Wilson Solemnly Warns the Nation To Prepare to Maintain Its Honor

COUNTRY TRENDS FROM DAY TO DAY IN THE VERY MIDST OF GRAVE DANGERS

"Let Me Tell You Very Solemnly, You Cannot Postpone This Thing," Declared Wilson "I Do Not Know What a Single Day May Bring Forth"

HONOR OF THE NATION DEARER THAN PEACE, DEARER EVEN THAN LIFE

Time May Come, the President Declares, When He Cannot Both Keep the United States Out of War and Maintain Its Honor. Country Must Be Prepared to Defend Itself, and Prepared to Once.

Cleveland, January 29.—President Wilson speaking as he said solemnly warned the nation tonight that the time may come when he cannot both keep the United States out of war and maintain its honor. He declared that the country must be prepared to defend itself and prepared to once.

FEARS DANGER OF INADEQUACY

America is not afraid of anybody he said. I know I reflect your feelings and the feeling of all of our citizens when I say the only thing I am afraid of is not being ready to perform my duty. I am afraid of the danger of inadequacy. I am afraid of the danger of not being able to express the chief character of this country with tremendous might and effective force whenever we are called upon to act in the field of the world's affairs.

The president spoke in Cleveland tonight with more gravity and force than he has shown during any of his previous addresses on preparedness. He was applauded frequently and when he spoke of ending the nation's honor the cheering was tremendous. "Let me tell you very solemnly you cannot postpone this thing," he declared. "I do not know what a single day may bring forth. I do not wish to leave you with the impression that I am thinking of some particular danger."

DAILY FACING DANGERS

"I merely wish to tell you that we are daily facing dangers."

EMORY WILL SURPASS HARVARD, BELIEVES ORR

City Confronted With Great Opportunity in Raising of $500,000 Fund.

Harvard many times outside the prediction of Emory university made by J. Orr who declares that an invitation to subscribe to the $500,000 fund being raised in Atlanta is nothing short of a great opportunity. Emory already has such a foundation as to its prestige and reputation as to make it the most influential toward making an educational center. Compare the start of Harvard with that of Emory and see how much more auspicious is our exciting Harvard was founded on the fortunes of John Harvard which costed of $2,500. This and a little library formed the nucleus about which the great university was built. Look at Emory—already with a $1,000,000 endowment. If Emory with its $1,000,000 foundation grows in the same proportion as Harvard with its start of $2,500—think of it.

VENABLE USES DOGS TO CLINCH A POINT FOR PREPAREDNESS

Washington, January 29.—Representative Venable of Mississippi made his maiden speech in the house today in support of preparedness. "I once knew a little runt of a dog," said Mr. Venable, "and because he was small and weak he was continually in scraps. And then I knew another dog. He was a magnificent specimen of his race with great tusks and sinews and haunches and he lived a life of peace respected by dogs and men. I know because I owned him five years and many times I carried him when I felt like kicking him. He was prepared. He sank to sleep with all his instincts unimpaired and his personal property and rights respected. Mr. Venable is the successor of the late Representative Witherspoon, former leader of the anti-preparedness forces in the house. He said the country wanted preparedness and his constituents wanted to help pay for it, too. Rather than put all the burden on persons of large incomes. A score of republicans including Thad. Joe Cannon congratulated Mr. Venable.

FLORIDA DEMOCRATS FACE RELIGIOUS TEST

State Committee Asked to Repeal Resolution in Regard to Primary.

Tampa Fla. January 29.—The fight on the state democratic executive committee's action in passing a resolution which is intended to bar from primary any member of a religious or political organization who is forced or not to vote for a nominee of the primary because of religious prejudice, took a new turn today when the county executive committee of the party in this (Hillsborough) county asked Chairman G. P. Roney of the state committee to convene the committee and strike out sections four and five of the Sturkie resolution. This in Chairman Roney's home county and he appeared before the committee urging that the resolution not be passed. The vote was 26 to 14 for the resolution. The chairman told the committee he would not convene the state committee unless a majority of the members ask for re-convening. He has had request for another meeting from seven out of fifty-one members. B. L. Blackburn who introduced the resolution said he has knowledge that eight-tenths of the state committeemen have expressed desire that the committee be re-convened.

DID POLITICS PLAY PART IN ELECTION?

Retiring Board Ordered to Inquire Into Fitness of Major Levy, of Augusta, to Continue in Commission.

Following allegations that in a recent vacancy of lieutenant colonel's place in the first regiment Georgia national guard Major Abram Levy of Augusta conducted a political campaign to get the place Adjutant General J. Van Holt Nash has ordered a retiring board to inquire into his fitness to continue in commission.

The retiring board was ordered at the request of Colonel John Butler of Savannah commanding the first regiment, under whom Major Levy is a commissioned officer. The detail of the retiring board is as follows: Major William H. Beck of the second regiment president; Major J. O. Seamans of the second squadron of cavalry and Major George C. Hayward, Jr. of the coast artillery corps recorder. This board is ordered by the adjutant general to sit in Augusta upon the call of the president of the board. The retiring board is called under the Georgia code section which permits the adjutant general to name such a board to act in lieu of a court-martial. Major Levy commands the third battalion of the first regiment of the Georgia national guard with headquarters in Augusta. This is the first time that a retiring board has been ordered since 1909 and the second time in a very long sequence of years.

EXPORT TAX PROPOSED ON MUNITIONS OF WAR

Washington, January 29.—Two hundred million dollars of revenue annually as long as the European war lasts is the estimate of revenue which would be produced under a bill introduced today by Representative Flood, of Virginia, chairman of the house foreign affairs committee to levy a tax of 10 per cent of the selling price of munitions of war manufactured for the European belligerents in the United States. It was referred to the ways and means committee.

HOT FIGHT NOW ON TO OUST JOHNSON AS G. O. P. LEADER

Disregarded Instructions to Vote for Elihu Root as Temporary Chairman of Last Republican Convention, Declare Opponents.

JOHNSON ALLIED SELF WITH ROOSEVELT MEN, SAYS ROSCOE PICKETT

"This Fact, Within Itself, Is Enough to Retire Him to Private Life," Asserts Man Who Seeks the Chairmanship of State.

The fight which became apparent in the ranks of the republican organization in Georgia several weeks ago when State Chairman Walter Johnson, of Columbus, and Georgia National Committeeman Henry S. Jackson, of Atlanta, set to the work that neither favored the other for reelection has moved on apace, according to information in Atlanta yesterday. It now appears that there is forming a very definite organization to back Senator Roscoe Pickett, of the forty-first district, for the state chairmanship in the republican state convention, the date and place for which has not yet been fixed. It is understood that Mr. Jackson and his friends will support Senator Pickett against Mr. Johnson. Mr. Johnson has served as chairman of the state committee for twenty years or such a matter, but the Jackson faction of the party now claim that at the national convention in Chicago in 1912 Mr. Johnson did not vote square with the Georgia organization and for this reason they are now seeking to put another man in the chair in his stead. Claims of Johnson's Opponents. The Jackson-Pickett faction claims that Mr. Johnson was made chairman of the Georgia delegation to the national convention at his request with the understanding that he considered his career fairly full and did not intend to offer for reelection to the state chairmanship. It is claimed by Mr. Johnson's opponents that he went to Chicago with instructions to cast a unit vote for the entire Georgia delegation for Elihu Root for temporary chairman of the national convention. They charge, however, that instead of following these instructions Mr. Johnson cast the vote of the Georgia delegation for Governor McGovern of Wisconsin for the temporary chairman ship. Describing the incident in the Chicago gathering Mr. Pickett says: "As a result of that action on Mr. Johnson's part we were forced to challenge the vote of the Georgia delegation—our own delegation—and it became necessary to expose the attempt to violate the instructions given to the chairman. That created nation wide attention and at that time was commented on by the press throughout the country. "Since the national convention of 1912, Mr. Pickett says, instead of opposing the republican leaders of Georgia after the Chicago convention a meeting of the republican state central committee was held in Atlanta at which a majority of the members were present when resolutions were adopted condemning the action of Walter H. Johnson the state chairman for bolting the party in the Chicago national convention and disregarding the instructions of the republican convention of 1912. The resolutions declared him unfit for further confidence in the leadership of the party in this state. At that meeting in Atlanta a majority of the delegates were in favor of electing his successor immediately, but after some discussion of the subject, in which the question was thoroughly debated the committee contented itself with adopting the resolutions of criticism and charging him with unfaithful conduct and recommending that the administration not consider him any longer a party leader but that his successor be elected at the state convention in 1916. Will Fight Johnson. Mr. Johnson allied himself with the Roosevelt forces at Chicago after pledging himself to carry out the instructions of the Georgia delegation and bolted the republican party and contented those who are supporting me for the state chairmanship that this fact, within itself, is sufficient ground for retiring Mr. Johnson to private life and for electing a successor in the office of state chairman. Mr. Johnson has been state chairman for twenty years and because of that fact he had the complete confidence of the Georgia

ALARM SOUNDED BY FIRE ENGINES AND TRUMPETERS

Searchlights Were Also Turned on the Zeppelin and Aeroplanes Gave Chase. About a Dozen Bombs Were Dropped in All.

Paris, January 30.—(120 a. m.)—The prescribed trumpet signal announcing that danger from Zeppelins is past has been given and the city is again lighted as usual. Paris, January 30.—A Zeppelin was heard over Paris at 9:30 o'clock last night and shortly after two bombs were dropped. Paris has been completely darkened in anticipation of a Zeppelin raid. Fire engines and squads of trumpeters are going through the city sounding the alarm. Searchlights also are in operation and the noise of aeroplanes is heard in several directions. It has been learned that about a dozen bombs were dropped in all, killing ten persons and wounding thirty. A man, three women and two children were killed by one of the bombs dropped by the raiders when a house was destroyed.

Neighbors' Action "Just Persecution," Says Pastor's Son

Declares Neighbor Sent Dr. Jones Word, "If You Don't Let Me Put Light in Front of Your House I'll Quit Trinity Church."

Denying the charge of neighbors that he used a can of black paint to bring darkness to the corner of Highland and Adair avenues Wednesday night, Dr. C. O. Jones pastor of the Trinity Methodist church told his side in the light argument which is holding sway at that corner between the residents and the Jones family and explained the complaint taken by Mrs. Jones at the office of The Constitution yesterday afternoon. Publicity of the light argument was brought out when a restraining order was served Saturday on Arthur L. Brooke and Thad J. Cheshire residents of that community who are in favor of light and plenty of it. According to Dr. Jones a year ago commissioners of Fulton county issued a permit to certain citizens of Adair avenue to place an incandescent light at the corner of that street and Highland and a contract for that shade was placed on the light in order to keep it from penetrating the Jones home. Light Too Bright. The light according to Dr. Jones was supposed to be satisfactory but last Monday it was taken down and a flaming arc light substituted in its place he says. Dr. Jones further stated that the new light was the brightest in the city and a destroyer of sleep and comfort at night. Dr. Jones further stated that the attention of Preston S. Arkwright, president of the Georgia Railway and Power company was called to the light and he ordered an ordinary one to be placed there similar to the original one. The men put up the ordinary light, he stated, but painted too large an area, which eliminated the light from most of Adair avenue. The citizens went to Mr. Arkwright, stating that they had a contract for a flaming arc and would enforce it. Thereupon the flaming arc was substituted for the ordinary one. Dr. Jones further stated that the light was 50 feet from the bedroom windows of the Jones residence, 185 feet from the nearest home on Adair avenue and 800 feet from the home of one of the residents on the other side of the argument. "The Jones, feeling that there was no other protection," stated Dr. Jones, obtained an injunction from Judge Ellis returnable March 4, when the matter will be decided by law. N. T. GERMANS ASSAULT FRENCH POSITIONS ALONG WIDE FRONT AND CLAIM GAINS

According to Berlin, the Kaiser's Forces Made Notable Advances South of River Somme and to the Northeast of Neuville.

1,100 PRISONERS TAKEN, ALSO 22 MACHINE GUNS, ACCORDING TO GERMANS

The French War Office, However, Claims German Attack Failed Everywhere Except on the Bank of the Somme, Where a French Detachment Was Driven From the Village of Frise. London, January 29.—The western war front has been the scene of heavy fighting the Germans having launched a determined offensive there after making, in recent days several dents in the entente allies' lines, which had been straightened out again in whole or in part by counter attack. The Tenth today after heavy bombardments assaulted the allied positions along a front of several kilometers south of the river Somme and to the northeast of Neuville in the Artois region. GERMANS CLAIM NOTABLE GAINS. The attacks resulted, according to Berlin, in sweeping gains in both cases the village of Frise and 1,000 yards of trenches south of it being taken in the more southerly sector while in the Neuville region 1,500 yards of trenches were stormed, the gains amounting to nearly a mile at a half of front. Incidentally more than 1,100 prisoners and 22 machine guns were taken. The French account of the fighting south of the Somme differs materially from that given by Berlin. It is declared that the Germans failed in their attack except on the bank of the Somme where they were able to drive a detachment of French troops out of the village of Frise. Paris asserts that the attack has been checked and that some of the trenches lost were recovered in the first of the French counter attacks. In its account of the fighting in the Artois, the Paris war office apparently refers to the operation mentioned in Berlin as taking place near Neuville. It being asserted that a portion of the trenches occupied by Germans were retaken. RUSSIANS WIN IN THE CAUCASUS. Elsewhere than on the Franco-Belgian front there have been no important engagements recently so far as the official reports show except that in the Caucasus the Russians claim to have scored material successes against the Turks. Petrograd again points to the possible results of the operations of the Russian Caucasus army being markedly helpful to the British in Mesopotamia, referring to the advance of the Russian column south of Hamadan where a comparatively short distance separated the Russian and British forces in the two theaters of war. Although the

HOT FIGHT COMING ON PREPAREDNESS

Continental Army Scheme Confronted With Serious Opposition in Senate and House Military Committees

Washington, January 29.—While President Wilson is carrying to the country his appeal for adequate national defense, one of the vital elements of the program he has recommended to congress—the continental army—is confronted by serious opposition in both the senate and house military committees.

Situation of Various Proposals.

After three weeks of continuous hearings before various committees, the administration proposals on preparedness are not very far advanced.

The senate military committee has heard most of the regular army officials and many officers outside the department, and expects to conclude its hearings next Wednesday.

The house military committee has heard the administration proposals and expects to continue hearings for two weeks at least.

The senate naval committee has discussed only the proposal to build a government arsenal at Washington, and has not touched the administration building program for the navy.

The senate naval committee has heard three bureau chiefs of the navy department on details of proposed navy legislation touching only industrial building and the development of the coast defense.

The house naval committee has heard the administration proposals and expects to continue hearings for two weeks at least.

The house naval committee has heard the administration proposals and expects to continue hearings for two weeks at least.

So far only one witness, Miss Jane Addams, representing the Woman's Peace Party, has appeared before any committee in opposition to any increase whatever in the army or navy.

Senator Chamberlain, chairman of the senate military committee, said tonight he would turn out his committee without a well-rounded bill providing for all the elements of a national army of a million or more men.

So far as the navy is concerned, there has been little on which to judge the feeling of the house committee, but it seems evident that a considerably increased building program for 1917 will be favored.

Members of both houses, the prevailing opinion seems to be that Secretary Daniels' five-year program finally will go through and possibly be augmented in some particulars.

Before the senate military committee the only one to hold hearings today on the preparedness plans, William Barclay Parsons, of New York, representing American engineering societies in all lines, advocated enactment of the war department scheme for a reserve officers' corps.

U. S. TENTS AND COTS FOR DIXIE VETERANS

Washington, January 29.—The senate joint resolution authorizing the loan of 1,000 tents and 1,000 cots of the war department to the United Confederate Veterans' encampment at Birmingham next May was favorably reported to the house today by the military committee.

Atlanta Will Enjoy Mid-Winter Season of Grand Opera Feb. 18-19; Pavlova and the Boston Grand Opera Stars Coming to the Atlanta

Pavlova, Tamaki Miura, the Japanese lyric soprano, and Giovanni Zenatello, dramatic tenor.

With two of the world's most famous organizations appearing simultaneously—the Boston Grand Opera company and the Pavlova Russe Ballet—Atlanta will have a mid-winter season of grand opera Friday and Saturday, February 18 and 19, at the Atlanta theater.

The combination of the great organizations will furnish Atlanta with grand opera that is a novelty and will in no way interfere with the Metropolitan season, which will come in late April. In fact, before contracts were signed for the three performances, Max Rubinoff, managing director of the two companies, spent some time in Atlanta consulting with the leading directors of the local music association and with leaders of society.

The result was the enthusiastic welcoming of the great entertainers and the assurance that the mid-winter season would be made a gala social occasion. H. M. Atkinson, one of the leading directors, who is responsible for the Metropolitan season, started the ball rolling by subscribing for a box at the three performances.

Novelty in grand opera of such unusual character was given enthusiastic approval by the Atlantans consulted and all were in accord in the decision that Atlanta must have this mid-winter engagement. It was not until Mr. Rubinoff was firmly impressed by this idea that contracts for the appearance of the two noted companies were signed.

Ryszard Ordynski, colleague of Max Reinhardt, came from Berlin to stage the production. Everything is on a mammoth and wonderfully artistic scale.

For the Atlanta season the following will be offered: Friday Night—"Madame Butterfly," with Tamaki Miura, the Japanese prima donna, in the title role.

Saturday Matinee—"Il Pagliaccio" with Giovanni Zenatello as "Carpio," Felice Luzzi as "Nedda," Graham Marr as "Tonio," to be followed by Mrs. Pavlova and the Ballet Russe in "Snowflakes."

Saturday Night—"La Boheme," with Maggie Teyte as Mimi, supported by Riccardo Martin, Thomas Chalmers and Jose Mardones, to be followed by Mrs. Pavlova and the Ballet Russe in Spanish dances from Massenet.

Naturally, the interest of the public has centered in the tiny woman from the Orient, whose personal magnetism and individual charm appear to have won for her the instant admiration of almost everyone who has seen her.

Vocally, she has also satisfied because her instrument is described by no less distinguished a critic than Henry T. Flock, of the New York Evening Tribune, who wrote: "The enthusiasm was in these terms: 'It soars true as a bell, up and up, with no effort, with unusual volume, and a warmth that thrills. It would be interesting to hear her in some Occidental role, though no other part could suit her as Butterfly does.'"

A Fine Actress. Henry F. Kriebel, in the New York Tribune, wrote: "The enthusiasm was entirely justified, for not only is her performance authoritative, but she is a fine actress, reminding one of her great countrywoman, Sadie Yacco. As a climax to these qualifications for the role she has a voice of unusual beauty, power and fervor.

Her voice is an asset in this part, as Tamaki Miura seems to be the child she is supposed to be. She is as gay and child-like, as full of laughter as a tiny Japanese maiden would be, but there is also remarkable dignity and polish in her manner.

But apart from this individual novelty—and the splendid other principals of the Boston Grand Opera company, the orchestra, chorus and stunning scenic investiture—there is the notable advantage of the Ballet Russe. Heretofore, no grand opera in this country has had with it a ballet organization which has been as favorable to this one. And the arrangement provides for the appearance of Pavlova and her associates at every performance following the opera.

WILSON IS APPROVED BY THE LONDON PRESS

President's Address in New York Regarded as Being Directed at Germany.

London, January 29.—London newspapers of this afternoon speak approvingly of President Wilson's speech before the Railway Business association in New York Thursday night, which, through messages forwarded by American correspondents, they regard as having been directed toward Germany. On the other hand, the newspapers regard Secretary Lansing's proposal on submarine warfare, to which they give great prominence, as favorable to Germany. The Pall Mall Gazette says: "The development of President Wilson's views upon the philosophy of war from peace moves with striking rapidity. Last summer, with the fate of the Lusitania and its murdered American passengers before his eyes, he made a bewildering speech about being too proud to fight, which disconcerted all his subsequent diplomacy. This week he has delivered himself in a very different sense, which is more accordant with the reasoning of a normal mind."

"The last eight months have taught President Wilson the practical consequences of the same, whether the mood be one of pride or conscience or unbridled ambition. The result is a reaction which puts no backing of force behind his words will be marked by the aptly chosen phrase 'I will be sunk, its subjects outraged.' It may even have a foreign imperium in its own territory. The outcome of the 'I will be sunk' speech has been the establishment of Count von Bernstorff as President Wilson's colleague in the government of the United States, and a grave decline in the moral prestige of the American people throughout the world."

The Westminster Gazette says: "Every day by steady blows, the United States more closely in the incidents and fortunes of the European struggle, though it is not necessary to assume she will soon reach the point of being arms in it, or ever reach it at all. We may believe this is now, like the president's contemplated such a possibility without shrinking and with the determination to be prepared for the emergency, should it arise."

MINE WORKERS MAY BE MEMBERS OF MILITIA

Indianapolis, Ind., January 29.—An attempt in the convention of the United Workers of America today to incorporate in the constitution a provision barring from membership persons who belong to the national guard or state constabulary was blocked by adjournment and what promised to be a warm debate went over until Monday. John L. Lewis, of Illinois, in the chair, ruled the amendment out of order on the ground that it conflicted with the military laws of several of the states and possibly the federal law. Frank Farrington, president of the Illinois miners and chairman of the constitution committee, spoke against the amendment. There was some hissing while he was speaking.

100 LIVES CLAIMED BY CALIFORNIA FLOOD

San Diego, Cal., January 29.—(By Wireless to San Francisco.)—One hundred lives have been lost, as nearly as any estimate can show, and valleys for fifty miles north of the Mexican line of demarcation tonight from floods and cloudbursts.

With the death toll in the Otay valley seemingly established at fifty, 140000 people reached here late today of floods sweeping the San Luis Rey and San Pasqual valleys, doubling the loss of life. A cloudburst, reports had it, caused the flooding of the San Luis Rey and San Pasqual valleys. The town San Pasqual said to have been wiped out altogether.

Fate of Towns Unknown. Nothing was known as to the fate of San Luis Rey and Oceanside, in the path of the San Luis river, but in the flood of the reported magnitude, it seemed impossible that the former could have escaped. Otay river which side is a summer resort with two good-sized hotels and a population of about 1,000.

Railroads, highways, telephones, telegraph—all ordinary means of communication almost entirely cut off. Only the sea remained and from it aid began to come. An expedition from the United States was reported to have started in launches for the Otay valley. Reports were that the first landing was made in San Diego bay. The destroyer Lawrence anchored off the mouth of the Otay river, which stream ran bankfull after being dry for years.

An overland expedition also was started from San Diego with pontoons and engineering equipment. No word came as to its success.

First Reports of Disaster. First reports of the Otay disaster reached here late Thursday. They told of ranch houses washed away and of cattle and stock drowned. Investigation tonight indicates exceptionally high water, and word came that the lower Otay dam was holding. This dam started as a reinforced concrete affair, was changed above the foundation line to a strip of riveted steel in concrete, as a backbone for a loose rock dam. Engineering magazines said that when the reservoir was full the test of the construction would be made. The recent rains filled it. Last night the flood, bearing human bodies, with a frightful amount of wreckage, including hundreds of rattlesnakes, from the mountain sides, established seemingly beyond all doubt, the collapse of the dam.

The Tijuana river was at its highest in its history and reports received here from Tijuana say the town is under water. Rain continued here tonight.

LEAVES HOLDING IN ARKANSAS. Little Rock, Ark., January 29.—Dispatches tonight from points in eastern Arkansas and White rivers in eastern Arkansas, where the flood situation is regarded as grave, reported all levees holding and property damage so far confined to the flooding of unprotected lowlands and the inundation of several small towns. Continued rain tonight added to the gravity of the situation.

F. H. Fuller, of Fort Wayne, Ind., who yesterday was reported almost drowned in Clinton, was found alive today. Fuller swam to the bank of a small river near Clinton when he began to drown, which had attempted to ford the stream was swept away. He returned to Clinton tonight.

Prominent Contractor Took Treatment For Alcoholism At James Sanatorium

Gentlemen—It gives me much pleasure to write this short testimonial of the great work your institution is doing for the unfortunate men of our land. For many years I was a slave to the whiskey habit, but when I had become a physical and almost a moral wreck I was persuaded by some friends to go to your Sanatorium and take treatment, which I did, and in three weeks I was entirely cured. I now feel better than I have for years, sleep sounder, appetite better and nerves steadier, since being restored to my former self. It shall be my pleasure, as I go through life, to tell all the good work your institution is doing and possibly help some poor, unfortunate person who is in the same condition. I once was. May you long continue in the good work in which you are engaged. Apprecatively yours, CARL J. PRINTY, Carthage, Ill., April 6, 1915.

CURED OF DRUG HABIT

I am glad I went to your Sanatorium. I know I am cured of the Drug Habit. I am thankful to you and Dr. Morrow and Almighty God for being alive today. Adair, Miss. J. D. BLACK.

HOME TREATMENT

For Alcoholism, Tobacco Habits and Nervous Home Remedies furnished by JAMES HUME REMEDY COMPANY, Memphis, Tenn.

Buoyancy of Physical Youth

With the bubbling over of spirits and the energy to accomplish things is possible only to the man or woman in perfect physical condition. It is simply the proper working of the organs of digestion and breathing.

Good health cannot exist with catarrh of any kind. Catarrh is inflammation of the lining membranes—those parts that absorb the food and breathe the air. Keep these processes in proper order and health follows.

Digestion and Breathing are the Portals of Health. If they become impaired sickness follows. Maintain them at par and you will stay well.

Your Tired Feeling

is only Nature's protest. Some place there is a halting of activity—an inflammation of the membrane—acute catarrh. Heed it. Strengthen your system by relieving this stagnation, and then keep it at par. Stay well.

Forget All Prejudices

And listen to real testimony, voluntarily offered by sufferers who have found relief

is a household word for the remedy of catarrhal conditions of all kinds. It helps you to clear up the inflammation that manifests itself in coughs, colds, grippe, etc. It aids in overcoming weakness, irregular appetite, poor digestion, etc.

And listen to real testimony, voluntarily offered by sufferers who have found relief

MR. C. N. PETERSON, 125 S. Jackson, Council Bluffs, Iowa. "I cannot tell you how much good Peruna has done me. Constant confinement in my store began to tell on my health, and I felt that I was gradually breaking down. I tried several remedies, prescribed by my physician, but obtained no permanent relief until I took Peruna. I felt better immediately, and five bottles restored me to complete health. I have been in the best of spirits since and feel that I owe my health to it."

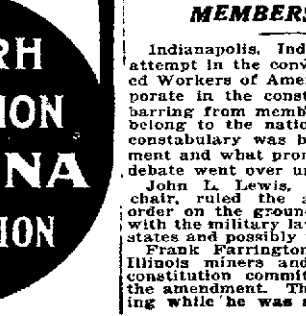

MR. C. O. PETERSON, Lieut. Eng. Co. 36, 337 N. Hamilton Ave., Chicago. "Last year I had a severe attack of grippe, which left me very weak, so that I was unable to perform my duties. Several of my friends advised me to build up on Peruna, and I found it by far the best tonic and invigorator I had ever used. In two weeks I was strong and well, and if ever I am exposed to unusual hardship incident to my duties at fires, I take a dose or two of Peruna and find that it keeps me in good health."

MRS. M. McGOUGH, 401 W. 57th St., New York. "Two years ago a depressed feeling took hold of me. My back and sides ached continually. My stomach got out of order so that at times I could not hold a glass of cold water. I didn't like to eat, afraid that my stomach would get sick. "I have been using Peruna for the last three months, and now I feel as well as I ever did. My stomach is as strong as ever, and my nervous troubles have disappeared."

A reliable standard family remedy that has stood the test of many years.

ENTIRE TRAINLOAD IS SOLD IN SIXTY DAYS

Eleven Carloads—132,000 Bottles—Sold Through Atlanta Office Alone Since December 1st—Celebrated Medicine Now Selling at Phenomenal Rate of 4,800,000 Bottles Per Year—All Records Broken.

THE fact that an entire trainload of Tanlac has been sold through the Atlanta office alone in the short period of sixty days is a big business item that will attract attention throughout the South, for nothing like it has ever happened before! It breaks all records!

Mr. G. F. Willis, the Southern Distributor of Tanlac, made this remarkable announcement at his office in the Fourth National Bank building yesterday, and imparted the additional information that eleven carloads (132,000 bottles) had been necessary to supply Atlanta, Birmingham, Macon and Nashville for eight weeks.

WILLIS TELLS WHY SALES ARE LARGE

"These enormous sales," said Mr. Willis, "mean but one thing, and that is—merit. Tanlac is well advertised, it is true, but such a large and growing demand could not be brought about by advertising alone. It is what the neighbors say that counts. One bottle is sold in a neighborhood through advertising, but ten more are sold in that community after that first bottle produces results, and that's right where Tanlac scores. People are always willing to talk about their ailments, but they are more than willing to tell others of the medicine that helps them. It's something they couldn't keep to themselves. They have the impulse to sympathize with neighbors and want to help them in one of the strongest as well as one of the biggest things in human nature.

"Tanlac is producing these results," he continued, "and that is why nothing on earth can keep it out of the homes of the people. It is not only the most talked about medicine in the world today, but, in my opinion, it is the best and most efficient. And, although prominent officials and leaders throughout the South have endorsed Tanlac, its great success is firmly based on the unqualified indorsement of the masses of the people."

"EVERYBODY SEES A CHANGE IN FATHER"

Cobb County Farmer Suffered for Over Twenty Years and Paid Out Thousands Trying to Get Well.

"My father has suffered from chronic stomach trouble for over 20 years and has paid out thousands of dollars on medicines and doctors," said G. W. Clayton, a well-known Cobb county farmer who lives near Smyrna, a short distance out of Atlanta.

"We tried nearly everything trying to cure him, and he went off to the springs thinking maybe the water would help him, but it just looked like nothing would reach his trouble. Then he tried dieting, and lived on liquid food until he almost starved—but even that failed to do any good, and he just kept going from bad to worse.

"I don't guess there ever was a case as stubborn as his, and if there ever was a confirmed dyspeptic he was one of them, and I guess he would have been one yet if it hadn't been for this Tanlac.

"The first we heard of this medicine was when my father saw an advertisement in the papers from a notice he knew in Tennessee, who were friends of his, and he knew what they said about it was the truth—so he got it right away and began taking it.

"Well, sir, it acted just like magic—and everybody notices the change in father now—why, he is just like a different man, and sits down to the table and eats like a farm hand. Only yesterday he ate pork and turkeys for his dinner, and ate so much we were actually afraid he might overdo the thing, but he laughed and said nothing hurt him now, and that he was hungry and expected to eat and make up for lost time.

"Now, when a medicine will do things like that, I think people ought to know about it, and I want to say right now that I would not give one bottle of Tanlac for all the other medicines and health resorts in the country put together.

PROMINENT MEN OVER COUNTRY TAKE TANLAC

It is rarely, indeed, that men of prominence, especially men holding higher public offices, voluntarily express their appreciation of the benefit received from a medicine. Thousands of such convincing indorsements, however, have come to Tanlac.

Among the large number of prominent men in public life in the south who have recently given Tanlac their unqualified indorsement for the specific aid to them are Hon. McKenzie Moss, judge of the Eighth Kentucky judicial district; Hon. Moses E. Glenn, Kentucky state superintendent of printing; Colonel John B. Gaines, editor and publisher of the Bowling Green Daily News; George W. Hinton, former secretary of the Warren County Equity League; President Pegg, of the Newport Business college, and others.

Among those prominent in commercial life, who have more recently indorsed Tanlac, and many of whom are well known in this section, are C. C. Cooper, president of the Georgia Cotton Oil company, Lawrenceville, Ga.; H. W. Hill, bank president, of South Pittsburg, Tenn.; J. F. Carroll, cotton mill superintendent, of Chattahoochee, Ga.; C. M. Conover, manager of the office furniture department of Foote & Davies, Atlanta, Ga., and S. S. Shepard, ex-city councilman, Atlanta.

JACOBS' PHARMACY COMPANY SELLS 700 BOTTLES IN ONE DAY

Total Sales Since Introduction Here Has Now Reached Astonishing Total of 25,621 Bottles.

Atlanta, Ga., Jan. 24, 1916.
Mr. G. F. Willis, Fourth Nat'l Bank Bldg., Atlanta, Ga.
Dear Sir: Replying to your inquiry of yesterday, we are pleased to advise that we are now selling Tanlac at the rate of considerably over 2,000 bottles per week.

