE HISTORY of the United States---the history of our

THE SARCOPHAGUS IN THE CRYPT

LOOKING DOWN UPON THE SARCOPHAGUS

While the body of Napoleon lay in its unmarked grave at St. Helena his white conquests of Europe and mounted again in the throne of France. The peoples who had overthrown his empire soon found in their sorrow that they had chosen a ruler who was the saw of the little hereditary tyrants who supplanted him the more they lamented the downfall of the great adventurer. The pledges they had sworn to their monarchs in the war of liberation were ruthlessly broken and something like a "rotas" reign of terror was inaugurated by the emperor's son, the first Napoleon III, who was elected president of the empire under the name of Louis Napoleon III. He was elected president of the empire under the name of Louis Napoleon III. He was elected president of the empire under the name of Louis Napoleon III.

THE REVIVAL
 After the death of Louis XVIII, Charles X. the feeble and intemperate brother, was succeeded by the French nation determined to elect a ruler who would be a guarantee to the peace of Europe. The broken empire was the ruin of the broken empire. The broken empire was the ruin of the broken empire. The broken empire was the ruin of the broken empire.

ENTHRONED AGAIN
 On a December day in 1840 Paris opened wide her gates to receive Napoleon III. He was the still living emperor who had returned from a victorious campaign. Mounted upon a state funeral car and escorted by the aged veterans of the old empire, his body was borne in triumph under his arch of the star and down the Champs Elysees across the Place de la Concorde and over the Seine to the Invalides.

THE RETURN OF THE BODY
 In his will the emperor had said "I leave to my people the body of Napoleon I. which I have carried to St. Helena." The body of the emperor was carried to St. Helena. The body of the emperor was carried to St. Helena. The body of the emperor was carried to St. Helena.

THE SECOND EMPIRE
 Soon came the revolution of 48, which sent a tremor through the European continent. The thrones of the Hapsburgs and the Hohenzollerns rocked. Metternich fled Vienna and Louis Philippe decamped for England. The only throne that escaped the shock was Napoleon's in the Invalides. A republic was hastily improvised in France and Louis Napoleon, returning from his exile, was chosen president by some 2,000,000 votes against 2,000,000 for his opponents. Under the fostering care of his administration the idealization of Napoleon took on new zeal, with their chronicling and Hugo singing the grandeur of the empire. In four years more the French were ready to acclaim a live emperor, and the prince president succeeded the throne as Napoleon III.

In exile his mother having boasted at the time that she had received one visitor without asking permission of the British government.

The sight of their prison house only deepened their memories. It had left with the one time prisoners of St. Helena. They went to Longwood as to a shrine of their hero, but they found that it had reverted to its original purpose. The emperor's son, the first Napoleon III, who was elected president of the empire under the name of Louis Napoleon III.

Thousands of ages will elapse before the circumstances accumulated in my case draw forth another from among the crowd to reproduce the same spectacle—Napoleon to Las Cases at St. Helena.

DEMOCRACY REIGNS
 The downfall of the second empire brought a new generation of the French to the throne of grandeur had received the person of the emperor's grandchild.

THE FATE OF THE BONAPARTES
 It is a sad fate that has befallen the Bonapartes. The family name is kept alive only in the person of Louis Napoleon III, who was elected president of the empire under the name of Louis Napoleon III.

AT THE INVALIDES
 Although no drop of Bonaparte blood now courses beneath the crown, Napoleon III. still is enthroned under the golden dome of the Invalides. The vast solitude of the Invalides is the only place where the name of Napoleon III. is still remembered.

A Word of Advice to the Bride

By DOROTHY DOLAN.

THIS is the bride's month. It is the month of marriage. It is the time when love and new ties in the founding of the home and the making of new social relations.

As this great step means to the bride a new life, a woman becomes a normal type of woman. She is instructed and she is instructed in the thought that love is the best made by husband and wife. God can bestow on a woman a husband who is a fine energetic young man.

The Bride's Dream.

There are many things that a bride should know. She should know that she is not alone. She should know that she is not alone. She should know that she is not alone.

She should know that she is not alone. She should know that she is not alone. She should know that she is not alone.

She should know that she is not alone. She should know that she is not alone. She should know that she is not alone.

She should know that she is not alone. She should know that she is not alone. She should know that she is not alone.

She should know that she is not alone. She should know that she is not alone. She should know that she is not alone.

THIS illustration shows the connection made by two columns. In the opening a three or four paneled screen may be set when preparations for a meal are in progress or company is being entertained in the living room part. No curtains are hung and the screen may be removed, as the dining room furniture is not objectionable. The walls in both rooms are plain, with a dropped border in cream to match the ceiling.

VIVIAN'S Heart to Heart Chat

SHE was a plain looking woman with an average education and ordinary personality. She came from a middle class family. So you see she had no special beauty, charm or fortune to recommend. She would not have been surprised had fate marked her for a spinster.

Therefore she even more than her friends was surprised beyond words when one of the wealthiest brokers in New York asked her to become his wife. She was so abashed that it took her six months or more to realize what had happened and their anxious friends composed themselves in the thought that the wealthy broker would realize that he had made a mistake in taking this kind of woman for a wife before a year had passed.

The Little Convent Girl who lost Two(2) Husbands in a Day.

"O, Gee! I'm Glad I'm Free," Sang Genevieve Baisden as She Danced Out of Her Lawyer's Office—She Had Two Husbands When She Didn't Care for Even One, so No Wonder She Is Going to Fight Clear of Marital Waters for Some Time to Come.

By BERT LENNON.

JUDICIAL was waved over the head of pretty Genevieve Baisden—and to and be left two husbands tossed out of her life. It was all so wonderful to her she fled from the Arabian Nights to the refuge of a convent. I checked to her lawyer's office. I took it.

Finds First Love in Southland.

During a summer vacation the girl, then known as Genevieve Hanman, went to visit friends and relatives in Dalton, Ga. There she met Albert V. Baisden, a fine looking fellow, he had personality and magnetism—a combination that worked havoc with the heart neutrality of this mere child. Besides, he told her of the brilliant future that lay before him. Baisden was a mining man, so the girl understood, and in the mountains of Cuba, by hidden his fortune.

First Aid to Broken Heart.

At the end of three months of married life the couple separated. Genevieve told of having been pitched from a second story window, also of being thrown so violently across a bed that she became ill.

First Marriage at Sixteen.

Genevieve remembered that she was sixteen when she was married to Albert Baisden. He had a well paying government position and hearing of the girl's plight, wrote her a letter. Would she come West to recuperate? The month she would bring back health and strength. Genevieve went to Colorado.

Footlights Beckon Her.

While on the way to complete recovery Genevieve gave much thought to the future. Though her grandfather was quite willing, she should live with him, the girl did not wish to be a burden. In the days of her convent life she had won honors in singing and folk dancing. Also she had a good speaking voice.

Gets Her Bogus Divorce.

She made good, as the critics say, right from the start. Her particular part in the program was impersonations.

The Feast That Led to Second Nuptial.

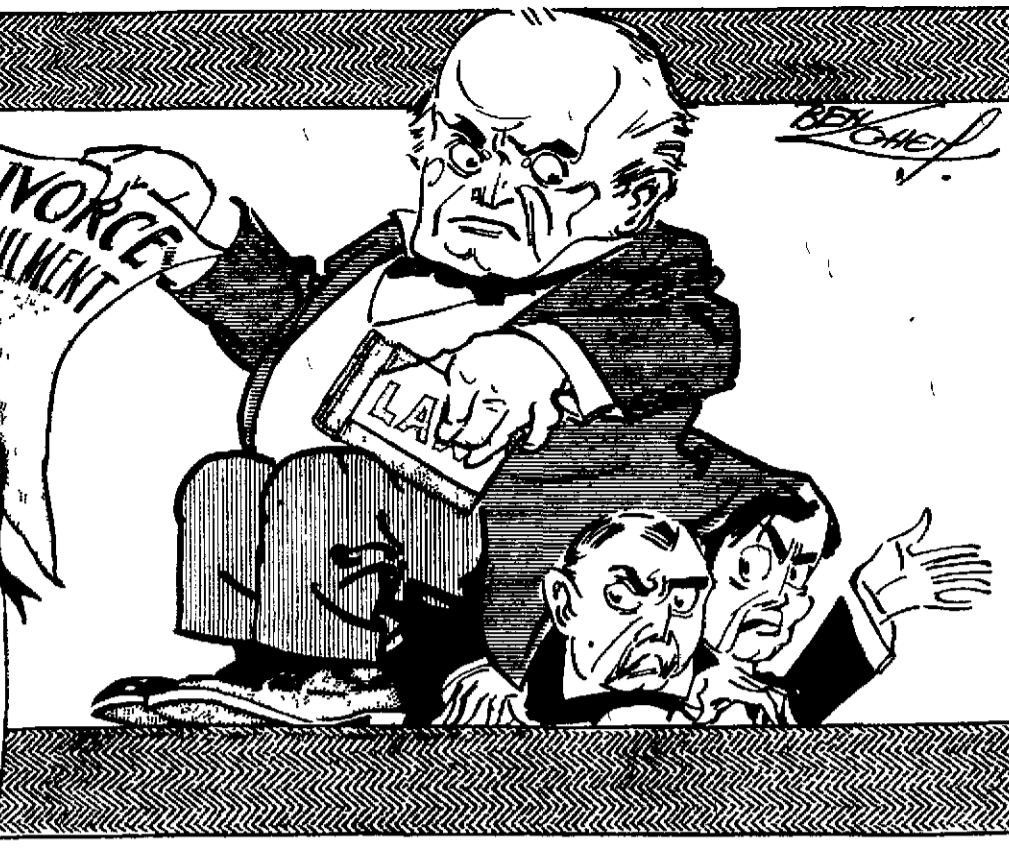

Not long afterward her grandfather died without revealing his deception about the divorce. The mother of Genevieve knew that such a decree had not been granted but put off telling the girl. Baisden had disappeared and Genevieve in the five years that passed, gave no hint that she again contemplated matrimony.

The Joblot Marriage Party.

One night in February 1914, Genevieve Baisden, or "Billie Lee" as she was known to stage friends was about to retire in a hotel at Los Angeles when the telephone bell rang. An actress friend was on the other end of the line.

Flees Her Second Husband.

Oh Billie you must not go to bed

How Uncle Sam Protects His Soldiers

By DELIA AUSTRIAN.

There are few places where science has penetrated with such efficient fact as in the American army. During the last fifty years, scientists have made the nations of the world realize the fact that it is as necessary to protect soldiers against disease and plague as it is to give them efficient military training and to equip them with the right kind of ammunition.

Among all the diseases of camp and hospital life is so feared as typhoid fever. Here the science of investigation has again gained the victory by means of anti-typhoid inoculation. The immense advance in camp sanitation and the great value of educating the experience of the maneuver division of regulars in Texas during its concentration from March until August 1911 with that of the second division Seventh Army Corps which was organized at Jacksonville, Fla. about June 1, 1908, and remained there in camps until October.

The two divisions were encamped in nearly the same latitude and for about the same length of time. Each had a good camp site and an artesian water supply of unimpure purity. The mean strength of the second division of the Seventh Army Corps assembled at Jacksonville, Fla., was 10,750.

There were 2,093 certain and probable cases of typhoid with 248 deaths from typhoid fever and 283 deaths from all diseases.

The table showing for the organizations composing the maneuver division at San Antonio, Texas, the mortality and mortality from typhoid fever, March 10 to July 10, 1911, was as follows:

The total number was 12,801, the cases of typhoid fever certain and probable 1, death from typhoid fever none, and deaths from all diseases 11.

The health of military commands is usually measured by the constantly non-effective rate which represents the average number constantly sick in each thousand men. This was for the maneuver division 22 per 1,000. The rate was 34 for all the troops in the United States for the year 1910.

The sanitary inspector usually deals directly with the regimental sanitary officer and is accompanied by him on his inspections. The latter is held responsible for the sanitary conditions of his camp and if sanitary defects are found he is considered to be at fault unless he can show that he has made proper efforts to have them corrected.

All apparatus connected with the sanitary system is of the simplest kind so that it can be installed quickly by the troops. Storage of garbage and kitchen refuse is forbidden. The last ten years has given a very extended experience in army sanitation not only in the United States but in tropical islands and they have become familiar with all the diseases of animals. Many of the most serious ones have never been introduced into this country. These horses are often attacked by a disease called thrush and a sickness of the heels called scratches.

Some of the foremost sanitary results have been accomplished in Porto Rico and the Philippines. This is most noticeable in the reconstruction of the old Spanish prison called Bilibid in Manila. The mortality reached the abnormal proportion of 28 per thousand. Through the use of modern sanitary methods and proper sanitation it was reduced to 70 per thousand. By living in combat other diseases caused by improper sanitation the death rate finally fell to 13 per thousand.

The United States took another important step in this direction when Colonel W. C. Gorgas made Cuba and the Panama Canal Zone healthy and habitable places less than fifteen years ago. Colonel Gorgas was an inconspicuous unit in the sum total of a necessary but unnoticed department of the American army. He was a post surgeon on the plains of the West and the Southwest attending soldiers in times of peace together with the wives and children of officers. He recognized the mosquito as the direct cause of malaria and yellow fever. He and his assistants determined to put an end to yellow fever and malaria by destroying the mosquito. After a series of experiments, remarkable ability in their inoculation and successful elimination of the yellow fever was due to their.

