

U. S. EXPORT TRADE GRAVEL MENAGED BY EXCHANGE DROP

English Pound 313-4 Cents Below Normal, and It Seems to Be Headed for Unthought-of Low Levels.

MAMMOTH CREDIT LOAN PROPOSED FOR BRITAIN

N. Y. Bankers Willing to Advance Enormous Sum to Pay British Bills Here on High-Class American Securities Held by Britons. Possible Britain May Buy Elsewhere.

New York, August 31.—The tremendous export trade of the United States, in which the country leads the world for the first time, was imperiled today by an alarming drop in foreign exchange rates.

At the close of business tonight the English pound fetched only 145 1/2 in American money. This is a drop from its normal value of 151 cents and from its quotation last night of 150 cents, a twenty-four-hour break without precedent. It marked the lowest value yet recorded in an excited market where every day recently has set a new record of depreciation, and it indicates that sterling was headed downward with a momentum and velocity that promised to take it to unthought-of levels.

Britain May Buy Elsewhere. In the face of this rapid depreciation, bankers here were wondering tonight how much longer Great Britain would pay the premium and buy goods in this market which she can get elsewhere where the value of her money is greater.

What New York bankers want to do is to lend Great Britain an enormous sum of money to pay the bills here on approved collateral of high-class American railway and industrial stocks and bonds. This, it is believed, would tend to bring the pound back to normal.

It was learned tonight that some of the biggest international banking houses in New York have postponed their cable conferences, to London financiers three weeks ago the danger lurked ahead and suggested a course of action which would steady the markets for months until permanent methods of correction could be applied.

London has not been entirely ignored. The fact is that the cable conference held last night was not a success. The fact is that the cable conference held last night was not a success. The fact is that the cable conference held last night was not a success.

GERMANY SOUGHT TO BIND BRITAIN

Neutrality Demanded of Britain in All Circumstances While Germany's Hands Would Be Free: Statement by Sir Edward Grey.

London, August 31.—The British foreign office tonight issued a lengthy statement concerning the negotiations between Great Britain and Germany in 1912, compiled from the official records in the foreign office. The statement reads:

"An account of the 1912 Anglo-German negotiations was published in the semi-official Norddeutsche Allgemeine Zeitung last month. This account was misleading and no doubt was intended to mislead. It made it appear that the British government had at that time rejected what would be regarded in many quarters as a reasonable offer of friendship from Germany. In these circumstances it may be well to publish a statement of facts compiled from the official records here.

What Germany Demanded.
"Early in 1912 the German chancellor sketched to Lord Haldane (then British lord high chancellor) the following formula as one which would meet the views of the imperial government:

"First—The high contracting parties assure mutually that they have no desire for peace and friendship. Second—They will, not either of them, make or prepare to make any unprovoked attack upon the other or join in any combination or design against the other for the purpose of aggression or become a party to any plan of naval or military enterprise, alone or in combination with any other power, directed to such an end, and declare themselves not to be bound by any such agreement.

"Third—If either of the high contracting parties becomes entangled in war with one or more powers, in which it cannot be said to be the aggressor, the other party will at least observe toward the power so entangled benevolent neutrality and refrain from any endeavor for the localization of the conflict, if either of the high contracting parties are prepared to make by obvious provocation a third party they bind themselves to enter into an agreement of neutrality concerning their attitude on such a conflict.

"Fourth—The duty of neutrality which arises out of the preceding article has no application in so far as it may not be reconcilable with existing agreements or treaties already made between the high contracting parties already have made.

"Fifth—The making of new agreements which would require the high contracting parties to observe neutrality toward the other beyond what is provided by the preceding limitations is excluded in conformity with the provisions of article 2.

"Sixth—The high contracting parties assure they will do all in their power to prevent differences and misunderstandings arising between them and other powers.

Conditions Grossly Unfair.
"These conditions, although in appearance fair as between the parties, would have been grossly unfair and unbalanced in their operation. Owing to the general position of the European powers and the treaty obligations which they were bound, the result of articles 4 and 5 would have been that while Germany, in case of a European war, would remain free to support her friends, this country would have been forbidden to raise a finger in her aid.

"Germany could arrange without difficulty that the formal inception of hostilities should rest upon Austria, Italy, Austria and Russia were at war. Germany would support Austria, as is evident from what occurred in the case of July, 1914, while as soon as Russia was attacked by two powers, France was bound to come to her aid. In other words, the pledge of neutrality offered by Germany would have been absolutely worthless, as she could always plead the necessity of fulfilling her existing obligations under the triple alliance as an excuse for departing from neutrality.