On last Saturday alone we sold through our eleven Atlanta stores approximately 700 bottles at retail, direct to consumers. On referring to our records, we find that our sales, since the introduction here three months ago, have reached the astonishing total of 25,620 bottles.

This record is far in excess of any we have ever made before in the distribution of any one preparation—in fact, we have never handled anything that even approaches it as a seller.

Thousands of our best people are now using the preparation with the most gratifying results and we can only account for the phenomenal demand we are having by the fact that it is a medicine of extraordinary merit.

Assuring you of our high appreciation for the splendid co-operation you have accorded us, and with best wishes for your continued success, we beg to remain, yours very truly,
JACOBS' PHARMACY CO.

SHERIFF MANGUM MAKES STATEMENT

Declares He Feels It His Duty to Say a Good Word for Medicine That Has Helped Him So Much.

"Tanlac has certainly helped me, and I recommend it to others for what it has done in my case," said Hon. C. W. Mangum, of Atlanta, sheriff of Fulton county.

"I have personally recommended it to a great many people. I know of at least fifteen or twenty families who have bought it on my say so.

"I am 70 years old, and have most always been pretty strong and healthy until here lately I have been in a nervous, worn-out, run-down condition. My stomach was upset most of the time, and I digested my food poorly. Most always after eating I would have a full, uncomfortable feeling that would last for several hours.

"After taking the second bottle of

PRES. STATE BOARD PHARMACY OF ALA. GIVES INDORSEMENT

The following letter from Dr. Wm. E. Bingham, president of the state board of pharmacy of Alabama, is probably the first indorsement ever given a proprietary medicine by an official of this department of a state government, and the same is sufficient answer to anyone who doubts the high esteem in which Tanlac is held by leading druggists everywhere.

Tuscaloosa, Ala., Jan. 21, 1916.
Mr. G. F. Willis, Atlanta, Ga.
Dear Mr. Willis—In reply to yours of recent date, I am pleased to advise that the Bingham Drug company has never handled anything that even approached Tanlac in popularity. We have sold 1,100 bottles since securing the agency, and it is going here at the rate of 300 bottles per month.

Everyone here who has used Tanlac speaks of it in the very highest terms, and the repeat orders from those who have used it are remarkably numerous and show conclusively that it is giving great satisfaction. It is the talk of the town, and everybody seems anxious to recommend it to his neighbors.

I have been interested in it as a medicine and have observed the satisfactory use of Tanlac and a number of local cases of chronic disorders. You could get some excellent testimonials here, for it has produced remarkable results in a number of cases.

Our sales are increasing continually, and I value our agency very highly, and can say that we have never handled anything that gives as much general satisfaction as Tanlac.

Very truly yours,

ATLANTA FIRM SELLS CARLOAD IN TEN DAYS

Biggest Wholesale and Retail Drug Firms of the South Unite in Giving the Master Medicine Their Unqualified Indorsement. Success Achieved Almost Incredible.

THE greatest drug firms in the country have voluntarily come forward and stated in cold, plain figures, the record-breaking Tanlac sales everywhere.

The following letters recently received from the leading wholesale and retail drug firms of the South give ample evidence of the rapidly growing and widespread popularity of Tanlac.

Atlanta, Ga., Jan. 22, 1916.
Mr. G. F. Willis, Atlanta, Ga.
Dear Sir: Please enter our order for another car of Tanlac for immediate delivery.

It will no doubt be of interest for you to know that our last car, which reached us on January 9th, was sold out in about ten days' time.

As a matter of fact, the increased demand for Tanlac is such that it has been difficult for us to anticipate our requirements.

On several days our shipments have been in excess of one thousand ($1,000) dollars. On January 10th alone we shipped 200 dozen, 2,472 bottles. The following day we filled 20 orders for a total of 73 dozen, or 876 bottles, a total of 3,408 bottles for the two days. A few days previous to this we filled 39 orders for a total of 101 dozen, or 1,212 bottles.

Our sales of Tanlac have been remarkable, being the largest of any proprietary medicine we have ever handled for the same period of time.

Wishing you continued success, we beg to remain, yours very truly,

MACON JOBBER SELLS CARLOAD IN 3 WEEKS

Macon, Ga., Jan. 11, 1916.
Mr. G. F. Willis, Sou. Distributor of Tanlac, Atlanta, Ga.
Dear Mr. Willis: I find we have only 108 dozen Tanlac in stock, and this will hardly carry us more than three days at the rate it has been going. Had you not better wire an order in for us for a carload at once?

I expected Tanlac to prove a big sale, but I did not have the idea that we would sell a carload in three weeks, as our last car did not reach here until December 17th.

As soon as your advertising campaign gets thoroughly under way in south Georgia territory you will find that favorably with any other section of the country.

Wishing you continued success, we beg to remain, yours very truly,

DR. J. T. EDWARDS RECOMMENDS IT TO HIS PATIENTS

Prominent Georgia Physician Gives Master Medicine His Unqualified Indorsement.

Dr. J. T. Edwards, of Fayetteville, Ga., one of the best-known members of the medical profession in the state of Georgia, makes a statement that will undoubtedly produce a profound impression throughout the south.

"In my thirty years of active practice as a licensed physician in the state of Georgia," says Dr. Edwards, "I have never seen anything to equal Tanlac as a medicine to produce results. I hear people on all sides telling of the benefits they have derived from its use.

"Tanlac is simply the talk of my town. I have no hesitancy in recommending the medicine; and as a matter of fact, I am prescribing it for my patients almost every day.

"Only a few days ago a well-known woman of Fayetteville came to me and told me about the remarkable relief her daughter had gained from the use of this medicine. She said her daughter had been confined to her bed for three years with what had been pronounced palsy, and that after using Tanlac for a short time she was able to be about, and was on the road to recovery.

"But this is only one instance. People in all walks of life in and around our best trade in the districts where it has been in use the longest.

In the short period of five months we have given you orders for 49,104 bottles, thus breaking all records for this city. Very truly yours,

WORLD'S RECORD BROKEN BY TANLAC

Tanlac has brought a new romance to the commercial world. It is the story of an acceptance and appreciation of merit never before attained by a proprietary medicine.

Staid business men to whom the actual figures of the production of Tanlac have been presented, have scouted them until the proof was shown. The production of Tanlac now stands at the rate of almost five million bottles per year. The exact figures at 4,492,800. The sale of a million bottles in the first nine months, which far exceeded any record ever made by a proprietary medicine, now seems insignificant.

"One firm alone," said Mr. G. F. Willis, "has given me orders for a total of 49,104 bottles within five months' time. The firm I refer to is the Spurlock-Neel Co. of Nashville, Tenn. Mr. G. S. Martin, president of this great firm, who is also president of the Southern Drug Jobbers' association, will verify this statement.

"Tanlac is the result of many years of arduous study by Mr. Cooper and his principal chemist. In fact the two of them began their actual investigation from the beginning of the experimental stage to its present state of success. I doubt seriously if either of these men realized the enormity of their success. Like many other great discoveries, it has required time to prove its far-reaching effects."—(adv.)

"Before I began taking Tanlac I only weighed 76 pounds—I now weigh over 100 pounds, and am gaining every day," said Miss La Reu Davis, residing at 216 Glass street, Chattanooga. "I bought my first bottle of Tanlac at Gas City, Ind., and it helped me so much I continued using it. I have always been very delicate and suffered a great deal from stomach trouble and rheumatism. I rarely ever had any appetite and simply could not resist anything. I fell off until I only weighed 75 pounds, and was so thin I looked perfectly awful. This is the condition I was in when I began taking Tanlac. Oh, I feel so different now. Even my complexion has improved. My appetite is good, and I can hardly get enough to eat. Tanlac is simply grand, and I can truthfully say it is the only medicine that ever did me any good."

Just Back From Mexico, the Former Atlantan Says "Watchful Waiting" Is the Proper Policy for Mexico.

Having just returned from the hot-bed of the Mexican revolution, Henry W. Johnson, an old Atlantan who has been mining in Mexico for several years, says that "watchful waiting" is the proper policy at this time on the part of the federal government.

"The Americans who are in Mexico are trying to get there," says Mr. Johnson, "and they are not doing it and do not deserve the protection of this country."

Mr. Johnson comes straight from Chihuahua, and what he has to say about conditions in Mexico is the testimony of an eyewitness and makes very interesting reading at this time, when Mexico is a national issue and the policy of the government may be made one of the issues of the national campaign this year.

Mines Are Dismantled.

"We have dismantled our gold and copper mines in Chihuahua," he says, "and will leave them dismantled until there is some assurance of peace and quiet. But I do not think that our government should take any hand at this time in Mexico's affairs. We are not called upon to do it. The people from our country who are in Mexico and who are seeking to invade that country are doing so at their own risk. It is the exact word that expresses it—'at their own risk.' They went to make money, and think they see a chance to make ten dollars there when they are making one here. When they do this they act upon their own responsibility and at their own risk. This government is not any more called upon to protect such people than it would be called upon to send an army to help a lot of the Chinese who are climbing into the crater of Mount Vesuvius."

No Immediate Peace.

"When do you look for peace in Mexico?" Mr. Johnson was asked. He replied, "Just as long as Villa or a man like him can raise a small army there is no hope of peace. It is not until a strong government can hold the rebels in check and secure the peace of the country that we can have any hope of peace. If Villa dies or is killed, there will be trouble for the Mexican government and the Americans who are in Mexico."

Wordless Mexican Money.

Mr. Johnson took from his pocket a roll of Mexican bills, money issued by Villa's army as national currency. "Here is some 'altered money,'" he said, "which is not worth the paper on which it is printed. I brought away with me $50,000 of it. A few days before we pulled out from Chihuahua we were forced to give good gold for it at the rate of 37 1/2 cents on the dollar. You couldn't buy a pack of cigarettes with it, and you couldn't buy a loaf of bread with it. It was highway robbery, but we got used to it. About every two or three weeks a party from either the Carranza or the Villa army came to our mines and demanded taxes. When we told them we had no taxes several times they simply ordered us to get the gold, and they usually not only took the amount of taxes demanded, which was about $2,000, but also all the gold in sight. We held out as long as we could, and then decided to desert."

Only Americans Are Unhunted.

"Why sometimes," he stated, "we would be kept in the hole a month, and jump five or six times a month. Germans and Englishmen were not molested. It was only the Americans that the Mexicans were after. So, all the Americans have to do is to keep away from Mexico at this time. Although they do not look for peace in Mexico for many years to come, yet it will not be long before industries and business can be resumed. Mexico must work out her own salvation. Any other plan might result in a temporary suspension of guerrilla warfare, but it would begin again just as soon as the American army was withdrawn. After years in Mexico and after studying the conditions of that country and becoming well acquainted with the status of the present revolution, I think I am safe in saying that President Wilson's policy of 'watchful waiting' is, in this instance, right."

Mormon Church Meets.

The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints will meet for public worship at 250 Woodward avenue today. Sunday school will be at 10 o'clock. Preaching at 11:30 and 7:30.

Paul Swan Makes First Appearance Here Monday

Paul Swan in one of his most striking poses.

Paul Swan, the famous classic dancer, internationally reputed as "the most beautiful man in the world," will appear at the Atlanta theater Monday night and Tuesday matinee, assisted by thirty Atlanta girls and young men in two performances, under the auspices of the Atlanta Art association.

The young ladies who will take part in the various classic, barefoot and Egyptian dances are Misses Tinsley Harrison, Frances Stirling Clark, Mary Bennett, Sarah Johnson, Margaret Vaughn, Marian Berry, Ruby Terrell, Nora Stirling, Louise Mellichamp, Katherine Love, Helen Haines, Jenny Johnson, Sarah Wagstaff, Helen Elissa, Elizabeth Little.

The young men who will take part in the bacchanals, are Newton Thomas, Erwin Henderson, Robert Hubert, Laurence Kent, Noel Smith, William A. McWhorter, Jr., Mackenzie Barnes, Harold Haas, G. Gerard Tiers, John Bell, Allan Palmerlee, Bagley Wright, Grover Kaiser, Master Danie Clarke.

Victor Victor will be the reader, Miss Mary Potter the pianist and William E. Arnold, organist.

The evening performance will begin at 8:15 o'clock and the matinee at 2:15 p. m.

The program for each performance will be the same and is as follows: Prelude, Greek Processional—Music, MacDowell—Ballets cast.

"The Kubatay of Omar Khayyam," Paul Swan—A symbolic interpretation. "Spring." Grieg—Cast of girls. "The Greek Phantasy," Paul Swan—Music, Ponchielli.

In the days when Hardran was king of Greece, dancing held a high place in the life of the people. Contests were given, and the dancer who exhibited the greatest variety of poses and movement won the prize and compliments of the king. This dance, called "A Greek Phantasy," represents Antinous, the king's favorite, dancing before the court.

"The Sea," an Impression, Rachmaninoff—A cast of girls. "To Herons Swan," Paul Swan—(Dedicated to Battfield in Flanders)—Organist, William E. Arnold—Grieg, A. Glaszounow—Cast of boys.

Narcissus, Paul Swan—Music, Kreutzer. A young shepherd in the days of the mythology chances one day to discover his reflection in a pool. At first he is startled and filled with wonderment. He calls at the creature of the woods to witness this strange and beautiful vision. Narcissus then falls in love with this image, but the mirror reflection ever eludes his entreaties, and he seeks to embrace it. He falls in the pool and is drowned.

"Egyptian Dance," Grieg—Cast of girls. "The Sphinx," Paul Swan—Entire cast. According to an old Egyptian myth, deities always are offering their daily prayers to the Sphinx, when strange to relate the sincerity of the prayer of the princess brings the great stone image to life. The silent rock of mystery changes into human form, and experiences every emotion known to man. He is so attracted by the Sphinx is disillusioned, and dies unable to regain the throne.

DRAMA LEAGUE PLANNING SHAKESPEARE PAGEANT

The Members Are Enthusiastic Over Big Event Which Will Be Given in May.

The Drama league is enthusiastic over the Shakespearean pageant which it is planning to produce in May. Mrs. Jarman, the president, estimated that it would require about $1,000 in cash to successfully launch the scheme, and a number of plans for raising this amount were proposed.

The plan of Miss Susie Wells to induce the members of the league and other friends to become guarantors to the amount of $10 each was speedily adopted, and $400 has already been subscribed in this way.

Mrs. P. J. McGovern's plan of inducing others to be responsible for the sale of $2 worth of tickets was also adopted, and about $250 more was assured.

Henry D. Sanders Joins Popular Clothing House; Has Had Long Experience

Henry Sanders, one of the best known and most efficient clothing salesmen in Atlanta, has accepted a permanent position with the popular clothing house of Parks-Chambers-Hardwick Co.

Mr. Sanders was associated with Elsmann Bros. for twenty odd years, where he made thousands of friends and customers who will be glad to learn of his new connection.

Since the retirement from business of his employers he has not been idle, but states now that he is at home and permanently located with Parks-Chambers-Hardwick Co., where he has the opportunity of offering his old and new friends a selection of the best lines of clothing in America.

EQUITABLE LIFE GEORGIA AGENTS END CONVENTION

The two-day convention of the Georgia agents of the Equitable Life Assurance Society of New York came to an end yesterday afternoon at the Piedmont hotel with a luncheon and general talk over the "prospects" for the ensuing year.

C. C. Hazel, supervisor of southern agents, congratulated the men, through William E. Duncan, secretary manager, upon their showing of nearly $224,000 of new business for the month of January. Manager Duncan responded for the agents—as, indeed, a few of the latter did for themselves—prophesying even greater results for the remainder of the year.

The convention proved of great profit to the members of the Georgia state, especially to those who have recently joined the Equitable forces.

Georgia representatives of the company who attended the convention are: Thomas L. Mitchell, Atlanta; R. E. Love, Washington; J. E. Dent, Roberts; J. G. Olesby, Columbus; James C. Acton, Augusta; J. G. Gardner, Thomasville; William C. Dorset, Macon; E. C. Schilz, Atlanta; L. M. Beacham, Atlanta; Miss Rose E. Boyd, Atlanta; Mrs. Martha F. Tack, Atlanta; Park Rippey, Marietta; F. H. Stratton, Atlanta; E. L. Feagie, Cordele; L. Richardson, Savannah; Thomas L. Ross, E. Green, Columbus; Louis Cohen, Sandersville; John A. Darwin, E. Phillips, Royston; W. N. Harrell, Valdosta; B. Neely, Atlanta; W. K. Smith, Marietta; James M. Jilson, Atlanta.

CHECKS FOR MONEY DUE TO TEACHERS READY FOR MAILING

Checks will be mailed out Monday for the various payments that the state treasury department has announced that it is now ready to make. These payments include the maturing teachers' pay warrants, discounted by the Federal Reserve Bank of Atlanta, several hundred thousand dollars' worth of warrants which were returned to the state department of education unused, and the payment of some $450,000, which is the final installment upon the 1915 appropriation for the teachers' salaries.

The state was enabled to make this last payment through a loan of $200,000 from Asa G. Chandler, of the private bank of Atlanta, with the privilege of allowing the expiration of that time. The interest rate is 3 1/2 per cent.

ARGUMENT IS HEARD IN CASE OF CENTRAL AGAINST THE STATE

Argument was heard in the Fulton county superior court yesterday in the case of the Central of Georgia railroad against Comptroller General William A. Wright, of the state of Georgia, in which the railroad seeks to enjoin the comptroller general from collecting back taxes alleged to be due upon the leasehold of the Augusta and Savannah and the Southern railroads, of which the Central is the lessee.

EAKES WILL RUN FOR TREASURER

State Senator Recommends Changes in Banking Laws, With a View of Wiping Out "Wild-Catting."

State Senator W. J. Eakes, of Conway, in Rockdale county, this morning makes his formal announcement as candidate for the office of state treasurer, to succeed W. J. Spear, incumbent.

Senator Eakes is well known over the state and is one of the progressive constructive members of the upper branch of the general assembly. His friends have assured him for a long while that their support and he will undoubtedly make a good race.

His platform, which is published in full elsewhere in this issue of The Constitution, contains a number of changes which he proposes to make in the conduct of the office if he is elected.

Seigniorial Report.

In the office of the state treasurer Senator Eakes would inaugurate a custom of publishing semi-annually in the newspapers of the state a full report showing the receipts and disbursements from all sources and the actual condition of the treasury on such dates. He states that he believes one of these reports should be published just before the convening of each session of the general assembly and that the publicity given to such reports should be full and widespread.

The law provides that the state treasurer shall be ex-officio state bank examiner. In this branch of the office Senator Eakes recommends a number of changes and a stricter enforcement of the banking laws in the state with a view to wiping out so-called "wild-cat" banking, to protect worthy institutions and reduce the number of bank failures in the state.

Under this head, Senator Eakes has, in part, the following to say: "Some representatives of the state department should be—and will be if I am elected—the opening of every new bank, and personally see to it that the minimum capital has been paid in cash before the doors of the institution are permitted to be opened to depositors."

Changes Proposed.

As state bank examiner I would insist, as the law provides, that the minimum capital of every bank being impaired over 10 per cent. Its officers shall call a special meeting of the stockholders immediately for the purpose of making assessments to meet the impairment. Upon failure of a bank to call the stockholders into immediate meeting, or if the impairment is not made good within 30 days the depositors and creditors of such bank should be notified.

Loans to officers and directors of a banking institution should be approved by the directors in writing, and secured as the law provides, or charged off, and every officer handling funds should be under good and sufficient bond, and it should be made impossible for any director to borrow, even with good security, practically half of the capital of a bank. The practice of waiting for a majority of the directors to make request of the state treasurer for the appointment of a receiver when a bank becomes insolvent should be discontinued.

Will "Pork-Barrel" Antagonists Kill the National Defense Program?

Among others, a Southern Congressman whose "stentorian cry for 'pork'" evoked enthusiastic outbursts of approval in the House, is reported as declaring that he favors "reasonable preparedness" but only with the understanding that public buildings should be provided wherever they are needed.

"Isn't it an awful state of affairs?" the Houston Chronicle ironically remarks, "if this preparedness scheme goes through, there won't be any loose change for post-offices in country towns, or for improving backwoods creeks."

In this week's LITERARY DIGEST (January 29th) there is an interesting article which shows the gist of Public Opinion throughout the country as reflected in the newspaper press upon the President's preparedness program. There will be no other subject before the Congress which so vitally concerns the American people. Be sure to read this article. This feature is not the only one of value to "Digest" readers. Third Candidate Appears Inevitable, But Who Will Announce Still Mystery Interesting Gubernatorial Boom Has Developed in Favor of W. H. Burwell, of Hancock County, Speaker of the House.

While the congressional campaign in the various Georgia districts have warmed up considerably in the last week, the gubernatorial situation still continues the political Sphinx of the state.

So far Governor Nat E. Harris has announced informally for re-election and Dr. L. G. Hardman, of Commerce, has formally announced against him.

That there should be a third candidate seems inevitable. Prior to this week it was not surmised that Dr. Hardman and Governor Harris would have an opportunity to fight it out between them unopposed.

That a third candidate would not take advantage of this seemed out of the question. Lending color to this theory, immediately after this situation developed a very substantial crop of prospective candidates for the governorship developed.

During the last week there has developed from certain sources in the state an interesting boom in favor of the candidacy of Representative W. H. Burwell, of Hancock county, speaker of the house.

Judge Charles H. Brand, of Athens, who was most certainly for a time considering running for the governorship, has eliminated himself by his own statement. He has stated that he is not even a "probable candidate" for the governorship, which is now considered to be entirely true.

Will Dorsey, however, admits that he does not yet know whether or not he will run, and it will be at least after the middle of February before he decides what he will do.

The most surprising development of the last week is the possibility that Judge W. E. Thomas, of Valdosta, may run for congress from the eleventh district. Judge Thomas until the last several days had been considered the most likely "third candidate" looming upon the horizon.

It seemed for a while conceded that Judge Thomas would run. It was, though, practically conceded that he would run in the last campaign against Judge Harris, but it ultimately developed that he turned around and supported Judge Harris.

BLALOCK MAY RUN FOR GOVERNOR. The report that he is likely to run for congress from the eleventh district there is coming to the governor various requests for the appointment of certain south Georgians to succeed Judge Thomas in case he should resign his judgeship and run for congress. This is undoubtedly the sensation of the week in the gubernatorial situation.

Meanwhile Collector of Internal Revenue A. O. Blalock has let it be known that he is thinking of running for governor, and since verifying that report has steadfastly held his peace. It is known, however, that Mr. Blalock has received hundreds of offers of support from all sections of the state.

The foregoing is the general outline of the present situation. The chaotic condition that this outline presents can mean but one thing, and that is that under the surface there is a great deal of diplomatic negotiation in progress, and that each of the prospective "possibilities" is working for advantage.

The only thing tangible, therefore, is that there are two candidates for governor—Dr. Hardman and Governor Harris.

Dr. Hardman opened his campaign in Gainesville last Sunday. Governor Harris is laying his plans to make his first speech of the campaign in Macon some time soon.

There is, though, something so far intangible, but—seemingly a pun—very apprehensible. It is this: If nobody goes far named offers for third candidates, something will pop up and run anyway. The percentage is too good.

Conservative Banking Interests Cautious Against Over-Optimism

Even Favorable News and Technical Developments Will Not Help Security Market Generally for the Present.

New York January 29.—(Special)—The poor response given to the restoration of dividends and the unusual earnings report of the Steel corporation was a distinct disappointment to those on the constructive side of the security markets. Immediately following the declaration there was strength all along the line but this was followed by a resumption of professional selling with bear pressure excited a wave which hit the steel weak hold which had been formed on the steel dividend were shaken out following the declaration. It has been sold because of the poor technical condition of the market however that further weakness was not expected. Shorter covered rather freely on previous declines and were ready to go short again on every recovery while buying power was very poor at the time when only a substantial recovery but sustained strength. The public has been ready to enter the market on important banking and financial interest are not favorably disposed toward the bull side at this time. Until the public is ready to participate in trading again it is impossible to have a more favorable view. Other factors besides lack of public interest and professional pressure at the time have been heard. Foreign liquidation has been heard of in railroad circles. Large lots of American securities held abroad have been thrown on the market either through direct sale or through the medium of interest. It has been bought in large lots from abroad. The prospects of a rail road strike may have been over emphasized lately and it is not to be too lightly regarded. If the dream of a strike is broken and conductors should combine as is intimated in London and are determined to see security prices are not their demands it would give the market a great setback unless prices are very low when such news becomes definite. It is unfortunate for those who are anxious to see security prices higher at the time that the unfavorable factors have been given all at once and the many and varied features of the situation overlooked. No market can be prepared for such a change. It is not to be taken for granted that the situation over the market can be given than the restoration of dividends by the Steel corporation and by its record breaking earnings to the market. The dangers which have beset some companies engaged in the war under business have been clearly demonstrated in the last few weeks by the steady advance in the price of stock of one of the larger powder companies which it had been supposed had sufficient amount of money on hand. It now develops that this company has been struggling along without enough capital and was in serious danger of losing its business and profits because of the war. MONEY IS TO BE CHEAPER, SAYS HILL

Railroad Magnate of North-west Points Out Cheapness of Money in Face of Generally Predicted Higher Rates.

New York January 29.—James J. Hill who was here this week, said that the money market was to be cheaper in the future. He pointed out that the cost of money was generally predicted to be higher, but he believed it would be lower.

Who is going to buy the stuff after this? That is the thing to think about in solving this interest rate problem. Mr. Hill then told of having just received a letter from a close friend in London telling how the women who all their lives had had everything they wanted were making old clothes do or were wearing only the best. He said that this was a sign of the times.

Mr. Hill then discussed the future of the world, pointing out that the war had caused a great deal of destruction and that the world was in a state of chaos.

OFFICERS MAY TRAIN HIGH SCHOOL BOYS

Organization of Cadet Companies Among Male Students Is Contemplated. Plan Indorsed by General Wood.

Following a conference last Friday with Professor W. F. Dykes supervisor of the high schools of Atlanta, Adjutant General J. Van Holt Nash is considering the feasibility of plans where by companies of cadets may be organized in the boys' high schools of the various cities of the state and made a part of the state militia.

Plan Indorsed
General Nash is impressed with the usefulness of such a plan for training boys in military matters. Not only would it be one of the best possible methods of bringing about a state of preparedness in the United States, says General Nash, but it would be a splendid physical and moral training for the boys themselves. General Nash has just received from Major General Leonard Wood chief of staff of the United States army an order under which such organization could be perfected in the public schools of the state. Under this order it would be possible to have the United States government assign army officers and furnish equipment to the schools.

When the various organizations are perfected it would be possible for them to be affiliated with the national guard of the state and it is the hope of the adjutant general that such a plan may be worked out.

General Order
This is not only his personal view point but in its thoroughness with the ideas of General Wood and the war department as indicated by the following extracts from his order: "The cadet organization and the organized militia into closer relations, and the attainment of this end, requires that the military and technical schools and cadets be organized to join in upon graduation. To further increase the military and technical schools of the state, with the approval of the state and the federal government, it is deemed appropriate to review the cadet organization on suitable occasions and to make such adjustments as may be necessary to insure that the qualifications of particular cadets are such as to enable them to receive commissions in the national guard or to be accepted for commissions in the United States army."

SILKS!--Buy Them Now

—Prices are Lower than they will be again this Season.
A LETTER from our Silk Chief, now in New York markets, reads, in part, thus: "I never before experienced market conditions as they are today. Silks of the wanted sorts are harder to find than I've ever known. Prices are away up, and going higher. We own the merchandise on our shelves at a very much lower figure than the same silks can be duplicated at today."
—There you have a synopsis of general market conditions.—All women would best anticipate their needs, and buy liberally now, while prices are at the lowest.—We make these quotations for MONDAY ONLY.
$1 Gold Edge Messaline, 36-in., 93c
—Hereafter this Silk will have to be sold at $1.25 per yard

Just one example of the woeful effect of the silk shortage. This number has been our standard $1.00 seller for several years. Extra weight, beautifully finished. Fine texture. It's a remarkable value today at 93¢ per yard. Shown in black only.

$1.25 Silk Poppins 89c
—Showing new types in 2 color monotone checks—Blue with black—black with green—black with purple,—and other new combinations. New and pleasing. Splendid value.

$1.25 Crepe de Chine $1.19
—One of the scarcest silks on the market. Just now we are fairly well supplied with the newer street and evening shades. Plenty of pink, white and black, 40 inches wide.

New Novelty Silks for Trimmings, $1.00
—Soon you will be asked $1.25 and $1.50 for these same qualities. We suggest you buy liberally now.
—Choice new patterns, showing the newest of color blendings. Plenty of stripes for making dresses.

$1 Silk Shirtings 89c
—New patterns, fresh from their wrappings. 33 inches wide. Splendid weight for men's shirts, shirtwaists and "sports" blouses. Your choice of a score of patterns.

$1.50 Taffeta Silk $1.19
—In the newer colors. 36 inches wide, chifon finished. Extra quality for dresses, suits, etc.
—We've a few pieces to sell while they last at $1.19 per yard.

New 40-in. Shepherd Checked Suitings, 59c
—New novelty patterns, showing "shot-in" colors, with black and white. Splendid weight for dresses, skirts and coats.—A quality that many stores will quote as 75c value. On sale Monday at 59¢ per yard.

$5.00 Set of 6 Cut Glass Tumblers, $1.98
On Sale Monday Only. No phone orders. None sent C. O. D. Limit of one set to each purchaser. Extra quality, crystal clear glass, showing handsome floral spray designs.

21 Juniors' Suits,-- Choice $6.95

—Your choice of every child's and junior's suit, now in stock, for less than the worth of the tailoring.

To $5 Child's Hats, 69c
—The last call on all Fall Season leftover Hats for misses and children. Some are of felt, of silk, of corduroy, plush and velvet. Good colors in clever styles. Choice, 69¢

RUGS,--At Lowered Prices
—To Make Room for New Incoming Stocks
—We've lowered prices on all 9x12 feet, room size rugs, of which we have but one of a kind and pattern.
—Our Rug Chief has just returned from New York markets, bringing a report of unsettled market conditions, and rapidly advancing prices, owing to a shortage of dvestutifis and raw materials.
—We suggest you supply all carpet and rug needs, now
—$8 Tapestry Brussels Rugs, $15, $27 50 Axminster Rugs, $24 00
—$40 Wilton Rugs, $38 00 $50 Wilton Rugs, $45 00
—Smaller Rugs at proportionate price reductions

Curtainings One-Third Off
—While in New York our buyer purchased a quantity of Curtains, Blinds, and Surtins at 1/3 less than market value.
—These curtainings will be on sale Monday morning at the same savings to you. New styles and colorings.
—One-Third Less Than Regular Values

PREST-O-LITE COMPANY WILL HELP MOTORISTS

"Come to Us and Unload Your Battery Troubles," Invites J. A. O'Donnell.

J. A. O'Donnell, Atlanta manager of the Prest-O-Lite battery company, Inc., says: "We expect the storage battery service which we have inaugurated in most of the large cities throughout the country to occupy a large place in the motoring world. This is the only one of the many factory branch service stations maintained by the Prest-O-Lite company, Inc., throughout the country. From these central points radiate a system of battery inspection, repair and general service, including not only a large number of privately owned electrical service stations, but also, essentially, we hope, a very large percentage of the more than twenty thousand dealers who represent the Prest-O-Lite service in the automotive industry. It is our intention that before long the familiar Prest-O-Lite service sign which the tourist has observed in every nook and corner of the country, shall represent at least some degree of cheerful co-operation with the motorist in the care of his storage battery.

"We want all motorists to feel free to come here at any time and unload their battery troubles upon us. The ordinary attention which a battery needs, such as the replacement of electrolyte, water, and the testing of the cells with a voltmeter, will be given without charge as frequently as the motorist desires. If his battery needs repairing, we will loan him another in the interim. If some other part of his electrical system seems to be out of order, our best advice is his for the asking.

"A rapid extension of the use of acetylene for a wide range of commercial purposes, together with the need of a truly national service on storage batteries, is responsible for the Prest-O-Lite company's decision to provide complete electrical and acetylene facilities and service of an intelligent nature in this city. As far as automobile lighting is concerned, we are now prepared to give the motorists the benefit of Prest-O-Lite electric lights, whether their light is gas or electric.