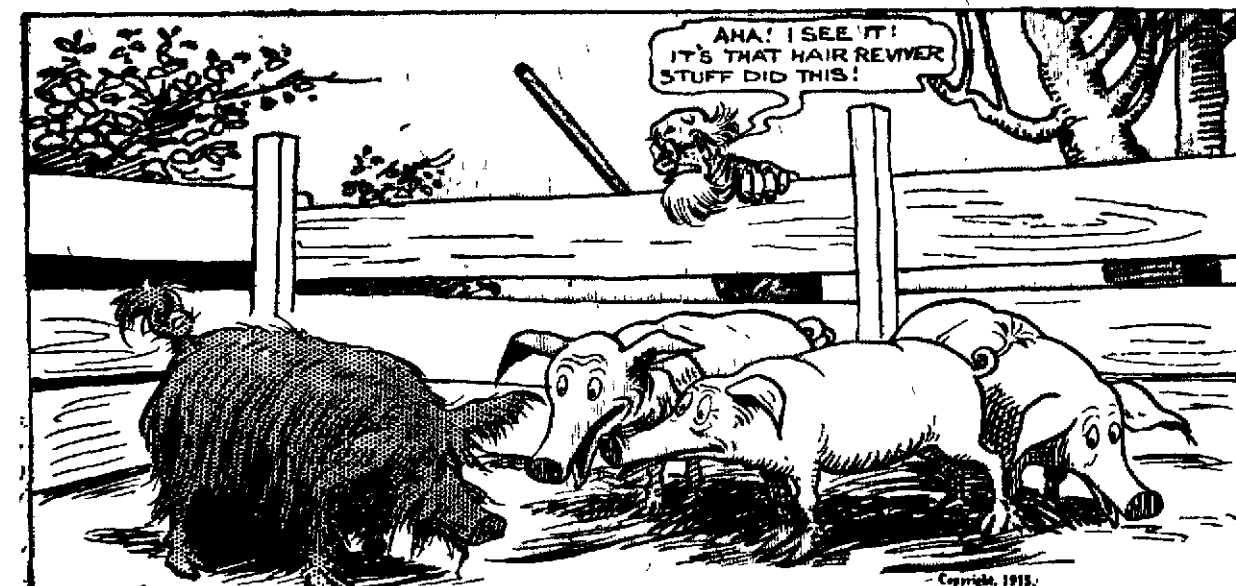

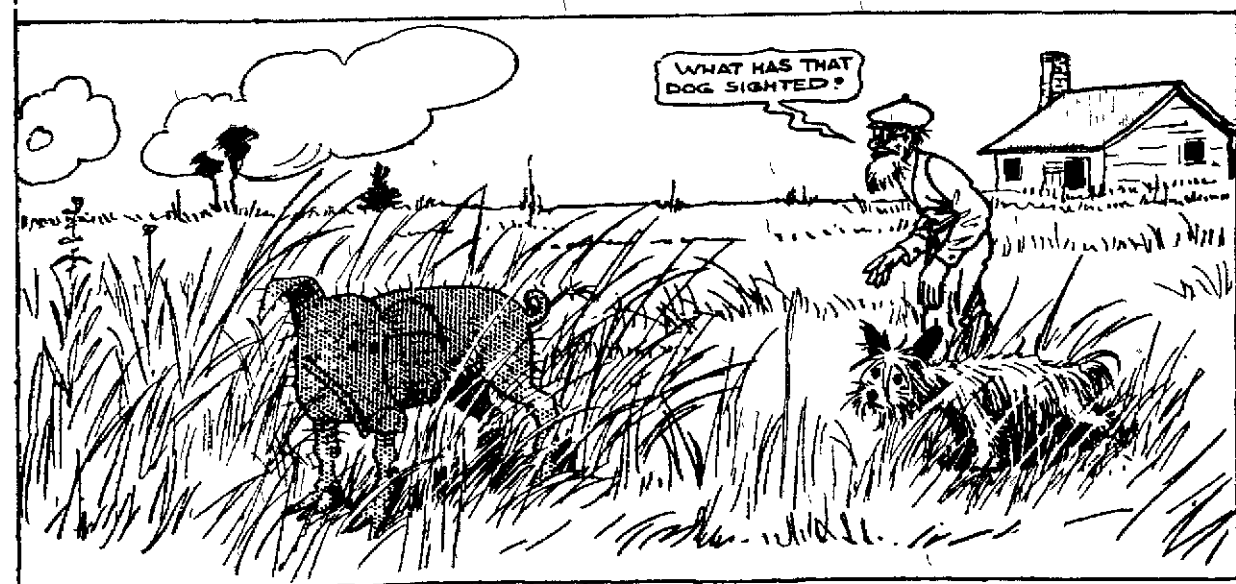

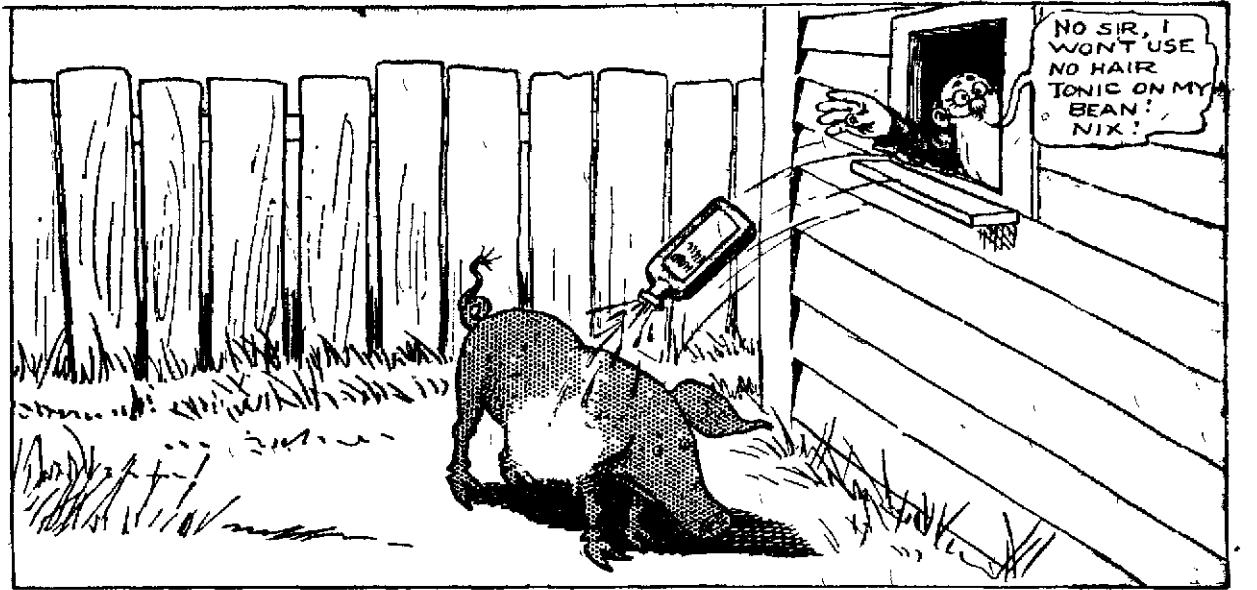

When Colonel Gorgas went to the Canal Zone he started his important work by fighting the mosquitoes. He found a strip of country ten miles wide and forty-six miles long with a considerable settlement of houses between. He followed the method which had rid Havana of yellow fever, of a scourge that had been epidemic for 170 years. He stopped the fever in sixteen months in the City of Panama. The Canal house was fumigated three times. They burned 100 tons of pyrethrum, 200 tons of sulphur and a large quantity of other disinfectants.

While they fought the yellow fever mosquito with chemicals and screens, they destroyed the breeding place of the malaria mosquito and drove him back several hundred yards from the camps and villages. They put wire netting into the houses and advised every one to take three grains of quinine a day. Through the efforts of Colonel Gorgas and his assistants the Canal Zone has practically been rid of yellow fever and malaria.

The SUBMARINE

How Yale Freshman in Colonial Days Gave to World the First of Deadly "Water Bugs" That Have Revolutionized Naval Warfare

1771—Submarines Essentially the Same—1915

COMMENTING on the first practical "water bug" ever built, that of David Bushnell, a Yale freshman in 1771, Commander Barber of the United States navy said: "It seems to have been the most perfect thing of its kind that has ever been constructed before or since the time of Bushnell."

Sir William White, the noted constructor of the British Navy, said: "It cannot be claimed that any new principle of design has been discovered or applied since Bushnell. He showed the way to all his successors in the particulars of buoyancy, stability and control of the depth reached by submarines. Although alternative methods have been introduced and practically tested, in the end Bushnell's plans have in substance been found the best."

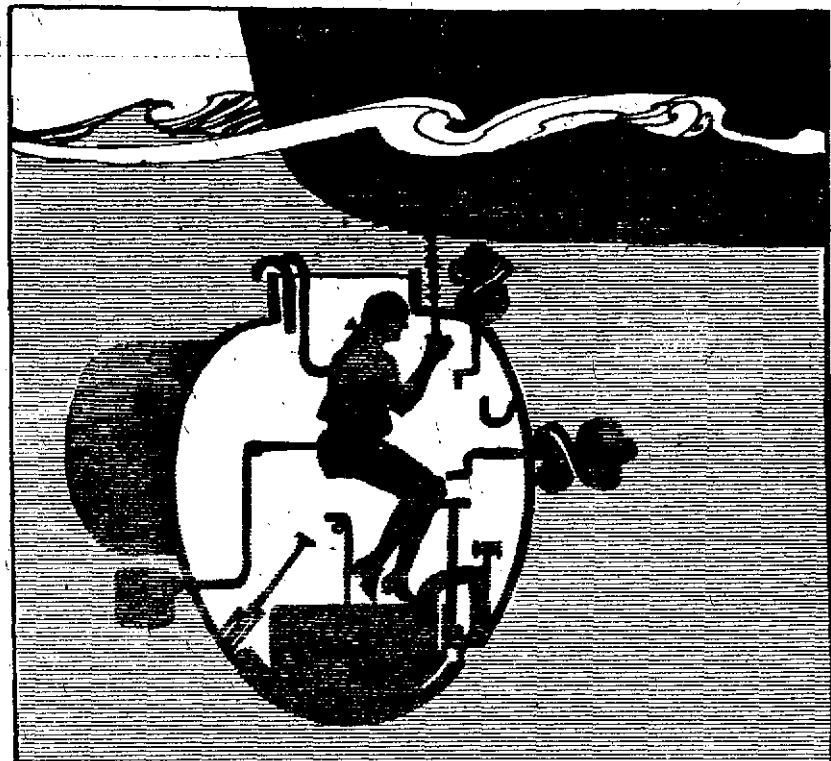

teution (that gunpowder could be exploded under water. They even ridiculed him for advancing such a theory. But the student scientist took his professors and other learned gentlemen of "Doubting Thomas" tendencies out into New Haven harbor, where he produced such an explosion.

Soon after the opening of the revolutionary war Admiral Lord Howe began a blockade of New York harbor. The colonists were perturbed—and with cause. They realized that England controlled the situation for the time being, at least, and that if the hostile fleet could be destroyed the war would be ended—then and there. But how to destroy the fleet was a question. The colonies had no ships that would bring victory in battle with those of Lord Howe.

the workings of his craft, the Eagle, flagship of the British fleet, was picked as the first victim of Bushnell's genius.

Bushnell was never a strong youth. While other boys of his home colony played games and improved their physique, he spent his time indoors, mulling over the many ingenious ideas that raced through his imaginative mind. So when the opportunity arose for him to demonstrate the practicability of his great scheme he confessed his inability to navigate the Turtle himself, because of insufficient strength.

Volunteers were called for to perform the feat of sinking the Eagle. The first to respond was Ezra Lee. He knew little, if anything, about this new sort of navigation, and had only five days in which to Silhouette Cross-Section of the Turtle, the First Practical Submarine, Showing How Its Navigator Was Expected to Use the Torpedo Screw to Fasten the Deadly Explosive to a Ship's Hull. The Turtle Was Constructed in 1771.

WHEN the Lusitania, pride of two continents, plunged to her doom off the rugged coast of Ireland a cry of horror and indignation was heard around the world. It voiced itself in the press and from the pulpit—it found echo in the shop and in the home. Truly, the god Mars had gone stark mad.

In Washington something besides the appalling loss of life and grave issues involved concerned the naval experts of our government. Beneath gold braids and military poise they are much like other men—emotional, sympathetic. But in times like these they must forget their feelings in the cold, analytical survey of science.

The sinking of the Lusitania, though an act to be deplored, was, nevertheless, another triumph for the submarine. And in this day of revolutionized warfare the submarine is of primary importance. Hence the burial of sentiment on the part of our naval experts as they weighed the facts and added them to the "Davy Jones locker" of information.