"On the other hand, no such departure would have been possible for this country, which was bound by no alliances with the exception of those with Japan and Portugal, while the making of fresh alliances was prohibited by article 5. In appearance, therefore, still more evident later, there was to be a guarantee of absolute neutrality on one side but on the other it was impossible for us to enter into a contract so obviously inequitable, and the formula, accordingly, was rejected by Sir Edward Grey, the British foreign minister.

What Britain Proposed.
"Count Paul Wolff-Metternich (then German ambassador to Great Britain) upon this, pressed for counter proposals, which, he stated, would be without prejudice and not binding unless we were satisfied our wishes were met on the subject. Sir Edward Grey, on the 14th of March, 1912, gave Count Wolff-Metternich the following formula, which had been approved by the cabinet:

"England will make no unprovoked attack upon Germany and pursue no aggressive policy toward her. Aggression upon Germany is not the subject and forms no part of any treaty, understanding or combination to which England now is a party, and which has become a party to anything that has such an object.

"Count Wolff-Metternich thought this formula inadequate and suggested two alternative additional clauses. "England will therefore undertake at least benevolent neutrality should war be forced upon Germany or England will, therefore, as a matter of course, remain neutral if war is forced upon Germany."

"This, he added, would not be binding unless our wishes were met with regard to the naval program. Sir Edward Grey considered both the proposals were sufficient. He explained that if Germany desired to crush France, England would be able to sit still, though if France were aggressive or attacked Germany no support would be given by his majesty's government or approved by England.

Germany Wanted England Neutral.
"It is obvious that the real object of the German proposal was to obtain the neutrality of England in all eventualities, since should a European war break out Germany would certainly contend that it had been forced upon her and would claim that England should remain neutral.

"An admirable example of this is the present war, in which, in spite of the facts Germany contends war has been forced upon her. Even the third member of the triple alliance, who had sources of information not open to us, did not share this view but regarded it as an aggressive policy.

"Sir Edward Grey eventually proposed the following formula: "The two powers being mutually desirous of securing peace and friendship between them England declares that she will neither make nor join in any unprovoked attack on Germany. Aggression upon Germany forms no part of any treaty, understanding or combination to which England now is a party, nor will she become a party to anything that has such an object."

"Sir Edward Grey when he ended this formula to Count Wolff-Metternich said that the use of the word neutrality would convey the impression that more was meant than was warranted by the text. He suggested that the substance of a part was required would be obtained from the more accurately expressed words 'will neither make nor join in any unprovoked attack'.

Germany Sought Absolute Pledge.
"Count Wolff-Metternich thereupon received instructions to make it quite clear that the emperor would recommend to the emperor to give up the essential parts of the Novelle (the bill then pending for an increase in the German navy) only if we could conclude an agreement guaranteeing neutrality of far-reaching character and leaving no doubt as to any interpretation. He admitted that the chancellor's wish amounted to a demand for absolute neutrality, failing which the Novelle must proceed.

"Count Wolff-Metternich stated that there was no chance of a withdrawal of the Novelle, but said that it might be modified. It would be disappointing to the chancellor if we did not go beyond the formula we had suggested. Sir Edward Grey said that he could understand that there would be disappointment if his majesty's government were to state that the carrying out of the Novelle would put an end to the negotiations and form an insurmountable obstacle to better relations. His majesty's government did not say this and they hoped that the formula which they had suggested might be considered in connection with the discussion of territorial arrangements, even if it did not prove effective in preventing an increase in the naval expenditures.

Not Sufficient for Germany.
"Sir Edward Grey added that if some arrangements could be made between the two governments it would have a favorable though indirect effect upon naval expenditures, as time went on, it would have, moreover, a favorable direct effect on the public opinion of both countries.

"A few days afterward Count Wolff-Metternich communicated to Sir Edward Grey the substance of a letter from the chancellor in which the latter said that as the formula suggested by his majesty's government was, from the German point of view, insufficient and his majesty's government could not agree to the larger formula for which he had asked the Novelle must proceed on the lines on which it had been presented to the federal council.

"The negotiations then came to an end with the hope that a mutual reduction in the naval expenditures by the two countries."

FORMER JUSTICE COMMITS SUICIDE BY TAKING ACID

Rome, Ga., August 31.—(Special)—George N. Rosson, a Floyd county farmer and former justice of the peace, committed suicide here yesterday by drinking carbolic acid. He then went to the office of the ordinary at the courthouse, borrowed a pencil and paper and wrote two letters, which were found on his body.

One was to his wife, and stated that the world was against him, his health was failing and the best thing for him to do was to die. The other was a will, in which he selected Charles W. Morris as his administrator, and left his entire estate to his wife, Mrs. Fannie Rosson. The dead man was a schoolteacher and was in the government service for a time as a guard about 55 years of age, and had been at the federal prison in Atlanta.