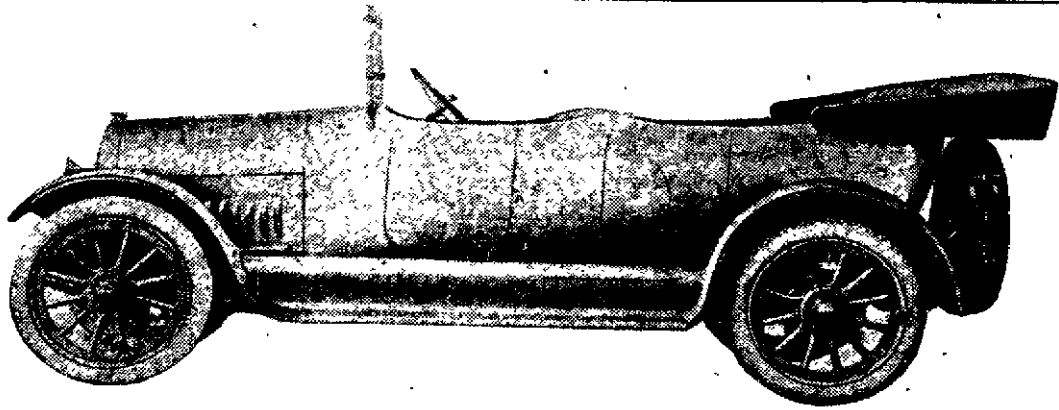

"The provision made for battery service, however, does not in any way minimize the company's evident intention to amplify its service on the acetylene side of its business. The Prest-O-Lite branch is fully equipped with apparatus for the demonstration of the uses for acetylene, including equipment for oxy-acetylene and cutting, portable lighting systems, cook stoves for motorists and campers, blow-torches for soldering and brazing, special Bunsen burners for lighting purposes, outdoor three lights, special torches for jewelry, dentists, and lead burners, etc. A large stock is carried of all sizes of the Prest-O-Lite cylinders, from the smallest used on motorcycles, to the largest, used in oxy-acetylene welding.

MANY MERCHANTS USING MOTORCYCLE WITH THE SIDE VAN

Merchants all over the country are rapidly recognizing the value of the motorcycle with the side van attachment for the delivery of packages to customers. Birmingham, Ala., is probably the largest user of these machines of any town in the south, and three or four of the largest department stores of that city have a battery of Harley-Davidson motorcycles and side vans for the quick delivery of all of their packages.

One of the largest users of this outfit in Birmingham is J. Bach & Sons, who have one of the largest gent's furnishing and shoe departments in the south. They have kept an absolute tab on the cost of up-keep for this machine for one year, also on the number of packages delivered, the number of gal-

Latest Model of the King 8

C. W. Fort, manager of the Thompson Motor company, distributors for the King in Georgia, states that he will have a carload of these new models in within the next few days. Mr. Fort states that the price of the five-passenger, eight-cylinder King remains at $1,150, while the factory list price of the seven-passenger touring car and the five-passenger roadster will be $1,350 and on the five-passenger Sedan $1,500. The new King has a 2 1/2-inch bore and 6-inch stroke motor, 120-inch wheelbase, 34x4-inch freg and a number of mechanical changes. The body lines are entirely new, being of that graceful type which has caused so much favorable comment for this car. The new King is a full rounded car, gradually sloping upward and outward till they end in a full rounded back, which, in its breadth and pleasing lines, gives the impression of ease and comfort on the road. Crowned fenders and rounded skirt further carry out the soft body line effect. The two auxiliary seats in the touring car fold into the back of the front seat and in motor for the new King stack and in the connecting rods which operate side by side on the crank shaft instead of in-voice. The cylinders are arranged at 90 degree angles and cast in blocks of four. To insure lightness, resistance to carbonization and increased power aluminum case and clutch housing are cast in one piece.

The motor is of the unit power plant type, with three-point suspension. The lubrication force feed—ignition is furnished by Willard storage battery and Atwater Kent distributing system. For starting and lighting the Ward Leonard single unit is employed. A Ball-Duplex carburetor is used in conjunction with the Carter gasoline system for carburetion. The emergency brake is placed on the rear of the transmission case and operated on the transmission shaft. In view of the fact that the King Motor Car company was the pioneer in introducing the cantilever spring construction in this country it is noted with interest that they have made changes in this type of spring suspension on their new model. The forward end of the spring is now attached to the frame by means of a shackles while the rear end is under-neath from the rear axle. The whole spring suspension is placed lower on the frame, which gives the car a much lower seat without losing road clearance.

lions of gas and oil, also the cost of the lighting, tires, tubes and repairs being included in this cost. During the year 1915 the Harley-Davidson side van covered a total of 15,200 miles and delivered 24,000 packages. Figuring the total cost for the year, including the driver's salary, the actual cost per package was 2 1/2 cents per package.

This firm heretofore had been carrying their packages by other means and the very cheapest transportation that they had ever gotten before and for a less number of packages was 5 cents per package. As a general rule, all merchants figure that if they can get their packages delivered at 5 cents per package, they are getting it done cheaply, but if they would investigate the value of the Harley-Davidson and its side van they would find that they could cut this in half. The side van has ample capacity for carrying three packages and quite a number of them. Coca-Cola bottlers are finding the Harley-Davidson side van a splendid means for quick delivery to customers from four to a half dozen crates of bottles good—safely and quickly. Quite a number of firms in Atlanta are already using the motorcycle for delivery and find it very efficient.

ROMANCES OF THE RING

IRELAND'S HOPE

Oh, for another Dan Donnelly! That wish was on the lips and in the hearts of all true sons of the Emerald Isle in those dreary days in the second quarter of the nineteenth century which followed the passing of Ireland's greatest gladiator of the ring.

Irish hope had risen high when the dashing, debonair Jack Langan, who had won honors as a soldier of fortune in the South American wars for independence, had in 1824 thrown down the gauntlet to Tom Spring, England's champion, and Irish sportsmen had seen their hopes dashed to the ground by the fighting lists of the Englishman.

Thousands, tens of thousands—aye, hundreds of thousands, perhaps—were transfixed by the fight between the Langan defeat and roared the glorious cry of "The Emerald Gem."

to the Irish core of him, and with a romantic whirl, although no marvel as to science. Simon Byrne received his baptism of blood in a fight on a June day in 1825, when he fought the English countryman, at Brassington Courthouse, Ireland, for $200 a side. For 138 rounds the two men fought, and the Englishman, and in the end Larkin was awarded the victory. It was Simon Byrne's fourth home fight, and he was a novice, and his opponent a veteran. After a few more contests on the English soil, Simon set out for pastures new and landed in Scotland. In 1827 he fought the English champion, and defeated him in forty-seven minutes. A few months later he fought Avery at the same place, winning in one hour and thirty-five minutes.

Brood of "revanche" the young Irishmen, inspired by the noble ambition to wipe out the stain of the Langan defeat and revive the glorious name of Dan Donnelly, took up the fight—some, and some of them made great progress, but among them there was not a man considered good enough to fight Jim Ward. "The Black Diamond," who had succeeded to the pugilistic throne of England.

Simon Byrne. Not one! Well, there were not a few Irishmen who believed that Simon Byrne was good enough to lower the proud colors of England. A giant was Simon, towering above six feet, game

"Coward!" "A dom English trick!" These and other exclamations of rage came from the Irish contingent and the Englishmen were scarcely less angry with the name of "The Emerald Gem." "Diamond" could have been found that day he would have had a hundred fights on his belt, but the Englishman made himself scarce. The suspicions of the Irishmen as to Ward's sudden change of heart were founded, and it was not cowardice that kept Jim away. He had entered into an agreement with a bunch of English racketeers to throw the fight, but at the last minute his nerve had failed him, and he had solved the difficulty by running out of the affair.

Byrne Claims Title. The Great Leicester Hoax, as it was called, so excited the public against Ward that for a time he was listed by all decent sportsmen in the means of the ring as a defeated champion by default. In the meantime Ward barred from fighting, it was generally held that the Englishman was entitled to the honors. The Irish naturally unsatisfied to the Hibberdeen fight, however, they wanted their champion to win by fighting. Ward, protesting his sorrow for the loss of his title, offered to fight Simon Byrne declared that he would meet a man for money, but that he would not fight for money, and he refused to fight except for money, so that the matter was settled.

On St. Patrick's day in 1830 Simon Byrne met Ward in the Holborn Casino, famous sporting resort, and his heart melted by Irish whisky and the good feeling of the day, couldn't find the means to give up his title. In his eyes, he embraced Ward and promised to fight him. In the morning, however, Byrne had a match on with Sand's McKay, a Scotchman, who aspired to the championship, and he died soon afterward from the effects of it. Byrne was tried for manslaughter and given a sentence of a month in prison, but a postponement of his fight with Ward was necessary. On St. Pat's day in 1831 the matter was again settled, and Byrne fought the championship the following July. Byrne, who had won the nickname of "The Emerald Gem," was too fond of his native potshen for his own good, and he spent most of the intervening time in Dublin, indulging in drinking bouts with all his Scotch friends, and it was when he reached England a few weeks before the fight, and, according to the custom of the day, he gave a severe course of physic to bring him down to weight. Shortly before the moment of the fight, however, he was seized with a severe cold, and he was weak and ill when he entered the ring. A pouring rain which turned the ring into a pond added to his troubles. In the early rounds Simon fought hard and well, but he soon weakened and became a mere chopping block for Jim's blows. In the thirty-third round, after a magnificent exhibition of gameness on Byrne's part, his seconds mercifully tossed up the sponge.

It was a sad day for Ireland when the Emerald Gem fell before the Black Diamond of England. You're a brave man, Simon, but you've had a hard lick to lick you," said Ward at the conclusion of the fight. "You've had a hard lick to lick you," said Ward at the conclusion of the fight. "You've had a hard lick to lick you," said Ward at the conclusion of the fight.

Such a battle! Brutal, bloody, repulsive and wearying, it lasted an hour—two—three—the giants battered each other until neither could more stand. Byrne put all his strength into a blow that stretched Byrne senseless. Simon was unconscious for hours, and although the great surgeon of the kingdom was called in, his life could not be saved. He lay dying; Byrne knelt by his side and said: "I'm not—the—dead—un's—fault. It—was—the—drink!"

WILL SPEND $100,000 IN BUILDING FACTORY

Smith Form-a-Truck Company Building Will Be Completed Within Sixty Days.

A factory to cost more than $100,000 is being built, and will be completed within the next sixty days, by the Smith Form-a-Truck company, manufacturers of the attachment which will make a one or a one and one-half ton truck of a Ford car. The factory, which will be of the latest concrete and steel construction, will be erected on property recently acquired at Sixty-third street and Fifty-sixth avenue. When the new factory is completed, the production capacity will be increased to 300 attachments a day, or in the neighborhood of 10,000 a year.

A plant was opened August, 1915, at 417 North Clearmont avenue, the present location. The demand jumped day by day, until a great organization and a larger factory became necessary.

Porter Made Manager. To all the sales campaign S. D. Porter, who for ten years was connected with the McCormick Harvesting and Machine company, International Harvester and other prominent organizations, was brought into the organization as general manager, and the services of Charles McLaughlin, former sales manager of the Michigan Auto Sales company, as assistant sales manager, Stanley G. Smith, well known in local advertising circles, was selected for the position of advertising manager.

The Smith Form-a-Truck is the sensation of the year from a commercial standpoint. We already have done more than $3,000,000 worth of business. While we are being pressed more and more to make deliveries, we have been able to keep our production equal to the demand. We have shipped the product in a day's notice. Of course, we have the thing on the market.

Our new factory, which will be built in a hurry, is of concrete and steel. We shall be ready to remove our equipment to Clearing and erect it with additional stock within sixty days.

We are now shipping from twenty-five to thirty cars a day. This will be more efficient and simple than the operation of our attachment. It can be attached to any Ford chassis, and costs less than half what the original cost of the attachment. It will do, and at a much lower original cost. It may be as cheaply maintained as the touring car of its class.

SAXON VS. HIGH-PRICE GASOLINE

It Is Not the Price You Pay for an Article, It's the Actual Service Rendered That Counts
Saxon Automobiles Render a Per Gallon Mileage That Counts

105 Saxon "Sixes" Cover 26,460 Miles, Averaging 21 Miles Per Gallon of Gasoline

SAXON DEALERS DROVE 105 SAXON "SIXES" FROM DETROIT TO THEIR HOME TOWNS. HERE ARE A FEW OF THE REPORTS WHICH ESTABLISHED UNPRECEDENTED RECORD IN POWER AND ECONOMY FOR "SIXES."

- West Union, W. Va., July 17, 1915. Saxon Motor Co., Detroit, Mich. Roads very bad practically all the way. Im-passable to any vehicle from Parkersburg to West Union so I ended my trip at Parkersburg. Saxon Six O K in every respect. Its performance surprised me. Distance driven 412 miles. Average gasoline consumption, 21 1-3 miles per gal. Average oil consumption 27 2-3 miles per qt. Trainer & Troutman Motor Car Co.
- Kokomo, Ind., July 16, 1915. Saxon Motor Co., Detroit, Mich. Our "Six" arrived, motor working perfectly. Half the distance the roads were bad with many washouts, almost impassable. Encountered 10 heavy rains. Distance driven 327 2 miles. Average gasoline consumption, 26 2 miles per gal. Average oil consumption, 32 2 miles per qt. C. F. SEAWARD & SONS.
- Warrensburg, N. Y., July 18, 1915. Saxon Motor Co., Detroit, Mich. Towed another car 10 miles. Not a single adjustment made on Saxon. Total running expense, $2.74. Distance driven, 375 miles. Average gasoline consumption, 23.5 miles per gal. Average oil consumption, 107 miles per qt. EDSON GRANGER.
- Mendon, Ohio, July 17, 1915. Saxon Motor Co., Detroit, Mich. The roads were so slippery I had to shift to second speed to keep in the road. Had plenty of power to run on high. Saxon Six worked perfectly. Distance driven 169 miles. Average gasoline consumption 19.9 miles per gal. Average oil consumption, 388 miles per qt. E. D. DRAKE.

Saxon "Six" $785

Most men now favor a light weight car. For lightness means economy—on tires, in fuel, in all-around upkeep. And Saxon "Six" has it. Not the lightness of skimmed construction—but the sturdy lightness of modern engineering and quality materials. All men want beauty. For beauty means skilled design. Saxon "Six" has a beautiful yacht-line body—exemplary of the newest motor fashion. It has a smart garnish strip around top of body. It has a superb finish—of ever-new lustre. All men want comfort. Five-passengers have room a plenty in Saxon "Six." There's ample leg space. The wheel-base is 112 inches. No car at less than $1000 has more room than Saxon "Six."

Continental Motor Rayfield Carburetor two unit electric starting and lighting system—Timken Axles and Timken Bearings throughout the chassis. Better axles cannot be bought,—silent helical bevel drive gears,—battleship linoleum covered, aluminum bound running boards and floor boards—and 17 other improvements.

ANTI-TRUST ACTS WILL BE STRICTLY ENFORCED
 Condensed Comment Made by Alex Smith on Department of Justice Statement.

That the federal anti-trust acts will continue to be enforced in exactly the same way and with exactly the same vigor as in the past, is made plain in a condensed comment furnished on request of newspaper men by Alex W. Smith of "Hants" of the federal trade commission of the United States Chamber of Commerce.

Mr. Smith's comment is a condensation of the long formal statement furnished a short time ago by the United States department of justice and Mr. Smith explains that parties wishing to be fully informed should consult the full statement. He explains also that it is not intended that either the department of justice or the federal trade commission which is associated with it in the question involved, should be considered responsible for any failure of the condensation to cover the whole situation.

Written these provisions says in part: "In all doubtful cases persons entering into transactions in good faith having no knowledge of the law will not be criminally prosecuted but if their business be found violative of the law they will be given opportunity to resubmit in conformity with the law."

It is further stated that as to all questions of the feasibility, adequacy or advisability of proposed remedies from a practical standpoint in a given case the department of justice intends to give substantial recognition to the provisions of paragraph 2 of section 6 of the federal trade commission law.

In cases as to which both the department of justice and the federal trade commission have jurisdiction, such for example as those arising under the Clayton act the departments will await the conclusion of the commission proceedings as to any matters in which the commission's jurisdiction is first invoked.

"So far as criminal prosecution is concerned no proceedings will be instituted until after painstaking and exhaustive investigation with full opportunity on the part of the person against whom the complaint is made to submit his side of the question before action is taken."

The south is represented on the federal trade commission by William J. Harris of Georgia.

HENDERSONS HOLD NEAR MONOPOLY ON THIS POSTOFFICE

Oxford Ga. January 29—(Special)—Since J. T. Bird recently became postmaster and Mrs. Walter R. Branham assistant postmaster at Oxford some of the older people of the town have recalled an interesting bit of local history. With a single exception, the Oxford postoffice has been in the hands of one family or collateral branches of that family since the civil war.

Just after the war James Oliver Hazard Perry Henderson was appointed postmaster. He was otherwise known as Josh Henderson and an old friend says of him:

He was well known to local fame both by person and by name.

James Oliver Hazard Perry Henderson was postmaster for many years and was succeeded by his wife Mrs. Martha Henderson. Mrs. Henderson held the office until Cleveland appointed J. M. Means Sr. At the end of his term Mr. Means was succeeded by William Leviathan Hunter Henderson, a son of J. O. H. P. Henderson. W. L. H. Henderson was succeeded by his wife Virginia Henderson who in turn was succeeded by her son, Edgar R. Hunter who was recently succeeded by President Wilson's appointee J. T. Bird.

Shorter Will Hear Series of Lectures From Eminent Divine

Home Ga. January 29—(Special)—Shorter College is, indeed, fortunate in securing as one of its lecturers for the present year Dr. Shailer Matthews, dean of the theological department of the University of Chicago.

In coming to Shorter Dr. Matthews honors not only Shorter but Georgia and the south. As a great thinker and a progressive leader he stands in the front rank of the world's great men. His numerous books have been read by millions while his sermons, Edgar R. Hunter says, have done more to bring great demands all over the country.

Dr. Matthews will deliver a series of seven lectures at Shorter his subject being "Christianity and the Social Mind." These lectures are entirely new, and he will give them here for the first time.

Dr. Van Hoose, president of Shorter extends a cordial invitation to ministers of all denominations to come to Rome and hear this series of lectures by one of the greatest thinkers of the day. The lectures will be given on March 10, 11 and 12.

EMORY COMMENCEMENT PREACHER IS NAMED

Emory University Oxford Ga. January 29—(Special)—Rev. Thomas V. Lee, D. D., of North Carolina, editor of The Christian Advocate, Nashville, Tenn. (the general organ of the southern Methodist church) has accepted the invitation of the faculty of Emory college the school of liberal arts of Emory university to preach the commencement sermon Sunday, June 14. Bishop Warren A. Chandler of Atlanta, chancellor of Emory university has accepted the invitation of the faculty to preach the evening sermon commencement Sunday.

Movie Salaries.

(From Judge)

I have been making a few calculations," says the man with the serrated whiskers and the foreshortened pencil, looking up from his paper. "I have kept a record of the salaries paid moving picture stars and find that they can be paid profitably in the night and day and speed up the bank-note printing plants to a double schedule. Within two years the aggregate sum paid moving picture stars would settle all the national debts of all the governments of the world dig eight Panama canals and build and equip nine transcontinental railroads to say nothing of providing postoffice buildings and white marble libraries in all cities of over five thousand inhabitants. The only thing that bothers me is to figure how the banking facilities of the world can be made sufficiently extensive to handle the enormous amount of funds that will be deposited by the film actors and actresses."

Complete.
 (From Judge)

Do you mean that you only paid $50 for that frock?
 Yes but that of course was without the trimmings.
 How much were the trimmings?

SAXON SUCCESS-IT'S PHENOMENAL

Just think, that less than three years ago, Saxon had a small capital and were unknown; today Saxon has $6,000,000 capital and is known and talked of in every motorwise family in the United States. In this short time Saxon has become one of the largest producers of Automobiles in the world---the greatest success ever attained in the history of the motor car industry. Learn the Reason.

Here Is the Final Test of Efficiency

WOULDN'T the final test of efficiency in automobiles get down to about this: What car could go the greatest number of miles at least expense? We think this is a fair test, and we are ready to meet it. We sell the Saxon car with the absolute confidence that, on the average, year in and year out, under all conditions, it will carry its owner whatever number of miles he wants to go at less expense than any other automobile.

Everywhere, under all conditions, the Saxon roadster is proving itself the economy champion of motordom---averaging 30 miles per gallon of gasoline, 150 miles per quart of oil, 3500 to 5000 miles on a $7.95 tire. Half a cent a mile is the Saxon record for car operation; one-fourth of a cent per mile per passenger.

"Saxon the most economical means of transportation yet produced"---that is a big claim to make. But many thousands of Saxon cars now in use throughout the world make it good; in owners' daily service, in engineers' tests and in public contests.

Finally, buy your automobile for what it will do. If you get dollar for dollar value for the money you spend, it is a good investment. If you don't get this value you have not made a good buy. You owe it to yourself to see the Saxon.

New-Type Refinements in Saxon Roadster

At the Saxon price---$395---see what you now get in the two-passenger roadster. You get a three-speed transmission---exclusive to the Saxon Roadster among cars priced at less than $400. You get Timken axles. No car---at any price---has better. You get a wonderful high-speed continental motor---matchless, we believe, in power, smoothness, flexibility, ability to cool under all conditions, and in operative economy. You get a roomy streamline body of faultless beauty. You get vanadium steel cantilever springs; signal lamps at side; adjustable pedals; ventilating windshield; honeycomb radiator; dry plate clutch. Finally---you get the "most economical car to own in the world." Saxon Roadster costs less to keep up than a horse and buggy. It has established an average of 30 miles to the gallon of gasoline; 100 to 150 miles on a pint of oil; 3500 to 5000 miles on a $7.95 tire; and an average operative cost of 1/2-cent per mile. See this car at the nearest Saxon dealer's.

POLICE PERSONALS

By Les Rawlings.

Yes, this is Kirk the best all-round ladie man at police headquarters and holder of the long-time telephone conversation record. He is call officer on the evening watch, and works with I. E. McDaniel. One of the most popular men on the force Kirk is known for his good humor and general worth as a man. As an officer he holds in his hand of the team of Kirk and McDaniel which is saying a great deal, according to his captain, S. Dobbs.

Kirk is known as an ideal call officer, as the men working in that branch of the service must be of sufficient size and strength to handle everything from a balky auto to a drunk moon lunner. He and McDaniel are both over six feet tall and never fail to bring in their man when dispatched on a call.

Although George Watson may tell tales reflecting upon the prowess of Kirk as a rifle hunter, he admits that the latter is right there when it comes to bagging Darktown game.

Chief Mayo and Commissioners Gentlemen

As I have bin a superumerary for enuf and see by the morning paper that the supes are astin for there jobs I am goin to ast for min I am a superumerary and I want you to do what to ast you to call up the call men to find out I was rased in the country. And got strong down and diggin per-taters.

Every I what knows me can tell you that I am feareless I aint scared of Capt Terry and Sarg Hollis aint no dear to me.

I aint like most of the supes I got a platform to work on. Not a wood platform but a polytanal I believe.

I believe all us police ought two have horses two ride on I believe they ought to cut our time two 6 hours a day. All the police ought to be furnished there uniforms. Mine's worn out. Last but not least I believe in Sunday base ball.

If you would make me a regular police I would not let no one J. Wall, and would keep all the ladies cross the streets.

The city needs good police officers and I think you should make me 1 yours truly

George Allen Maddox.
Members of the department are congratulating Detective George Allen Maddox upon his recovery from injuries received when struck by an automobile truck on Decatur street several weeks ago. Maddox, although able to be out of the hospital, will not report for regular duty for several days.

Patrolman Swords reported for duty recently following a severe illness of his grippe. Because of his physical condition Captain O. R. Jones assigned him in the station sergeant's office to answer the telephone. Call Officer O. R. Jones has named him Caddy Swords.

Austin and Fortson.
Call Officer Howard Austin has changed places with O. R. Jones and is now a member of the Darktown team of Austin and Fortson. Captain Poole wears to this. Where are you going boy, Austin speaking to a dusky Darktown swain.

Going home, negro's voice
'What's that under your arm?'
'Some pies and fish for dinner tomorrow.'
Now go on home. Don't let me catch you out this late any more.
'Pretty good pie eh, Fortson?'
'Pretty good, Howard.'

Most Lausnal.
Shortly after 11 o'clock last Wednesday night a negro boy, about 17 or 18 years of age walked into police headquarters and up to the station sergeant's office. Sergeant Hollis asked him what he wanted.

"Ah, wants to go to the stockade boss" replied the negro, grinning at the disturbance he caused by the statement.

After recovering from the shock Sergeant Hollis was able to ask the negro the why and wherefore of his rash desire.

"Ah, hungry an' aint got no place to stay," replied the negro, "I want to go out dat an' stay till hit gets wahm so's Ah kin go on home."

Always willing to oblige, Sergeant Hollis charged the negro with idling and loitering and locked him up.

Turnkey Tom Bain gave him a pan of stockade peas and meat, and the way they were attacked convinced all present that the boy was in earnest.

Large War Munitions Plants in the South Under Contemplation

Atlanta and Alabama Capital Is Said to Be Back of the General Explosives Company.

That manufacturers of high explosives and war munitions are considering extensive development in the south similar to the great plant of the Du Pont interests at Appop, Va., is given color by a number of indications of the last several weeks.

Under the style of the General Explosives company a munitions manufacturing concern has taken out charter under the laws of Alabama for the purpose of establishing several large plants at Anniston. It is understood that Du Pont capital is in no wise interested in this enterprise, but that the capital back of it is located in Atlanta and Alabama.

Several Atlanta financiers are known to be back of the new enterprise and it is stated that a hydro electric development concern of Alabama is also heavily interested in the project.

The General Explosives company is not dependent upon war orders for its support. Its preparedness plan which the United States is now undertaking for its support. On the contrary it is stated that the new company already has contracts to supply explosives for two years. While it has never been announced definitely it is understood that the contracts mentioned are for the supply of explosives to the various mining interests around Birmingham and at other points in Alabama.

Indications of further development of munitions manufacturing in the south are given by the fact that the Du Pont interests have in Philon county deeds for two tracts of land near Atlanta, which this great power manufacturer, concerned for the future of the state, has been desirous to obtain. It is understood that the Du Pont interests have in mind to develop a big manufacturing plant in the south, and that the plans are for the construction of a big manufacturing plant in the south, and that the plans are for the construction of a big manufacturing plant in the south.

It is understood from authentic sources that representatives of the allied governments are back of a plan for the manufacture of munitions which has been for some time in operation in Atlanta.

It is true however that a city ordinance of Atlanta forbids the storage of high explosives in the city limits. The new acquisitions of the Du Ponts are outside of the city limits and therefore not subject to the ordinance. Yet the tracts just bought are within easy reach of the city, so that the ordinance of Atlanta forbids the storage of high explosives in the city limits.

It is understood from authentic sources that representatives of the allied governments are back of a plan for the manufacture of munitions which has been for some time in operation in Atlanta.

Candidacy for State Treasurer Announced by Senator Eakes

Prominent Georgia Banker Tells Voters of State How He Thinks the Department Should Be Conducted.

To the Citizens of Georgia: I hereby formally announce myself a candidate for election to the office of treasurer of the state of Georgia, subject to the rules and regulations governing the democratic primary.

While I have no long and illustrious record of service in that capacity, I believe that I am qualified to perform the duties of the office. I have had extensive experience in the management of banks and in the handling of public funds.

The law governing the banking business in Georgia is of a two fold nature. It is a mixture of the old and the new. It is a mixture of the old and the new. It is a mixture of the old and the new.

It is my belief that the people of the state should have a treasurer who is a banker and who is a citizen. It is my belief that the people of the state should have a treasurer who is a banker and who is a citizen.

Taking a Forward Look to Spring Fashions

Thru the Medium of Gowns

SOME certain pretty Gown at Allen's is ever the center of a little aura, vibrating with admiration and best selected expression of delight:

"So simple and so admirable!"
"Luxuriously ample, isn't it?"
"Fly away and sashed and tasseled—"
"And unexpectedly sheer in places—"
"Makes no pretense of concealing anything."

All true, and each to make an effect certain. Each an exponent of the new season vogue for the thing that is deliciously feminine.

The Spring Gown Is at Allen's—The Luxurious Ones and Simple Ones Which Are Advocated This Season

For Evening Net or Georgette. The sheerness of the dressy gown is a noticeable thing—its fluffiness next calls for attention—its truly feminine aspect clamors for recognition. Richly encrusted with heavy silver lace bands and "patches of sunshine" in bodice touches and queer little pockets.	For Afternoon Dark blue and black are both popular this season in sheer materials; also soft taffeta. These as well as the cream net, rose and blue Georgette are exquisitely combined with messaline and richly finished with lace and beaded decoration. White cord bindings of satin on black net is a strikingly original and refined touch.	For Morning Tailored dresses of taffeta in dark street shades, trim lines and exquisitely modeled. Bright dashes of red or yellow on the dark shades, black and white strikingly combined. New Linen and Novelty Cotton Dresses The genius of many seasons is cumulative in the wash frocks for spring. Fresh blue and pink in broad stripes—unique in combination and style character.

PAY as Much Attention to the Laundering of Your Shirt as to the Original Selection

You are probably hussy about the pattern and quality of your shirts when you buy them. Why not then be hussy about their retaining these essentials which first made the shirt attractive to you and which you want to retain.

Unless your shirt is properly laundered your shirt won't last very long if it is not properly ironed it won't fit very well and if it is not properly cared for the pattern won't last. This laundry assures you by proper equipment, methods and care that your linens will give you the utmost satisfaction.

Washington Seminary Notes.

On Thursday the basketball team of Washington seminary played a match game with the Decatur High school team, the score being 3 to 3 in favor of the seminary. The first match game of the season was played with the Central High school team, when the seminary team were victors. The score was 15 to 7.

The members of the team are Annie Inez Bates, Ella Chiff Kiser, Lois MacIntyre, Margaret Pratt and Helen Wayt. An event of interest on Monday afternoon was the meeting of the College Preparatory club with Miss Margaret Pratt at her home in Druid Hills. Among the most enthusiastic visitors to the Georgia Product cars before they left on their tour of the state were more than thirty children in the lower grades.

A birthday celebration that is never omitted in this following of the College Preparatory club with Miss Margaret Pratt at her home in Druid Hills. Among the most enthusiastic visitors to the Georgia Product cars before they left on their tour of the state were more than thirty children in the lower grades.

Among those spending the week-end at home from away were Misses Margaret Wheat, Lillian Blair, Frances Kennedy, Margaret Gray, from Atlanta, and Miss Lottie Garrett from Villa Rica.

AUGUSTA'S SOCIAL SIDE

Augusta, Ga., January 29.—(Special Correspondence.) The most brilliant and representative audience which ever gathered at the Grand was there Tuesday evening to hear the artist, Mr. Josef Hoffmann. Standing room was hardly to be had.

Mr. Hoffmann had no interest in one piece after another as rapidly as possible. The audience, however, was so enraptured by the artist's performance that several minutes elapsed before any one made a move to go, so great was the enjoyment and appreciation of all who had the privilege of hearing this wonderful pianist.

One of the lovely home weddings of the season was that of Mr. Frederick Schroeder, of Charleston, and Miss Elizabeth Kersh, of this city. The bride was attended only by a maid of honor, Mrs. L. W. Thomas, and Mrs. Clara B. Kersh, who gave her a bouquet of Parma violets and valley lilies. The bride's gown was of black tulle with gold and a touch of black maine. Her flowers were a corsage bouquet of Parma violets and valley lilies. The groom's best man was Mr. Langford, and the best woman was Mrs. Clara B. Kersh, who gave her a bouquet of Parma violets and valley lilies. Mr. Schroeder is the son of Charles and Mrs. Julia Schroeder, of Charleston, and is a young civil engineer who is making his home in Chicago.

Mrs. Mattie Starnes gave a delightful theater party Wednesday afternoon. Mrs. W. C. Becka entertained informally at bridge Tuesday morning in compliment to Miss Mary Frances Brown, of Shelbyville, Ky., and Miss Kathryn Gray, of Anchorage, Ky., who are guests of Mrs. Fred Durkee.