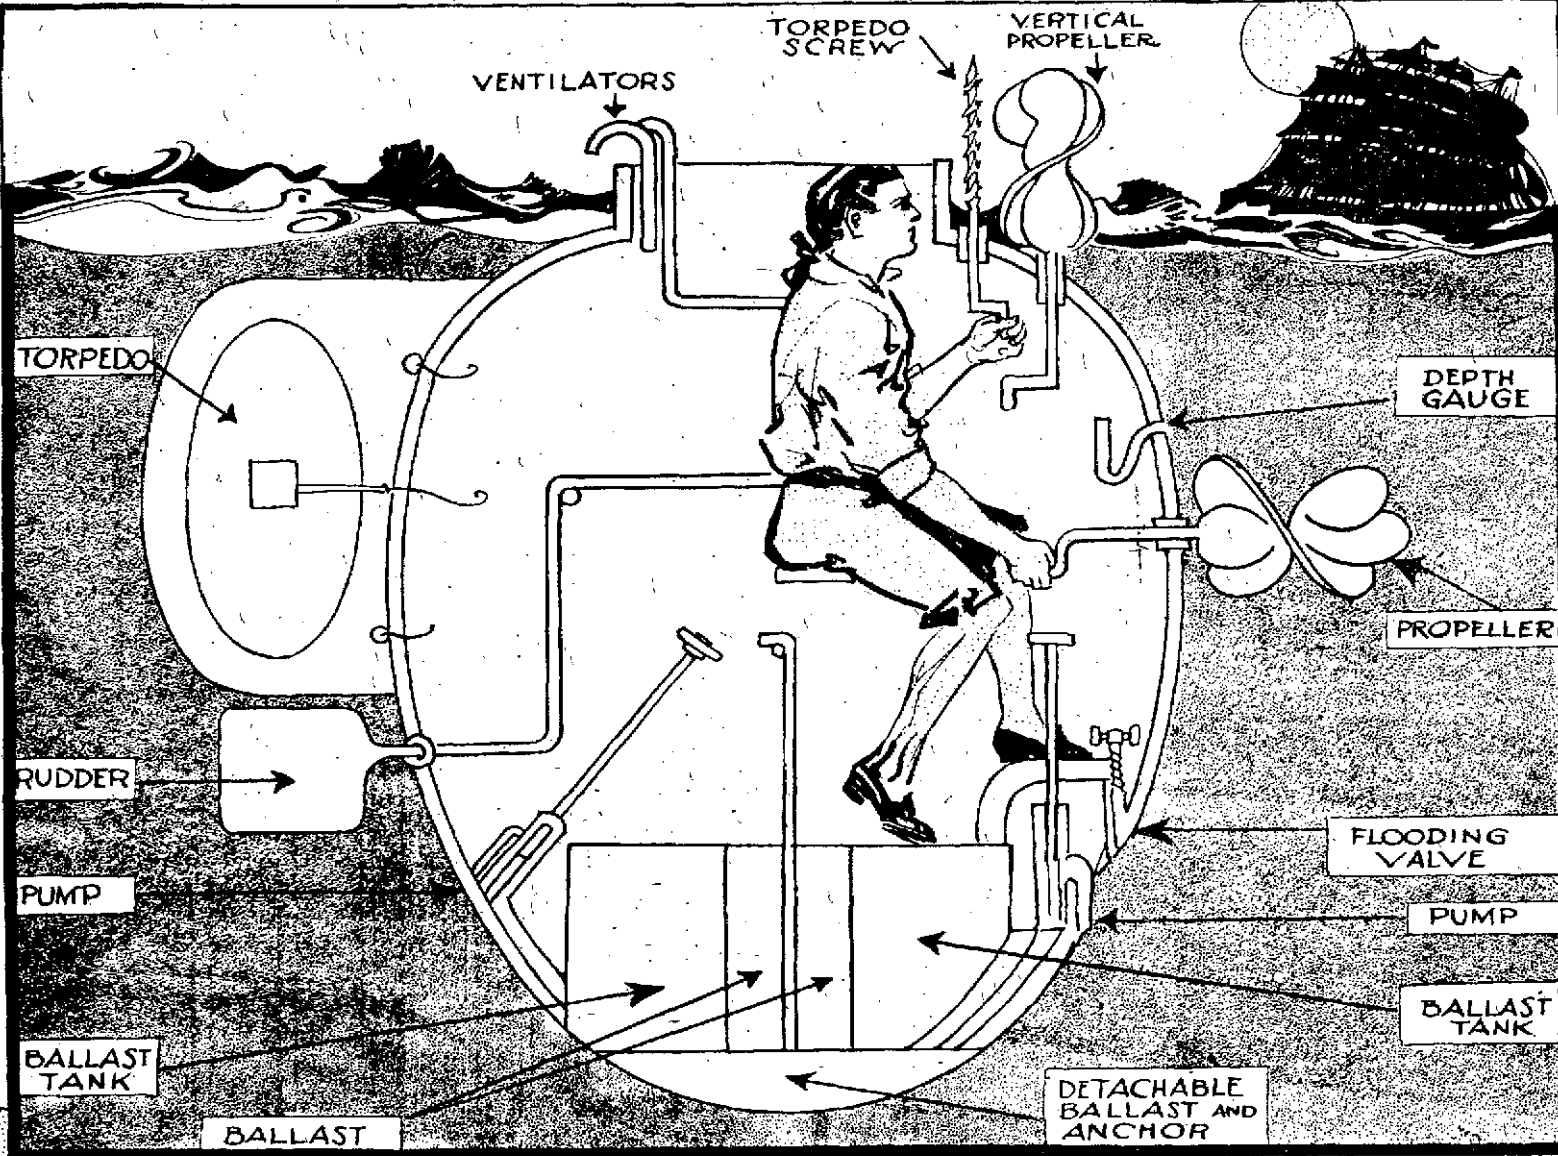

History of the Submarine.

The submarine: What is it? Who invented it? What has been the history of its evolution?

There are few in the civilized world today who cannot answer the first question. The majority could do so before the present great conflict. Those who could not learned the answer when the Aboukir, the Hogue and the Cressy, cruisers of Great Britain, were plunged to their doom in the North Sea. They learned that from the steel bowels of an invisible craft were hurled the fishlike weapons that buried themselves in the armored vitals of the enemy.

But in whose fertile mind originated the first practical submarine? How speedily did the nations progress in improving on this first "water bug"? These questions, perhaps, cannot be answered so readily. It is a general impression in America that the submarine boat and its deadly companion, the torpedo, were born of twentieth century genius. But nothing could be further from the truth.

Submarine navigation, so far as recorded in history, was conceived during the famous siege of Cross-Section of the Turtle, Said by Naval Experts to Be the Most Perfect Thing of Its Kind Ever Invented.

The thoughts of some patriots turned to David Bushnell and his submarine mine. Granting that it was a wonderful invention, how, they asked, could it be placed under a ship? Bushnell readily gave them an answer: By means of a submarine boat. He had invented just such a craft for just such a purpose.

As Speedy as a Turtle.

Were one to see Bushnell's Turtle, the name bestowed on his queer-looking boat, alongside a modern "water bug" belonging to the powers, scarcely any resemblance would be noted. Instead of the whalelike lines that characterize these latter-day sea fighters, Bushnell's submarine was shaped something like a "round clam," its longest distance being placed vertically. This so as to accommodate a single operator in sitting posture.

The Turtle was submerged by letting water into a tank, and raised by allowing the water to drain from this same reservoir. The motive power was furnished by a wooden propeller placed in front, which the operator turned by means of a crank. It gave the boat a maximum speed of two miles an hour.

Foxfire wood, which emitted a phosphorescent light and at the same time did not exhaust any of the oxygen so precious to the operator, was the means of illumination. An ordinary rudder steered the vessel. Bushnell provided an air chamber in which the operator could remain for half an hour, and practical methods for gauging the depth and retaining the stability of his craft.

Bushnell completed his studies at Yale in 1775, but previous to that year the Turtle had made several successful voyages. One of the patriots, Israel Putnam, learning of this, sent for Bushnell and his submarine boat. After a brief conference, during which the young inventor explained become acquainted with the mechanism of the Turtle.

The failure to sink the British man-of-war may be partly explained by this fact. Technically, say submarine experts, there was no reason why the Turtle should not have sent the Eagle to its doom.

Ezra Lee propelled the submarine to where the British flagship lay off Staten Island. Submerging the Turtle, he came up under the stern of the enemy. The submarine carried a single torpedo, held in place by a cable with a screw. Bushnell had made it possible for whoever navigated his boat to detach this screw and fasten it in the hull of the ship to be destroyed. Having done this, the Turtle was to leave. Within the torpedo was a three clock set for thirty minutes. After that time the explosion was due to occur.

The Greatest Problem.

But a problem confronted Ezra Lee. At the point under the hull of the Eagle where he had planned to place the torpedo, a sheath of copper prevented him from screwing on his weapon of destruction. Though Lee did his best to overcome this difficulty, he worked in vain. As the light of morning began to filter through murky clouds he backed away, leaving his torpedo afloat. Thirty minutes later this exploded, sending huge columns of water high in the air not far from the Eagle.

It was a great disappointment to Bushnell's friends, who had forecast a complete success for the experiment. The name of the Turtle became a name to be laughed at and ridiculed. Bushnell, discouraged and sick at heart, the result of years of hard work vanished in a day, disappeared from his old haunts.

A quarter of a century elapsed before we again hear of the submarine being taken at all seriously. Napoleon, Bonaparte, with practically all the powers leagued against him, had one great ambition—an invasion of England. The first step in this direction was to do away with the English navy, which just then was blockading the French coast.

Robert Fulton Appears.

One day, in the midst of his deliberations as to how he could land an army on the shores of England, Napoleon received a letter from Robert Fulton, who then was in Paris. "The sea which separates you from your enemy," it read, "gives him an immense advantage over you. I have it in my power to cause this obstacle which protects him to disappear."

Napoleon thought there might be something in the opinions of Fulton, so accordingly he appointed a commission to investigate. Several demonstrations of Fulton's boat were given in the harbor of Brest. His craft, though a development of Bushnell's idea, showed a considerable improvement over that of the latter. It resembled an ordinary sloop, its motive power being furnished by a jib and a sail. These were removed and laid lengthwise on the deck just before the boat descended.

The experiments of Fulton were successful. With three companions he sailed his craft 500 feet while twenty-five feet beneath the surface of the water. On one occasion the four men remained below four hours. A shallow placed at their disposal by the French admiralty was a mass of debris after the submarine had attacked her. Napoleon, impressed with the action of Fulton's boat, ordered him to set sail against the British fleet, just off Brest.

But the English in some way had been forewarned. They realized then, as naval experts realize now, that one defense against the submarine—and perhaps the best defense—is to run away. And run away they did. The ships of Britain absented themselves from the coast of France, and though Fulton watched and waited, he received no opportunity to prove the value of his invention.

Napoleon, angry, heaped coals of fire on the head of Fulton and dismissed him from the service. That he committed a grievous error—that he threw away his only chance of crushing England and saving his empire—has always been the assertion of French naval historians.

English Appreciated Its Worth.

But if France did not appreciate the worth of Fulton's invention England did. Even while the American was carrying on his experiments in the harbor of Brest they had invited him to London. In fact, several attempts were made to entice him, on the rejection of his plans by Napoleon Fulton forthwith made the trip across the channel, where William Pitt received him with open arms.

"If your boat is introduced into practice," said the prime minister, after examining Fulton's plans, "it will annihilate all military marines."

When Fulton entered Deal Harbor in his submarine and blew up a Danish brig of 200 tons Pitt was more confident than ever. He sent Fulton to Lord St. Vincent, the first lord of the admiralty, which angered that gentleman.

"What a fool Pitt is!" he thundered. "Why does he encourage a kind of warfare which is useless to those who are masters of the sea, and which, if it succeeds, will deprive them of this supremacy?"

Pitt knew this without being reminded of it by Lord St. Vincent. So did other officials of the government. Their intention was not to develop the submarine but to suppress it. They did not want it to fall into the hands of the enemy. Accordingly, they offered Fulton a fortune to forget about his invention and return to America. In a letter to Lord Granville Fulton waxed indignant. "Not for £20,000 a year," he wrote, "would I do what you suggest."

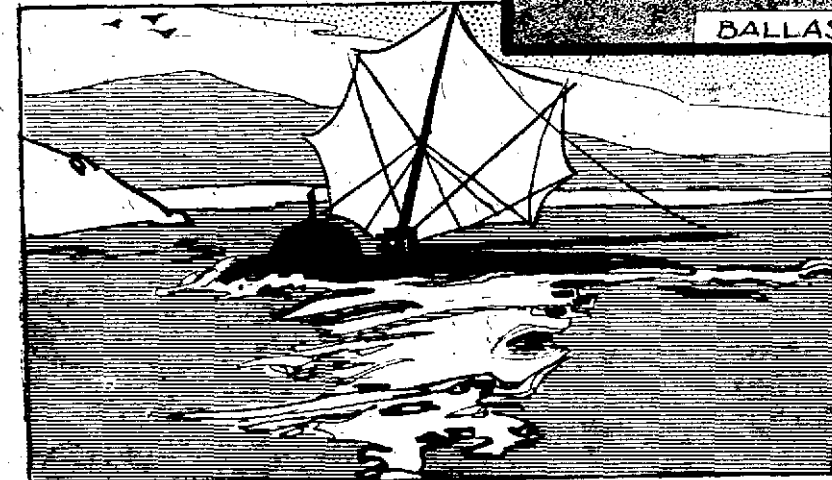

Fulton returned to America, having been turned down by England and France, and ceased experimenting with the submarine, turning his genius upon his steamboat.

Return of Submarine.

It was at Kiel, in 1850, that the submarine again came into prominence. A man named Bauer built a craft which he called the "Plongeur-Marine," but on a trial trip it was crushed by water pressure. In 1863 McClintock and Howgate constructed a semi-submarine hand-propelled boat for the purpose of an attack on the federal fleet, but it sank four times, each time drowning the entire crew of eight men.

The "Whale," now on exhibition in the Brooklyn navy yard, was built in 1864, and, by strange coincidence, one of her constructors bore the same name as the first inventor of a submarine—Bushnell. His full name was C. S. Bushnell. In conjunction with Augustus Rice he built the boat at Halstead, N. J. She is about twenty-nine feet long and has a depth of nine feet. Her sides are made of twelve-inch boiler plate.

THIS is the first of two pages describing the submarine from the earliest days of its experimental stages to its present state of efficiency in naval warfare. Next week's story will treat of the modern submarine.