Certain Sonora Phonographs Are Reduced Ten Per Cent

The unexpected has happened—for the first time a Sonora Phonograph may be bought under its standard listed price. We are privileged to make this offer on account of changes in the cabinets that the new Sonora will show. The motors are the same as the new instruments will have (the Sonora motor has long been the criterion of talking machine motors). In fact, the essentials, the sound reproducing parts of these and the new machines are identical—the cabinets are to be different, and therefore a saving on these!

- A $25.00 Sonora is $22.50
- A $50.00 Sonora is $45.00
- A $35.00 Sonora is $31.50
- A $100.00 Sonora is $90.00
- A $150.00 Sonora is $135.00

See them, hear them—you must like them, possessing as they do every quality that has given the Sonora its enviable place in the talking machine world.

Terms may be had as usual.

WHITE TRUCKS
Awarded the GRAND PRIZE
BY THE PANAMA-PACIFIC INTERNATIONAL EXPOSITION AT SAN FRANCISCO

THE ONLY GRAND PRIZE—THE HIGHEST AWARD FOR MOTOR TRUCKS

Was conferred upon White Trucks by the Superior Jury of Award, as officially announced by the Secretary of the Jury under date of August Second. This is the ONLY GRAND PRIZE received by any motor truck at the Panama-Pacific International Exposition.

This decision of the Superior Jury of Award reflects the opinion of the largest users of motor trucks throughout the world—and is in accordance with the actual service results of motor truck experience. The points of merit upon which the Grand Prize is awarded are identical with those that have determined the selection of White Trucks by America's foremost firms in every line of business. White supremacy in the motor truck industry is thus recognized by the highest award that can be bestowed by the greatest exposition the world has ever known—just as this supremacy has been recognized by motor truck users for many years.

REGARDING OTHER CLAIMS
The decision of the Superior Jury is final in the matter of Exposition awards. Hence any announcements of other motor truck manufacturers, claiming to have received the Grand Prize and Highest Award for motor trucks at the Panama-Pacific International Exposition, are automatically denied by this decision of the Superior Jury of Award.

HOW TO RECOVER OUR DRUG ADDICTS

By Sam W. Small.

The computation that there are 2,000 cocaine addicts in and about Atlanta is scarcely surprising to anyone who knows the general genesis and correlations of the dope habit.

One of the startling revelations of the Harrison anti-narcotic act is the fact that the cocaine heroin and opium habits flourish most epidemically where liquors also most abound.

Understand me, I am not making that statement from the standpoint of an anti-alcoholist. I have had personal experience as many in Atlanta well know.

I have a profound sympathy for every poor brother or sister who has been enslaved by either liquor or dope and heartily second any and every effort and measure that promises their salvation.

There is a man in New York City who is now the recognized expert facile pipe-pee on the subject of drug addictions.

Charles B. Towns has made a life study of drug diseases and recently published a book on Habit-Forming Drugs that is receiving the highest praise in medical and reform circles.

Life is a wondrous symphony Its theme is Mind and Heart God the great Music Master leads And gives each man his part.

Some play the parts assigned them well, True to the Masters will Some fail to comprehend their parts And, blundering play them ill.

But in so vast an orchestra As is this world of men, Twice strange indeed did we not hear Some discords now and then.

But we'll the Leader knoweth this, All-wise and kind is He And in a world of various men Not all can act as we.

So He whose master hand directs The music of the spheres With patient love points out and solves The discords which He hears.

A time will come when every man, Shall perfect play the part God gave him in life's symphony Whose theme is Mind and Heart.

Life's music then from discords free That marred the theme for years At last will blend harmonious with The music of the spheres.

The Holland Letter

From Washington has come an official report which might be used to illustrate the truth that is the spirit of the Scriptures.

To them that hath shall be given The United States is accumulating gold so rapidly that very likely the Washington statisticians may report by and by that the time has come when we shall hold in the vaults of the United States in the year 1914 the mines of the United States and the territories produced new gold in round numbers valued at a net of five million dollars.

LANDLORDS

Very often think a young man or girl only expect to rent a bed, table and chair surrounded by four walls. But the young man and the young girl have very different ideas. Remember, that inclosure of four walls is their home. If you can fix up a few rooms nicely, and have a smile once and awhile for your young (or old) roomers, why, a small want ad in this paper will rent all the rooms you can furnish in no time.

Young men are a bit exacting, you think, but be a philosopher, give them a chance to see you mean well by them, and they will be quick to appreciate.