At the dinner-dance at the Country club Monday night, Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Houseman entertained a party of fifteen. Mrs. Henry Tucker had eight at her table. Mr. and Mrs. Porter Fleming had a party of eight. Miss Carolyn Curtis entertained a party of eight. Mrs. E. J. Burke, Mrs. T. A. Whitaker and others.

Saturday night a number of supper parties were given at the club. Mr. and Mrs. Frank Barrett had a party of twelve. Mrs. L. W. Thomas entertained a large party, and Mr. Bowditch, Mr. George Fargo, Mr. Nesbit, Mrs. J. A. Jackson and Mrs. Sam F. Hunt. The honor guests were presented with dainty hand-made crepe de chine handkerchiefs.

Miss Willie Swinney entertained Monday afternoon for Mrs. Lee Jordan, the guest of Miss Eva Graham.

Christian association gave a delightful luncheon on Thursday at the Y. W. C. A. rooms, which was enjoyed by a large company. Relative to a publication in Atlanta about Miss Betty Lee's one-earring fad, Miss Julia Moore, the clever writer on the Augusta Herald, says: "Without deigning to detract in any way from either the originality or adroitness of Miss Betty Lee's one-earring fad, she has not only let the public know that she is several months behind the times in her foolish little one-earring fad, Mr. Robert Cotman, one of Augusta's loveliest young matrons decorated one of her pretty ears all last summer, and the way it happened was this: Six and Mr. Cotman were in New York last spring and Mr. Cotman bought her a pair of beautiful and very handsome earrings. The same evening he left on the theater boat, carrying her a note to let the public know something of an anecdote was included in the first two or three days of the winter. She had not been out of the city for a week before she had learned of the fact that it was so, and now, and many of the girls fall in line with her foolish little one-earring fad. Miss Betty Lee's one-earring fad may have started something new for Atlanta."

At a enjoyable dinner was participated in by a kindly number of well-to-do people at the R. O. P. hall last evening. The dinner was given by Mrs. J. H. Houseman and Mrs. L. W. Thomas, who were assisted by Mrs. J. H. Houseman and Mrs. L. W. Thomas.

Miss Marie Haynes of Augusta, Va., is in the new winter home completed on Gray street, The Hill.

Dandruff Surely Destroys The Hair

Girls—Do you want plenty of beautiful, glossy, silky hair? Do you mean get rid of dandruff? It will starve your hair and run it to a point.

It doesn't do much good to brush your hair every day. The best way to get rid of dandruff is to dissolve it then you destroy it entirely. To do this get about four ounces of ordinary household soap, apply it when your hair is wet, and wash it out with the water. It will take a few days.

By morning most of it will be gone and four more applications will completely dissolve and destroy it. Get a single sign and face of it. You will find that all itching and itching of the scalp will stop and your hair will look and feel a hundred times better. Get a single sign and face of it. It is inexpensive and for its ounces is all you need. No matter how much you have, this simple remedy will cure it.

The Woman's World

By ISMA DOOLY

Why is it that women seem to be just naturally averse to the law? I asked a gentleman to-day, and then he explained that with few exceptions the only individuals who have given trouble to the law are women and that they were just as stubborn about keeping the law pertaining to traffic. Then he added: "What is the psychology of it?"

I was glad he asked the last question. I have not been thinking of it without giving my own reasons for it. I chose to be agreeable to his statement at first, but when he continued as above, I blankly stared at him. I felt that it was the most complex question in the city. He felt that the simple cannot be explained, and that the law is not a simple matter. He felt that the law is not a simple matter. He felt that the law is not a simple matter.

My authority for the statement is that I have heard it from the lips of many who have been charged with it. I have heard it from the lips of many who have been charged with it. I have heard it from the lips of many who have been charged with it.

THE PSYCHOLOGY OF IT.

The psychology of it, dear friend, I repeated. I will explain for you. I will explain for you. I will explain for you. I will explain for you. I will explain for you. I will explain for you.

WOMAN'S POWER

It is not the power of the law, but the power of the woman. It is not the power of the law, but the power of the woman. It is not the power of the law, but the power of the woman. It is not the power of the law, but the power of the woman.

ANOTHER REASON.

And I tried to explain to my friend what I had seen in my mind. I tried to explain to my friend what I had seen in my mind. I tried to explain to my friend what I had seen in my mind. I tried to explain to my friend what I had seen in my mind.

THE OPERA SEASON THIS YEAR.

The opera season of this year is a five topic of conversation not only where people draw rooms, but everywhere. The opera season of this year is a five topic of conversation not only where people draw rooms, but everywhere.

THE OPERA SEASON THIS YEAR.

There are two operas which everybody seems to agree in wishing on this year's program. These two are Tosca and Otello. There are two operas which everybody seems to agree in wishing on this year's program.

THE TWO MANONS.

The opera of Manon calls for an interest last whether it is the interpretation of the Massenet opera. The opera of Manon calls for an interest last whether it is the interpretation of the Massenet opera.

held responsible for the most vital forces and influences in life, with none of the authority.

Then, bringing the incident back to a local atmosphere, I reminded myself of another fact, and that is that the state of Georgia has strenuously maintained a system of feminine Jay-walking. If a woman desired to equip herself for the responsibilities which presented themselves to her, by a high collegiate or university education, her own state denied her the privilege.

MORE PROTECTION NEEDED

Fed from being sorry for Officer Blank in his efforts to protect the community and society against feminine Jay walking, I do not feel at all sorry for him. He represents that great old world where the laws for his half and the other half.

Redations have to get along the best way they can. Men with three centuries of responsibility can get across the street better than women can. Until women get accustomed to the fact that chivalry is on the wane and that they are held responsible for it, the effect at the corner is going to have a hard time.

There is a certain corner in Atlanta where four streets meet, where the street is wide and where men or women almost take their lives in their hands when they attempt to cross.

THE AESTHETIC DANCERS.

With but one week's training, the young women who have studied with the four girls, have been able to dance to the accompaniment of music. The clubs will give their official entertainments and there will probably be an opening entertainment of the new club at "Blossoms" opera week.

THE EXCLUSIVE MODEL.

Though many gowns are model gowns as to style and beauty, many draw from an original model, for Miss Eastman, very few women can claim to have the exclusive right of the original model. Yet many women buying a gown, patterned from an original model, are very unhappy if in the same company they see a gown similar to one they have bought the copy of an original.

THE DANGEROUS LENGTH.

If there is one other thought that a woman must be more careful of than buying a becoming hat, it is the length of her gown. There are very few women over 18 who can wear an eight-foot frock and look well in it.

THE HANGING BICYCLE BOY.

A great deal has been said about the "jay walker" and the reckless chauffeur, the owner of the automobile claiming all privileges, and the heedless motorist of the pedestrian, but ought there not to be some protection against the nuisance of the bicycle boy, whether he is a messenger or a leisure lacer?

THE COMING OF DR. GUTHRIE.

The announcement that Dr. William Norman Guthrie will lecture here the evening of Tuesday, February 1, has stirred an interest, which Atlanta so surely feels in the visits of this distinguished scholar and lecturer.

able on the Atlanta program this year, with probably a preference for "Lucia," because it has been presented only once by the Metropolitan company in Atlanta.

THE NEW OPERA.

"Why can't we have some opera this season that has never been presented in Atlanta?" asks an Atlanta woman. "Why not 'Sampson and Delilah,' having Caruso in one of his greatest roles?" Then she continued: "We have never heard 'Lucia' in Atlanta, an opera of great beauty."

Another asks: "Why not the Russian opera, 'Boris,' one of the greatest of modern productions with an enthusiastic patronage this season?"

The "Meistersinger is the German opera being discussed for the Atlanta program, with the delightful Frieda Hempel in the leading feminine role and Conrad Veidt in the part of Hans Sachs. New York has given this opera an enthusiastic reception, and it has never been produced in Atlanta.

Two operas which have enjoyed a great popularity here have been "Martha and the Barber of Seville." Their titles at once bring the suggestion of the lighter operas, and these are those who would for that reason question whether or not they were acceptable here. Yet there are the critics who declare that in no other opera is Caruso more delightful than in "Martha and the Barber of Seville." Caruso is making "Martha" over again.

The records for all of these operas are being heard by Atlanta music lovers, and the study classes are planning for systematic study of the season as the opera program is announced.

Socially the season will be a very gay one with hundreds of parties and the usual program of entertainments. The clubs will give their official entertainments and there will probably be an opening entertainment of the new club at "Blossoms" opera week.

Sets Many a Man To Thinking

Strange how many times a coffee drinker will pass lightly over a Postum advertisement until all at once nervousness, a sleepless night, a dull headache, heart flutter, or some other ailment—often due to coffee drinking—brings the message home.

Then, attention is called to the fact that caffeine, the drug in coffee, does hurt some people and hurt them hard.

If you are a coffee drinker and think anti-coffee talk is only a "scare" it would be a good idea to make this easy, personal test: Quit coffee ten days and in its place use

POSTUM

If the change to this pure food-drink brings steadier nerves, sounder sleep, a clearer head, and the better health that follows freedom from the coffee drug, you'll know where comfort lies—whether to stick to Postum or go back to coffee and its troubles.

Of wheat and a small portion of wholesome molasses, Postum has a delicious flavour much like that of mild, high-grade coffee, yet contains no caffeine nor other harmful element.

There are two forms of Postum. The original Postum Cereal must be boiled; Instant Postum is quickly soluble in hot water, more convenient to prepare, and has the same rich flavour as the original Postum. Some prefer one form, some the other. Both forms are equally delicious and the cost per cup is about the same.

The change from coffee to Postum is a little thing to do for so great a benefit. It's worth thinking over!

GOOD COMPOSITIONS AT IMMACULATE CONCEPTION.

Interesting Program Delivered on Lee's Birthday by Two Grades.

By Lillian Halley.
On last composition day some splendid reproductions were written by the girls of the first and second grades. The subject was "The Little Match Girl." First the story was read to us and then the reproductions called for. The best ones in the second grade were written by Dorothy West and Mollie White, the best ones in the first grade by Elizabeth McArrick and Annie Pearson.

The girls of the fifth and sixth grades celebrated Lee's birthday by writing an interesting program. Compositions were written and a long piece about his life was read to the classes. The best composition in the sixth grade was written by Estelle Horner and the best ones in the fifth grade were those written by Mildred White, Margaret Josephine Cerniglia, Mary Wannwright, Mary Gray and Nellie Morefield.

Although you have not heard from the first and second grades primary in a long time, you must not think that they have stopped working, for they are just as busy as can be writing compositions, having spelling contests, drawing and cutting. The subject for yesterday's composition "The Little Match Girl" was the subject for yesterday's composition. The best ones in the sixth grade were written by Estelle Horner and the best ones in the fifth grade were those written by Mildred White, Margaret Josephine Cerniglia, Mary Wannwright, Mary Gray and Nellie Morefield.

CREW PUPILS DRAMATIZE STORY OF POCAHONTAS

The following arrangement of Pocahontas will be presented in February:

Scene I.
(Pocahontas saves the life of Captain John Smith) Characters—Powhatan, Pocahontas, Indian women, Warriors, Captain John Smith.
(Powhatan on his throne, women seated on mats on either side, warriors standing around, Captain John Smith is brought in by Indian warriors, men bring in a bowl of water for him to wash his hands in, feathers to dry them with and a tray of food. Indians talk apart as to what shall be done with the prisoner.)
Warrior—Kill. He no friend of ours.
Another Warrior—Yesterday, with his big gun, he killed our men when they tried to capture him.
This warrior—He wants to be our king. We will have no king but Powhatan.
Powhatan—Let him die (Signals to warriors, who bring stones and place Smith upon them).
Pocahontas—No! No! Don't kill this brave warrior! He is friend to you. He teach you many wonderful things. Let him be your friend.
Powhatan—Be quiet, Pocahontas! He take away our land. He kill us with his big gun. He want to be our king. (Powhatan runs and falls down by Smith, placing herself between him and the warriors.)
Pocahontas—Spare him! I am daughter of a king. I claim the Indian right.
Powhatan (Motioning to warriors to stand back) Paleface, you are a brave man. Powhatan would be your friend and brother. You go back to your people. These warriors will go with you.
Smith—Mighty King Powhatan, I thank you. I will make you a present. What will you have?
Powhatan—You make me happy if you send me two great guns like this and a grindstone to make my weapons keen.
Smith—That I will do. Farewell.

OFFICERS ARE ELECTED FOR N. A. P. S. SOCIETY

Semi-finals being now completed, we are able to turn our attention to the news items of the N. A. P. S. society. We hope will be of interest to our friends and patrons.

On January 24 a meeting of the student body was held for the purpose of electing officers for the second semester, the result being as follows:

President, Catherine Brown; Vice President, Dorothy Talbot; Secretary, Catherine Hook; Treasurer, Belle Matheson.

The Parent-Teacher Association of the North Avenue High school held a meeting on Wednesday, January 26, in the school building, an election of officers was held and the following were elected: Miss Cecile M. Parish, of the state board of education, was the speaker of the afternoon and provided a very inspiring one.

Last week the student body held a very interesting meeting pertaining to a newer form of "votes for women" and the result to appear in the school annual, which will be issued in April.

The coming months bid fair to be interesting ones as several of the projects now in progress are now under discussion by the student body.

MUCH INTEREST IN FLOWER BEDS AT LUCILE AVE.

We are all very enthusiastic about planting the flower beds. We have planted geraniums and pansies on the south side of Miles Standish on their sand tables.

Hot chocolate and sandwiches were sold Wednesday by the fourth grade boys for the past week have been very busy planting seeds. Great plans have been made for the gardens.

The children of the seventh grade again have the honor of winning the spelling and attendance banners last week. A number have received 100 in spelling and the boys of the second and third grades were very good and are to be commended.

Albert C. Brown and Leon Robinson are the winners of first B.

The fifth grade B children have received stars in music each month since the beginning of the year.

The seventh A will have a bid contest February 1 and Debating society held its regular meeting Friday. The girls who spoke for the medals were Mildred Brown and Marjorie Morgan. The boys who competed for the medal were Charles Britton and Wolfe Letourneau.

The children of first B who have not been absent or tardy since school opened are as follows: Alice Mulcahy, Kenneth Brown, Atkinson Howlin, Hubert "Frisping" Gault, Fred, Charles Voss, Lucille Coleman, Dorothy Holton.

The Japanese village built by the children of third A is very attractive. Florence and Lila Bari have moved to Grant.

The mothers' meeting was well attended Tuesday afternoon Mrs. H. Kirkpatrick presided. Those of the public schools was present and gave a splendid talk on how to help the school.

The fifth grade Miss Sparrow's reading and Miss Voss's solo were greatly enjoyed.

DAVIS STREET SCHOOL. All Classes Get Much Fun Dramatizing Stories.

The little first A grade children won the banner for attendance last week, making 96.1 per cent, which was very good, considering the bad weather.

We were glad to have a visit from Mr. Landrum, Miss Graves and Miss Cora Brown on last Monday. This is the first time since last summer that they have paid us in some time, and we were glad to know they had not forgotten us.

Mr. Ashley visited this class and presented a new quarter for every one and started a new quarter that day.

Boys' High School Defeats Peacock in Listless Game, 57-14

By Horace Loomis.
"Was early in the second half, but Stuten suddenly appeared and how he made things hum!"

In a somewhat listless game Boys' High school defeated Peacock 57-14 on the latter's court. The game started promptly at 3:15 and quite a good-sized audience watched the two teams perform. For several minutes after the ball was put in play no scoring was done, and then high school started, and by the end of the first half had won 32 points to Peacock's 7. In the second half a bright Peacock forward tried to start something and found he had bitten off more string than he could chew, for the high school contingent took matters in their own hands and for a few moments things looked as equally as an actor's boarding house when the invited guest takes two charlotte russes on the first pass.

However, the referee finally succeeded in quelling the disturbance and the game went on. High school in the meantime had made several substitutions, some voluntarily and some by order of the referee. Wallace was substituted for Hubert, Leach for Adams, and Stuten for Hicks. Wallace played a jam-up game of basketball, playing all over the court and ringing several baskets. He showed himself to be an able substitute for either of the forwards.

Stuten, on the other hand, could not forget that he had one play left on the ball, and made many brilliant dives and tackles, causing much amusement and some consternation among the spectators.

Warren, B. Adams and Hicks also played good basketball and did the greater part of the scoring for Boys' High.

The game on the whole was slow and featured only by Stuten's diving among the spectators.

Parent-Teachers Hold Their Monthly Meeting At Milton Ave. School

The regular monthly meeting of the Parent-Teacher association of Milton Avenue school will be held Tuesday, February 1, at 2:30 o'clock in the school room. There will be an interesting program. All members are urged to be present.

ASHBY STREET SCHOOL.

Seventh Grade Holds an Interesting Society Meeting.

The seventh grade's monthly society was held Wednesday, January 19, on Robert E. Lee's birthday. The fifth and sixth grades were the guests. The medals were given to Frank Stockton and Louise Adams. The visitors who enjoyed the program very much.

Irene Eskew, one of the seventh grade girls, threw the oat bag 45 feet.

GIRLS' NIGHT. New Quarters Make the Pupils Very Proud.

It has been quite a while since we had a letter, but we have been so busy all of the time that we couldn't find time to write even a short letter. We have moved into the Commercial High School building on Pryor street, and occupy the first floor. We now have a different room for each class, and are able to do much better work. We also appreciate the interest of the board of education in taking in the first class to work harder each day to show them what we can do. We are still in a degree of infancy, but are growing rapidly.

The girls are organizing a club, which will be for their social and intellectual advancement. It will also draw them closer together in their school work. They are going to study current events, music and dramatic art. The first entertainment to be given by the club will be on Washington's birthday.

The classes continue to have a good attendance and the girls are very much interested in their work.

Our kitchen is now completed and is a big success. Suppers are furnished for 10 cents, and by making this charge, we have placed ourselves on a more independent basis.

VISITORS ARE PLEASED WITH WORK AT TENTH

All the Teachers Are Back After Absences Due to Illness.

Miss Dillingham, physical training director of North Avenue Presbyterian school, made us a visit last week with her own director, Miss Graves. We hope she'll come again and we are always glad to see Miss Graves.

All our teachers are back after some ten or twelve absences among them during the week. Our school ship is steering steadily now.

The first A welcomes Miss Berman's return after her recent illness. The class has a beautiful North Pole scene on their sand table.

The first B has some very good animal and nature drawings.

The second B has some excellent borders. The best were made by Sarah James, Robert Dill and John Peacock.

The third B received a pleasant visit from the sixth B this week. The fourth A regrets the absence of Miss Wells. It was so cold Monday and Tuesday last that the ink froze solid. The class is interested in the study of China.

The fifth A received a good grade in music and physical training. The class has a frame of animal drawings on the walls.

The fifth B is to have a debate next week. The subject is "Resolved: That the French were a stronger colonization than the Spanish." Sam Tupper, Willis Jones, Henrietta Ehrlich and Betsy Benford represent the affirmative, and Colquitt Carter, Robert Brown, Caroline Gershon and Sarah Douglas represent the negative. A lively contest is expected. An excellent literature book was made in their recent recitation. The theme of the "Birds of the Ancient Mariner" by Julia Patton.

The class received a good mark in music and excellent in physical training.

Excellent in physical training was Miss Graves' class. In an exciting history match in the sixth A, Charles Trammell's side won over Maureen Faulkner's side.

An excellent map of Georgia was made by Will Griffin, of the seventh A. The week's best spellers of this class were: E. Edwards, A. Lee, C. Wallace, C. Coolidge, Louise Pappenhimer, Elizabeth Peoples and Sally Cobb Orme.

Dunbar Ogden, of the seventh B, has excelled in the year's drawing work of his grade.

Both the seventh A and B enjoyed a visit to the cyclorama.

JACK SHARP.

SEVENTH GRADE AT PRYOR VISITS THE CYCLORAMA

Monday about 1 o'clock the seventh grade left school and walked to the cyclorama, at Grant park. They heard a very interesting lecture on the great painting, which was very instructive, as well as interesting.

We were very glad to see Miss Kirkpatrick and her class. She was well pleased with the work throughout the school. She greatly admired our school building and said it looked like a big university.

The sixth grade B has led the school in attendance for three weeks, with an average of 100 per cent.

The little first grade children were very sorry to lose Martha Mobley, who was transferred to another school.

The first and third grades are studying about Eskimos, and are enjoying it very much. They are proud to have stories about jungle land, and have many pretty pictures of the Eskimos and how they live.

The third grade had an arithmetic match last week, and the following children stood up: Elizabeth Akin, Grace Runyan, Bernice Canada, Florence England, Stella Evans, Katherine Fisher, Bertie Lynch, Ruth Watkins, William Harper, J. C. Gillespie and Julian Adams. They were very proud to have this large number remain standing.

EUNICE ELIZABETH RIDLEY.

3D GRADE PUPILS AT AAS SCHOOL GIVE 2 CONCERTS

The second grade is enjoying their reading in the new supplementary readers their teacher got for them from the library.

The third grade gave two plays and a photograph concert for the first and second grades. The plays were "A Bit Bush" and "Children of Other Lands." The visitors enjoyed the treat very much.

The sixth grade is interested in a bird box which one of the boys made and placed in Raleigh Decliner, of this grade, made the highest jumping record in school. He jumped over a foot window.

The sixth grade is interested in a bird box which one of the boys made and placed in Raleigh Decliner, of this grade, made the highest jumping record in school. He jumped over a foot window.

Three of the boys killed a squirrel, stuffed it and mounted it on part of a tree trunk. We are expecting to have a museum some day with the squirrel as a beginning.

PARENT-TEACHERS MET TUESDAY AT GA. AVE. SCHOOL

The Parent-Teacher association met Tuesday afternoon with a large attendance. Dr. Park gave a very interesting talk which was much enjoyed by all.

A china shower was quite a success. We had two tables filled with white and gold cups and saucers and plates.

Miss Wickum presented our school with a gas stove, and we hope to serve the children with it just starting in the new year.

The sixth grade won the picture for having the most mothers present at the assembly. The picture was given by Mrs. Parker Freeman.

Seventh Grade Enjoys Visit to the Cyclorama.

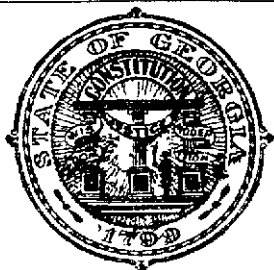

Friday the seventh grade went to Grant park to see the cyclorama, Port Walker and the zoo. We wish to thank the board of education for giving us the privilege of seeing their wonderful picture of the battle of Atlanta. We visited Port Walker and saw the cyclorama. We have all read about it. Then we visited the zoo. All of us enjoyed seeing the animals, as if we had never seen them before.

The third grade has a large variety of bulbs which are just starting to grow in the pots. In about a week they will have enough blooms to make a large bouquet.

All of us will be glad to receive our report cards. We know some of the children will go home with bright faces to show their parents what they have done during the quarter.

CUT THE ROPE!
Why not cut the rope that now lashes
Atlanta to the mast of stagnation?

Somebody or some organization strong enough to lead the way in which Atlantans will be glad to follow is needed to save the city from the effects of a system that is not only antiquated but extravagant waste ful and inefficient

The city finance committee recently made a budget for 1916. The city council passed it. The mayor vetoed it because it carried an excess of appropriations over revenues actually in sight—because in other words it anticipated

Under present conditions Atlanta must anticipate city revenue or go backward Atlanta will never find a remedy for this condition until she adopts an administrative system which shall be economically effi cient until she learns to apportion city income to municipal needs rather than to an excess of municipal employees

Atlanta needs a big bond issue now
There are imperative permanent im provements to be made in city institutions which if much longer neglected will mean municipal decadence and substantial loss These improvements are needed to keep pace with essential conditions of city growth. If Atlanta fails to make them she must fall behind

If Atlanta had an administrative system which held the confidence of the people this bond issue would already have been adopted and the work would have been under way. But a system which too often permits petty differences and even wringling and disorganization over projects of imperative necessity can only place obstacles in the path of municipal progress

Thus with the rope of an antiquated sys tem is Atlanta tied and bound about to the post of stagnation. We have got to cut the rope before we get anywhere and the quicker we get about it the better will it be for Atlanta

The time is ripe and conditions demand it now
Why not apply the knife to this tight tied Gordian knot?

GEORGIA'S CONSCIENCE

Georgia must do something about this matter of indiscriminate lynching and do it quickly. For every day's delay the people of the whole state pay the penalty

Certainly the public conscience is not so scathed that it will be so blinded to the state's welfare that the people of Georgia propose to permit this sort of thing to go on indefinitely. Grow no worse and worse from year to year with no effort to stop these saucy uprisings. Let there be a salutary in dignity upon every man, woman and child in the state

Because of this lynch record Georgia is being condemned from Maine to California and from the Lake to the Gulf

How long are we going to continue to hold this unenviable record? How long do we propose to continue to increase it?
Georgia's conscience and Georgia's man hood are upon their test. Somebody has got to speak and act for the state and do it quickly. We are going to make even a be ginning toward getting out from under the burden which lynch law has put upon us

For the last five years we have prac tically without exception led every other state and community in the murder of men who regarded the crimes with which they were charged were guaranteed a fair trial in the courts

These men, no matter what their crimes, were promised certain rights of life and liberty under the constitution, not only of this state but of the United States

Do these lynchers believe do the people of Georgia believe that the federal govern ment is going to permit this sort of thing to go on indefinitely without making some effort to put a stop to it?

There are those in congress now who would want no better opportunity than this lynching record gives them to take a hand in the matter

Georgia need not think she can remain apathetic over this lynching record. Threats of federal intervention have already been heard a little more and they will be trans lated into action

And when this condition does come about, Georgians, waking up to it, will blame not themselves but the politicians, the officeholders who are now permitting
this lawlessness to continue without protest

Here is—not an issue for there can be no division about it among good people—a principle upon which every candidate who goes before the people can well afford to stand

If they are afraid to do it if they balk for fear of the mob then it is time for the good and law-abiding people who want to see their state respected and honored abroad as well as at home, to take hold of the situation

FOR EMORY UNIVERSITY

In a campaign of half a week Atlanta has already given approximately a quarter of a million dollars to the fund for the establishment here of Greater Emory univer sity. Atlanta has been asked to contribute $500,000 to what will soon be a five million dollar institution. For a 10 per cent sub scription this city is to get what promises to be at the very outset one of the foremost and best equipped educational institutions in all the south

Strong canvassing committees are dili gently at work upon the project and from day to day they are reporting good results
This work is not going to cease until Atlanta has subscribed every dollar of the half million asked, but it should be sub scribed without procrastination or even momentary hesitation

The establishment here of Greater Emory university will be the biggest thing Atlanta has done in the last quarter of a century With the raising of university and college standards the past few years consolidation and higher organized efficiency have be come absolutely essential factors to success ful operation. Emory college at Oxford alone and to itself must have remained a second rate institution. Without assistance from some well organized source the At lanta Medical college which alone is worth half a million dollars a year to Atlanta could not possibly have accomplished its mission

The promoters of Greater Emory pro pose not only to combine these institutions but to add to them schools of law, theology and other branches besides a practical hos pital service and all other features which are essential factors in the modern univer sity

Atlanta cannot afford to be otherwise than generous to an institution backed by millions of money and worth even more than that in the substance of its splendid contribution to city, state and national education

These committees who are soliciting the half million dollar fund from Atlanta are giving their time and effort freely to the work without charge and without hope of reward. They are doing it solely that At lanta may grow and prosper

Every citizen interested in Atlanta's wel fare should be ready to meet them and say at once just what he can do

Let there be no argument about it. When the committee comes put your name down and let that be the end of it

It makes no difference what Atlanta has already done or what you have already done for Atlanta. Greater Emory must and will come and Atlantans have got to pave the way for it now

EVERY DAY THRIFT DAY

The national thrift day idea of a day set apart for saving carried the appeal of nov elty and strong common sense and public sentiment at once voted it a good thing which was sure to bring results

Among many general plans proposed for its celebration that of The New York Even ing World in brief summary is the most practical

It is the thrift day idea in a nutshell
And in addition to that—which is an excel lent basis to start on—the thrift scheme once it takes firm hold will in a measure make every day its own. And that too not at the expense of the necessary healthful pleasures of the people

It should be Thrift day every working day of the year

REAL "DOGS OF WAR"

The intelligent dogs of war are perform ing services that place them in the hero class—especially at the French front palatable at table, since they are used to give warning of the approach of hostile air ships

But training dogs to performing the as tonishing feats reported of them is the miracle of the army—dogs that do sentinel and patrol work—that are taught when to give a growl of warning, and when not to bark, and dogs that are dispatch bearers under fire. Of one of these The Brooklyn Eagle says

Dogs have not yet been quoted in army orders. When they are there is one dog that will not be forgotten—Marquis, who though wounded by shrapnel, kept on his way to a far off detachment and arrived breathless and panting at his destination only to die as the dispatch he carried was taken from his neck

It is no wonder that, when wounded, or in any manner incapacitated for the work attributed to them, they are carefully nursed until fit for further service

The war-story writers have not yet in terpreted a dog's thought of the war. To do so would require but a short flight of fancy. It would probably be that the whole business is a varying exhibition of almost inconceivable human brutalities

CREATING NEW LAND VALUES

The Constitution tells the story else where today of what is being accomplished under the new drainage law of the state.
It is a story which must attract the atten tion and interest of the whole state and particularly of those counties which have water soaked lands awaiting only relief from the overflow to put them in the front rank of production

It is a peculiar fact that when the larg est proportion of overflow and swamp land in this state is adjacent to the coast it should have remained for counties at the foot of the Blue Ridge to make the first substantial and practical demonstration of the value of a voluntary drainage law which has been written upon the statute books for scarcely five years

The remarkable possibilities in the Geor gia drainage law, imperfect as it is, are told in the first results obtained under its operation. The very first drainage district organized under the new law was known as the Haynes creek district of Gwinnett coun ty. This project having been promoted by Thomas A. Pate former member of the leg islature and a forceful advocate of the new drainage law when it was under considera tion. In this project there were reclaimed 700 acres of rich bottom land at a total cost of $13,000 or less than $20 an acre

As overflow land it was practically worth less as reclaimed land it has made in two years enough corn to pay the price of reclamation and today this land is worth anywhere from $100 to $200 an acre. Every acre of it that has changed hands since the project was completed has brought at least $100 and the owners have nearly ten years yet in which to pay for the cost of the work

The remarkable success of the Haynes creek project woke up the farmers in the adjacent county of Walton who had similar lands lying idle under water. The Walton county people put the drainage law to work upon what is known as Jacks creek and have already increased land values in that territory from $5 to $75 an acre. They are now forming another drainage district in Walton county which will mean the recla mation of 2,000 acres or more of fertile bot tom lands at a cost of less than $25 an acre which it is estimated will be worth $100 or more when the work is completed

When the new drainage law was first put into operation it aroused considerable oppo sition. There were those who did not want to be taxed for the cost of reclamation not withstanding increased land values which would be given them. The law was fought in the courts and carried through with the final decision from the supreme court of the state that it is constitutional and must be carried out whenever its provisions are compplied with. But the splendid results attained from its operations in Gwinnett and Walton counties have broken the backbone of opposition and the people throughout that territory are now heartily in accord with it

They go even further than that and are ready and willing to advocate its amend ment to the extent of strengthening it so that drainage project bonds may be readily sold in the market where under the present law it is somewhat difficult to place them

Georgia has approximately 500 square miles of overflow and swamp lands which, if made available for cultivation would be the richest and most productive lands in the state. They have been fertilized by the water long standing upon them, and it is only necessary to get the water off to make them yield abundantly. Their value con sidered the expense of reclaiming them is far less than that of clearing wooded land for cultivation

If the Georgia drainage law is lacking in any particular it should be strengthened at once for it has already proven its ability to give the state its most valuable and most productive soil

Russia is well supplied with ammunition, and incidentally hopes to snow em under Berlin finds that the Turks come handy to blame things on

Honest criticism doesn't improve con gress or it would be hard at work every day of the session

What the Ford folks can't understand is that the kaiser really wants peace and wants it mighty bad

Italy is another war-optimist who thought it would be short and easy

Mr. H. G. Wells admits that he has failed here and there as war prophet. The others are not so candid

There are candidates who think that the threshold of the office is a good place to wait for the office to seek them

The Holland Letter
Charles E. Shepard who ranks with the leaders of the bar upon the Pacific slope has the interest of an American citizen and in mind in the agitation he has undertaken to impress congress with the need of help for Alaska that need will be taken of this de mand Mr Shepard's interest in this subject reflects from one point of view his address before the American bar association recently reprinted by that body the subject of which was the education of the lawyer in relation to public service There is no public ser vice of a more far reaching character than reflected in national affairs as given to the development of Alaska

ALASKA Development and Commerce
Some of the great constructive minds in the business world have already taken heed of the opportunities in Alaska but those who have talked with them know what they feel that what they have done—will be comparat ively trifling when the yearly output of new wealth grounded upon the peninsula and its adjacent waters is reckoned with

Responding to Congress
This measure reflects the response which Alaska and its communities made to legisla tion adopted by congress a year ago. That congress continue this healthful stimulation of Alaskan development not much more than ten million dollars would be needed for the year 1916. For the construction of a rail road to be completed in the next two years its climatic conditions being recognized—with the best rail road construction in the United States there should be appropriated by con gress for that work about a billion dol lars. Of course this government railroad is a purely commercial or industrial railroad and the most profitable passenger traffic upon it cannot be very heavy. But it is to do for Alas ka what the construction of the great rail roads did for that part of the country which was formerly known as the Kansas Nebraska territory and the Great American Desert a section which now yields hundreds of millions yearly in new wealth.