How Submarine Built by Robert Fulton Looked When Ordered by Napoleon Bonaparte to Proceed Against the English Warships in the Harbor of Brest.

Syracuse in 212 B. C. Trained divers were employed, but they were unable to remain under water more than a few minutes. Centuries lapsed before we hear of anyone attempting to build a boat that would be invisible to an enemy. M. Delpuech states that some English ships were destroyed in 1372 by fire carried under water. In 1620 Cornelius van Drebbel, a Dutch natural philosopher, worked along this idea, constructing several boats which he made water-tight by greased leather stretched over the hull. By 1737 no less than fourteen types of submarines had been patented in England alone.

It was left to a young American, David Bushnell, to invent the first practical submarine, which he did in 1771, when a freshman at Yale. In principle it was essentially the same as the "water bugs" that prowled the seas today in search of prey. This may sound far-fetched, but it is a fact vouched for several years ago by Commander Barber of the United States navy, who carefully examined Bushnell's plans. "It seems to have been the most perfect thing of its kind," said the commander, "that has ever been constructed before or since the time of Bushnell." To which was added the praise of John P. Holland, another American, whose brain helped to make the submarine an effective agent in war. Mr. Holland said that Bushnell's craft could give a good account of itself even in the highly developed science of present-day conflict.

And as if this were not enough, Sir William White, the noted constructor of the British navy, said as recently as 1905: "It cannot be claimed that any new principle of design has been discovered or applied since Bushnell. He showed the way to all his successors in the particulars of buoyancy, stability and control of the depth reached by submarines. Although alternative methods have been introduced and practically tested, in the end Bushnell's plans have in substance been found the best."

Not only did Bushnell invent the submarine boat but the submarine mine as well. His professors laughed at his con-

Amazon Explorer Swears By Grape-Nuts. Algot Lange—famous tropic explorer—recently made a perilous exploration of the lower Amazon. The question of food supplies was a big one. Economy of space—food value—keeping qualities—palatability—all had to be considered. Lange chose for his standby—Grape-Nuts. Here is the way he refers to this food here and there through his book, "The Lower Amazon." "I have included in my supplies Grape-Nuts." "At lunch I eat some Grape-Nuts (an American breakfast cereal) with condensed milk." "After this egg (turtle) meal comes for me Grape-Nuts from sealed tins." "I go back to the moloca at noon to eat my lunch of roast turtle, Grape-Nuts and hard-tack." Everywhere—at home or abroad—wherever big things are accomplished—this famous wheat and barley food is relied upon to build and sustain vigor and energy of body, brain and nerve. A gift for the June bride can be wisely and happily chosen in our china store. Many beautiful and artistic things to select from.—Downstairs Section.

Write for anything you wish in this whole big store. Our efficient letter order service is the result of years of striving for perfection in this important branch of our business.

We Are Glad These Days
and so are the people who are showing their satisfaction as they make proof of the quality and capacity of the store, that they are pleased to say to us

"Well, This Is Our Store."

Under such circumstances, is it any wonder that our business is a pleasure to both workers and buyers?

To Have What People Want

When they want it, and to have it at the right price, is exactly what we have aimed at and worked upon for you.

This is what you have a right to expect—what you may expect, when you enter this store.

Davison Paxon Stokes Co

New Knitted Sports Coats of Glove Silk

"Quite the smartest thing yet."

Women who have deplored the masculine touch evidenced in ordinary knitted Sports Coats should see these. Delightfully light in weight, with plenty of give and flexibility—and charmingly feminine. They are in the brilliant fashionable hues—also the softer color tones, with sash and trimming touches of contrasting tones.

Priced $10 to $19.50.
Caps to match the $10 coats, at $2.50.
—Fourth Floor.

New Golfine Sports Coats

Several features have combined to make these coats charming: The smart models followed in the making—the popular fabric—golfine, which carries with it always a jaunty air—and above all, the beauty of colorings. There are pretty greens, coral and a soft ashes of roses; becoming belted style, lined with flowered seaco silk.

The price is another tempting feature—they are only $5.75.
—Fourth Floor.

More Fresh, New, Summer Dresses for Monday at Little Prices

Dresses in these special Monday groups—from $3.50 to $7.50.

The $3.50 Group is made up of pretty "poreh" and morning frocks—particularly good styles—some Norfolk jacket effects—made of good gingham in stripes—pink, blue and black-and-white effect.

The $5.75 to $7.50 Groups are made up of lovely little, cool, summer dresses of reception voile, in very dainty flowered effects, ruffled skirts, and lace trimmed waists; others of flowered dimity voiles, double-tier skirts, and some have over silk coats of soft blue, old rose, pink, etc. Wonderfully good and desirable dresses at these prices.
—Fourth Floor.

More New Palm Beach Suits at $10.75

This time they include black-and-white checks; ideal for traveling—cool, light, jaunty and a foe to dust.

There are also new and becoming models in natural shades—high or medium waist, belted effects, button trimmed. Choose from a fresh, full-stock Monday at $10.75.
—Fourth Floor.

This Will Be Our Great Trimmed Hat Week!

| 75 Trimmed Hats at | $1.85 |
| 50 Trimmed Hats at | $5.00 |

These hats are made in our own work rooms, and no two alike. Hems, Milan Hems, Milans, Javas, Leghorns, Panamas, etc. Trimmed with ostrich pom-poms, plumes, flowers, wreaths, wings, ribbons, etc. Colors black, white and all new shades.

NOTE: No Mail Orders for Hats can be filled.
—Second Floor.

The Sweetness Of a Thousand Fragrant Posies

is in each bottle of this Lilac Special. There is all the dewy sweetness of the fresh lilacs; and the fragrance is more lasting in this form than the fresh blossoms.

Both extract and toilet water, also face powder and talcum, in the same delightful odor.

Ask for it in the toilet goods section.

A Special Demonstration.
—Main Aisle, First Floor.

Shades Made to Order

Shade-making is a specialty with us. We furnish office buildings, public buildings and homes with shades of the highest order and guarantee accuracy and satisfaction.

All shades here are made by an expert. The materials used are the very best, Scotch Holland and Jay C. Wemple Co.'s shade cloths, and Hart-horn rollers.

Phone M. 3033 any time when you want shades made and hung. You shall have prompt attention.

Beautiful Novelty Voiles at 98c Yard

Formerly Priced at $1.50 to $2.25 Yd.

Lovely, double-width fabrics of very light weight wool, with satin-stripe and plaids; very smart, the color effects are charming, too.—cream and white ground with black or blue or tan combined.

The price for Monday is most unusual, and enables you to pick up a dress for very little.
—Second Floor.

A Fashionable Parasol

lends charm and good taste to the smartest attire.

Parasols are smaller this season, with longer handles, and there are many novelties to make them more fascinating. The color combinations and effects are bewildering—and beautiful. They are not at all expensive, either—$2 to $6.

—First Floor, Right.

Visit the Trunk and Bag Section Monday. Some month-end specials in Suit Cases. —Fifth Floor

The "Call to the Colors" Is Answered in These Brilliant Silk Shirtings

You may have the regular $1.00 Silks Monday at 89c yard. Shirt fashions call for colors, and these new fine Shirtings are rich and wonderful in color effects.

They are equally popular for women's blouses and for tub dresses—a yard wide.
—Second Floor.

$1.25 and $1.50 Lace Flouncings At 89c

They are 12 to 14 inches wide. Just the flouncings wanted for double and triple tier skirts, so popular this season. You may choose cream, ecru or black, and pay only 89c yard Monday for regular $1.25 and $1.50 laces.
—First Floor.

New Flowered Silk Petticoats At $3.98

They are irresistibly pretty. Soft taffetas in delightful, small floral effects and Persian designs, light and dark colors. Beautifully made, full flouncings and pleatings.

Also new messalines and taffetas in plain colors, the fashionable hues, at the same price—$3.98.

White Tub Silk Petticoats

New, full Petticoats of wash habutal silk, good quality; they have double front panel, which makes them thoroughly opaque. Priced at $2.98.
—Third Floor.

Our Lower-Price Store Is Wonderful In Value-Giving---The Downstairs Section

Customers tell us so daily—and surely they are good judges. Nearly everyone doubted at first if a Lower-Price Store could be a good store and succeed. But we had to believe that it could, and kept at it, and kept at it, until now all the first discouragements are gone. It is a Success and it is a Good Store, and it is recognized as such, far and near.

Here Is Its Merchandise Message for Monday, Judge for Yourself

Suit Sale Extraordinary

The final clearaway, and altogether the most remarkable suit sale of the season, by reason of the exceptional value and desirability of the suits offered at this price. You will agree when we tell you that Monday you may buy

$12.50, $15 and $5.75 $19.50 Suits at

They are just the fine splendid models you've seen and admired in the cases, and priced to you, when they were a little newer, as high as $19.50—some of them even more than that, but we wish to be conservative in the statement of values.

They are all finely tailored of good wool materials, many models to select from—Norfolks, straight coat styles, both high and medium waist effects, and all the popular colors, blues aplenty and black-and-white checks.

Be advised by us when we tell you we have never offered you such suits as these at such a price.

Imagine buying a good and stylish coat suit at $5.75.

Germany Tries to Dodge Lusitania Horror But the United States Will Press Demands

Leo M. Frank Is Innocent And Jim Conley Is Guilty, Asserts Hooper Alexander

DORSEY TELLS WHY HE OPPOSES PLEA FOR COMMUTATION

His Letter to State Prison Commission and That of Mary Phagan's Mother Are Made Public.

PROMINENT ATLANTANS MAKE PLEA FOR FRANK

Protest Mass Meeting Called at Marietta—Gwinnett Delegation Opposed—Columbus Urges Clemency.

FRANK DEVELOPMENTS.
 Solicitor's letter to prison commission opposing commutation made public.
 Mrs. J. W. Coleman, mother of Mary Phagan, sends letter to board protesting clemency.
 Leading members of Atlanta bar and other prominent Georgians urge commutation.
 Columbus to send delegation to Atlanta to make plea for prisoner.
 Gwinnett delegation visits solicitor's office to protest change in sentence.
 Mass meeting called in Marietta to protest against clemency.
 Delegations from Georgia cities and from outside state coming to help Frank.

A delegation of citizens from Gwinnett county who visited Solicitor General Hugh M. Dorsey Saturday afternoon to deliver a petition from residents of their community protesting against the plea for commutation for Leo M. Frank, occasioned the following statement from Mr. Dorsey:
 "Thousands of names have been sent to me in protest. The country would be surprised at the number of Georgia people who oppose commutation."
 Mr. Dorsey Saturday made public the reply he sent to R. E. Davison, chairman of the state prison commission, in which he urged that the law be allowed to take its course. Saturday afternoon he held a conference with DeLoach, John Starnes and Pat Campbell, all investigators on the Frank case, and the officials named in the indictment as prosecutors of Leo Frank.

DORSEY NONCOMMITTAL.

Asked if he was planning some new move in the case, he replied:
 "I have nothing to say—not present."
 The delegation from Gwinnett county, led by a merchant of Norcross, and T. E. Walker, a manufacturer of that place. The petition presented to the solicitor general had been circulated in and around Norcross and contained the names of residents who signed their names.
 The name of O. O. Simpson, mayor of Norcross, and one of Gwinnett's influential residents, was signed to the petition. Mr. Dorsey informed the solicitor that he would not sign in recognition of the plea for commutation, circulated in Norcross, had only six names.
 A short address of acknowledgment was made by Dorsey to the delegation, in which he said that he appreciated the attitude of the Gwinnett citizens in upholding the law's course, and in protest against a move to obstruct the course of the law.
 Mr. Dorsey, when questioned by reporters, refused to say on other petitions that have come to him from various parts of the state. It happened that a reporter was in the room of his offices at the time the delegation from Gwinnett appeared.
 "The others will be made public at the opportune moment," was his only statement.

DORSEY'S LETTER.

Mr. Dorsey's letter to the prison commission is as follows:
 "Atlanta, Ga., May 22, 1915.—Mr. R. E. Davison, chairman prison commission, Georgia: Dear Sir:
 Application of Leo M. Frank for commutation of death sentence.
 In acknowledging receipt of executive clemency in behalf of the above stated party, convicted of murder at the July, 1914, term of Fulton superior court, and in reply to your communication on the same subject dated May 17, 1915, I beg to say that I have no objection to the date assigned by you for the hearing of the application.
 As a rule of the court, rules established by the governor and the prison commission governing applications for executive clemency requires the petitioner submit to your board to include expressions of opinion as to the merits of the application from the judge or solicitor general who tried

United States District Attorney Analyzes Testimony of Negro on Stand and His Three Affidavits.

HIS STORY WAS INSPIRED BY GRILLING, HE SAYS

Murder Notes Prepared by Conley, in Basement, and Without Dictation by Anyone, Declares Attorney.

The innocence of Leo M. Frank and the guilt of Jim Conley of the murder of Mary Phagan are asserted in a lengthy analysis of the case, which has just been prepared by Hooper Alexander, United States district attorney, and submitted to the prison commission.

Mr. Alexander declares he has undertaken this onerous task at the request of a number of members of the bar, who knew of his stand on this case; that he does it as a service to justice, and without the slightest hope of reward.
 "Conley's testimony is the one central overmastering fact from which it is impossible for the prosecution to escape," he says. "Conley's story is the most terrific piece of circumstantial evidence in this case, and it is a piece of circumstantial evidence that cannot be put aside or ignored."

ALEXANDER'S LETTER.