The government should spend a hundred thousand dollars in 1916 in a geological sur vey and not less than a million in improving navigation and in erecting the accessories thereto. There should be about a billion and fifty thousand dollars spent by the gov ernment in protecting fisheries and making a big land survey.

The larger part of the new wealth—about one half—was furnished by the fisheries while gold and copper furnished about eight een millions of it. So far as copper is con cerned, this is only a beginning and the re sources of the state are estimated that in 1915 the copper mines of Alaska will have an output equal to one third of the aggregate output of Montana mines.

William Barrow for the United States spent seven million two hundred thousand dollars in 1857 to obtain sovereignty over and title to Russian America which he named Alaska. For that service Mr Barrow used to say he could not give the way of reac tion he visited Alaska a year or two after his retirement from the office of secretary of state and when he returned to New York he said that his only regret was that with forty or fifty years the United States would learn that it made an extraordinarily good bargain when it paid Russia seven million on two hundred thousand dollars for this peninsula.

The new wealth which Alaska has yielded —most of it within the past twenty years—was in the aggregate of the money value of five hundred and thirty three million dollars, a little over one half of this great sum has come from the fisheries. It can be main tained and increased if congress by wise and generous legislation fosters that increase

Light Opera Favorite Coming to the Atlanta; Lasky's Feature Headlines Bill at Forsyth

Top: Britt Wood at the Forsyth; Dorothy Webb as Sari at the Atlanta, February 7, 8, 9 Bottom: Masha, Aurelia and Nadina in "The Chocolate Soldier," at the Atlanta, Friday and Saturday.

(At the Atlanta.)
Local Strays come apart. The Chocolate Soldier, which comes to the Atlanta Friday and Saturday with a Saturday matinee, is one of the few examples of a light opera with a thoroughly human and consistent story.
Based on the life of Bernard Shaw's "Arms and the Man," the action of the opera takes place in Bulgaria. The first act disclosed all the serviceable man in the "Arms and the Man" and the second act with the Serbian and the Bulgarian. In the third act, Colonel Popoff's house hold are awaiting the look of men when they appear at the window of the Serbian house. The maid of the house of a Serbian soldier who's sounds of drink and the excited voice of men are heard outside.
Nadina's maid, but fear soon gives way to interest and when soldiers come to search for the Serbian, she hides him. But she is unable to hide him away from her mother and cousin, who agree to help her in the task of guarding him while she is hidden. Nadina has nicknamed him in the "chocolate soldier" on his frank confession that he prefers chocolate drops in his cartridge case of bullets.
As it is necessary to him to leave his house in the morning in disguise, he is provided with an old coat of the colonel's and each of the ladies leaves to put into a pocket a portrait of herself with an appropriate inscription.

The second act opens with the return of the village warriors. Major Alexis, Nadina's fiancee, has become a hero on account of winning a victory by making a fierce charge on a runaway horse to the Serbian battery whose gunners have been served with the wrong ammunition and were unable to repel the charge. Nadina knows that her glorification of the heroic Alexis is a hollow pretense, and that she is attracted by the "chocolate soldier," who later tells her the true facts of the major's heroic charge. However, she is preparing for the wedding with Alexis as previously arranged, when the latter learns of the "chocolate soldier's" former meeting with Nadina, and breaks off the marriage, finds consolation with the countess, leaving Nadina and her "chocolate soldier" to the happy ending required by light opera stories.
The wonderful music of this piece is a joy forever. The main walk to My Hero is retained throughout the dominant notes. There are over twenty exquisite numbers, which include besides "Come, Come, My Hero," such gems as "The Letter Song," "Sympathy," "The Tale of a Cook," "There Never Was Such a Lover," "Falling in Love," "That Would Be Lovely," "What Would We Do Without a Man?" "The Chocolate Soldier Man."

The opera will be presented by the famous Whitcomb Opera company, which maintains the highest standard of excellence. Several of the original principals are again with the company, which includes Tena Rnsbard, in the prima donna role of Nadina, which she sang last season, and who, for two previous seasons, was a member of Oscar Hammestein's London Grand Opera company. Andrew Higginson, later of Australia, who sang the part of the Major Alexis, who sang the same role with the original New York Casino company six years ago. Sylvia Thorne, Madeline Smith and Nelson Riley, all previously identified with "The Chocolate Soldier." Gorgeous costumes especially purchased in Bulgaria will be particularly interesting as usual, carry its own special orchestra.

"Sari."
(At the Atlanta.)
The gem of the decade, Sari, discovered and produced by Henry Savary, has been booked for the Atlanta for four performances beginning Monday, February 7, direct from an entire season in New York.
It has music for those who whistle, for those who dream and for those who dance, a story that appeals to the heart as well as to the funny-bone, and girls arrayed in the most startling gowns composed in the most part of gossamer and color combination.
The music is by the Hungarian composer, Ernrich Kaiman, and the book has been adapted to the American requirements by C. C. S. Cushing and E. P. Heath. A simple, human interest plot, mingling pathos, humor and drama in a skillful manner, has been supplied, requiring great acting ability on the part of the performers as well as singing voices of operatic caliber.
The opera is filled to the brim with songs that captivated the musical circles of Europe and New York, notable among them being the duets, "Love Has Wings," "Softly through the Summer Night," "Love's Own Sweet Song," the wildly hilarious Hungarian folk-song "The Haggard Face of the Mysterious Melody," "My Faithful Stradivari."

Keith Vaudeville.
(At the Forsyth.)
Gladys Clark and Henry Bergmann, surrounded by just such a collection of feminine youth and beauty as those two names are sure to conjure up, are the headliner's Manager, George H. Hickman, has booked for the Keith Vaudeville bill at the Forsyth this week. Alongside this big feature will appear Britt Wood, favorite with Atlanta people who like to laugh. Tameo Kalyama, a Japanese with some amazing stunts, George Lyons and Bob Yosco; Gautier's Animated Toyshop, and other features.

Clark and Bergmann, favorites in Atlanta through their big hit here in "The Trained Nurse," are starting this season in "The Society Buds," a Jessie Lasky feature that is one of the really big acts of vaudeville. As to the girls who make up "The Society Buds" well, there isn't going to be any kick made by the most particular critic of beauty in face and form and costume.
Some of the newest and most stunning of Parisian gowns are worn by "The Society Buds." On of half a dozen new unusual dance and some offerings in this act is "The Chained Ankle Glide," in which the fox trot is danced by girls whose ankles are held by silver links. The scene of this act shows the famous Casino de Monte Carlo, in the Casino de Monte Carlo, in the year's society rendezvous.
Britt Wood is a younger every-body likes. Those who don't happen to recall his name will remember the grinning red-headed boy who plays a banjo, picks a banjo, shuffles and sings with a drawing twang the oddest of songs. Britt is a young man that every theater wants, because his comedy is of the type that never grows old and can't be resisted.
Tameo Kalyama, a Japanese on the "Society Buds," has the audacity to introduce himself by scribbling on the big black back-drop of his setting "Atlanta Always Ahead." Twice—that is, two lines at once—if that isn't quite clear, let it be said that Tameo Kalyama writes with both hands at the same time, forward, backward, up and down, and side before and every other way that is hard to describe and amazing to look at.
The famous march of "Babes in Toyland" is one of the many things that Britt Wood is famous for. He has introduced Toyshop. The toys in this shop are impersonated by well-trained pets composed in the most part of ponies and dogs, making one of vaudeville's most entertaining and unique features.
George Lyons and Sylvia Thorne, who, who sings, are two who never fail to please. Some of their numbers are "Rose of Italy," "Girls' Dixie in the Days of Old," "When Seeds of Love Begin to Grow," "I Like The Pop," and others.
Africanology is the word Budd Fagg and Julia White have coined to describe their collection of all sorts of blackface nonsense which they will offer here this week. Singing and novelty dancing round out their unusual act.
The program will open with first-run Bray animated cartoons, now a regular feature at the Forsyth, and close with Pathé news pictures. The Bray cartoons for this week is "Farmer Alfalfa's Catastrophe."

Paul Swan's Classic Dances Feature of Brilliant Program

No event, either artistic or social, could have centered more interest than the program of aesthetic dancing to be put on by Paul Swan at the Atlanta theater Monday evening under the auspices of the Atlanta Art association. Mr. Swan will be assisted by a group of forty of Atlanta's most representative young people who have studied for the last ten days. Morning, afternoon and evening they have rehearsed and their performance is wonderful. Declare those who are capable of judging.
Paul Swan is an artist. His history is unique. He has accomplished as a painter and sculptor. He has studied in the famous European studios. But he has chosen for the present expression of his art interpretative dancing. His success in this art has been praised by world critics and his studio in New York is the center of the art loving people of metropolitan centers.

A Farmer's Son.
Paul Swan was born on a western farm and attended the provincial country schoolhouse. At 11, with only his boyish possessions as tuition, he started out for the nearest schoolhouse. On the way he met some good people who employed him in their home and through this means he earned enough to go later to the Chicago Art school. From there he made his way to New York and did his first work on a magazine, turning work in the fashion department.
At this time the turning point of his career was brought about, as is so often the case, by an apparently unimportant event. One night young Swan went to the theater to see Mrs. Nazimova in Ibsen's "A Doll's House." The unusual, magnetic charm of the actress appealed strongly to the imaginative, poetic young artist, and the next day he bought a photograph of the famous Russian player and a canvas for a life-size portrait. Then, more from memory than from the picture, he created what the late Charles Frohman pronounced one of the two greatest paintings of modern actresses—the other being Maud Adams as Peter Pan.
The picture was boxed and sent to the Thirty-ninth Street theater, New York, where the great Russian actress was appearing at the time. Two days later Paul Swan, the unknown artist, came to the theater to see Mrs. Nazimova's country home and was commissioned to paint life-size portraits of her in four celebrated scenes—characters, Hilda in "The Master Builder," Nora in "A Doll's House," in "Little Eyolf" and Hedda in "Hedda Gabler."

A Globe Trotter.
In the early autumn of the same year Paul Swan sailed for Europe, intending to spend a few months in the galleries of Florence and Rome. But the cholera barred the Italian ports, so he went to Egypt instead. Unlike the usual "struggling artist," who paints divinely while he starves in a garret, this boy who had learned the value of money on a Nebraska farm, and had supported himself since he was twelve, had the happy faculty of winning dollars together with fame. Even on this, his first voyage across the Atlantic, he made several drawings and portraits that added to his already quite substantial worldly store. No sooner had he settled in Cairo than he met a fashionable dentist and was permitted to hang some drawings in his reception room. The result was that the young American painted eight portraits and made many crayon and pencil sketches of prominent persons, among his sitters being Sir Eldon Gorst, governor general of Egypt, and his daughter, Miss Kitty Gorst.
In Greece.
From Egypt he went to Greece. In Athens he had little time for work at his easel because the greatest Grecian painters and sculptors chose him as their model for the type of early Greek beauty. Then came months of wandering through the galleries of Rome, Florence, Naples and Paris, followed by two years in London.

On the continent Mr. Swan had distinguished consideration accorded him, and since his return to New York he has devoted himself almost entirely to aesthetic dancing.

"A Job for Every Member," Slogan Adopted for Church

"A job for every member." This was the unique slogan adopted at a men's supper Friday night at the North Avenue Presbyterian church at which one hundred men gathered in response to a call issued by the church's association of the church to "get together and get busy."
Every phase of activity in the North Avenue church was discussed in a series of short talks, following which each man present was asked to write out the things he would agree to do for the church during the coming year. Every man signed up a card, the work promised ranging from Sunday school teaching and personal visiting to hotel advertising and boys' work, benevolent contributions and social service work of various kinds.
Norman J. Miller, president of the church's association, presided over the supper. Rev. Richard Orme Finm made a forceful appeal to the men for increased activity in the church work of different kinds, and among others making short address were W. Frank Smith, Samuel M. Carson, J. M. Van Hartlingen, James Morton, F. Wade Vauchan, James M. Reeves, Dr. Marion McH. Hull and Henry F. Nelson. During the supper, which was served under the direction of ladies of the church, a musical program was enjoyed, including singing by the quartet of the theological department of Emory university. A striking feature of the evening was the address of James Morton, who was called upon to tell of the Laymen's Missionary convention which meets in Atlanta February 2 to 6, of which Mr. Morton is executive secretary. Following a strong address by Mr. Morton on the purpose and plans of the convention, registration cards were distributed and a large number of men registered as delegates to the convention.

Local Overall Man Talks Interestingly of Dye Situation

Mr. Partridge, local manager of Hamilton Carhartt overall plant in this city, has returned from a visit of two weeks spent at the big mills in South Carolina where is made the superior blue master cloth from which the Carhartt overalls are made. He had a two fold interest not only to keep his overall factories in Detroit, Atlanta and Dallas going but to provide dye for dyeing the master cloth made for them by his great South Carolina cotton mills. It was only a thought to be sure but it was only the thought of Dills, Howe to put the dye in the point of the needle that made the sewing machine possible revolutionized the sewing world and emancipated untold millions of women from drudgery and unnecessary toil. The thought was to go back to first principles again and take up the use of the next—was searched for the dye of nature—vegetable indigo. Sifting action to thought the cables were raised in use and India—the land of the next—made the vegetable indigo of commerce. Long thrown into discard it was no eyes there to get the abandoned channels open but necessary know no law—it was done—slowly at first but it was done and again the patient drop it into the tub of dyeing. The dependable mills and the busy jacks wended their Indian way to Bengal and other shipping points in India, laden with the precious blue crystal of indigo distilled from the plants as of old. Suffice it to say the embargo was raised on indigo blue dye no matter if the cost was almost prohibitive being about $2.75 per pound and nothing the blue dye in each pair of overalls cost—cents. Think of it. No wonder the wearers complain bitterly. But the danger of a shut down of the overall factories of this country and the nation mails that supplied them with the cloth which would cause untold misery to thousands of deserving people is past. Who can say that thoughts are not things?

The Eagle Multigraph and Stamp Works in the Austell building is one of the busiest places in that locality. Beginning with the first of the year and following along for two or three months when changes are most numerous in firm names, etc. this company is always kept on the jump getting out its numerous orders of stamps, stencils, multigraph letters, etc. This year has been no exception. The well-known reliability of the firm is its promptness in delivery and the good class of workmanship turned out on stamps, multigraphing and all kinds of goods of this character is so favorably known that it is kept exceptionally busy. R. F. Dawson of the Dawson Bros. Manufacturing company is spending a couple of weeks on business in the Land of Flowers.

CAPITAL CITY CO. SHOWS LARGE GAINS

Big Tobacco House Is Well Pleased With Results So Far for 1916.

"We have certainly been delighted with the way in which business has started off this year," said W. B. Carlton, president of the Capital City Tobacco Co. Our sales for the first four weeks of January has shown a very large and gratifying increase over last January. In fact our sales have not ten back to about normal and our business is now going along at a regular and consistent clip. Our collections too are much better and we are much encouraged over the outlook for business the coming year. Mr. Carlton will leave Monday with Mr. Lewis north Georgia salesman for the company and will spend about six weeks visiting the trade in Mr. Lewis territory running over the city occasionally to see that his partner Ed Malone doesn't get too deep in work—and if so to pull him out. After his trip to north Georgia Mr. Carlton will spend several weeks with C. C. Phillips, south Georgia traveler.

CHRISTIAN WILL SPEND 3 WEEKS IN NEW YORK

C. C. Christian of the firm of Morris & Christian left Saturday for a three weeks trip to New York. Mr. Christian will spend his time largely in the big city meeting and greeting southern merchants who are visiting in the east just now and hopes to secure considerable trade for his house while there. His office will be with God help in the West Third street office. In his absence A. H. Morris will look after both the house and sales and nearby territory. Mr. Christian will also be joined in New York by Morris Schei. It is the well known fact in manufacturer circles that Morris & Christian will remain there for some weeks meeting the buyers over the country who come to look over skirt lines and other goods. While Mr. Schei is away Mr. Christian of the New Orleans factory of Mr. Schei will look after the big Atlanta plant. Zack Daniel, firing line for the Rader-More company spent Friday and Saturday in the house looking after some nice orders which had preceded him.

Discussing New Spring Styles

Ehrlich Champion Application Writer In the Ranks of T. P. A. Membership

The State Convention of Travelers Will Meet in Savannah on April 6 and 7.

Editor Firing Line. During twenty years of official connection with the Georgia division of the Travelers' Protective association, I have had overwhelming evidence of the fact that two-thirds of the increase in membership is secured between January 1 and the state convention. It may not be wise or good business policy to defer this class of work to this season, but I must admit that it is usually the case. When the balmy spring weather begins to make its appearance, such as we have had in the last few days, the active membership of each post begins to think of state and national conventions, and along with this comes the enthusiastic desire to make a showing at the conventions that will do credit to his post and state. Hence the influx of new applications about this season of the year. Already the campaigns are being planned and the work is under way for the most creditable showing that this state has ever had. Permit me to add in this connection that this state can boast of what no other state in the union can claim—the champion application writer of the United States. In the person of our worthy state secretary, Albert Ehrlich, of Savannah, who had to his credit on the first day of January, by the records of the national office, 320 applications, which is absolutely unprecedented in the history of the organization as the work of one man. This number will be greatly increased by the 30th day of April when the fiscal year will close. To the indefatigable efforts of Secretary Ehrlich is largely due the fact that Georgia will go to the national convention with the most brilliant showing they have ever made as the record stands, and yet it is expected that this will be far more attractive in appearance by the time of the convention, due to the fact that a bunch of the national officers, known as the "Flying Squadron," expect to visit every post in the state during the month of March. During this time the local live wires will become enthused, and, altogether, it is expected that the total membership will be an increase of not less than 500 members in the state. The board of directors have accepted the invitation of Post A, Savannah, to hold the next state convention in that city, on the 6th and 7th of April. It is intimated by some of the wise ones that have passed this convention, due to the fact that they just felt like they could not stand it any longer. It is rumored he is going to do on "Old Lady," without another showing at the "Old Lady" and, I believe, that these state conventions do more to brighten and cheer those who have the misfortune to attend than anything that falls to their lot. It always being an occasion of great refreshing to all present, then it should be more so than usual this year, from the greatly improved conditions in the ranks of the association, as well as the bright business prospects and conditions as compared with what they were a year ago. Therefore, we expect to see a bunch of good cheer and good fellowship abounding on every hand. Yours very truly, J. H. ANDREWS,

Chairman, Press Committee, Georgia Division, T. P. A.
Atlanta, January 28, 1916.

The finished in beautiful mahogany color, with a large mirror in the center. On each end is a swinging glass shelf. When set up it will be most attractive in appearance.

Big Season in Light Colors and Gray and Champagne Grays, Says Thomas, of Rice & Hutchins.

You see here Fred E. Thomas secretary of the Rice & Hutchins Atlanta Co., discussing with J. L. Williams Florida traveler for the house some of the new styles in shoes which are going to prove popular the coming season. Mr. Williams has just returned from a short trip down into Florida, and as they get the spring styles first down there, on account of the tourist trade, he is pretty well posted on what will probably be the best things for the coming season. Mr. Thomas, in discussing the shoe outlook for the coming season, said that women's shoes will look for a big season in light colors, such as white, black, white and gray, and champagne grays. These latter leathers, are very scarce and very high, and therefore it will be impossible to show them in any great quantity in medium or cheap priced shoes, but in the higher grades shoes they will undoubtedly be very strong. These will be what we might term high-style shoes, however, the great bulk of the business will be done on plain patent leather and kid shoes, in tan, pump, and with ornaments at all or with very small ornaments. This is some demand, however, for a colonial pump with a large square buckle, and we are looking for these to be good a little later in the season.

As far as men's styles are concerned, these are of course always more conservative than women's styles, but we are also looking for a big white season in men's and are showing some very pretty styles in men's shoes with white fiber and white rubber soles. The English last predominates largely in men's styles, in tan and black calf, although there is a larger demand than for a very long time for kid and all-weather goat stocks.

Mr. Williams found the white canvas shoe very popular, and talking about and shown in the picture to be a very good seller with his Florida customers for early tourist trade.

Opening Bills at Adams.

P. L. Adams company reports several splendid opening bills for the past week. In one case the sale was made in the house to a customer from Franklin, G. J. Owens, one of the company's popular travelers, secured a big order from a good customer at Manchester.

CHANGE IN FORCES AT JOHN B. DANIEL

February 1 will mark an important change in the sales force of John B. Daniel, Inc., wholesale druggists and manufacturing chemists. A. M. Hughes, who has for a long number of years represented this firm as city salesman in Atlanta, will take charge of the growing trade of the house in south Georgia, where his long experience and fine salesmanship are expected shortly to be felt. W. C. Owens, one of the most capable and popular connected with John B. Daniel, Inc., will, on the same date, take up the sales work in the city, succeeding Mr. Hughes. Mr. Owens is already a favorite among a large number of the local druggists and his success as city salesman for the past few years will be associated in the city sales department with Frank Banks, another popular member of this business house. Mr. Banks has had five years' experience with the Daniel house as city salesman and he and Mr. Owens will prove one of the most popular teams in wholesale circles. Another change is announced by John B. Daniel, Inc., taking effect February 1, which is expected to have a marked result. Automobile service is to be used in visiting the trade daily, and in this way it will be possible for the salesman to see the trade more often than before. In addition to these changes John B. Daniel, Inc., announces the increase of its sales force, made necessary by the growth of business. This well-known drug house with fifty years of service as its record in handling the greatest business today in a manner highly creditable to the establishment. With the specialties of their own laboratory, they wish the new trade territory, the sales force has a lever in getting business possessed by few other southern houses. The transfer of A. M. Hughes to the south Georgia territory is expected to prove a very popular one, as Mr. Owens in that territory, and the best wishes of Mr. Hughes' numerous friends in the city and throughout Atlanta go with him in his new field.

McCLURE IS SENDING OUT ADVANCE CATALOGS

The McClure Ten-Cent company received last week from its printer its advance catalog, and during the week has mailed out many thousands of copies. The catalog was issued in advance of the regular catalog, which will come out about March 15, but it contains a full line of staple merchandise, and merchants will do well to send in their requests for a copy, if they are not on the mailing list of this company. The company is also preparing to show beginning next week a handsome line of spring millinery. New quantities have been arranged in its building at the corner of Broad and Hunter streets, and large and well-lighted room has been set apart for the millinery line which the company promises will contain anything it has heretofore shown.

WELBORN LED SALESMEN AT J. K. ORR SHOE CO.

A. C. Welborn, city man for the J. K. Orr Shoe Co., had the distinction of being the leader among the Orr salesmen for the week just closed, by selling one of the largest quantities of shoes in the standpoint of sales, the company has had for more than two months running a full line of staple merchandise, and came second on the honor list, with C. E. Bates, of west Georgia, and W. H. Seacham, of east Georgia, third and fourth respectively. Eleven other salesmen were lucky to get their names on the honor roll.

H. E. Chouteau, of the J. K. Orr Atlanta, an active member of the Atlanta Credit Men's association, visited Tampa last week, and on Thursday night addressed the credit association of that city on organization work concerning credit departments.

Dirtseller Mountain Was Former Rendezvous Of Desperate Criminals

Lyerly Ga January 29—(Special)—Dirtseller mountain, 3 miles west of Lyerly, has an interesting history. It was once the most important hunting ground in northeast Georgia, was once the busiest mining village in this section and was once the location of the very finest orchards in Chattooga county. Along with old Dirtseller go many interesting incidents and now the mountain has been practically forsaken, except for the growing of "King Cotton."

Residents of the mountain, despite the fact that much of the land has been abandoned to nature, is not now uncommon to hear the scream of the wildcat or panther and the gobble of wild turkeys and to the hunters delight there are yet to be found the fox coon opossum squirrel, rabbit and other small game.

Law Checks Hunting.

The Georgia game law has materially checked the hunting on the mountain for the past three years and for this reason the more plentiful now than a few years previously. Occasionally the lovers of a fox chase hike off to the mountain and the hounds soon strike up with old Bier Fox and have him going to his old haunts, but the worst part of the whole is that he is often shot before daylight when Bier Fox is just before the chase and hikes off to his place of rest. The dog can follow him to his home, or resting place, but the wise old fox can stretch himself and take a nap and dream of having put one over on the dogs, for he is many feet under the earth in a cave or den and the dog's nose or hunting party can molest him.

Not many years ago the Rome Iron company was organized and a branch line was constructed from the main line of the Georgia railroad to Lyerly, automatically dumped the ore on the railroad. It was then sent to Rome to the furnace. Later, the company was reorganized and the branch line of the Rome Furnace company and the railroad was extended to Dewey, Ala. The immense mining business was carried on during this time, hundreds of shafts were sunk into the sides of the mountain and a number of tunnels were opened up and operated. A prosperous little village was created on the mountain and a large department store, or commissary, was opened up by the company for the convenience of the miners in a few years the very bowels of the mountain had been turned inside out and eventually the veins of ore became practically exhausted and the remaining ore was at such a depth that mining was with great difficulty. The mining operations then began to cease to a great extent and the cleared land was planted in fruit trees and strawberries. Then, for several years there were not a better fruit farm in this section. Peaches, apples, cherries and strawberries being the chief crops. The orchard was struck by a severe frost along about that time and the fruit prices went to zero. A few unprofitable seasons and the magnificent orchards were cut down and cotton has been produced in their stead. A splendid apple and cherry orchard, with a few acres in peaches, are to be found on the mountain yet but the principal crop of these orchards is the Government's plant on the mountain. The little mountain village is called Colvinton, named after a resident of the company's plant on the mountain where he was employed.

Since the mining business has been abandoned the branch railway to Dewey has been sold to the Central Georgia railroad. It has been several times removed several times. The road would be extended to Gadsden or Atlanta, Ala. this putting into operation a new line between Chattanooga and Birmingham covering a valuable territory which is not now touched by any other line. Several geological surveys made during recent years and the people of this section are hopeful that the branch line will be put into operation in the future.

INTEREST IS REVIVED IN BIG LABOR MOVEMENT

Large Meetings Have Been Held, and Others Are Planned.

Interest throughout Georgia is being revived, now that the holidays are over, in the American labor movement that was begun last fall in Georgia by President Louis P. Marquardt of the Georgia Federation of Labor. Dispatches received by him yesterday from the state's leading cities were to the effect that they are now planning to hold big mass meetings in the cause of the American labor movement.

Both Augusta and Macon last fall held mammoth mass meetings in the interest of the American labor movement. These two cities announced to President Marquardt that they will soon begin a series of big mass meetings to stimulate interest among wage earners in the American labor movement, which was originated for the betterment of social conditions among the wage-earning classes.

Large meetings have been held in Rome, Columbus, Augusta, Macon and Waycross. Savannah also is planning to hold a meeting just preceding the eighteenth annual convention of the Georgia Federation of Labor, to be held in that city on April 15.

President C. P. Bell of the Atlanta Federation of Trades, is getting ready to hold a big mass meeting in February and another in March with a view of stimulating interest locally and getting up a large delegation to go from Atlanta to the Savannah convention.

Atlanta never does anything half way, stated President Bell and the federation is planning to carry down to Savannah one of the most notable delegations that has ever represented this city.

It is a party in which a team who won the membership contest some time ago will be the honor guest. The night will be the honor guest. The night will be the honor guest.

Morris Croft of the Ragan Malone company was in the house Saturday. He expects one of his usual good weeks from the standpoint of orders.

Sam Hanes traveler for the Ragan Malone company blew in Saturday accompanied with an order book check full.

C. J. Jones southwest Georgia traveler for the Ragan Malone company sent in last week a fine batch of orders.

J. G. Robertson traveler for Ragan Malone company who makes headquarters in the city, was on the sick list last week. John Martin looked after his territory for him and put across some nice business. Mr. Robertson expects to be back among the traders the coming week.

The last week's issue of The Tobacco Leaf reports that the big C. H. S. cigar factory is the busiest place in Tampa. The company is making 12,000 cigars a day but declares that it will need 15,000 to keep up with the orders which will soon be made. It declares the officials on doubling the capacity of the plant.

D. I. Karmel the well known representative of Above the Average, is again all the week suffering with rheumatism. He was some better Saturday and headed to be out among his trade by the first of the coming week.

Sending in large orders seems to be a habit with J. M. Bennett, of the S. I. Richards company. In addition to several smaller orders, he has recently received in one day last week an order of nine large pages and another of seven pages from this popular traveler.

J. S. Harrison traveler for the S. I. Richards company ran into the house for a day last week. He was as usual full of optimism concerning future orders.

O. H. Bill a well known traveler and one of the popular members of the C. T. W. is in the city. He is in with the H. L. Schenck company and will visit the jobbing trade in Georgia, Alabama and south Carolina.

The J. W. King company reports that the month of January was a unusual good one for them. Collections and sales were both above the average for the month of January.

F. K. Gilpepper the new Georgia traveler for the All Star Manufacturing company sent in some orders last week. He was in to the house that ever body seemed to be in excellent spirit.

W. J. Rumph south Carolina traveler for the All Star Manufacturing company may be called on to explain in the house the next time he comes in. He is reported to have been in the city for several days in the past week. He says that his explanation will fully satisfy any to the officers of the C. T. W.

R. B. Hill south in representing the C. T. W. is in the city. He is in the city for a few days, meeting some of his friends around the Capital City. He is in the city for a few days, meeting some of his friends around the Capital City.

THEMELIS USES DAILY 6,000 TO 7,000 ROSES

Rose-Tipped Cigarette Making Big Hit in the East—Nick Themelis Here.

Nick Themelis, of Themelis Brothers cigarette manufacturers of the famous rose tipped cigarette who resides in New York arrived in the city Friday night and Saturday morning was a visitor at the office of H. H. Johnson, the C. H. S. man in the Third National Bank building.

Mr. Themelis declares that their famous cigarette has taken the east by storm.

Just cannot make them fast enough, he said. We started out a short time ago going along carefully, until we saw the distribution until now we are firmly established, with a great demand for our cigarettes than we can supply. It is not only the novelty of our product—the rose tip, but it is the blend, the quality of the cigarette, the way it smokes, the way it is made. We have recently gone into Philadelphia with our product and in that city we have a tremendous trade. We are now handling our product in the east and our better cigar stands in the east are now handling our product. We are now handling our product in the east and our better cigar stands in the east are now handling our product.

Mr. Themelis will be here for a few days and will then visit St. Andrews, S. C. where he expects to contract for roses for his cigarette tips. He states that at times the company uses regularly as many as 7,000 roses daily in the manufacture of their cigarette. He expects to contract in the east for many as 2,500 for every day in the year.

Stories Told at Meetings Of Rail and Crosstie Club

CENTRAL OF GEORGIA PARTY PAYS A VISIT TO ATLANTA

Officials of the Central of Georgia surprised Atlanta officers of that railroad during the latter part of the week by paying a visit to this city and calling at the local offices of the system.

The party included President W. A. Winburn of Savannah, Freight Traffic Manager T. A. Arey of Savannah, Master Car Builder Rabder of Savannah, and General Passenger Agent J. C. Hiale of Savannah.

The members of the party traveled in a special car and their trip to Atlanta was in the nature of a brief inspection tour. They visited a number of cities in this section during the week and apparently were much pleased.

Of much gratification to the local officials was the tribute which President Winburn paid to their relative to the manner in which they keep their roads in the best condition of the east and best kept on the entire system, he said.

SOUTHERN'S PRESIDENT IS MEMBER OF TRADE PARTY

Atlanta entertained the president of the Southern railway for a few minutes during the week. Fairfax Harrison being a member of the party. He was here on his en route to New Orleans for the foreign trade convention at that city. Mr. Harrison has many friends in railroad and business circles of Atlanta and it is possible to spend more time at this city.

ROBERT HARVEY SELECTS HIS BUSINESS OFFICES

After making a careful investigation of probable locations, Robert E. Harvey district passenger agent of the Denver and Rio Grande railroad, has selected quarters at No. 18 Peachtree street.

Mr. Harvey recently was assigned to duties at this city the system which he represents having had no office here heretofore. He has had wide experience as a railroad man and a newspaper man.

PEOPLE ARE EATING ON TRAINS.

SAVANNAH, Ga., January 29.—(Special)—Conditions in the business world are reflected in dining car receipts, said W. C. McEwen upon his visit here last week from Louisville his headquarters.

Mr. McEwen is the superintendent of the dining car service for the Louisville and Nashville system here in Atlanta on business. He declares that recently more people have been eating on the train than heretofore and the dining cars are unusually popular on trains running from the north to the south.

TRAVEL TO THE SOUTHERN RESORTS IS STILL HEAVY

In spite of the fact that the middle west has recovered from the effects of the severe weather of the early part of the winter, people from Chicago and surrounding cities are continuing to flock to Florida, according to D. W. McDonald the city passenger agent of the Louisville and Nashville railroad.

Mr. McDonald states that for the past several days space has been limited on the Southern, the new train from Chicago to Jacksonville by way of Knoxville. This is a new route for this trip and is proving popular, according to Mr. McDonald.

SANTA FE OFFICIALS WORK IN THE VERY BUSY QUARTERS

Officials and clerks of the local office of the Santa Fe are working these days to the accompaniment of hammers and saws. The wall which separated their office from the one next door in the Louisville and Nashville building is being torn away and additional quarters are being provided for the use of an increased force.

When the work is completed the Santa Fe men will have unusually large quarters. This is all that is needed to transact business amid the noise and confusion of remodeling.

FORMER ATLANTA MAN PAYS TRIBUTE TO LOCAL FRIENDS

J. G. Holbeck, resident of this city for a number of years, who is now general passenger agent of the Missouri Pacific Iron Mountain route spent Friday here. Mr. Holbeck has met with a great deal of success in the work that he is now doing and he was warmly welcomed by his Atlanta friends.

He was entertained at a number of events here including a dinner which was given Friday night at the Capital City club by J. F. Billups. Other Missouri Pacific officials who have been

BIG EASTERN HOUSE BUYS ROBINSON LINE

As a bit of convincing evidence that Atlanta markets afford advantages over a like number of cities, the fact is experienced the past week of the A. M. Robinson company furnishes ample proof.

This company succeeded in landing from a big eastern corporation with a large southern order. The order, the largest in the history of the market, buying largely in the north. The concern itself is reported to be worth several million dollars, and a representative of the concern, who is a native of the city, is reported to have sold many markets and whole lots of goods to the Robinson company. The complete order, which ran up into many thousands and included a complete line of all goods handled by the manufacturer and dealers.

Hardly had C. J. Williams, who moved the distinction of being the largest order in the history of the market, when a long distance phone call summoned him to south Georgia, where he had a rather large order.

Altogether the week was one of the largest which the Robinson company has enjoyed for some time. Every traveler was busy during the week and reports from all of them showed a fine list of orders.

DEMAND IS LARGE FOR DOMESTIC GOODS

It is certainly evident to us, said W. B. Way of Dobbs & Way, that the merchants over the country have had a fine trade recently and that their stocks have grown very low. This is shown by the number of orders which have been coming in to us since the first of the year. Many of these orders are for goods that are not in demand here. They are growing more scarce and higher in price every day. There is a demand for domestic goods and American manufacturers are finding it hard to keep up with the orders which are being sent in from all over the country. About the best thing we can suggest is that you order as early as possible. Our orders have been able to take care of them, but a little later on perhaps we will not know hardly what we will be up against.

Dobbs & Way has recently added to their large line the Wear Ever brand, many which is proving so popular and many nice orders.

The office forces of the McCord Stewart company were treated a few days ago with an elegant supply of fresh fish sent to them by H. T. Moore, who has been enjoying himself for the past two weeks at the Homosassa fish park grounds in Florida. Every employee of the company received a nice supply of the fresh fish and they pronounced it to be the finest they had ever had. The fish was accompanied by Mrs. McCord Stewart to the city early next week returning by way of Savannah.

'T WAS A DARK AND STORMY JANUARY EVE WHEN A SLIGHT FORM MIGHT HAVE BEEN SEEN HOMEWARD PLODDING HER WEARY WAY WHILE A BLITHERING BLIZZARD BLIZED IN BLUSTERING FURY.

A SHORT DISTANCE FURTHER ON THE BLIZZARD IS STILL BLIZZING, A CASUAL GLANCE REVEALS A DARK AND SINISTER FIGURE ROLLING UP A HUGE SNOWBALL ON A SLANT ROOF.

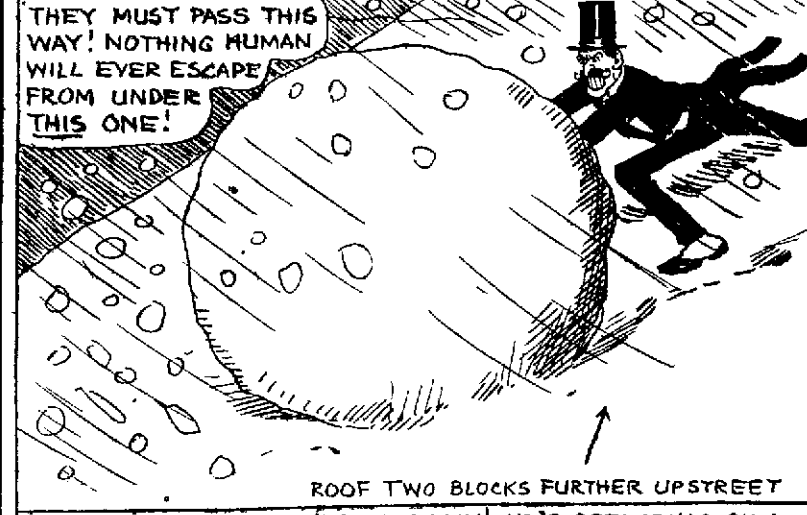

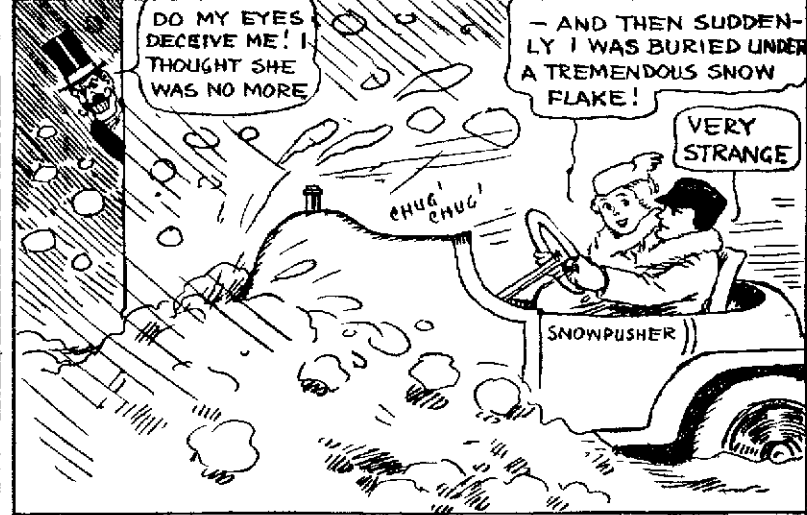

THE GIMLET EYED READER HAS NO DOUBT ERE THIS RECOGNIZED OUR HEROINE, BELINDA, THE BEAUTIFUL BOILER MAKER, WHO IS SLOWLY BEATING HER WAY HOMEWARD AFTER A HARD DAYS WORK AT THE FACTORY.

BUT THE NEXT MOMENT THE POOR THING WAS ENTOMBED UNDER A GHOSTLY PALL!!!

"I MUST PLOW A PATH FOR BELATED TRAVELERS." -THE SPEAKER OF THESE PHILANTHROPIC WORDS WAS OUR HERO, HAIRBREADTH HARRY, WHO CLUTCHED THE WHEEL OF HIS 120 HORSEPOWER SNOW PLOW.

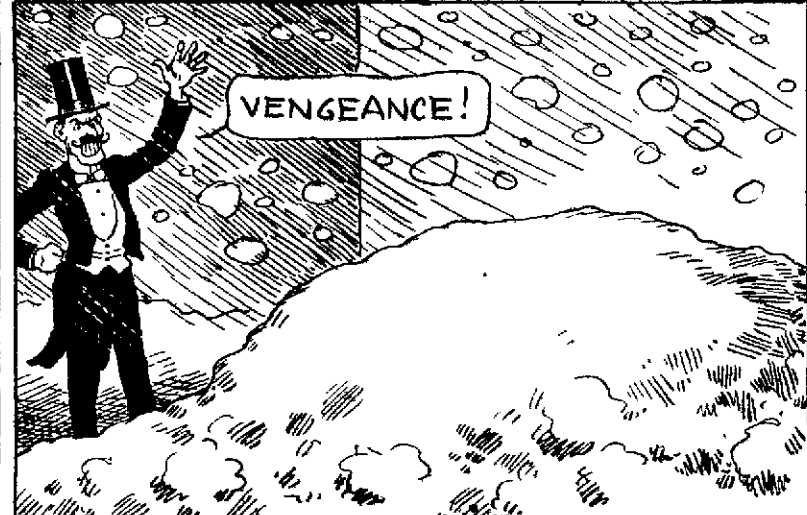

SUDDENLY THE MACHINE STRUCK A HARD OBJECT AND A STARTLING SIGHT WAS DISCLOSED TO VIEW!!!

OH, OODLES AND OODLES OF JOY! OUR HERO'S GREAT PLOW DUG UP THE BURIED BELINDA FROM HER LIVING TOMB! WITH A GLAD CRY SHE RECOGNIZED HER DELIVERER.

HOW NICE! WHAT STARTED OUT TO BE A HORRIBLE TRAGEDY HAS TURNED INTO A DELIGHTFUL LITTLE JOY RIDE! THIS HERO BUSINESS IS CERTAINLY GREAT STUFF.

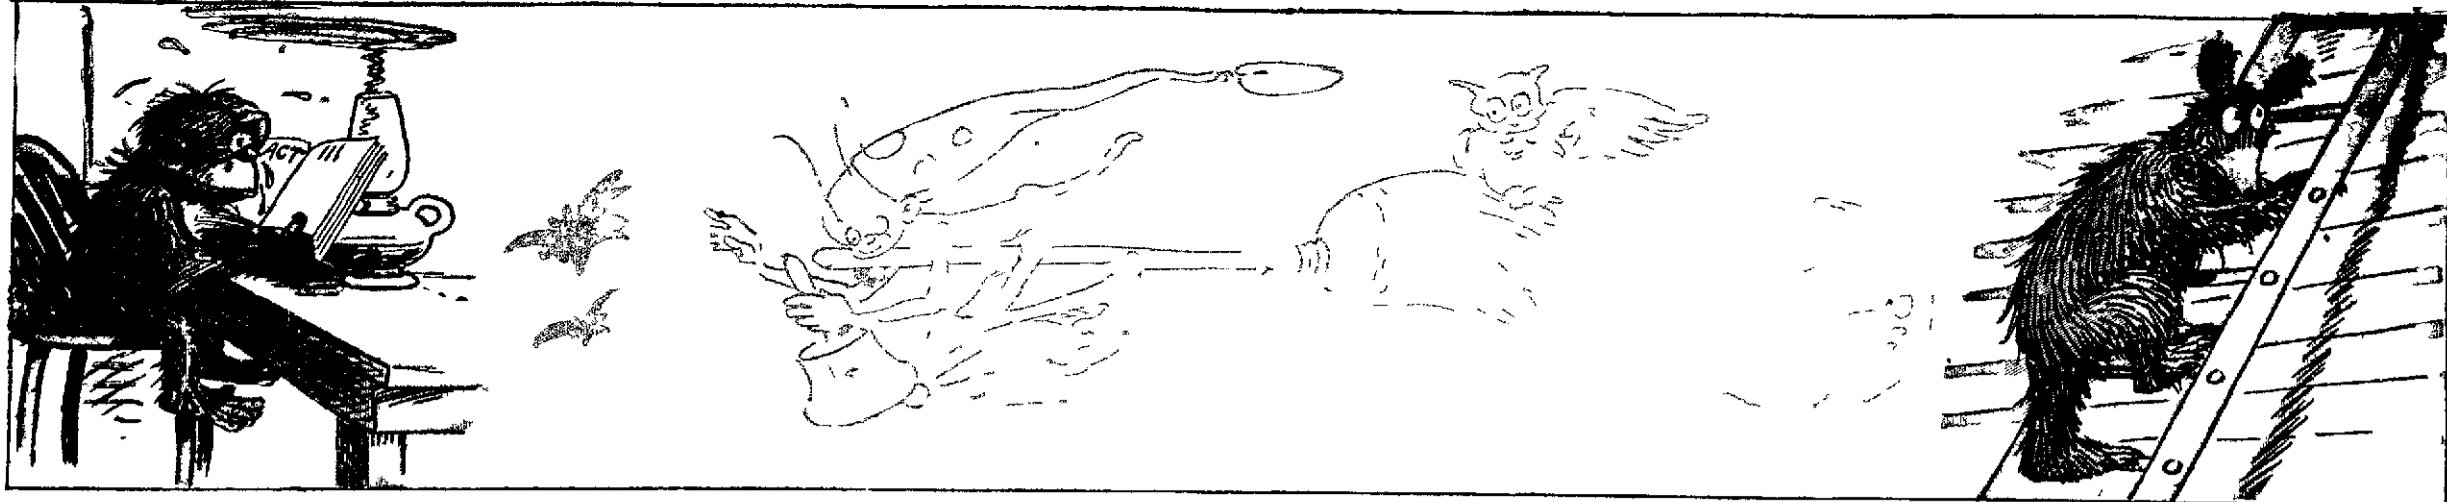

BUT THE ARCH FIEND IS AT IT AGAIN! HE'S OPERATING ON A VASTER SCALE THIS TIME AND IF HE PUTS THIS THING OVER THERE WILL BE MORE OF THAT SHUDDER THING.

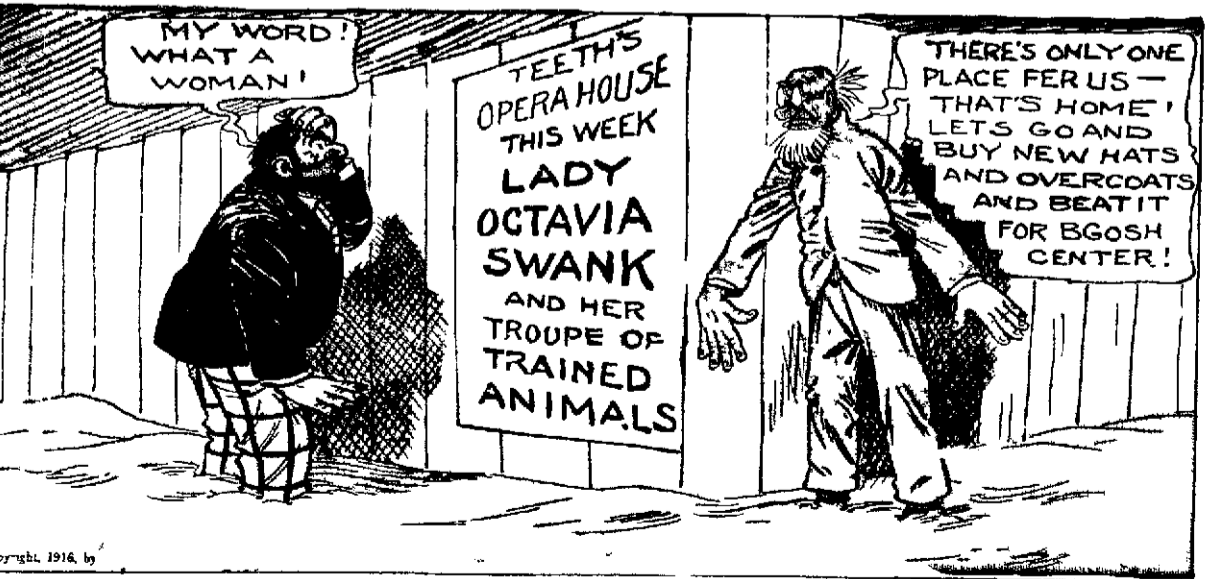

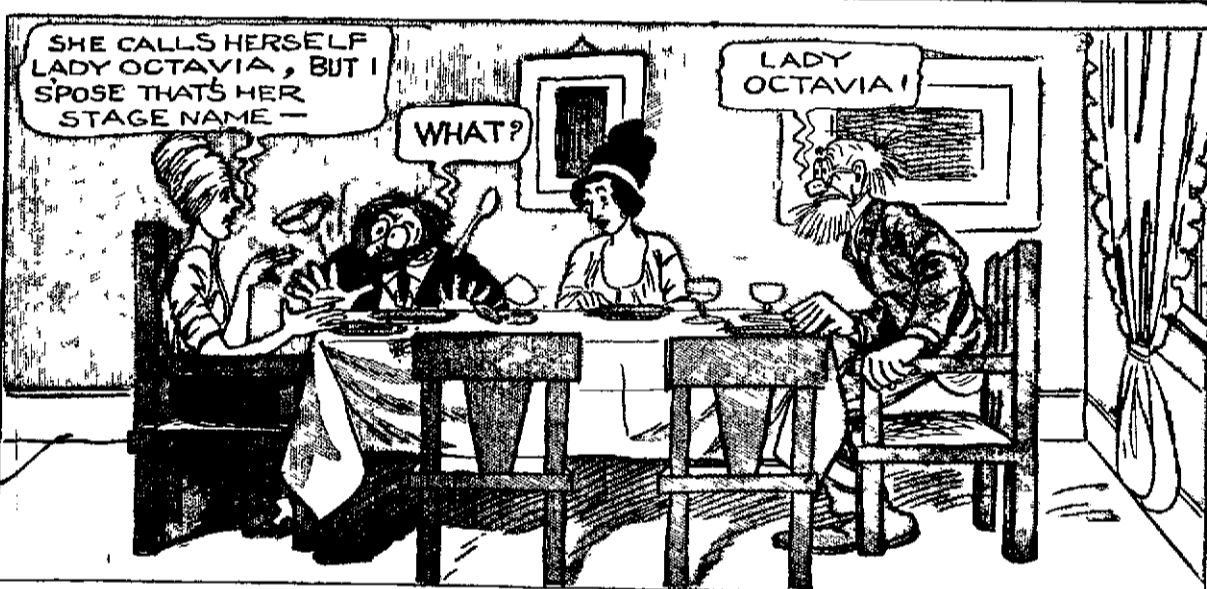

'SWISH! SWISH! SWISH!' THESE SIBILANT SNOWY SOUNDS SILENTLY SURGED SOOTHINGLY ABOUT THE HAPPY PAIR AS THE POWERFUL PLOW SCRUNCHED THROUGH THE FLAKY MESS.

OH JINKS! THE NEXT MOMENT THE WHOLE OUTFIT WAS BURIED UNDER A WHITE MOUNTAIN!!!

BUT NOT FOR LONG! THAT PLOW WAS TOO POWERFUL TO BE DETAINED LONG, AND WE HOPE RUDOLPH STAYS IN HIS PRESENT UNDIGNIFIED ATTITUDE LONG ENOUGH TO ENABLE BELINDA TO REACH HOME.

Will Fashion Really Accept the Radical Idea of Slippers and Shoes Worn Without Stockings? How "Barefoot Shoes," as Now Worn, Actually Look.

How the Barefoot Slipper is Worn.

THE year 1915 will be remembered as the year when feminine feet received a greater emphasis than fashion ever before gave to those members. But "feet" in this relation meant shoes, of course—shoes of astounding conspicuousness. Art was lavished and is lavished on novelties in color and design, and shortened skirts gave the shoes the centre of the stage, as it were.

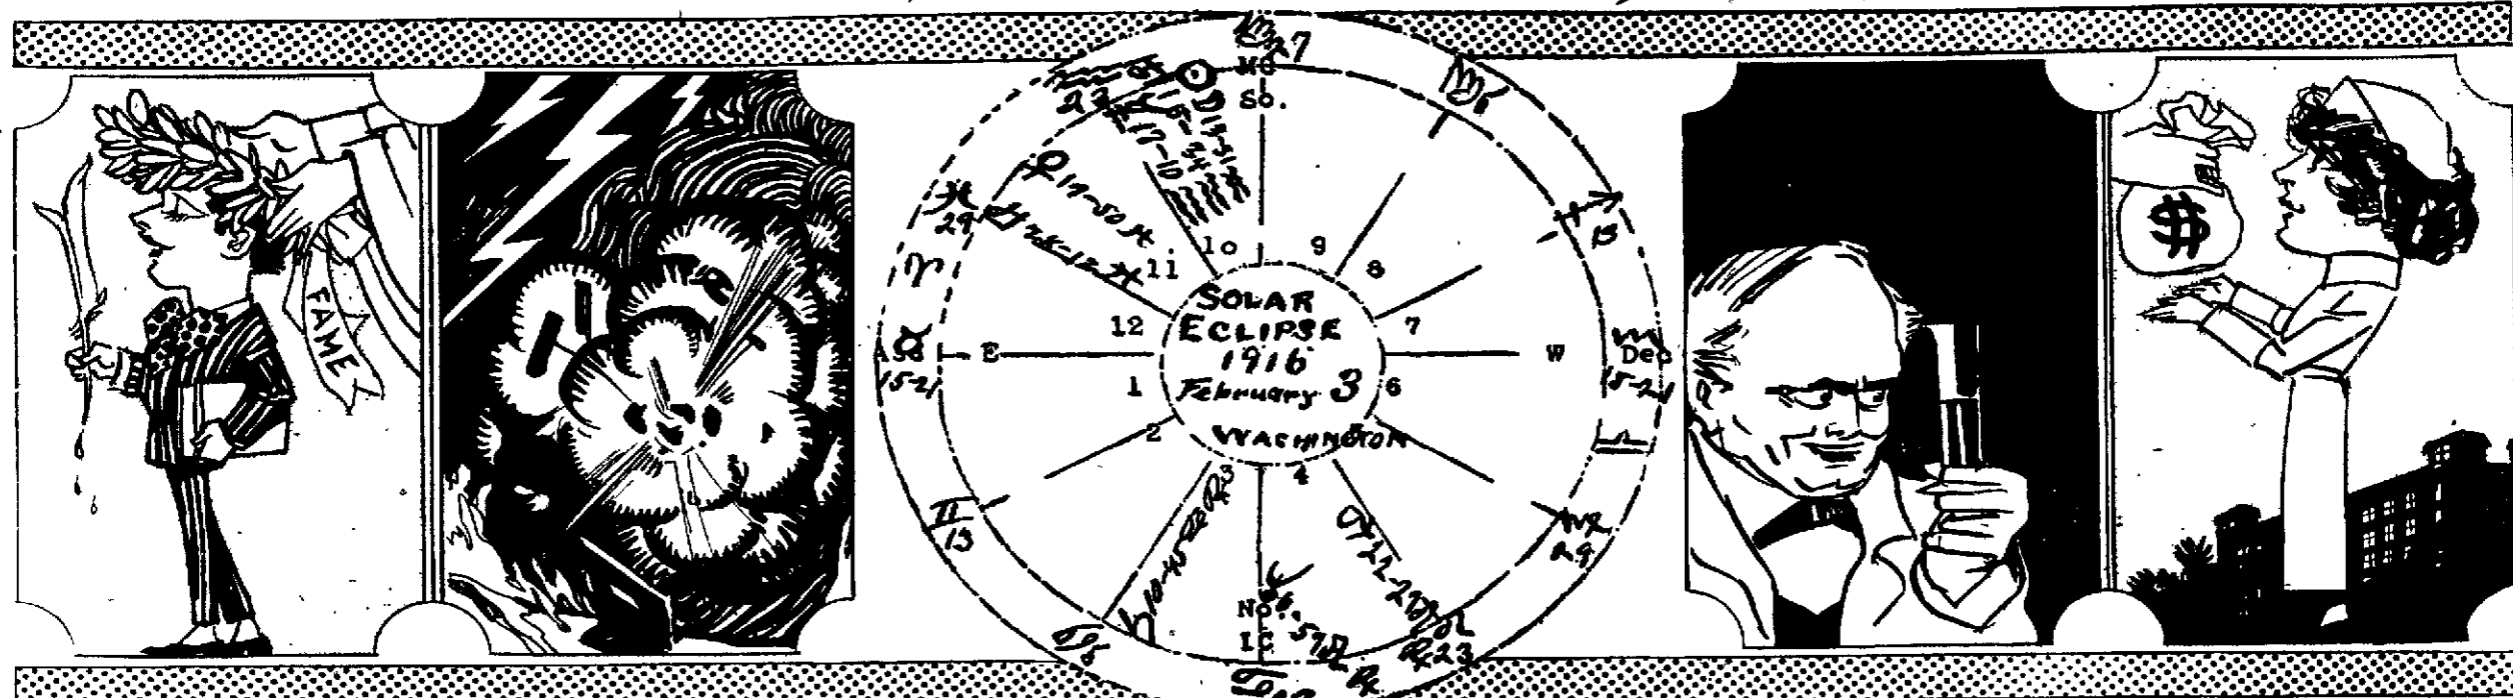

It remained for 1916 to continue the emphasis on feet by considering them without regard to shoes as well as with them. If stockingless feet do not become a fashion it will not be because a persistent effort is not made to that end. Not only are slippered bare feet a drawing-room fact, but or nate, high-laced "boots" are worn without the conventional interposition of stockings. The popularity of bare-foot dancing may have had something to do with the new fashion. But Lady Constance Richardson only bares her feet to dance. It is Mile Lillian Greuze of Paris who actually initiated the elaboration of the stockingless feet idea. She says, "Comfort, economy and beauty." You may take your choice as to which points of motive have been most influential. It seems safe to say that love of novelty has had its share of influence. And the actual beauty of the effect will surely determine the outcome. As for comfort, whether this becomes a factor or not, surely the outdoor application of the idea will be affected very materially by weather conditions. Most of the shoes and boots suggested for stockingless wear show the maximum open-work effect. It is noted that a very slightly smaller shoe may be worn when the intervening stocking is left out of consideration.

Two Types of the Shoes and Boots Worn Without Stockings.

The Message of the Stars for February

In the field of literature the effects will be most pronounced, conditions being favorable for new lights in the literary firmament.

Mars on the cusp of the fifth house threatens fires, violence or accidents, and epidemics of wild speculation will result.

This chart horoscope, figure or map, shows the positions of the sun, moon and planets relative to the earth at Washington at the time of the solar eclipse on Feb. 3, 1916. Its aspects portend disturbances in the earth and its elements and revolutionary changes throughout the world.

Wonderful advances in scientific lines will result. Many new inventions and discoveries, especially of warfare appliances, will come to light.

The presence of Jupiter on the cusp of the twelfth house promises benefits to hospitals, asylums and charitable institutions.

UNUSUAL to man the strange, mysterious cause of those effects derived from nature's laws; show that the stars, which trim the heavenly spheres, are set for signs, for seasons and for years. Which day by day to man do utter speech and night by night this sacred knowledge teach; that there's a time for all things here below; a time to reap, to gather in and sow.

Forecasts Based Upon Aspects of the Planets on the Occasion of a Most Notable Eclipse of the Sun.

By Frank Theodore Allen, Director, Astrological Research Society, Lakewood, N. J.

MINOR astrology is that branch of the most ancient of sciences which deals with state and national affairs. There are upward of a score of astrological configurations of the heavenly bodies every year that afford astrologers the means by which they interpret the character of the celestial vibrations that predispose men, individually and collectively, to certain courses of action, and which exert corresponding influence upon all the elements and creatures of earth. The astrologer must calculate a map, chart or horoscope for each of these configurations for the latitude and longitude of any place or faces he wishes to form a judgment upon. He should also be fairly well acquainted with the character of the persons or people he attempts to predict for, because it is the character of the person, organization or thing acted upon that determines its response to any given influence. A certain part of the fiery Mars, for instance, will be a person of low morals to indulge in various debauch, while the same aspect upon a cool headed and cultured person would merely cause him to be stimulated to unusual activity and aggressive-be some similarity in the elemental character resulting from the nature of the planets involved and the signs in which the aspects occur.

An eclipse falling in a fixed sign produces effects that last much longer than when in the other signs, though sometimes they act very suddenly and cause great disaster. Falling in the airy signs an eclipse is usually productive of high winds and destructive storms. Aquarius, in which this eclipse falls, is a fixed and airy sign. It will be visible in North America generally as a partial eclipse, and will be culminating at Washington at an angle which will exert a tremendous effect upon the administration and all those in authority generally throughout the eastern section of the country, as well as upon Congress and the legislative bodies of the nation generally. The "standpatters" and reactionaries of all political faiths will suffer severe reverses as a result of the tidal wave of progressive democracy which will stir the masses to enthusiasm as a result of this remarkable configuration of the heavenly bodies.

One of the textbooks defines the probable effects of such an eclipse in the following words:

"Parliament is unfortunate, bills fail, party splits and defections occur. Foreign affairs cause trouble; disturbed or changed relations with other nations; questions arise relating to treaties or alliances. The national finance and money matters cause trouble or bring up great questions and weighty problems to be solved."

Heavy Speculation Predicted.

Falling as it does in the humanitarian sign Aquarius and in conjunction with the reformatory and revolutionary Uranus, the vibrations generated by this eclipse will certainly infuse the progressive types of radical reformers with new powers and vigor which will produce a revolutionary effect upon authorities generally and the legislative bodies in particular.

Wonderful advances in scientific lines will result.

Many new discoveries and inventions will come to light.

In the field of literature the effects will be most pronounced, conditions being especially favorable for new lights in the literary firmament whose writings will have a stupendous influence.

Coincident with much that will be truly scientific and rational in the way of innovations and novel phases of altruistic and philosophic movements and literature there will also arise mushroomlike growths of weird and nebulous fads and erraticisms that will attract many followers. These effects may not be evidenced for several months.

Mars on the cusp of the fifth house threatens fires, violence or accidents, and serious disputes concerning schools and vicious assaults or crimes in connection with women and children.

An epidemic of wild speculation attended with heavy financial losses will likely result from this position or Mars.

The presence of Jupiter on the cusp of the twelfth house promises benefits to hospitals, asylums and charitable institutions. Philanthropic movements will be inaugurated and the public generally disposed to favor important reforms in connection with prisons, hospitals and other public institutions.

Neptune in the fourth house generates a widespread increase in the spirit of democracy and political reform.

Secret Plots in the West.

In the extreme West or affecting the Pacific coast states generally, the eclipse falls in the twelfth house, where it threatens a great deal of excitement arising out of secret plots, crimes and conspiracies and where it precipitates some extremely radical reforms in connection with prisons, hospitals and such institutions. Disorder and possible rebellions in such places are indicated.

This eclipse culminates at about fifty-five degrees of west longitude, so that along a line between about fifty and sixty degrees, or running through Newfoundland, the Atlantic Ocean and the central portion of South America, the maximum effects of this eclipse will doubtless produce some very destructive storms and possibly also earthquakes or tidal waves. The governments throughout the central portion of South America will be seriously disturbed as a result of this eclipse. Riotous meetings and revolutionary movements will be rampant, with a grave danger that governments will be overturned.