Mr. Alexander's letter to the prison commission is, in part, as follows:
 "If it cannot be shown that Conley's testimony was the most important fabrication that ever misled a community, I will assist the state. That cannot escape from Conley's story. Upon that story I challenge the attention of all who love truth and justice. I go further than that. Until I prove it I shall not call a single witness for the defense or state a single fact that depends upon the testimony of the defense. There were not less than twenty reputable witnesses for the defense who testified to facts any one of which, if true, makes Conley's story impossible.
 "Surely, this case presents some of the most remarkable features in judicial annals. Conley, confessedly to save his own life, tells the most improbable and unreasonable story."

The Case Against Conley.

"The notes were written by a short, thick-set negro, who, by his own admissions, has been in prison seven or eight times, known to be of lustful and vicious proclivities, and who, at the time of the murder employed about the factory, and of insavory reputation. I demand, the most probable cause of reports believed that the writer as the murderer, unless he can offer some reasonable, credible and consistent explanation.
 "Why Public and Police Were Deceived:
 "If, in spite of the tremendous force of these circumstances, the public and the police did not believe Conley, the natural inquiry is why it was so.
 "The murder was peculiarly aggravated. Innocent people were arrested both in and out of Atlanta upon the mere assertions of the most irresponsible people. To whomsoever the slightest rumor pointed as the murderer, the heaviest penalties were meted out. The murderer, unless he can offer some reasonable, credible and consistent explanation, will never yet been corrected by the police, who knew them to be false.
 "The public began to lose patience with the police and charged them with a lack of zeal. Conscious that they were indeed drawing upon their utmost energies in a sincere purpose to detect the murderer, the police were sensible of the utter injustice of the attitude toward them."
Facts That Are Known.
 "I have undertaken to demonstrate

NOW FOR THE KIDDIES!

PEACE FOR MEXICO IF UNITED STATES HAS TO INTERVENE

President Wilson to Warn Warring Factions, and if They Do Not Heed He Proposes to Act.

Washington, May 29.—Announcement that President Wilson would demand a settlement of the Mexican problem by the warring factions themselves within a short time and failing that, adopt some means, not defined as yet, to bring about peace, has developed acute interest in official and diplomatic quarters as to the prospective action of the United States.

The president's appeal for funds and supplies to relieve the starving population of Mexico, the preparation at the white house of a statement to be communicated to all military leaders in Mexico next Tuesday and arrangements of the American Red Cross for a huge relief scheme are the first steps in a policy which, it became known today, President Wilson had had under consideration for some time with the object of restoring peace in Mexico.

The text of the president's forthcoming statement is an official secret but from those who advised with him prior to its preparation it is understood Mr. Wilson will address not only the military leaders in Mexico, but the Mexican people, and at the same time the people of the United States. He will review in detail the course of events in Mexico since the assassination of Madero and Suarez and the usurpation of the presidency by Huerta.

Forecast of Pronouncement.
 The pronouncement, it is said, will call attention to the fact that the United States government, by refusing to recognize Huerta, assisted in driving him out of power and expected from the victorious constitutionalists the re-establishment of government in Mexico. Nearly a year has passed since Huerta was compelled to resign but the constitutionalists, the statement will say, have failed in the meantime to restore order, conditions growing worse daily and with no fac-

Russians Are Battling To Keep Teuton Armies From Przemysl Fortress

TOO MANY OFFICIALS AND NO WORK TO DO

This Description of Construction Department Given by Chairman Renfroe.

That a shake-up in the city construction department is imminent became known Saturday when Chairman J. N. Renfroe, of the council street committee, declared that he would begin at once an investigation of the department and it should be reorganized. He admitted it would be a hard problem to solve, but said a general investigation and revision of the department should be made.

Chairman Renfroe announced that he favored the election of the chief of construction by general council instead of by the people, as now obtains, and he intimated that he would like to make the chief elective by general council.
 "There appear to be too many officials and employees in the department with nothing to do," said Mr. Renfroe. "They keep hanging on and it appears that some of them are kept in the city's employ for political reasons."
 Mr. Renfroe said that in electing the chief by the people it made possible an opening for keeping men on the payrolls for their political influence. A remedy for this, he said, would be to make the chief elective by general council.

He also complained that in his work as chairman of the street committee it had been difficult to secure co-operation from the department when certain contractors secured work from the city. He intimated that when a contractor not in sympathy with the construction department is given work he finds it hard to get their co-operation and make a profit on the job.
 In this connection he stated that a contractor who was putting up a stone wall on the new improvement work on Mitchell street had been forced to waste considerable time and lose much of his possible profits on the contract, because the construction department

Struggle for the Post Recently Captured by Czar's Forces Remains the Outstanding Feature of War.

London, May 29.—The battle for the fortress of Przemysl, in middle Galicia, remains the war's outstanding feature. There has been heavy fighting north of Arras, where the French continue to progress, the Germans admitting tonight their evacuation of Abain. But this is a small affair compared with what is going on around Przemysl. The Germans and Austrians, with an enormous weight of artillery, continue to fight desperately in an effort to encircle the fortress, which is already reported to be under bombardment. Their armies on the San, north of Przemysl, have, however, apparently, received a check. The Russians, after driving them back across the San near Sienawa, have now turned their attention to forces which crossed the river north and south of Jaroslau, and have been delivering furious attacks. All of these the Austrians and Germans claim to have repulsed.

TEUTON PROGRESS NOT SO RAPID.

Southeast of Przemysl the Teutonic allies are meeting with more success, but their progress is not so rapid as it was recently, and communications to Lemberg, which were reported to have been severed, remain intact.
 At the other end of the line in the Baltic provinces, heavy fighting continues, with the fortunes ebbing and flowing, neither side being able to make any important advance. These operations, originally classed as a raid by Russian military critics, are being more seriously considered, and larger forces are going to meet the German invaders.
 Except for their admission of the evacuation of Abain, which they say was carried out without the knowledge of the French, the Germans claim to have repulsed all attacks along the western line. As the same claim is made by the French, who also state

Regrets Expressed for "The Unintentional Attacks" on the Cushing and the Gulflight, But the Reply as to the Lusitania Is Entirely Evasive—Germany Contends That It Is Impossible to Discuss the Lusitania Tragedy Until Certain Facts Are Agreed Upon—Germany Claims Lusitania Was Auxiliary Cruiser and Carried Guns—American Demands for Disavowal of Intent to Sink Lusitania and Discontinuance of Submarine Warfare on Merchant Ships Not Mentioned.

Berlin, May 29.—(Via London.)—The German reply to the American note on the sinking of the Lusitania was signed by Herr von Jagow, the foreign minister, at 11 o'clock last night and delivered to Ambassador Gerard this morning for transmission to Washington.
 The note expresses Germany's regret for injuries sustained by Americans as a result of submarine and aeroplane attacks, and offers compensation in cases in which Germany is found to be in the wrong.
 As indicated previously in these dispatches, the note defers a direct answer to the questions raised by President Wilson, pending a further exchange of views. Germany desires to establish whether the Lusitania was a defenseless merchant ship or was being used for the transportation of war munitions and soldiers, on which unsuspecting passengers were permitted to take passage to safeguard the war materials.

The American representations regarding the torpedoing of the British steamer Falaba, in which an American citizen lost his life are answered with the statement that it was intended to offer ample time for the passenger and crew to leave the ship. The action of the captain in attempting to escape, however, necessitated more summary action. Even then the commander of the submarine granted ten minutes for those on board to leave the vessel, and subsequently extended the time to twenty-three minutes before sinking the ship.

REPLY OF GERMANY NOT SATISFACTORY TO UNITED STATES

Washington Is Prepared to Controvert Every One of the Points Mentioned in Summary of German Position.

Washington, May 29.—Until the official text of the German reply to the American note concerning violations of neutral rights in the war zone is received, probably tomorrow, President Wilson will reserve comment. This came from the white house tonight after press dispatches outlining the German note were received.
 It is known, however, that the United States government is prepared to controvert every one of the points mentioned in the summary of the German position as published here. The press outline conforms with Ambassador Gerard's dispatches of the last few days forecasting the nature of the German reply.

NO GUNS CARRIED BY LUSITANIA.

Evidence of an indisputable character was gathered from the Washington government prior to sending the note on May 3 to prove that the Lusitania carried no guns, either mounted or unmounted, that she carried no explosives within the meaning of American statutes and that no British vessels have cleared from American ports for several months carrying guns of any character.
 The British ambassador here is preparing to transmit assurances from the British government that the Lusitania was not armed, and that she could not be carried on the naval lists as an auxiliary cruiser unless she was armed and commissioned, the latter change from a peaceful merchantman to an auxiliary cruiser being possible, according to British practice, only in home ports.
 The United States, moreover, holds that the carrying of arms and ammunition and other contraband or a few unarmed individuals who might be prospective soldiers does not destroy the right under international law and humanity of the belligerent merchantman to be visited and searched before being destroyed and the neutral or non-combatant passengers transferred to a place of safety.

PESSIMISTIC FEELING IN MANY QUARTERS.

While the exact phraseology of the German reply is awaited with much interest, there was a feeling of pessimism in many quarters over the reported evasion of President Wilson's demands for reparation for the loss of

The passages in the American note concerning a possible disavowal by Germany of intent to sink the Lusitania and the discontinuance of her present practices of submarine warfare are not mentioned specifically in the reply.
 The note states that pending the reply of the American government to the German assumptions of fact regarding the real character of the Lusitania and her cargo, no attempt will be made to answer the demands contained in the American communication.

FACTS ASSUMED BY GERMANY.

These assumptions of fact are as follows:
 The Lusitania was built as an auxiliary

It Means an Afternoon Headache and an Evening of Misery.

There is no necessity for it. The morning droop means the afternoon headache the evening of misery. It means inefficiency in the office or in the store that you are worth less to yourself or your employer.

Reference is here made to the fact that carrying explosives on passenger steamers is contrary to American law.

QUESTIONS TO BE SETTLED.

Germany contends it is impossible to settle the question whether proper opportunity was given to place the Lusitania and crew in safety until it is determined whether the regulations adopted after the sinking of the Titanic regarding a proper supply of life jackets and water tight bulkheads which are now a part of the American law were observed in the case of the Lusitania.

DEFIANCE FOR AMERICA.

London, May 29.—The Daily Telegraph's London correspondent says that Count von Reventlow's organ, the Deutsches Zeitung, under the caption 'The American will to German Peace' publishes an amazing article which declares that the Lusitania was sunk by a submarine warfare which will be continued, regardless of any consideration.

The article declares that Germany is not frightened by any threat of war by the United States, according to the correspondent, and adds: 'The complete cutting off of negotiations would leave us cold America would only be able to damage us by confiscating the trading ships left in her harbors and much other German property. Further dangerous deeds of war by America against Germany are not to be feared because they are not possible. Also we do not forget certain interior difficulties in America that is another side of the business.'

London, May 29.—The Turkish troops defending the Gallipoli peninsula against the landing forces of the allied navies are reported to be concentrating all their efforts on the Dardanelles. The supplies of ammunition both for the infantry and the artillery, are reported to be decreasing rapidly with no prospect of being replenished.

SUBMARINE FIRED AT THE NEBRASKAN

Lieut. Towers Reports That Examination Shows the American Ship Was Shattered by Torpedo.

Washington, May 29.—Evidence forwarded by Ambassador Page to the state department today, gathered by Lieutenant John H. Towers, naval attaché at the American embassy in London, indicates that the American steamer Nebraska was torpedoed.

EXCUSING ATTACK ON THE NEBRASKAN

On German quarters it was suggested that if the ship was attacked by a German submarine the commander would be excused from his post too long to learn of the new developments and the precautions to be taken with respect to neutral ships.

ters the claim was persistent that the vessel must have struck a mine. Lieutenant John H. Towers naval attaché, and Naval Constructor Lewis B. ... reported through Ambassador Page that after a technical examination of the vessel and on the testimony of the engineer of the Nebraska that it was the work of a submarine.

GERMANY'S NOTE NOT HARD TO ANSWER

While officials did not care to comment on the German reply until they had read the text the forecast of its contents was looked upon in well-informed quarters as not likely to result in a modification of the American government had made a careful investigation of the facts in the case before sending its note.

more than 100 American lives and guaranteed that submarine warfare will be so conducted that no harm is to befall neutral American lives and vessels.

GERMAN CONTENTION NOT RELEVANT.

Germany's contention that it is impossible to settle the question of the proper opportunity was given to the Lusitania to escape until it is determined whether the Lusitania was equipped with the lifeboats and appliances provided for in regulations adopted after the Titanic sinking is irrelevant because it was pointed out that the torpedoing of the Lusitania without a moment's warning made it impossible to launch such life boats as the ship did carry.

thought would be believed, and voluntarily told it to the officers. In substance he declared that he wrote one of the notes, and Frank the other; that at 12:55 on Friday, the 25th of April, Frank asked him to come to the office, and asked him if he could write.

While his first story appeared at the time to impress the police, the public received it with absolute ridicule. The whole story, as told by Conley, implied premeditation. Stunned by the failure of the public to appreciate their acumen, the detectives tried again.

On May 28 the heavy artillery was brought to bear on Conley. Chief Landford himself and the principal representative of the Pinkertons' grilling him five or six hours. At last they got it into his head that some of his statements were far-fetched.

Interpretation by Victims. The office of Miss Cynthia Hall and Mrs. Emma Freeman took place before 12 o'clock. They left before Mrs. White left, most probably about 11:45. There are a dozen witnesses to that effect. In his argument the reporter himself says they left just about the time Mrs. White came in.

What became of the mesh bag was told by Frank that he had heard about seeing the mesh bag on the stand he gave an elaborate statement. The mesh bag was in the safe. This is pure invention by a witness who has never seen the mesh bag.