In central Europe the eclipse will appear in the western horizon or that section of the horoscope which signifies foreign relations and enemies, while the passionate and explosive Mars will be rising. A more portentous configuration of the planets could scarcely be imagined.

If all Europe were at peace the influence generated by these configurations would inflame the passions of the populace to mad fury and precipitate uprisings and warlike measures.

One of the results that we expect will most certainly follow in central Europe will be an epidemic of feverish ailments that may produce more disaster in the armies than even the destructive weapons that are being so effectively wielded.

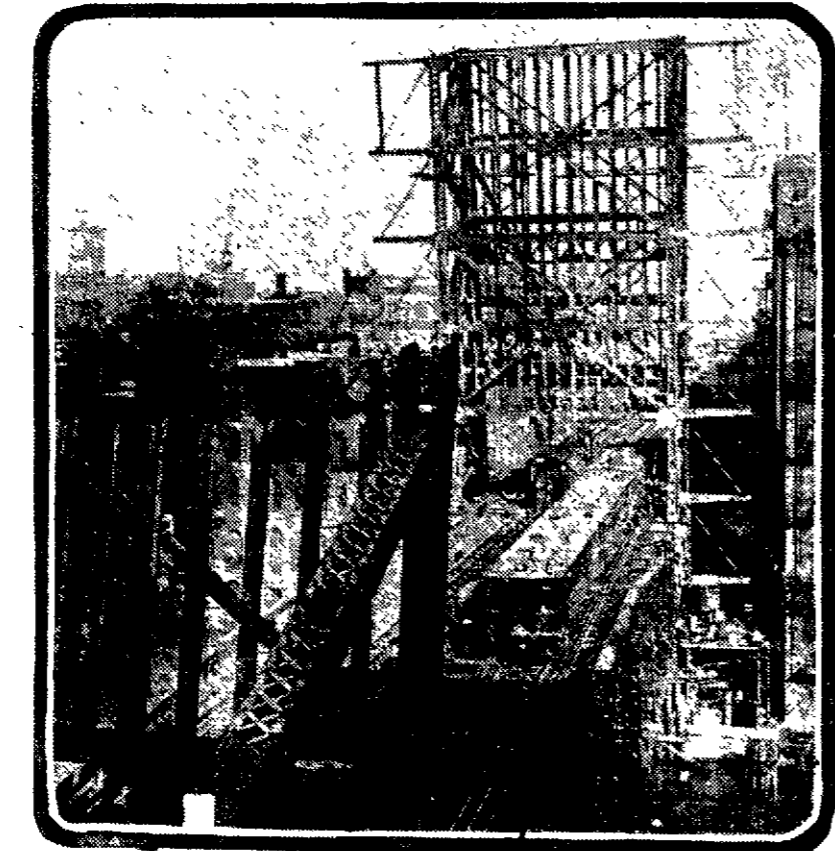

Last October Mars began his transit of the royal sign, Leo, in which he will remain until next May, during which time he attains his perigee or nearest approach to the earth. The feverish vibrations resulting from this position of the fiery planet cannot but produce an adverse influence upon royalty generally, and may result in death or disaster to members of the royal blood in Europe. And the opposition of Mars to the sun, Mercury and Uranus this month will very likely result in some such disaster.

Boat Draws One Inch of Water

AN UNUSUAL boat, called a "water sled," has been designed as a result of the Colombian government's plan to better transportation conditions in that country. Colombia is blessed with a number of rivers, but many of them are very shallow. In recent tests of the new boat, or sled, the inventor demonstrated that under a comparatively heavy load it would draw only four inches of water when at rest, and that when traveling at its maximum speed, forty-six miles an hour, draws but one inch of water. It is driven by aeroplane propellers attached to a four-cylinder motor. Air tanks aid in making it buoyant. The boats are designed to carry passengers and mail and can be built at a low cost.

Change Bridges While You Wait

BUILDING a new two-level bridge about an old one in such a manner that upon the completion of the first the second can be towed away at a moment's notice is the interesting task now almost completed by the builders of the new "jackknife" bridge over the Chicago River in the heart of Chicago's business district.

The old bridge, upon which the elevated trains run, will be allowed to drop on temporary piles sunk in the river. The new bridge will drop into place, and traffic will be resumed almost in the flash of an eye. The dropping of the old bridge will be accomplished by burning away supports with acetylene torches. The new bridge is the largest of its type in the world, measuring some 250 feet in length. The estimated cost of the structure is $530,000.

Eclipse of the Sun.

Because of the overlapping of influences, some of which continue over long periods of time, it is scarcely possible to confine minor forecasts to any one month. On Feb. 4 there will be a total eclipse of the sun in the second decanate of the fixed sign Aquarius. At the moment this eclipse the luminaries will be closely joined with the revolutionary and iconoclastic planet Uranus and the intellectual, airy and versatile Mercury, who is known as the interpreter or messenger of the gods. This remarkable stellium of planets Aquarius is opposed by the fiery and explosive Mars, who is approaching his perigee and retrograding in the fixed, fiery sign, Leo.

Signs Augur Violence.

In times immemorial astrologers have considered eclipses as omens of evil, but a number of the more philosophic of modern astrologers denude the effects of eclipses from the earth and its elements as somewhat akin to increasing the pressure in a steam boiler. Whatever of evil results from the vibrations generated at the time of an eclipse or any other powerful aspect of the planets is due primarily to the innate weaknesses or state of unpreparedness on the part of the things, nations, persons or organizations that are affected thereby. Under proper conditions the increased force generated by an eclipse will result in good and desirable effects quite as readily as it may be productive of evil and disaster.

At the time of the eclipse on Feb. 3 there will be such unusually powerful aspects that the danger of violence, revolution and disaster is very pronounced. The nature of the events attending and resulting from an eclipse or other planetary configuration depends largely upon the angles at which the resultant rays converge upon any particular place. Hence the same configuration will produce very different effects at different places, though there will

Novel Inventions From All Over the World

A MACHINE has been invented to brush bugs from potato vines as it is driven over a field and crush them to death between steel plates.

A CHICAGO inventor has patented an attachment so that a phonograph can be used as a burglar alarm.

CLOTHING made of pressed feathers as a substitute for wool has been invented by an Italian priest.

THE invention of a process for ripening peaches by high tension electricity, discharged directly upon the fruit, is claimed by an Englishman.

A PARACHUTE for aviators that has been invented in England is compact enough to be worn in a helmet, ready for instant use.

A BURIAL casket has been invented that is made of two pieces of heavy glass, held together by metal bands, that is proof against chemical action of the earth.

MOTION pictures for the blind are the invention of a French doctor, an electric motor causing a series of reliefs to pass under their fingers.

A RECENTLY invented electric fan for use on tables has horizontal blades and a dish on top for flowers or fruit.

A HOLDER has been patented for safety razor blades to enable them to be used by tailors or dressmakers for ripping seams.

TWO English scientists who are experimenting expect to solve the problem of producing electricity directly from coal without using a steam engine and dynamo.

We Carry 2½ Miles of Plumbing

THE skin of a full-grown man exhales in twenty-four hours, in ordinary circumstances, from one end, a half to two pounds of water in insensible perspiration. When, in hot weather, or in undergoing violent exertion, the perspiration becomes sensible, and instead of exhaling in a gentle moisture is thrown off in large drops of water, a much greater weight is disposed of in this way.

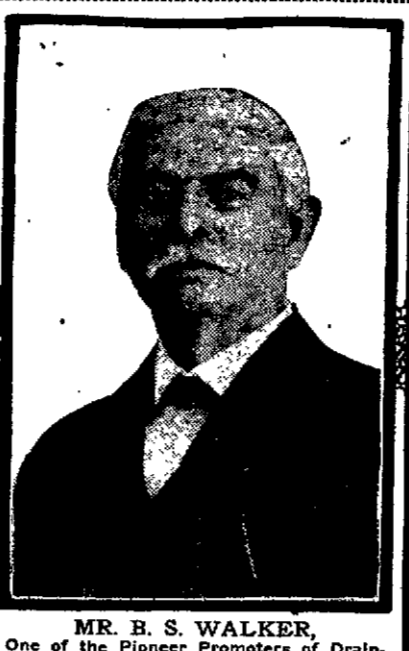

The action of this exhalation takes place through glands. It does not seem so strange that the human body can throw off nearly two pints of water daily, so gradually and so gently that it is not felt as moisture, when we remember how many glands there are and how very small each atom of moisture must be.

It is estimated that the number of perspiratory glands over the whole body is not less than 2,300,000, and as each tubular coil in the glands when unraveled is about one-fifteenth of an inch in length the entire extent of tubing used to throw off perspiration is not less than 153,000 inches, or nearly two and one-half miles.

Reclaiming Waste Lands to Grow Corn Instead of Bullfrogs

MR. E. S. WALKER, One of the Pioneer Promoters of Drainage Improvements in Walton County.

Dredge at Work on Jack's Creek Drainage Project Near Monroe, Ga., With View of Swamp Land Being Reclaimed.

BY HIRAM RICE ROMANS

The hind legs of a frog are regarded as a delectable morsel of food, and, as such, they bring a very good price in the markets of many of the larger cities; but, despite the fact that there are thousands upon thousands of acres of Georgia lands that are now absolutely worthless except to grow frogs, the years have gone by without Georgians developing a particular desire for frog legs, or an inclination to harvest this evasive crop.

You know the land referred to; you have seen it many times as you have looked from the window of a railroad train; as you have skimmed along over Georgia's road, bad and indifferent roads in your automobile, or plodded along behind your lowly mule. Here it is just a little narrow strip on one or both sides of a branch or creek farther on it widens into a bottom perhaps half a mile in width and maybe a mile in length, bordering it is a vast expanse embracing hundreds of acres.

It all belongs to someone, but as it lies it is worthless. It will grow nothing but mosquitoes, scrubby willows, burshes, "cut-tails" and frogs. No one wants the swampy willows, burshes or "cut-tails," and an experienced frogger would starve to death before he could catch a mess of frogs in most of these stretches of waste lands.

For all time these bogs, marshes and swamps have been there when a tract of land passed from father to son, or from one owner to another, they went along with the tract as worthless lands—yet they were potential riches to the owner if properly drained and put under cultivation.

State's Richest Lands Lying in Waste.

The subject of drainage is one to which the state of Georgia has given but little consideration. Just why no one seems to know—perhaps on account of the exorbitant cost of initial cost, or perhaps simply on account of indifference. But within the past few years there has been a gradual awakening on the subject—a realization that some thousands of acres of the state's very richest lands were lying in waste, the reclamation of which would add millions of dollars to the state's wealth and provide corn lands enough to keep the state from buying a dollar's worth of this cereal from the north.

Judge J. L. Sweet, formerly senator from the Walton county district, is the promoter in most all respects in Georgia, and is entitled to all praise for the first move toward making possible scientific drainage and the reclamation of waste lands in the state on a scale to be of value to the owners.

Georgia's Drainage Law.

At the request of the Southern Drainage congress, Judge Sweet introduced and secured the passage of the present drainage law of Georgia in 1911. It being amended in a minor detail in 1913. This law is practically an exact copy of the drainage law of North Carolina, and while it is adequate in most all respects to accomplish the objects desired, it has some defects that have cropped up since its practical application has been put to the test. The Missouri drainage law is held by many drainage experts to be the most perfect of the world, and at the next session of the Georgia legislature an effort will be made to amend the Georgia law to remedy its defects by embodying the salient points of the Missouri law.

The Georgia Law Provides for the Organization of Drainage Districts.

Each district being the body of waste land to be reclaimed, together with such contiguous land as will be benefited by the contemplated drainage. The first step is made by the land owners or public-spirited citizens, who take upon themselves the promotion of the enterprise of organizing a district to reclaim the waste bottom lands adjoining a particular branch, creek, river or large swamp area. To form a tentative district it is necessary to secure the assent of 51 per cent of the land owners, or three-fifths of the acreage, where the land is held in large tracts. When the required proportion of land owners has assented, the petitioners are embraced in the district and who have failed to join in the petition are given legal service by the sheriff. A meeting is advertised to be held within thirty days, the ordinary or clerk of the superior court constituting the court of hearing, in counties where there is a board of county commissioners, the commissioners and the clerk of the superior court constitute the court.

Steps to Be Taken in Forming District.

The first meeting is for organization, and a board of viewers, composed of a civil engineer and two disinterested land owners, are appointed by the court to view the property and report to the court as early as possible on the feasibility of the project. This report is made at five different places in the proposed district and at the courthouse door, and another meeting is called in thirty days at which the report is acted upon.

In case the report is accepted, a civil engineer is employed to make a thorough survey of the district, and when completed he will make a report to the court with blue prints. This report contains laying off the new ditch, a complete outline of the entire work, estimated number of acres to be drained, each individual land owner's number of acres and classification thereof, number of cubic yards of earth to be moved and nature of same—in short, a complete outline of the entire work and probable cost thereof.

When this report is accepted, the court will order bids to be received at a specified time, and when bids have been opened and the contract let, bonds to secure the work are required. Only the bond shall be issued and validated by the judge of the superior court. These may be sold as a whole or taken individually by the land owners.

A Fault in the Georgia Drainage Law.

At this point comes one of the drawbacks in the present Georgia law, the provisions of which require that only the bond shall be issued and validated by the judge of the superior court. These may be sold as a whole or taken individually by the land owners. There are two great bonding concerns in the United States—one in New York and one in Chicago—which handle the bonds of most of the big drainage projects of the country. The O. K. either of these houses on the bonds of any drainage project means immediate sale of the bonds at par, and some of the essential requirements of these two concerns are. That each land owner's share in the bonds of the district be secured by a lien upon his entire holdings contiguous to the district, and that the same be made a matter of public record, that his right and title to the land be established and made a matter of public record, together with any mortgages or liens upon the said land, that the drainage project be bonded to provide 10 per cent additional funds above the estimated cost, same to be used for administrative purposes and to care for any unforeseen contingencies until it is remedied during construction of the work.

Requirements of Law May Be Exceeded.

Of course, any drainage district that wished to sell its bonds easily and quickly to outside parties could go beyond the provisions of the Georgia law and meet the requirements above mentioned but it could only be done by agreement of all the parties concerned, as the law would not force any objector to comply, and one objector could block the obtaining of money from outside parties. This fault in the law will likely hold back large drainage projects until it is remedied.

The Law Provides that the Drainage Bonds Shall Run for a Period of Twelve Years.

The first and second years the land owners pay only the interest on the bonds thereafter for ten years they pay each year the interest plus 10 per cent of the bonded indebtedness—clearing the district of debt and retiring the bonds in twelve years. The advantage of this provision is that the land owners have two years in which to get the land under cultivation and make some real money on the venture before they begin to pay a cent on the debt. The collection of the interest and principal is done by the regular tax collector at tax collection time, and if the owner is slow in paying, the money is collected in the same manner as taxes when their collection is resisted.

Duties of Drainage Commissioners.

Three drainage commissioners are elected to supervise and inspect the drainage work as it progresses, and after it is completed their duties are to see that the main drainage ditch is kept open and in good condition; that no rafts or drifts are formed, and in event that logs or brush are washed in during a freshet, to have them removed, and assess the cost for this work pro rata upon the owners in the district.

The First Drainage District in Georgia to Be Organized Under the Present Law.

was in 1912 in Gwinnett county, near Grayson, the home of Hon. Thomas A. Pate, who was its chief promoter. This project was for the reclamation of about 700 acres of waste bottom lands extending for about seven miles along Haynes creek.

Much Opposition to First Project.

Being the first drainage project, it met with considerable opposition by the land owners in the proposed district. Its cost when completed was only $13,000, or a trifle under $20 per acre, yet there were plenty of men to argue that they did not want to pay thousands that small sum to reclaim land that was utterly worthless.

The Opposition Resulted in the Matter Getting into Court, and It Was Finally Settled by the Supreme Court of Georgia.

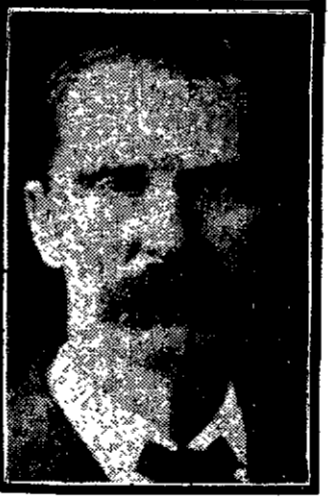

on the contention that the drainage law was unconstitutional. Mr. Pate, who was superintendent, and one of the commissioners of the Haynes Creek project, argued by Colonel I. L. Oakes, of Law-denceville, Ga., fought the case to the end, and when the supreme court finally handed down a decision upholding the constitutionality of the law the work was speedily carried to completion.

The Success of the Haynes Creek Project More Than Justified the Predictions of Mr. Pate and the Other Promoters of the Improvement.

It was completed in July, 1913, and on the upper portion of the district several thousand bushels of corn were raised that year. In 1914, the first season after its completion, they were raised on the reclaimed land over 15,000 bushels of corn, and in 1915 something like 20,000 bushels of corn. Thus the worthless land was more than paid by the first two years' corn crop; the land has jumped in price from nothing to $100 and on up to $200 per acre, and the owners have ten years yet to get the small yearly sums for the reclamation. All of this has been accomplished by the drainage law, which has changed owners in this district since the reclamation has brought $100 per acre, and Mr. Pate says he would not take less than $200 per acre for his share.

HON. THOMAS A. PATE, Promoter of Haynes Creek Drainage Project.

the county board of education, and one of Walton's most prominent and public-spirited citizens. Mr. Nunnally was one of the first to investigate the proposition and took the first legal steps for the organization of the Jack's Creek Drainage district. In this work he had the active help and co-operation of his brother, Mr. W. H. Nunnally, a pioneer spirit in every movement for progress in Monroe and the county, and one of the leading business men and influential citizens. In hearty sympathy and support of these gentlemen were Mr. Olin P. Hester, Mr. W. L. Wood, Colonel E. H. Walker and a number of others immediately affected by the drainage. Another of the leaders in the improvement was Mr. E. S. Walker, one of the pioneers in every movement for the public welfare of Monroe and Walton county, who cast his gaze down that tangled, crooked waste of bottom land along Jack's creek and saw a vision of it reclaimed and growing thousands of bushels of corn to fatten the herds of cattle that should be grazing on the hillsides.

The Man who Started the First Bank in Monroe, who Established the First Cotton Mill There, who was the Prime Mover in securing Monroe's first railroad, whose influence made Monroe one of the best-paved cities in Georgia, and who has done valiant service in every enterprise for the good of Monroe and Walton county, it was but natural that Mr. Walker should give his hearty support to the promotion of the Jack's creek drainage district, although he did not own an acre of the land that would be benefited by the project.

The District was Organized in 1914, and W. L. Wood, O. P. Hester and V. F. Patrick were Elected Commissioners.

The district as surveyed contains about 300 acres of land to be reclaimed, the cost of which was put at $20,000. Bonds to this amount were issued and validated by the court, and then the Jack's creek project encountered its next snag.

Bonds Taken by Local Parties.

The Jack's creek project might have fallen through right there, but for Mr. Walker, the Bank of Monroe, of which he is president, and which, by the way, is one of the richest county banks in the state of Georgia, took $8,000 of the bonds; other local banks took several thousands, and the land-owners in the drainage district, the balance.

That Ended the Troubles of the Jack's

creek project. The contract for building seven and one-half miles of main ditch and five and one-half miles of laterals was let to Messrs. Thompson & Moseley, of Greensboro, N. C., and on December 1, 1915, the work was begun.

Description of Work on Jack's Creek.

The main ditch at its beginning is 15 feet wide, and 3 feet deep, and it gradually widens as it goes along to 22 feet when it reaches the shoal near Jack's Creek church. This shoal is 10 feet high, and it is to be blown out with dynamite, giving the main ditch a most perfect outlet and assuring a fall in the seven and one-half miles that will keep it open for all time.

All of the narrow, shallow places in the creek are dredged out to a uniform depth and width, the tortuous windings of the stream are changed to a deep channel behind. If he has a mind to do so, he can travel back up the length of the completed work and see land that he has always known as a soggy, wet mass of earth, now dry enough to walk upon without getting wet feet.

Another District Being Formed.

The prediction is freely made that the dredging machine now in operation on Jack's creek will never leave Walton county until every bit of waste land is reclaimed, and this prediction has every evidence of being borne out, for another drainage district in Walton county is in the process of being formed.

This District Extends Six and One-Half Miles Along Alcovy River and its Tributaries, the largest of which are Bay creek, 5 miles, and Beaver Dam creek, 5 miles, making about sixteen and one-half miles of main ditch. It is estimated that it will reclaim about 2,500 acres of very fertile bottom lands. At present the land is worthless, but when reclaimed it will make as fine corn land as can be found anywhere, and will be worth from $100 an acre up, and will pay 8 per cent interest on a plantation of from $100 to $200 an acre when planted in corn.

The estimated cost of the project is from $22 to $25 per acre, making a total cost of from $44,000 to $50,000.

Dr. J. A. Pirkle, of Monroe, is the main dynamo behind the Alcovy river project, and with him are associated Messrs. S. T. Moore, J. W. Mayfield and D. Y. Hodges, of Monroe; S. W. Arnold, of Winder, and many others. There are about 100 land owners concerned in the project, 90 per cent of whom have assented.

Little Opposition to the New District.

The report of the engineers and surveyors on the Alcovy river district was favorable, and there is much enthusiasm for it and very little opposition to it. It is probable that the district will pay cash for the work, the land owners taking the entire bond issue. This happy condition of affairs has been brought about by the success of the Haynes creek district, and the object lesson of the improvements being wrought along Jack's creek, which is only a few miles away. It is planned to begin work on the Alcovy river reclamation about August 1, and when provement cannot hold out long when he is asked if he will sell his waste land at the price put upon it by the viewers, or at a reasonable advance on that price; or if he is told that a certain person will pay his entire assessment in lieu of rental for a specified time.

How Drainage Enhances Value of Land.

The land being reclaimed along Jack's creek was classified as being worth from $5 to $25 per acre by the viewers, though it is apparent to any observer that there was much of it that was practically worthless. It is estimated that it will be worth from $75 an acre upward as corn land when the improvement is completed, and that it will alone grow enough corn, in addition to what is already grown, to supply the entire county.

The dredge being used on the Jack's creek project could be used on a much smaller stream, for as it moves along it dams up the water in the ditch it has cut, giving it perfect room for action. It is in operation day and night, and is an object of curiosity that brings crowds to see it work. The effect of a practical demonstration to any community of the benefits of reclamation. The most obstinate opposer of drainage cannot fail to observe how the waste land is being reclaimed, he can see just ahead of the dredging machine the crooked channel of the shallow stream, and he may have decided deep channel behind. If he has a mind to do so, he can travel back up the length of the completed work and see land that he has always known as a soggy, wet mass of earth, now dry enough to walk upon without getting wet feet.

Another District Being Formed.

The prediction is freely made that the dredging machine now in operation on Jack's creek will never leave Walton county until every bit of waste land is reclaimed, and this prediction has every evidence of being borne out, for another drainage district in Walton county is in the process of being formed.

This District Extends Six and One-Half Miles Along Alcovy River and its Tributaries, the largest of which are Bay creek, 5 miles, and Beaver Dam creek, 5 miles, making about sixteen and one-half miles of main ditch. It is estimated that it will reclaim about 2,500 acres of very fertile bottom lands. At present the land is worthless, but when reclaimed it will make as fine corn land as can be found anywhere, and will be worth from $100 an acre up, and will pay 8 per cent interest on a plantation of from $100 to $200 an acre when planted in corn.

The estimated cost of the project is from $22 to $25 per acre, making a total cost of from $44,000 to $50,000.

Dr. J. A. Pirkle, of Monroe, is the main dynamo behind the Alcovy river project, and with him are associated Messrs. S. T. Moore, J. W. Mayfield and D. Y. Hodges, of Monroe; S. W. Arnold, of Winder, and many others. There are about 100 land owners concerned in the project, 90 per cent of whom have assented.

Little Opposition to the New District.

The report of the engineers and surveyors on the Alcovy river district was favorable, and there is much enthusiasm for it and very little opposition to it. It is probable that the district will pay cash for the work, the land owners taking the entire bond issue. This happy condition of affairs has been brought about by the success of the Haynes creek district, and the object lesson of the improvements being wrought along Jack's creek, which is only a few miles away. It is planned to begin work on the Alcovy river reclamation about August 1, and when it is completed over 500,000 cubic yards of dirt will have been dredged out and piled along the sides of the ditches as levees.

Although the Haynes creek drainage district was the pioneer in the reclamation of waste lands in Georgia, its progress was so beset with litigation and other difficulties that it failed to attract favorable attention during its construction. But the unqualified success of the project after two years of operation has been noted by drainage enthusiasts all over the state, and now with work going on uninterrupted on the Jack's creek improvement, there is a constant stream of visitors from all parts of the state to Monroe, which, for the time being, is the fountain head for enthusiasm and information on the drainage question.

Power of Press Helps Improvement.

And those who cannot visit Monroe are using the good old plan of writing to the editor of a local paper for information. Even the editor of the enterprising editor and publisher of The Walton Tribune, was one of the first to perceive the benefits to be derived from scientific drainage and reclamation of waste lands, and he has been an enthusiastic supporter of the movement, using his excellent paper to promulgate the idea and educate the public to its advantages. In like manner, The Walton News, edited by Mr. J. M. Caldwell and owned by him and Mr. C. G. Hester, and generally recognized as one of the strongest weekly papers in Georgia, has done valuable work in spreading the gospel of drainage and reclamation.

It is estimated that there are over 700,000 acres of bogs, marshes and swamps in Georgia that could be easily reclaimed and turned into rich corn-growing land; and if drainage is needed in Georgia, it is more in need in south Georgia, and for the purpose of making corn land, but from a health standpoint.

Every one of these swamps, whether large or small, is the breeding place for malarial mosquitoes, which spread malaria for miles around. The malarial disease is now known to be easily preventable, and thousands upon thousands of people living within a few miles of these swamps would be saved years of sickness and eventual death, were the breeding places of the malarial fevers wiped out by the simple method of adequate drainage.

Aid to Diversified Farming.

Drainage of the swamps also is one great step toward diversified farming; it means corn where there has been nothing, and with a surplus of corn the farmer can raise what he chooses to have cattle and hogs. With cattle, hogs and corn in abundance, he is going to pay less attention to cotton, which will then be to him a real cash crop. He will be in a position to rotate his crops—and that is held to be one of the very best methods of fighting the cotton boll weevil, which threatens to overrun the state of Georgia within the next two years.

These Waste Lands when Reclaimed are Far and Away the Most Fertile in any of the State. They never have been farmed, nothing has ever been taken out of them. The fertilizer that has been harrowed in on the uplands has been washed with the topsoil down and deposited upon the wet, soggy bottoms. Crops planted on this reclaimed land haven't had to sink their roots to find water, but matter how dry it may be, and how badly the crops on the uplands may suffer, those in the bottoms will do well and bring a big yield. Is it any wonder that men along Haynes creek are now refusing $75 to $100 an acre for land that three years ago was not worth a dollar a square mile? There is absolutely no argument against drainage except the matter of securing the money. If the Georgia law if the land owners in the district but fully realize the importance of the matter and take the proper steps necessary to sell the bonds to outsiders.

If one or more public-spirited men of each county in Georgia would visit Haynes creek district, and see what has been accomplished; the Jack's creek district, and see what is being done and how it is done, and the Alcovy river district, and see what is contemplated, it would result in hundreds of drainage projects being started within the next year.

To Delay These Improvements is but to Delay the Future of Georgia, and to be the greatest cattle and corn state of the south, and one of the richest states in the Union.

How the Movement is Growing.

In securing information for the above article the writer applied to many prominent men for data. A belated letter, arriving just as this article goes to press, tells of a second drainage project in Gwinnett county to reclaim 3,000 acres; one in Forsyth and Milton counties that will reclaim a large body of waste land, and one in Franklin and Banks counties, the estimated cost of which is $95,000. Perhaps there are others, if there isn't, there will be, for the reclamation of waste lands will continue until every acre that can be reclaimed is brought under cultivation.

SIXTH INSTALLMENT

SYNOPSIS.

Little Helen Holmes, daughter of General Holmes, railroad man, is rescued from imminent danger on a scenic railroad by George Storm, a newsboy. Grown to a young womanhood Helen saves Storm, now a fireman, her father, and his friends Amos Rhinelander, financier, and Robert Seagrue, promoter, from a threatened collision. Saboteurs employed by Seagrue steal General Holmes' survey plans of the cut-off line for the Tidewater, fatally wounding the general and escape. Her father's estate badly involved by his death, Helen goes to work on the Tidewater. Seagrue uses Spike to set fire to a powder train hauled by Storm's engine. Helen saves Storm from a horrible death. Helen recovers the survey plans from Seagrue, and though they are taken from her, she accidentally made proof of the survey blueprint. Storm, employed by Rhinelander, wins a fight with Seagrue's men for possession of a coupon-book of railroad tickets.

HELEN'S WILD RIDE.

Helen sped him the minute she stepped inside Rhinelander's hut to deliver the telegram—a small, fluffy bundle of black and white, lying curled up tightly on Rhinelander's cot, as if this was the haven of warmth and refuge he long had sought. "Where," demanded Helen of Rhinelander, and emphasizing each word in amazement, "did you get that dear, little dog?"

"That dear, little dog," explained Rhinelander, with corresponding emphasis, "is the last addition to my already overburdened pay roll."

"What's his name? Who," demanded Helen in delight, "put him on?"

"He just got hold with his teeth and hung on. He blew into camp the other day, the trestled, ornierest, hungriest looking cur you ever saw.

Rhinelander reread his telegram:

Rhinelander,

Signal:

Monthly pay roll on No. 4.

H. "Say, this is news, best I've had this week. The pay roll is overdue three days and these Greeks and Mexics are a suspicious bunch. What's your hurry?" he asked as Helen made ready to go. "I must run," said Helen. "I'm alone this morning."

"Don't be in a rush; I'm going over that way myself," returned Rhinelander, picking up his hat. "The pup will keep house a few minutes."

Leaving the hut door open, Rhinelander, accompanied by Helen, started for the station. Two good comrades as well as devoted friends, Helen and he laughed and joked along their way, watched from the farther end of the camp by Spike, who, in disgrace, chafed, half in hiding, awaiting some opportunity for mischief to turn up—something that would release him from honest idleness.

It was to be an irony of fate that now made of the homeless dog an instrument to serve the purpose of the restless criminal. The puppy, alone, in the tent, refreshed by his nap, invigorated by his breakfast, and impelled, Rhinelander would have said, by the devil, looked about for something to interest him. Seizing the telegram in his sharp teeth, the dog started to tear it to pieces. At that juncture an inquisitive squirrel, pausing before the open door, peered sharply into the hut.

To the dog, this looked like a formal challenge. He was so overcome by the impudence of it that he sprang from the table, forgetting to put the telegram back where it belonged. Away he dashed, telegram in teeth, after the squirrel.

There was but a single spectator of this dash—the brooding Spike. As the dog tore past Spike the telegram dropped from his mouth almost at the convict's feet, and idly picking the paper up Spike opened and read it:

Rhinelander,

Signal:

Monthly pay roll on No. 4.

Brief though the message was, it contained enough news to arouse Spike.

Casting only a glance in the direction of the fleeing dog, Spike clutching his find, hurried toward Seagrue's camp and lost no time in covertly showing him the message, without explaining how it had fallen into his hands.

Seagrue, reading the telegram, saw the moment he looked at Spike, what was in the convict's mind. "Well!" he growled, regarding his tool curiously.

Seagrue studied the message: "It wouldn't be a bad idea to get hold of the stuff a while, anyway," he mused. "It's behind time now, I understand, and I hear the men over there are getting restless about not getting their money. If you could hold it up on Rhinelander a few days, you might work up a strike."

"How far do you want to go with this thing?" demanded Spike, casting a vicious eye on his employer.

"I don't care how far you go," said Seagrue, "provided you hold up that pay roll."

"Spike left the camp. No more than a moment's reflection was needed to suggest an idea to him. Returning to the station, he got a long distance telephone wire and called up two of his friends at Oceanside—Sykes, a convict acquaintance, and a chum of Sykes, who, in various encounters with the law, had lost all of his name but "Dan."