SECTION OF REMARKABLE SKYLINE PHOTOGRAPH OF ATLANTA TODAY

(Cut at bottom of this page is continuation of skyline.)

Hurt Building Is Meeting The Popular, Modern Demand

The Hurt building occupies a block to itself in the business center of Atlanta, and its convenience has been the dominating thought in planning its construction. Its offices are all outside. The rooms are well lighted and well ventilated. The risk to life and property is reduced to a minimum. It is the lowest in this country. The fire insurance premium is less than one-quarter of 1 per cent.

The exterior of the Hurt building is most beautiful and tastefully designed. The exterior blending from light to darker shades adds exquisite tone.

The very core of the building is unexcelled and is being constantly improved. A man's office requires next to his home, most of his time. It should afford the best facilities.

How well the building is meeting the popular modern demand may be seen by its classified directory. There are over two thousand people. By actual count its elevators carry over 11,000 people a day. These figures are significant when considered with the fact that it has been open to tenants but a few months only, and in a period of general business depression.

Atlanta grows as the south grows. It never stops for any cause.

It is a faith in Atlanta, its people and its future, that has produced the Hurt building and other structures and other office buildings that have given Atlanta the reputation that no other city enjoys.

TRUST CO. GEORGIA BUILDING PRAISED

Is Located at One of the City's Busiest Points and Equipped With Modern Conveniences.

This building, formerly the Equitable, was one of the first office buildings of steel frame to be erected in the south. It was formally opened in 1891.

The building is located at one of the busiest points in the city. Two years ago the name was changed from the Equitable to the Trust Company of Georgia building. It is owned by the company which has a fine suite of offices on the ground floor on the North Pryor street side.

The building has a large frontage on both Pryor street and Edgewood avenue and is constructed so as to give plenty of light and ventilation to the halls and stairways, as well as the rooms.

The offices are equipped with electric lights, steam heat, lavatory and private lockers, and tenants are furnished with free janitor service.

There are six offices, most of which are occupied by large insurance companies or agencies. It is said that fully 75 per cent of the offices are rented out to insurance concerns, and the building holds more of such companies than any other in the south, its claim made for it.

The ground floor office is occupied by the Lowry National bank. The elevator service, with four cars, is said to be among the best in the south.

Fourth National Building in Heart Business District

The Fourth National Bank building occupies the famous old Norcross corner, at Five Points, and is in the very heart of the business district of Atlanta.

It was opened to the public eleven years ago, in 1904, and from that day to this has enjoyed a well-deserved popularity. It contains 250 rooms, each having an outside exposure for light and ventilation. The manager reports that every room is rented.

The building is constructed with a steel frame and of white pressed brick.

It is owned by the Fourth National bank and is said to represent an investment of $750,000.

There are five elevators of the best type and the service is all that the most exacting tenant could demand. It is open on Peachtree street and also fronts on Marietta street. Commanding as it does an outlook on Five Points, a fine view can be had of the city from nearly every room.

The Fourth National bank first occupied offices in the Gould building, and when the Gould building was planned and built the old Norcross building was torn down to give place to one of Atlanta's tallest and best sky-scrapers.

The Fourth National bank building that once a tenant is secured he stays, which is pointed out as proof of the fact that the building is popular and the service satisfactory.

ATLANTA NATIONAL BUILDING POPULAR

Tenants Are Among Atlanta's Most Prominent Business Concerns and Professional Men.

The Atlanta National Bank building, named after the banking institution that owns it, stands on one of the principal corners of the city—Alabama and Whitehall.

It has thirteen floors with the floor space of 255,000.

It was opened in January, 1903, and has never failed to enjoy an immense popularity, as its large population will show.

Four elevators are kept running night and day, and the service is excellent.

The building is constructed of pressed brick and stone facings and a steel frame. The hall floors are of terrazzo, with marble facings. The pavement has caused several entries to be found in a first-class, up-to-date office building, with toilets, hot and cold water, rest rooms, etc.

There is not a room in that entire building which is without an outside exposure, giving all the light and ventilation needed.

The main offices on the ground floor are occupied by the Atlanta National bank, owner of the building.

The tenants are of Atlanta's foremost business concerns and professional men.

Healey Building Among South's Most Modern Office Buildings

The Healey building was opened in June, 1914. It is one of the most modern office buildings in the south and has sixteen floors above the ground and two in the basement.

It contains 600 offices and several of the largest and best storerooms in the city. It is built of terracotta and granite as an exterior over a steel frame.

The building opens on four streets—Forsyth, Broad Poplar and Walton. It is so constructed as to give perfect ventilation and light to every office. Throughout the building the floors are laid with tile.

Six Otis elevators of the largest and best type take care of passengers and freight.

Hot water, cold water and ice water in summer can be found on each floor. The toilet arrangements are modern and up to date and every floor has its separate toilet. One floor is reserved for the ladies employed in the building.

The architect, it was stated when the building was first planned, would sacrifice floor space rather than ventilation and light, and the result is that not a single office in the building is without outside light and ventilation.

Under good management and perfect janitor service the building has attracted the very best class of tenants.

The architecture is an ornament to the city and is always "looked up to" and praised by the visitors to Atlanta who view with wonder the city's great and wonderful skyscrapers.

ATLANTA'S STRIDES FROM DAY TO DAY

J. H. Whitten, manager of rents of the M. L. Throver company, and one of Atlanta's most popular realty dealers, who has been back for several weeks at his home is reported to be much better, and will be out again within a few days. This news comes as a source of delight to Mr. Whitten's many warm friends in the city.

GREATER PROSPERITY TO FOLLOW THE WAR

According to Judge Gary, of Steel Corporation — Urges Stronger American Navy.

New York, May 29—Elbert H. Gary, chairman of the United States Steel corporation and president of the American Iron and Steel institute, in an address at the institute's annual meeting, declared that after the war there would be among the nations such a race for supremacy as the world has never witnessed.

"There never has been," he said, "so great a necessity for wise and disinterested leadership of the loyal and honorable conduct upon the part of practical business men."

After all differences are adjusted," continued Judge Gary, "the nations now or to be engaged in this colossal conflict thought terribly crippled, will take a new start and in many respects a new course, and will begin immediately to build on a better and firmer basis than ever before supposed to be within the reach of humankind. The people of all the different countries, suffering in their thoughts of the past, will be inspired to greater exertions in their efforts for the future, and it will be established and maintained a court of arbitration, simple, comprehensive, effective and permanent—that will secure the adjustment of all future differences without any protracted or general test by armed forces.

"What should the United States prepare for? If we conduct our affairs properly, if we make the most of our opportunities, if we co-operate with another, if the government and governmental agencies and the business people are allies one with the other, we shall become stronger and richer and more potent in our influence, and we shall be able to occupy a position in the van of nations, progressing toward results more satisfactory than ever before."

DR. LEN G. BROUGHTON TO LECTURE HERE SOON

Atlanta people and, in fact, thousands throughout the south will no doubt be glad to learn that Dr. Len G. Broughton, founder and many years pastor of the Baptist church at Knoxville, Tenn., and of recent years pastor of Christ church, London, England, has consented to deliver a series of lectures in the city.

Dr. Broughton will lecture at the Baptist tabernacle in this city on Monday evening, June 14, and will use as his subject, "The Great European War. I Have Seen It, Heard It and Know It." It will be illustrated with one hundred specially selected stereoscopic views.

It was Dr. Broughton, through the aid of his congregation in London, who began the work of caring for Belgian refugees shortly after the outbreak of the war. He spent six months working among those unfortunate people and is thoroughly conversant with actual conditions in Europe.

An admission fee of 50 cents for adults and 25 cents for children will be charged. Half price will be charged for seats in the second and third galleries of the tabernacle.

Not only will Dr. Broughton speak of actual war conditions in Europe, but will tell of the opportunity of America to come in as a power of trade with those countries, which he says will be reaching out at the close of the war for new commercial fields.

CHILDREN ARE GIVEN RIDE IN AUTOMOBILE

In taking her first automobile ride since she sustained an injury six weeks ago, Mrs. F. M. Robinson had a thought for the children of the city. She bundled a dozen of the little ones to a ride over the city.

Mrs. Robinson is president of the board of trustees of the home.

Great interest has been shown in the home since the opening of the big new building and scores of people have visited there each week. It is open to interested friends on week days and Sunday and they are invited to carry a visit to the home and inspect its work for unfortunate children and mothers.

Trunks of Travelers Must Now Be Valued Before Being Checked

Beginning with Thursday June 3, all trunks of travelers must be valued by the shipper before they can be checked for the destination and the signed declaration left with the baggage man.

According to railroad officials who have studied the provisions of the Cummins act, which is an amendment of the interstate commerce laws, the valuation of baggage on the part of the shipper will be construed as such a misdemeanor as the overestimation of its worth.

The railroads now carry trunks and other baggage not exceeding 150 pounds in weight free with tickets of transportation and assume liability in cases of loss or damage up to $100. They declare they cannot assume unlimited liability as permitted under the Cummins act, but will accept the alternative of assuming the $100 liability on each piece of baggage checked and insuring the passenger for all over that amount on a basis of 10 cent per 100, the rate laid down by the interstate commerce commission.

The railway companies assure the public that they are doing everything possible to facilitate the handling of crowds making declarations of valuation in the rush proceeding the departure of a train. It is, however, anticipated by them that the new law will be considered a great obstacle by the traveling public and that many tempers will be tried during the tourist season.

FIGHT GROWING WARM FOR FIRE CHIEF'S JOB

Chief Cummings and Captain Cody Now Appear to Be Leading the Field.

For the first time since the organization of the paid Atlanta fire department a lively campaign is being conducted for the selection of a chief. In past years there has been little difficulty in choosing a chief but a split in the board of firewardens and general council over Chief Cummings' appointment has caused several entries in the race to oppose Cummings, who is standing for re-election in July.

Chief Cummings and Captain Cody, the latter one of the six-st men in point of seniority in the department, are apparently leading the race. Supporters of both candidates were busy Saturday holding conferences and visiting members of the general council, and both were claiming a lead.

It was stated Saturday that former Chief W. R. Joyner, now state fire marshal, is using his influence to secure the election of Captain Cody. He has written letters, it is said, to several members of the council, including Capt. and requesting support for him.

Mayor Woodward, one of Captain Cody's strongest supporters, is using his influence to secure his election and is said to have expressed himself as feeling confident of his election on the second if not on the first ballot.

Chief Cummings' friends are just as active and hundreds of letters are being written to doubtful members of general council soliciting their support. These letters are from business and professional men, laboring men and those whose property has been saved from fire loss by the department during the service of Chief Cummings.

Some of his supporters have claimed nineteen votes already pledged, which would insure his election, while others say that if he fails of election on the first ballot he will be beaten.

Several votes have been pledged to Captain Terry, another candidate for chief, on the first ballot, but they are not pledged after the first unless he makes a good showing and carries eight or ten votes.

The candidacy of Captain S. H. Pressley is also to be seriously considered by some members of council, who say that if there is a "dark horse" they will throw their strength to him. He has been in continuous service in the department twenty-seven years, and, like the other three candidates, is considered a high-class fireman and excellent.

CAPITALIST ACCUSED OF MAKING MOONSHINE

Alex Porter, Father-in-Law of Candyman Huyler, Arrested at Asheville.

Asheville, N. C., May 29—J. Alex Porter, retired capitalist, was arrested here yesterday by United States internal revenue officers charged with operating a "blockade" distillery. At the same time, W. E. Patton, a farmer, was arrested in Haywood county charged with having furnished Porter with materials for making whiskey.

The officers allege that the still was operated on the property of Porter at Biltmore, N. C., near here, with his knowledge and consent.

The arrests were the culmination of an investigation lasting several months. It created a sensation here.

During January, Deputy United States marshal seized and destroyed an illicit still on Porter's property. At that time no arrests were made. The officers now claim to have unearthed evidence connecting Porter and Patton with it.

Porter and Patton both deny knowledge of the moonshining operations. Porter declares that first intimation he had that a still was located on his property was when it was seized and destroyed.

Porter is the father-in-law of Porter Huyler, wealthy New York candy manufacturer.

KILLED JUNK PEDDLER AND BURIED HIS BODY

Boston, May 29—Two unidentified men killed Samuel Cohen, a junk peddler, today when he refused to give them his money, buried his body in the cellar of a house to which they had lured him on the pretense that they had old metal to sell, and escaped.

Morris Taitel, another junkman, was locked in a closet by the thieves after Cohen's death. He remained a prisoner until released late in the day by the tenant of the house.

"BLUE GUIDE" OUT; GIVES USEFUL DATA

The "Blue Guide," a compendium of useful and generally desired data concerning the city and local happenings has just made its appearance. It is edited each month by Robert Sparks and published by the Atlanta Monthly Guide company. The earnest endeavor of the publishers to bring the booklet "down to the minute" is patent in the wide range of information concerning the streets, the capitol, even the baseball schedules, and numerous other facts of daily value.

Spain Declares Neutrality

Madrid, May 29—(Via Paris)—The government today officially declared the neutrality of Spain in the war between Austria-Hungary and Italy.

Lower Taxes Urged

The members of the Atlanta Real Estate Exchange, of which R. R. Otis, of Otis & Holday, is president, at a meeting at the Warwick hotel Friday night, banded together to work for lower tax rates on property loans.

Presented by the board on legislation, and said that lenders are being driven from the Atlanta market because they had to pay excessive loan taxes.

"Loan taxes," said Mr. Otis, "reduce a 5 per cent loan to 2 1/2 per cent. It is a feeling almost universal that there must be established and maintained a court of arbitration, simple, comprehensive, effective and permanent—that will secure the adjustment of all future differences without any protracted or general test by armed forces."

Greater Prosperity

"From adversity will come greater prosperity than ever before. From necessity will spring thought and study and effort that will enable the survivors to reach greater heights of success than ever before supposed to be within the reach of humankind. The people of all the different countries, suffering in their thoughts of the past, will be inspired to greater exertions in their efforts for the future, and it will be established and maintained a court of arbitration, simple, comprehensive, effective and permanent—that will secure the adjustment of all future differences without any protracted or general test by armed forces."

Recital and Shower for the Old Soldiers

The inmates of the Old Soldiers' Home, who are unable to attend the reunion at Richmond, Va., will be entertained Tuesday afternoon at 3 o'clock with a recital and a shower by the pupils of Miss Carolyn Cobb, the well-known teacher of expression.

The recitations will be taken largely from selections which are concerned with the old south and the cause of the confederacy. These will be interspersed with songs and instrumental numbers.

The shower will take the form of gifts sent to the old men, such as tobacco, stationery, magazines and other articles. Should other persons interested in the Old Soldiers' Home wish to send gifts, they will be received by Mrs. Hettie Moore Monday and Tuesday at 1 o'clock at the studio of Miss Cobb, which is connected with Phillips & Crew Co.

Recital and Shower for the Old Soldiers

The inmates of the Old Soldiers' Home, who are unable to attend the reunion at Richmond, Va., will be entertained Tuesday afternoon at 3 o'clock with a recital and a shower by the pupils of Miss Carolyn Cobb, the well-known teacher of expression.

Lower Taxes Urged

The members of the Atlanta Real Estate Exchange, of which R. R. Otis, of Otis & Holday, is president, at a meeting at the Warwick hotel Friday night, banded together to work for lower tax rates on property loans.

Presented by the board on legislation, and said that lenders are being driven from the Atlanta market because they had to pay excessive loan taxes.

"Loan taxes," said Mr. Otis, "reduce a 5 per cent loan to 2 1/2 per cent. It is a feeling almost universal that there must be established and maintained a court of arbitration, simple, comprehensive, effective and permanent—that will secure the adjustment of all future differences without any protracted or general test by armed forces."

Greater Prosperity

"From adversity will come greater prosperity than ever before. From necessity will spring thought and study and effort that will enable the survivors to reach greater heights of success than ever before supposed to be within the reach of humankind. The people of all the different countries, suffering in their thoughts of the past, will be inspired to greater exertions in their efforts for the future, and it will be established and maintained a court of arbitration, simple, comprehensive, effective and permanent—that will secure the adjustment of all future differences without any protracted or general test by armed forces."

Two Strong Motives IMPEL MEN TO INSURE THEIR LIVES

FIRST: To provide for their families after death.
SECOND: To provide an income for their own old age

THE PENN MUTUAL LIFE will provide a regular, continuous-until-death monthly income for wife or children, commencing at your death, or for yourself in your old age. Costs less than the kind of life insurance you are familiar with.

THE PENN MUTUAL LIFE has been serving its policyholders faithfully and economically for 68 years.

Let us tell you about the new Monthly Income policy, the proceeds of which cannot be lost or dissipated. No obligation. No importunity.

PROHIBITION LEADERS MEET HERE ON JUNE 22

Anti-Saloon League Drawing Temperance Bill to Be Submitted to Legislature.

Arrangements are nearly completed for the state convention of prohibitionists in Atlanta, June 22—the day before the legislature convenes. The Anti-Saloon League has been doing a vast amount of work the past several months. From three to five typewriters and stenographers are working early and late. The superintendent, G. W. Eichelberger, in addition to the regular work, has been studying the legislative problem. A bill is being prepared which the legislature will be asked to pass. He did not disclose the features of the bill, except to say that it will be satisfactory to the true temperance people of the state. He says he is indebted to some good laymen for assistance in the strenuous weeks of work. So far as the speaker'ship is concerned, he says he has had enough votes pledged to elect him. Dr. Eichelberger says the Anti-Saloon League, W. C. T. U. and other temperance forces are working together for the success of the state convention. Lunch and supper will be served at the Baptist Tabernacle. Admittance will be delivered by Dr. T. C. Hardeman, W. S. Witham, Mrs. T. E.

Judge Tindall to Talk At Ad Men's Luncheon About Juvenile Court

Judge W. W. Tindall, of the Atlanta juvenile court, will be the honor guest and speaker at the noonday luncheon of the Ad Men's club, of Atlanta, next Thursday, June 3, at the Wineoff hotel, at 1 o'clock. The invitation extended to Judge Tindall to tell the Ad Men about the work of the juvenile court is directly in line with the efforts of the club to align itself with and assist, wherever possible, all of the agencies of municipal uplift. It will be recalled that the Atlanta Ad Men recently took up the city school problem and expressed themselves in no uncertain terms with reference to the necessity for immediate improvement. In addition to hearing from Judge Tindall, the Ad Men will discuss plans for the coming trip to Chicago, where they propose to send the best possible delegation to represent Atlanta at the convention of the Associated Advertising Clubs of the World. The Atlanta delegation will leave for Chicago on Saturday, June 19, at 4:50 p. m., via the Nashville, Chattanooga and St. Louis railroad, and will now occupy two special sleepers.

PECAN GROWERS MEET IN THOMASVILLE NEXT

Successful Meeting at Quincy, Fla.—This Year's Crop Will Be Biggest Ever Grown.

Thomasville, Ga., May 29.—(Special) Thomasville will be the meeting place next year for the Georgia-Florida Pecan Growers' association, this having been decided upon by vote before the adjournment of the meeting of the association held in Quincy, Fla., this week. This city had been originally chosen as the permanent meeting place of the association, but owing to the fact that the Quincy people were so anxious to have it come there, Thomasville resigned in its favor at the meeting here last year. Owing to its convenient location as the center of the pecan belt, however, the members decided it was best to make this city again the meeting place. Those attending the meeting in Quincy report it as being a very fine one and with many features of enjoyment and instruction to those interested in the pecan industry. The citizens of Quincy did all in their power for the entertainment of the visitors and they were afforded an opportunity to see the big tobacco fields of Gadsden county, the crop of which last year sold for $3,000,000. The officers of the association elected to serve the coming year were President, C. A. Simpson, Monticello, Fla.; vice president, William Bullard, Albany; secretary, and treasurer, W. W. Bassett, Monticello, Fla. An interesting feature of the meeting was that from reports made by members from all sections of the pecan belt it was shown that the pecan crop of 1915 will be the greatest ever known in the history of this industry, which has now become an established one for this and other sections. Arrangements being made for the marketing of the crop will render it also the most valuable from a monetary standpoint.

ROME STREET RAILWAY BUCKS AT BRIDGE COST

Active designated depository: United States State of Georgia County of Fulton City of Atlanta

Rome, Ga., May 29.—(Special)—The Rome Railway and Light company has filed a petition in United States district court here asking that the Floyd county commissioners be enjoined from attempting to make the street railway company pay one-third the cost of the new bridge to be built in Rome. The petition sets forth that to force the company to pay such an amount would be depriving it of its property without due process of law, and, therefore, would be a violation of the constitution of the United States. No date for hearing the petition has been set, nor has a temporary injunction been granted.

Vashti Commencement Shows Great Benefit Done for Needy Girls

Thomasville, Ga., May 29.—(Special) The commencement exercises of the Vashti Industrial home held here Thursday and Friday were very interesting and showed what has been done for the girls who are the inmates of it, and their advancement along educational lines. This home is supported by the home mission board of the Southern Methodist church, and it takes in and cares for all girls of whatever demonstration who are without means of support. The industrial exhibit made by the pupils this year was exceptionally fine, especially along lines of domestic science. In their classes they are carried through the eighth grade and taught besides special lines of work that enable them to obtain situations on leaving the school at 18 years of age. There were more than a hundred girls sheltered by the home this year, and those that graduated will be provided with positions.

LARGE SOUTHERN PLANTS TO GO UNDER HAMMER

Montgomery, Ala., May 29.—Property of the Tallapoosa Falls Manufacturing company, at Tallapoosa, Ala., is ordered sold, together with two other southern plants, at Columbia, S. C., and Baltimore, to satisfy first and second mortgages held by the Continental Trust company, of New York, for $14,000,000. The decree was made by Judge W. G. Grubb, of Birmingham, and filed in the federal court here. The decree is an ancillary order following one made by the United States court of Maryland against the property of the International Cotton Mills, owners of the Tallapoosa Falls Manufacturing company.

GA. BANKERS TABOO WINE AT BANQUETS

F. S. Etheridge Is Elected President—Macon Gets the Next Convention—Three Interesting Addresses.

Savannah, Ga., May 29.—(Special.)—With the election of officers and the selection of Macon as the next meeting place, the twenty-fourth annual convention of the Georgia Bankers' association adjourned today.

At no previous convention has so much business been transacted, nor so many forward movements started for the advancement of the banking interests of the state. Prominent bankers who attended decided the meeting was one of the most profitable the association has ever held.

No changes were made in the slate of officers as submitted by the committee on nominations. The new officers follow:

President, F. S. Etheridge, Jackson; first vice president, Charles B. Lewis, Macon; second vice president, Rufus H. Brown, Augusta; third vice president, Joseph W. Heston, Savannah; fourth vice president, T. R. Turner, Haddock; fifth vice president, H. Warner Martin, Atlanta; secretary, Haynes McFadden, Atlanta; treasurer, E. C. Smith, Griffin; general counsel, Orville A. Park, Macon.

New Executive Council.
The new executive council is composed of F. S. Etheridge, of Jackson; C. B. Lewis, of Macon; C. H. Sheldon, of Savannah; J. H. Hester, of Macon; J. T. Duncan, of Douglasville; R. L. Saville, of Dawson; J. H. Arnall, of Tennesse; E. C. Smith, of Griffin; and Haynes McFadden, of Atlanta. The executive council met at the convention adjourned and elected Mr. Sheldon chairman.

Hereafter the banquets of the Georgia Bankers' association will be dry affairs. At the closing session of the convention today a resolution was unanimously adopted making it a rule of the association that no wines or intoxicating liquors of any kind are to be served at any functions that may be held. Wine and cocktails were served at the annual banquet last night, and it is understood that some of the visiting bankers strongly disapproved. Some did not, however.

Unanimity of Opinion.
At any rate, there appeared to be considerable unanimity of opinion on the subject when Z. H. Clark, of Moultrie, brought it up in the convention. In making the motion, he stated that while some doubtless did not object, there were others to whom the serving of liquors at the banquets was objectionable. Mr. Clark contended that inasmuch as Georgia is a prohibition state it does not become a prohibition association to have the law violated.

In seconding the resolution, Charles B. Lewis, of Macon, stated the fact that he had seen L. P. Hillier, another prominent Macon banker, apparently enjoying himself at the banquet. Mr. Hillier joined in the laughter that followed, but when John B. Walker, of Spalding, also in the room, told Mr. Hillier in connection with the banquet, the Macon banker turned and declared that he did not intend that he was not drunk. This sent the convention into an uproar.

Mr. Hillier, after two Savannah bankers as saying that they hoped the association would go on record as opposing the serving of intoxicants at the dinners.

Loan Fund for Students.
To spread the doctrine of scientific farming the bankers' association set aside a loan fund of $100 to be used in aiding worthy students in taking courses at the state college of agriculture.

This fund is in addition to an appropriation which the executive council probably will make for the purpose of donating short term scholarships in the agricultural college. Last night the association gave thirty-two scholarships in the institution.

Two cities invited the association to meet here, Macon and Americus. Mr. Lewis extended the invitation to meet in Macon. A number of telegrams from Americus were read. The decision to accept Macon as the location was unanimous, although the thanks of the association were extended to Americus for the invitation to meet in that city.

Three Interesting Speeches.
Three interesting addresses were listened to. Thomas M. McAdams, of Richmond, entertained the bankers with a talk that was not only original, but his subject was "Colored Glass." He selected it as a subject of a puzzle to his hearers as to what his talk was optimistic and cheerful tinged with humor. It was intended to be a message of encouragement to the bankers and it was.

W. B. Harrison, secretary of the Oklahoma Bankers' association, delivered an address on "Building Bank Deposits by Reducing the Cotton Acreage." He told of what had been done in Oklahoma toward reducing cotton acreage and of the increase in the production of other crops. Grain and other food crops are being grown in the heart of the cotton belt of the state and the farmers are enriching themselves as a result, he said. Mr. Harrison touched on the "back to the farm" movement, pointing out that the best incentive to take the farmers back to the farms is for farming to be made more profitable and more desirable as an occupation. Scientific cultivation will accomplish that result, he said.

Some valuable suggestions for improving the methods of check collections in Georgia were contained in the address of Thomas C. Jenkins, of Athens, whose subject was "Kinks in Check Collection."

AUGUSTA TIRE CO. ESTABLISHES BRANCH ON PEACHTREE ST.

One of the results of the first "Seeing Georgia" tour conducted last week by the Georgia Chamber of Commerce is the establishing in Atlanta of a branch of the Southern Tire and Rubber company of Augusta.
This concern is operating the pioneer auto tire manufacturing plant in the south and was inspired by the work being done by the Georgia Chamber of Commerce to encourage the people of Georgia to patronize home industries to open a branch in Atlanta, as one of the greatest automobile centers in America.
O. A. Moran, an Atlantan, who has been placed in charge of the branch, at 225 Peachtree street, states that it was the work of the Georgia Chamber of Commerce and particularly the "Seeing Georgia" tour that caused his company to open the branch in Atlanta. Mr. Moran states that his company has made application for membership in the Georgia Chamber and will lend their hearty support to future tours.

YELLOWSTONE PARK WILL BE OPENED TO AUTOISTS

Route Descriptions Prepared by the Goodrich National Touring Bureau.

The department of the interior will permit automobiles to enter Yellowstone National Park on a special permit under appropriate rules and regulations. These rules and regulations are now being formulated but will not be available for general distribution until some time next month. The Goodrich national touring bureau has prepared route descriptions from all points of the country, to Yellowstone, entering either via Cody on the east side or Gardiner on the north side, or via Pocatello and the west gate. All regular traffic in the park will be required to move in one general direction in making a circuit of the park, the automobiles leaving before the start of both morning and evening drives from the different entrances of the park at the rate of one mile on each side of the road. The regulations will be published in a pamphlet of the regulations. The automobile permit is made by the local automobile club or by the local automobile club. The permit is valid for the entire season. The permit is valid for the entire season. The permit is valid for the entire season.

RED RUBBER TIRE PLANT TO INCREASE FACILITIES

Alterations and Extensions Great Made Necessary by Rapid Growth of Business.

Growing preference for red rubber tires as expressed by motorists who know the value of a compelling Empire Rubber and Tire company, of Ironton, Mo., to inaugurate alterations and extensions in its plant with the idea of increasing production and of improving the facilities for handling it. Only those who have visited the plant in the New Jersey capital can have any idea of the amount of real estate involved. The ground owned by the company has a front of about one mile and is a half a mile wide. With this space the Empire company has abundant room to meet any expansion resulting from the demand for its superior grade of tires.
One of the buildings in the course of erection at the present time. A siding is also being run from the tracks of the Pennsylvania railroad direct to the shipping room. Changes and improvements to be made in the shipping room will mean a big facilitation to the factory.
The need of extra room is demonstrated by the fact that in the tire building department the men are being worked in three eight hour shifts. This fills up the entire twenty-four hours but is necessary in order to meet the demand.
The pressure on the facilities of the Empire factory is proof of the splendid satisfaction afforded by Empire tires last year. In actual use red tires have made good all the promises of durability and extra mileage. This is why more are constantly being sold. The company's sales of last year were made in large proportion to experienced motorists. These are especially welcomed customers for the Empire company likes to submit its product to the judgment of those who have used many tires and can appreciate tire values.
The complete red rubber tire represents an evolution. The red rubber tube known as the "peerless" was first brought to the public by this company. It had such success that the company abandoned gray rubber tubes entirely. The results obtained were so good that it was then decided to go the full limit and make copies of the same material. The results is the pioneer red rubber tire.
Every test subsequent to this time, factory road or users, has proved the superior durability of the red rubber tire. This tire is the successful effort of the Empire company to reduce the cost of tire mileage one of the most difficult problems that faces the motor car industry. In actual practice it is found that the red rubber tire will not cut or wear as rapidly as the other type according to Empire company experts and gives a mileage in proportion to its greater toughness. The increasing number of users whose purchases have compelled expansion at the factory shows that motorists have a growing confidence that Empire tires wear out slowly and go on the shelf only after long service.

Splendid Record Made By Cole Eight Auto

Direct From Factory
Indianapolis, Ind., May 29.—(Special.)—One eight cylinder car taken direct from the factory with no preliminary work has behaved like veterans in speed trials and they are destined to improve with driving. From Indianapolis to Cedar Rapids, Iowa, a distance of 481 miles the Cole averaged 23.15 miles an hour. From Cedar Rapids to Chicago, Ill., a distance of 487 miles an hour was made. On a trip from the factory in this city to Chicago, Ill., a distance of 487 miles an hour the Cole averaged 23.4 miles an hour. The real speed record was made on a trip from Athens, Ohio, to Indianapolis, 481 miles in 20 hours, 45 minutes, showing a better than 33 miles an hour showing at times a speed of more than 55 miles an hour.

Insufficient Charging Injurious to Machines, Declares C. G. Nixon

C. G. Nixon, of the Alexander-Sewald company city, says that one of the most frequent causes of dissatisfaction on the part of owners of electrically equipped cars is insufficient charging of their storage batteries.
As a rule the owner has no idea of how long a time it takes to recharge a battery that has begun to run down. He is usually in a hurry and wants to get his battery right back starting and lighting when the battery is back again in his car.
If the battery man gives in and lets him take his battery after it has been charged a few hours it will appear to give satisfactory service at first, but will very quickly go dead as he says in the morning. The owner is dissatisfied and very often serious injury is done to his battery.
Thorough charging is one of the strong points in Willard battery service. The company has established these service stations all over the United States, Canada and Mexico, and put battery experts in charge, so that the owner can bring his storage battery there and get it recharged thoroughly and on getting satisfactory starting and lighting when the battery is back again in his car.

Exiled for German Birth.
London, May 29.—Otto Humbert, owner of the Queens Hotel, Queenstown, a naturalized British subject of German birth, sailed from Liverpool today for New York. His behavior has been so suspicious that he is being kept under military and naval officers make their headquarters caused protests and he had to leave.

Army 6, Navy 5.
West Point, N. Y., May 29.—The Army defeated the Navy at baseball today, 6 to 5. The cadets hit Blodgett in the middle, gathering their tallies in pairs while Neyland, except for a momentary lapse in the third when the middle got three singles, was home run off him, kept the hits well distributed. The Army was outplayed in the field but the cadets' errors were not of the costly variety. Home runs by Mitchell and Hicks, and H. Fisher's hitting were features. A straight victory the cadets have scored over the middies in as many years. Neyland has won three years in succession, having beaten the Navy here in 1912 and at Annapolis last year. The series was a crowd of several thousand persons witnessed the contest a large proportion being prominent army and navy and government officials.
Score: R H E.
Army 6 10 3
Navy 5 10 3
Batteries—Blodgett and Hicks, Neyland and Oliphant.

"Bill" Stoddard, Pacemaker, Pays Tribute to His Maxwell "25" Car

Pacemaker Stoddard, who piloted the "Seeing Georgia" tour 630 miles, and the car, he says, "did its full duty" every mile of the way.

A glowing tribute is paid the Maxwell 25, used as pacemaker by W. J. Stoddard in the "Seeing Georgia" tour, just ended. He makes the statement that never in his experience has he driven a car that gave better satisfaction or performed more perfectly than did his mount in this test.

Atlanta, Ga.—Gentlemen: For your information I would like very much to submit the following report on the Maxwell 25, five-passenger touring car, used by me as the pacemaker's car on the first "Seeing Georgia" tour, which left Atlanta May 22 and returned May 27, covering a distance of 630 miles.

KNOWLES LOW MAN OUT OF 92 GOLFERS

Large Entry and Excellent Turf Feature Start of the Dickey Tournament Over Brookhaven Links.

Clarence Knowles, with a low score of 82, won a trophy and set the pace for ninety-two golfers who took part in the 18-hole qualifying round of the Dickey cup tournament, the winner of the Capital City club course at Brookhaven yesterday. Five flights were filled and the play now begins, with the finals a week from next Saturday.

The day was a success from every angle. The entry list was one of the largest that has ever started in a local club handicap tournament, the winner of the great prize and the prize money. Many compliments were paid Professional Staff, McKenzies and the members of the Capital City club for the results they have achieved despite the season's dry start.

The first round of match play will be completed by Wednesday, the second round on Thursday and the semifinals following Wednesday. Handicaps will apply in all matches which will be over the 18-hole course. The completion of the finals, which will go 36 holes.

President Dick Jemison, of the Georgia State league, left last night for Gainesville, Fla., to spend today and Monday. While there he will witness the formal transfer of the American franchise to the Florida city.

Since Americans surrendered the franchise to the league on April 15, President Jemison has been running the affairs of the club, and has been planning for some city anxious to get into professional baseball.

Manager Wagon will take the team to Gainesville from Thomaston today and the Orphans as they have been known since May 15, will play their first game at Gainesville in the Georgia State league on Monday with Brunswick as their opponents.

Since Jemison has also been turned over to Gainesville and will be raised at some future date in the season. The club is planning on making several changes in the personnel of the team that they expect to put the club right back in the running.

Indian Exhibit at San Francisco Attracts Attention of Thousands

The Indian, "from start to finish, knocked down and complete," is displayed on miniature stage prepared by artists.

Other models are a big two-speed, enamelled red; a service single, red; a big two-speed and speed car, canopy yellow; a two-speed Little Twin, blue; a three-speed electrically equipped, with the Hendee Special Mag-Dynamo, with only three electrical wires leading to the clutch, and an assembled mechanism is enamelled white. There is a big three-speed and side car, red; a big three-speed and side car, light gray; a black service single, three-speed and a big two-speed red.

The show cases contain sections of all the different parts of the models. One case has a mag-dynamo in operation, keeping up a steady sparking, as well as lighting the head and tail lights. The other case is the most interesting of the exhibits, contains a working engine, which has been cut sectionally in all possible parts, showing every little movement, from the oil-rod of which the entire mechanism can be seen—to the cans, cylinders and flywheel. Another case has an engine cut in detail, scattered about the engine, suggesting a sort of mechanical hen and her little chicks.

Another case has the three-speed, two-speed and neutral with a carburetor in half section. Still another case has the clutch parts and an assembled clutch in section, all parts of which can be plainly seen. Another case contains the gears and forks in section. On the floor are great beautiful rug and comfy soft seats. Among the decorations are the most magnificent, and the factory on State street in Springfield, the other of Hendeville; both in hand-colored pictures.

Catalogues are there—in English, French, Portuguese, Japanese and Spanish. It is understood that the exhibit cost $35,000.

and Short Grass, were heads behind. Royal L. King, lengths away, led the other starters of a field of nine. Roamer, Andrew Miller's champion 3-year-old, led the pack in the betting favorite, was eighth, more than twenty lengths back of the leader.

At the start Roamer flashed to the fore and kept the lead for nearly a mile, but when just about to the end, he was overtaken by the other horses. Prince Hermita took up the lead, but relinquished it when Borrow Jockey Nutter kept Borrow well up with the leaders during the early stages and when just about to the stretch rushed through the field and retained his advantage to the finish.

Behind Royal II, the other starters finished in order, Ringling twelve lengths back, ten lengths, and David Craig last.

Borrow is owned by Harry Payne Whitney, who recently leased his racing stable to L. Thompson. The handicap is the second capital stake capture of Kentucky tracks, this season by the Kentucky stable. His filly Regret won the derby.

A week's continued rain had left the track in poor condition. Borrow was lightly regarded in the betting because of a recent disappointing race he ran on the track and as a result, he was winning $2 mutual tickets at $31.40.

Y. M. C. A. contestants largely from Mississippi and Louisiana schools and colleges. The performance of Anna Jenkins, the Chicago High school girl, who featured in recent southern athletic meets, upset expectations in the 40-yard dash when she defeated Donald Scott, Mississippi A. & M. southern intercollegiate champion. Jenkins ran the race in 12 seconds flat, equaling the former record.

Jenkins equaled another record when she ran the 200-yard dash in 52.4 seconds. Donald Scott, of Mississippi A. & M., held the record for the 100-yard dash with a record of 2:01 3-5, when he easily took that event in 1:55 3-5 seconds.

Will Lewis, of Baton Rouge, Louisiana, set a new mark of 15 3-5 seconds in the 40-yard dash when he defeated Donald Scott, Mississippi A. & M. southern intercollegiate champion. Jenkins ran the race in 12 seconds flat, equaling the former record.

Barcelo, unattached, threw the 16-pound hammer 122 feet 2 inches, breaking the former mark of 119 feet 11 inches.

New Orleans, May 29.—Eight southern records were smashed and two others equaled in the senior events of the Southern Amateur Athletic Union Track and Field championship meet held at Tulane stadium today.

Philadelphia, Pa., May 29.—Officials for the most important football games next fall were chosen here last night at a meeting of the former college football rules committee's subcommittee on officials. Dr. James A. Babbit, of Haverford college, presided, and many prominent members of the profession of all the leading colleges were present.

TRADE BALANCE IS FAVORABLE

In Business Circles Every-thing Except War Has Been Discounted—Powerful Interests Bulwarked for Any Emergency

New York, May 29.—(Special.)—The stock market had another extremely dull week, as a result of the waiting attitude assumed by all interests until the reply to President Wilson's note to Germany had been received.

The "war stocks" performed their usual weekly gyrations, moving rapidly in one direction or the other.

The money market was extremely dull during the last week, with borrowing demand small, and with lenders making a profit of 2 per cent.

The trade balance in favor of the United States to the end of May is estimated at about $200,000,000.

Reports from all sources continue to indicate that the situation in regard to Germany is becoming more and more serious.

Government financial conditions under the new plan are being watched with interest.

RIGGS BANK OFFICIALS DENY BANK SPECULATED

Clerk of Lewis, Johnson & Co., Brokers, Claims Documentary Evidence to the Contrary.

New York, May 29.—(Special.)—On the very last day evidence was submitted in the Riggs National bank case, two affidavits were filed, which are certain to have an important bearing on the trial.

Charles C. Glover, William J. Flather and Henry H. Flather, being first duly sworn, on oath, say that they are the officers of the Riggs National bank.

W. Morris Lammond, being duly sworn, says: "I am now employed by the trustees of the Riggs National bank."

Steel Demand Good. The steel market has shown highly satisfactory progress during the last week, and during the month of May.

Wheat Tumbled. The wheat market tumbled sharply following the "Nebraska" incident.