In jargon Spike explained to Sykes, who answered the telephone, the possibilities of a haul at Signal. Dan, standing near Sykes in the room they occupied together, asked questions and prompted his companion, who tried to get from Spike—reluctant to talk much on the wire—a description of the lay of the land. Spike bluntly told them in the end to stow it and take the job or leave it as they liked. However, the two criminals got enough from him to decide that a third man was indicated and they called into their conference a crooked safe expert, known only by his nickname of "Bat, the Bat."

When No. 4 pulled into Signal next morning three men dropped off the hind end. They made up the criminal gang that Spike had engaged to rob Rhinelander, and, knowing the loot was expected on the train that carried them, two of the men kept the front end of the train well in view until they had watched Lyons and Helen take the package of money from the express messenger, and after receiving for it walk with Rhinelander into the station. Inside of the office Rhinelander examined the shipment of currency.

"I have no safe at the camp, Lyons," explained Rhinelander when the agent asked him to receipt for the package. "Keep it here for me in your safe until tomorrow." He pushed the open package of bills back through the wicket of the counter, but in doing this he accidentally overturned a bottle of ink.

Helen screamed a little and jumping aside caught up a piece of cloth from the letter-press stand, wiped the ink off the bills as best she could and turned them over to Lyons, who took the big package within his charge and placed it carefully in the safe. Not, however, without having been observed by two of the Oceanside criminals who were loitering just then outside the office window.

Turning away before they were discovered, these men—Sykes and Dan—were joined by the third member of their expedition, and the three headed for Rhinelander's camp to hunt up Spike. They encountered him on the way over to the station to look for them. A consultation was held in the woods. The four were now assured that the money had come and they knew where it had been put. To the safe expert was left the details, and when these had been arranged to suit him the quartet scattered. That evening they might have been seen hovering around the station about the time that Helen and Lyons were closing up for the night. Indeed, the latter had hardly locked the station door before Spike, watching his opportunity, signaled his assistants to the freighthouse window. This, without ceremony, they broke open and entering the telegraph office from the freightroom took possession of the premises.

The man known as The Bat, the master mind of the visiting trio, at once got down in front of the safe for an examination. It took him only a moment to throw back the bolts and swing the door open amid the suppressed applause of his companions.

They took the pay roll package out just as Lyons had placed it within the safe. But the easy triumph of the expert and the congratulations of his friends did not seem enough to satisfy him. To make the job artistic, he directed his assistants to get together some brown paper, and after they had taken the bills from the package, he filled it with waste paper, rewrapped the package carefully and laborers with liquor and advised them to stand on their rights and refuse to work if their money was not at once forthcoming.

Rhinelander made up his mind not to dodge the issue and he assured such of the men as would listen that if they would give him a little time he would replace the pay roll on his personal credit; and that no one should lose a cent through the accident. The difficulty was to get the men to listen. The strike idea spread through the camp like an infection, and reason was for the moment completely forgotten. Spike, perceiving the mischief well under way and anxious to get the two city criminals out of the way before the detective from headquarters should arrive and round-up the camp for suspects, directed Sykes and Dan to "beat it" back to town on the local passenger.

At this time a sudden and unexpected complication arose. With Spike, the party returned to the shack for a final drink, and when they left it, Sykes and Dan started for the station. But a lighted match carelessly thrown to the ground inside the hut, falling among rubbish, had ignited it, and almost before the pair reached the station the hut was on fire.

Entering the waiting room with his companion, Sykes bought tickets from Helen for the city. When with Dan he walked out on the platform, the local train had pulled in and the crew were looking at the fire in Rhinelander's camp.

Sykes and Dan boarded the train at the moment it pulled slowly out. In the office, while Helen was putting away the bill with which Sykes had paid for the tickets, her attention was arrested by a blot of ink on the edge of it. With a woman's intuition, she realized almost at once that the ink-stained bill was one of those stolen from the express package the night before. Running out on form. Then mounting on the footboard of the roaring little motor, she sprang with all her strength to the observation platform of the rear car.

The conductor and brakeman, looking back at that moment from the coaches to watch the fire, discovered the pursuing speeder. The two started back for the rear platform and they reached it just as Helen landed in front of them from her jump.

"What in the world?" demanded the conductor, as he looked from the excited girl to the deserted fireman's car, now falling back in the race it had maintained with the train. "What in thunder," he again demanded of Helen, in simple good faith, "are you trying to do, Miss Holmes?"

Helen, short of breath and wild with excitement, tried to explain: "Mr. Rhinelander," she said, "between gasps, "was robbed yesterday. Thieves took his pay roll from our safe last night. They left bunches of brown paper in the package. They are both on this train!" she cried. "They have the money. We must get them or he'll be ruined, if he isn't ruined now by this terrible fire. You must help me, conductor, both of you."

"But how do you know?" demanded the conductor. "Who are the men? What are you going to do? You can't arrest them. They'd blow our heads off if we tackled them. Do you know them when you see them? What evidence have you got they stole the money—or have it?"

"I know," returned Helen, panting, "because two of them just bought tickets from me and handed me one of the stolen bills. We upset a bottle of ink when the money was put away. The bill they gave me for their tickets had ink on the edge which I wiped off when I put the money away. You must help me arrest them."

The conductor was game. He drew a revolver from his hip, examined it, put it back in his side coat pocket and bade Helen come along with him to identify the suspects. "You point out the men," he said simply. "I'll do the rest."

Followed by the brakeman, the two walked forward. It was rather a long train, and the conductor, knowing that no search but a thorough one would be of any consequence, passed with Helen through the coaches, examining every nook and corner and giving her a chance to peer carefully stairs, Helen with her policeman hard behind. Looking back from the first landing, the convicts now saw their pursuers. Springing up a second flight of stairs, they knocked hurriedly at the first door. It was opened by their confederate, The Bat, who, inside the room, had been diverting himself by counting the stolen money.

"They're after us," exclaimed Sykes to him. "We've got to get out of here. Beat it, Bat. The girl and the cop are on the stairs."

"Make for the roof," cried The Bat. The hard-pressed pair ran for the trap ladder. The Bat, keeping to his room, slammed the door shut. Once through the trap door, which Sykes and Dan dropped behind them, and on the roof, the pair imagined themselves safe, but Helen and her officer were close behind, and when they found the trap door closed against them the officer drew his revolver and fired up through it.

On the outside, Sykes and Dan jumped back like rabbits from the shots. Helen and her helper threw open the trap door unopposed, and, gaining the roof, faced the convicts. Nowhere could the robbers find an avenue of escape on the top of the building and cornered like rats as Helen and the policeman reached them, they put up a hand-to-hand fight.

The officer tackled Sykes, the more powerful of the pair, and Dan, seeing his opportunity, for a flank movement, tried to regain the trap door. Helen pounced on him like a panther. He tried to throw her off. Despite his blows and struggles, he could not get rid of his tenacious assailant, and locked in a life and death struggle they fought, reckless of consequence, nearer and nearer to the edge of the roof. For a moment both their lives were in peril, but Helen, her fighting blood up, would have clung to her prisoner if it had cost her life.

Provisionally the harried man, fast losing his nerve under her frantic attack, and pushing to the edge of the parapet in the wild assault, flung Helen violently off in an effort to throw her over the roof parapet to her death. In his terrific effort he lost his balance. With a scream he tried to recover his foothold. Helen, seeing his desperate plight, would have caught him to save his life, but fortunately for herself she could not reach him in time. Had she done so, her own death would have been inevitable; for Dan, awaying wildly, slipped again. He caught with a fearful curse at the empty air. It was too late for anyone to aid him now, and the next instant he had plunged headlong off the roof to his death.

Below the two, the fat man, Bat, looking up, beheld his confederate in the grip of the law. Helen was too late to aid the officer to save himself, but the plucky policeman gripped Sykes around the neck as he plunged forward himself, and before the fat man in the room, watching apprehensively, could draw a full breath, the two men crashed violently through the skylight together almost on top of him. As it was, they landed in a heap on the bed. The Bat sprang at once on the helpless policeman. It would have gone hard with him but instant aid from Helen. She dropped down the open skylight, caught the revolver from the officer's hand and held the two criminals at the point of it until the policeman could slip handcuffs on them. When the two men were secured, Helen demanded the stolen money.

The man Bat did most of the talking. Unabashed and unafraid, he met Helen's inquisition without batting an eyelash. Had she not been absolutely sure of her ground his coolness would have deceived her.

"I don't know what you are talking about," he said jovially, while Helen's accusations were launched at him. "I am a piano tuner, officer. I don't know this man," he pointed calmly at Sykes. "I never saw him in my life till he smashed my skylight. What do you three mean, anyway, by breaking into my room? I'll put the blue-sky laws on you. Who's going to pay for all this glass?" he demanded with an injured air. "The landlord is going to come after me for it. I'll have your whole bunch arrested the minute I get to the police station. I don't know anything about your money. I don't believe you've got any money or have had any."

"What did you attack the policeman for as soon as he dropped into the room?" cried Helen, indignantly.

"Why, miss, I am near-sighted. I thought that man was a piano tuner when I saw him—a man that's tried to let the light into me two or three times with a gun—it's a fact!"

The officer shut off The Bat's talk, and Helen, with the astuteness of a detective, searched him, with the result that from his various pockets she recovered every package of the bills stolen from the safe, and nearly all of them intact.

The fat man lost none of his nerve when confronted with the result. He declared he had been made the victim of a plot, that his character and reputation were known everywhere in the city—which was quite true. And having denounced all unwarranted intrusions such as he had been made the victim of, he resigned himself to go as prisoner with a much better grace than his sullen companion did. They were taken together to the police station.

Helen telephoned immediately for a motor car, and, accompanied by her friendly officer, and with the money safely stowed away on her person, she stepped into the car and ordered it driven in haste to Signal. Fast as the landscape flew by it did not keep pace with Helen's impatience. They drew in sight of Rhinelander's camp. Smoke still rose from where the fire had threatened its complete destruction. Rhinelander and Wood, with their men, had finally extinguished the conflagration, though not until a heavy toll of damage had been taken by the flames. Helen caught sight of Rhinelander just as the car raced up to the camp, and alighting called him joyfully to her, waving the money, in her great excitement, in her hands.

"It's here," she cried. "Most every bit of it."

Rhinelander, half dazed, could hardly ask explanations. Bit by bit Helen told the story. Her foster uncle caught her in his arms, money and all. Together—the men crowding around—they walked with the recovered treasure through the half-burned camp.

replaced it just as he had found it in the safe. Leaving by the same way they had entered the building, the quartet took their way to Seagrue's camp. He listened to all that Spike had to say and at once advised sending the three safe blowers back to the city. This, however, it was decided, after a brief conference, would not do, as Spike needed somebody to help him foment a disturbance next day. In the end, a compromise was effected, by which The Bat was sent to town while Sykes and Dan were kept over night to aid in stirring up Rhinelander's men.

The following day had already been announced in Rhinelander's camp as pay day. When Helen and Lyons arrived at the office in the morning for duty they found Rhinelander waiting to take the money. Lyons, very willing to be rid of his responsibility, opened the safe and unsuspectingly turned over to Rhinelander the package he had placed in it the afternoon before.

When the construction boss reached his camp, the men were lined up outside his tent waiting for their pay. Passing within, Rhinelander cut open the package. To his consternation he found only brown paper instead of currency. Stunned by the revelation and breathless with amazement, he made his way, white-faced, back to the station for an explanation.

Rushing into the office he threw the doctored package down before Lyons and Helen. The two paled in turn with excitement and each of the three looked blankly into the faces of the others.

Helen looked at Rhinelander with the utmost sympathy. He took the catastrophe hard. Much had transpired within recent weeks to try his endurance and this seemed a climax to all the misfortunes that had gone before.

Rhinelander wiped his brow and turned, dejected, from the counter. He had not the heart to wire Oceanside of the calamity. The first thing necessary, in any event, was to make an effort to appease the men and, starting to his camp, he attempted to do this. The men made uneasy by Rhinelander's sudden disappearance after his promise to pay, were grumbling around Wood, the foreman, who was using his best efforts to quiet them. Rhinelander now reappeared from the station, but empty-handed. He brought with him the rifled package, showed this to Wood and to the men, explaining that he had been robbed and told the men they would have to wait.

Those closest in the group that crowded around him had been prime for a disturbance by Spike, and his two confederates. They sneered at Rhinelander's statements and told him they wanted their pay. Lyons, hurrying over from the station, reported to Rhinelander that the express company and the chief special agent's office had been notified of the robbery and detectives were on the way. But while Wood and Lyons argued with some of the disaffected, Spike and his companions lured others of them to a hut on the edge of the camp limits, where a sort of blind pig was in operation. Here Spike, spending money freely, plied the grumbling the platform, she told Lyons of the discovery. But at that moment Lyons was too much concerned in the fire, now rapidly spreading across the camp, to give the necessary attention to what Helen said, and together with a lineman who had just stopped his little speeder car before the station, the agent hurried over to the camp to see what assistance could be rendered Rhinelander and his men.

Helen, frantic as she saw the train pulling away with the burglars, looked around for help. Nothing seemed to offer in any direction and she turned distractedly back to the office to wire Oceanside when her eye fell on the speeder, deserted a moment before by the lineman.

With a start she turned to it, took hold of the handles, pushed the car forward a length, found it responded to her touch, and hardly giving thought as to whether she could manage the machine, conceived, as it began to pick up speed, that possibly she could overtake the departing train.

Catching at the inflammable material with which its path was freely spread, leaping from tent to tent and hut to hut, licking up the canvas and eating rapidly into the flimsy wooden structures that barred its way, engulfing machinery, wagons and equipment by its quick advance, fanned by the north wind and its own suction, tore along like a whirlwind, with Rhinelander and his gang doing their best to check it. By the time the train had reached the vicinity of the camp, the fire had jumped the track and the flames rose on all sides as the local headed through them.

Close behind the train, Helen, running the lineman's speeder, was doing her utmost to attract the attention of the train crew. Their eyes were fixed on the fire. It seemed doubtful whether the train could get past the blaze. In any event, the men were too much absorbed with their own situation to regard Helen, though she was rapidly overtaking them. Unable to attract a single eye to her own perilous position—for as she entered the patch of conflagration, heat and smoke blinded and threatened to overcome her—Helen determined at any cost to overhaul the fleeing train and board it. Letting out the motor car to its highest speed and crouching low in the seat from the smoke and flames, holding her breath and setting her teeth, Helen sped through the angry fire, and gained on the fast-moving train until but a slight gap separated the nose of her speeder from the rear platform. Then mounting on the footboard of the roaring little motor, she sprang with all her strength to the observation platform of the rear car.

The conductor and brakeman, looking back at that moment from the coaches to watch the fire, discovered the pursuing speeder. The two started back for the rear platform and they reached it just as Helen landed in front of them from her jump.

"What in the world?" demanded the conductor, as he looked from the excited girl to the deserted fireman's car, now falling back in the race it had maintained with the train. "What in thunder," he again demanded of Helen, in simple good faith, "are you trying to do, Miss Holmes?"

Helen, short of breath and wild with excitement, tried to explain: "Mr. Rhinelander," she said, "between gasps, "was robbed yesterday. Thieves took his pay roll from our safe last night. They left bunches of brown paper in the package. They are both on this train!" she cried. "They have the money. We must get them or he'll be ruined, if he isn't ruined now by this terrible fire. You must help me, conductor, both of you."

"But how do you know?" demanded the conductor. "Who are the men? What are you going to do? You can't arrest them. They'd blow our heads off if we tackled them. Do you know them when you see them? What evidence have you got they stole the money—or have it?"

"I know," returned Helen, panting, "because two of them just bought tickets from me and handed me one of the stolen bills. We upset a bottle of ink when the money was put away. The bill they gave me for their tickets had ink on the edge which I wiped off when I put the money away. You must help me arrest them."

The conductor was game. He drew a revolver from his hip, examined it, put it back in his side coat pocket and bade Helen come along with him to identify the suspects. "You point out the men," he said simply. "I'll do the rest."

Followed by the brakeman, the two walked forward. It was rather a long train, and the conductor, knowing that no search but a thorough one would be of any consequence, passed with Helen through the coaches, examining every nook and corner and giving her a chance to peer carefully into every passenger's face as they made their way ahead.

The conductor could not be hurried, and the search went all too slowly for Helen, who feared what did, in fact, presently occur. Sykes and Dan, uneasy in the fear of special agents on their trail, were on the alert. They sat near the front door of the smoker, and as Helen and the conductor began at the rear end of the car to look over the passengers, Sykes, spying Helen, quietly slid through the front door—left open to let the smoke out—to the platform, Dan following. They sat down on the steps looking for a good place to jump off. While the conductor was walking forward, with Sykes casting furtive glances at it him through the front window, the train drew near the San Pablo river. "I'm off here," growled Sykes to his confederate briefly.

Dan protested; a jump was not to his taste, but Sykes, the big fellow, did not hesitate. The train was crossing the San Pablo. Sykes leaped from the step into the river, Dan reluctantly following suit.

Helen, through an open window of the smoker, saw Sykes jump. She caught the conductor's arm and begged him to stop the train. He pulled the cord, and with the conductor and brakeman after her, Helen ran to the front platform. The train slowed. In the river, Sykes and Dan were swimming. Helen made ready to drop off. The conductor and brakeman tried to dissuade her; they could not.

"You'll have to go alone, I can't leave this train," shouted the conductor to her.

Luckily, she had not been seen by the men she was after, but a further obstacle threatened. The convicts had swum to the nearest bank and were now across the river from Helen. A passing boat was awaiting the draw, and the moment the train passed, the jackknife had been started up by the bridge tender. Helen was running to get to the other side before it was too late. Sykes and Dan, ashore, were hurrying away, and the ponderous jackknife was rising under Helen's fleeing feet. The draw span, already high in the air, made a widening gap between her and the abutment, but Helen, running to the rising end, jumped from it recklessly to the abutment below. She landed, bruised, on the track, but she picked herself up and sped on after the fugitives.

The river bridge is at no great distance from Oceanside, but Helen's breath was pretty well exhausted before Sykes and Dan reached a suburban street car and boarded it. So close was she after them that she gained one platform just as the two men stepped up on the other. Concealing herself behind a seat, Helen hid in terror, but with all their astuteness the criminals failed to discover her. When the two left the car in the city, Helen was again relentlessly on their heels. Following them vigilantly she intercepted an officer, told him of her chase, and he instantly joined her in the pursuit of the men, now disappearing in the distance.

Turning into an obscure street, the criminals entered a doorway and started up a long flight of stairs, Helen with her policeman hard behind. Looking back from the first landing, the convicts now saw their pursuers. Springing up a second flight of stairs, they knocked hurriedly at the first door. It was opened by their confederate, The Bat, who, inside the room, had been diverting himself by counting the stolen money.

"They're after us," exclaimed Sykes to him. "We've got to get out of here. Beat it, Bat. The girl and the cop are on the stairs."

"Make for the roof," cried The Bat. The hard-pressed pair ran for the trap ladder. The Bat, keeping to his room, slammed the door shut. Once through the trap door, which Sykes and Dan dropped behind them, and on the roof, the pair imagined themselves safe, but Helen and her officer were close behind, and when they found the trap door closed against them the officer drew his revolver and fired up through it.

On the outside, Sykes and Dan jumped back like rabbits from the shots. Helen and her helper threw open the trap door unopposed, and, gaining the roof, faced the convicts. Nowhere could the robbers find an avenue of escape on the top of the building and cornered like rats as Helen and the policeman reached them, they put up a hand-to-hand fight.

The officer tackled Sykes, the more powerful of the pair, and Dan, seeing his opportunity, for a flank movement, tried to regain the trap door. Helen pounced on him like a panther. He tried to throw her off. Despite his blows and struggles, he could not get rid of his tenacious assailant, and locked in a life and death struggle they fought, reckless of consequence, nearer and nearer to the edge of the roof. For a moment both their lives were in peril, but Helen, her fighting blood up, would have clung to her prisoner if it had cost her life.

Provisionally the harried man, fast losing his nerve under her frantic attack, and pushing to the edge of the parapet in the wild assault, flung Helen violently off in an effort to throw her over the roof parapet to her death. In his terrific effort he lost his balance. With a scream he tried to recover his foothold. Helen, seeing his desperate plight, would have caught him to save his life, but fortunately for herself she could not reach him in time. Had she done so, her own death would have been inevitable; for Dan, awaying wildly, slipped again. He caught with a fearful curse at the empty air. It was too late for anyone to aid him now, and the next instant he had plunged headlong off the roof to his death.

Below the two, the fat man, Bat, looking up, beheld his confederate in the grip of the law. Helen was too late to aid the officer to save himself, but the plucky policeman gripped Sykes around the neck as he plunged forward himself, and before the fat man in the room, watching apprehensively, could draw a full breath, the two men crashed violently through the skylight together almost on top of him. As it was, they landed in a heap on the bed. The Bat sprang at once on the helpless policeman. It would have gone hard with him but instant aid from Helen. She dropped down the open skylight, caught the revolver from the officer's hand and held the two criminals at the point of it until the policeman could slip handcuffs on them. When the two men were secured, Helen demanded the stolen money.

The man Bat did most of the talking. Unabashed and unafraid, he met Helen's inquisition without batting an eyelash. Had she not been absolutely sure of her ground his coolness would have deceived her.

"I don't know what you are talking about," he said jovially, while Helen's accusations were launched at him. "I am a piano tuner, officer. I don't know this man," he pointed calmly at Sykes. "I never saw him in my life till he smashed my skylight. What do you three mean, anyway, by breaking into my room? I'll put the blue-sky laws on you. Who's going to pay for all this glass?" he demanded with an injured air. "The landlord is going to come after me for it. I'll have your whole bunch arrested the minute I get to the police station. I don't know anything about your money. I don't believe you've got any money or have had any."

"What did you attack the policeman for as soon as he dropped into the room?" cried Helen, indignantly.

"Why, miss, I am near-sighted. I thought that man was a piano tuner when I saw him—a man that's tried to let the light into me two or three times with a gun—it's a fact!"

The officer shut off The Bat's talk, and Helen, with the astuteness of a detective, searched him, with the result that from his various pockets she recovered every package of the bills stolen from the safe, and nearly all of them intact.

The fat man lost none of his nerve when confronted with the result. He declared he had been made the victim of a plot, that his character and reputation were known everywhere in the city—which was quite true. And having denounced all unwarranted intrusions such as he had been made the victim of, he resigned himself to go as prisoner with a much better grace than his sullen companion did. They were taken together to the police station.

Helen telephoned immediately for a motor car, and, accompanied by her friendly officer, and with the money safely stowed away on her person, she stepped into the car and ordered it driven in haste to Signal. Fast as the landscape flew by it did not keep pace with Helen's impatience. They drew in sight of Rhinelander's camp. Smoke still rose from where the fire had threatened its complete destruction. Rhinelander and Wood, with their men, had finally extinguished the conflagration, though not until a heavy toll of damage had been taken by the flames. Helen caught sight of Rhinelander just as the car raced up to the camp, and alighting called him joyfully to her, waving the money, in her great excitement, in her hands.

"It's here," she cried. "Most every bit of it."

"What do you mean?"

"The pay roll! We've got it—all of it—the money stolen from the safe. It is here in this package."

Rhinelander, half dazed, could hardly ask explanations. Bit by bit Helen told the story. Her foster uncle caught her in his arms, money and all. Together—the men crowding around—they walked with the recovered treasure through the half-burned camp.

FIFTH EPISODE
Grinding Life Down
By WALLACE IRWIN
Author of "Hashimura Togo" and "Teddysea"

BRUCE LARIGAN, lying helpless on his cot in a Chicago hospital as the result of the attack that had so nearly cost him his life, was still full, despite his pain, of his desire to crush the graft syndicate and avenge his father's fate as well as his own injuries. Unable to move himself he accepted with delight the offer of his brother Tom to enlist in his place until he recovered.

Stanford Stone, head of the graft syndicate, insists Larigan must be killed. Gunmen are posted in the park to kill Larigan in his automobile. Dorothy Maxwell, one of his conspirators, is killed, and Larigan is again escaped.

Tom decided, too, to adopt an old trick of Bruce's. Trusting to his being unknown to Ayers, he slipped a note into his pocket one day.

Tom felt that he was terribly helpless. Above all he needed money, and he was almost penniless. And then one day chance brought help to his very door.

"Tom," cried Ben, "I've looked everywhere for you! I struck it rich last year, Tom. I'm a millionaire! Honest I am! What are you doing here?"

There was no opposition. Every one was glad to have some one else undertake the task of removing one of the hated and feared names of Larigan.

"You're a man after my own heart!" laughed Ayers, entirely without suspicion that Ben was only leading him on.

"I want to buy a stack of chips and sit in that game," Ben announced when Tom had finished.

reflected "I mightn't get in otherwise, and I want to talk with Mr. C. Wood Ayers when he's alone."

For in it Dorothy was going to save him, as she believed. Deeply suspicious of Stone, she had been watching him, and she had learned that Stone, afraid that Ayers would fall, had sent Dunn, the successor of the dead bully,

"Mush blished," said the young fellow. He went along as meekly as if Tom had been his oldest friend.

Ayers struggled desperately with the couch at last he got it open. The young man was there—dead, and Ayers cried out in agony at the sight of his face.

And meanwhile Dorothy had aroused the suspicions of Stanford Stone's thugs. They had gagged and bound her and thrust her down in the car while they went into a rendezvous to celebrate their success in advance.

A POPULAR DEMOCRAT

WHEN in 1810 the Whigs put Mr. Van Buren into office it looked to a brief space as if the older traditions of the government were to be revived as if congress and the executive were once more to draw together under the leadership of men both in the president's cabinet and on the floor of the house.

A POWERFUL ROMANCE

THE popular vote for Mr. Pierce exceeded that for his two opponents combined by less than sixty thousand. It was a total vote of more than three millions, but it was noteworthy how widespread and general the success of the democrats had been.

A NEW FORCE IN POLITICS

won upon a declaration of views which committed them not only to the maintenance of the compromise but also to an unqualified adoption of the principles laid down in the Kentucky and Virginia resolutions of 1798 and 1799 and the report of Mr. Madison to the Virginia legislature in 1798—principles which they declared themselves resolved to carry out in their obvious meaning and import.

They had not been able to nominate any one of their recognized leaders for the presidency for their convention had acted as always under a rule which prescribed two thirds as the majority necessary for a nomination and neither Mr. Cass nor Mr. Buchanan nor Mr. Douglas had been able to command so large a support but their choice had fallen upon Mr. Franklin Pierce, of New Hampshire whose handsome person and prepossessing manners whose record as a gallant commander of volunteers in the Mexican war and an honorable even if undistinguished representative of his state in congress they could look upon with some degree of complacency.

They supported him with every appearance of heartiness and a carried victory for him, except Vermont, Massachusetts, Tennessee and Kentucky securing two hundred and fifty-four electoral votes as against General Scott's forty-two.

Root-and-branch opponents of slavery were very active and driven by the making of opinion against it without too tenderly considering either the politicians who wanted to think of something else or the merchants and manufacturers who dreaded to see peace and trade disturbed.

a quick awakening than any score of political pamphlets could have done. Its moving scenes its pathos its humor touched with tears its air as of the real tragedy and pity and hope of life acted upon sensitive minds with a power they could not resist, and bred everywhere a slow passion of philanthropic reform which politicians had presently to look to.

It was not a true picture of slavery. It was a romance sprung out of the sympathetic imagination of a refined and sensitive woman whose pity kindled at every thought of the black-bodimented man of the south.

THE major part of the north was threatened conflict and doubted its outcome sought any diversion rather than make this ugly issue the acknowledged basis of party politics.

It was the year 1851 witnessed the adoption in Maine of a stringent law which forbade the sale of intoxicating liquors within the state and many earnest people elsewhere hailed the novel statute as a hopeful promise of social betterment, an example to be emulated.

He feared, in common with other western men that it might be closed against travel by treaties made at Washington with the Indian tribes whose hunting fields lay upon it, and all the movement of life and settlement in the west embarrassed by the erection of an Indian reservation along the great routes, and ever since he came into congress, ten years ago, he had been pressing the question of its settlement and organization as a territory.

At the north end of the second mezzanine in the McAlpine hotel in New York city, a ticker ticks steadily from 10 o'clock in the morning until 3 in the afternoon, while men who try to buy insurance finger the tape that runs from it, and women who try to look bored keep tense, anxious eyes on the blackboard where the story of the tape is recorded.

It is just one more station of the great galvanic battery that has electrified and controlled a great body of men and women in New York this fall and winter, one of the many added stations of the stock exchange, that has drawn excited customers from Syracuse and Tallahassee and Mobile and Toronto, to be a little closer to the center of the greatest stock interest the country has known in years, to be in a bit more favorable position to rock the cradles of the "war babies."

At the south end of the same mezzanine floor, perhaps 100 feet away, is an arbor of trees and shrubs, with benches on some of them and with vines and the bark of the trees or from wood stained to bark color.

Marble bird basins mark the entrance to the arbor, the only thing about it that speaks of the work and plan of man.

It is dark and cool and quiet, and it throws an atmosphere of freshness and tranquility—almost as far as the tick, tick, tick, at the other end of the balcony.

It is the emblem of all that the woods and the streams and the country mean to American life, this year or any other.

It is the first station of a projected series planned to stretch across the continent.

The men who are responsible for that north end of the mezzanine have shrewd eyes, with lines between them, and they don't smile very often, at least not from 10 to 3.

The girl who is responsible for the south end and the cool, green arbor has keen eyes, too, black and sharp, with the alertness of a bird, an alertness that speaks of the joy of life rather than its problems, and dimples in her cheeks, and she smiles most of the time, her dimples deepening every time she does it.

Katherine Minahan, the girl is. And after you talk to her for a few minutes about her "bird sanctuary," and all that she intends to do with it, and let her show you the "bats" for the wrens and the houses with the air spaces under the roofs for the bluebirds, and walk through her arbor you forget to be interested in who may be those powers and victims 100 feet north.

is—and her remarkable power of imitating any song bird that ever sang, served to enthrall and amaze audiences for a year or more, served to make a real bird note on the stage a possible thing.

Along with the throat and the notes of a bird, the "bird girl" also has an appreciative and imaginative love for nature's cheer-bringers, and she was not satisfied with helping their songs to be known on the stage and used in exploitation of a drama. She became tremendously interested in the real live birds of the country and the fate that seemed to threaten them through our neglect.

"They can get along with a flute in my place on the stage," she explains, "but there will be nothing to take the place of the birds if someone doesn't get the country interested in them pretty soon."

And so she became interested in Percy Mackaye's "Sanctuary," the bird masque produced in several eastern cities last year, in which Mrs. McAdoo, then Eleanor Wilson, took the part of the bird spirit. And again Miss Minahan was the bird voice behind the scenes.

When Miss Wilson sang the bird songs Miss Minahan trilled the real bird notes into it from her hidden corner.

This bird masque seemed to her to offer a wonderful opportunity, to be the splendid nucleus of even bigger work than it was being used for.

"I begged Percy Mackaye almost on my knees for the producing rights of 'Sanctuary,'" she says, "and he finally gave it to me. Now I am making it a part of a great big plan, with a big campaign needed to carry it through. It is even more work than I thought it would be. But it is going fine."

Every time Miss Minahan says "It is going fine," she smiles and dimples some more.

And one quite believes her that it is. So here's the plan that the masque and the miniature sanctuary in the big hotel are but parts of.

The birds, particularly the song birds, must be protected. We must not only stop killing them—as they have been killed, for sport, for plumage, for all sorts of careless, selfish motives—but we must do everything within our power to encourage them to nest and stay with us. That is the platform of Miss Minahan's crusade.

To do this we must awaken the whole population of the country to an interest in them and a realization of their value and of the dangers which seem almost to threaten their extermination. And we must go farther than the arousing of public opinion in their favor; we must provide surroundings which shall ensure safety for them. That is the big undertaking that the "bird girl" has planned and intends to carry out—alone if necessary.

The miniature sanctuary plays two parts in her campaign. It arouses interest in the minds of people who never have thought about birds at all and probably never would think about them if they were not thrust upon their attention by something unusual—like a green arbor 100 feet away from a stock exchange ticker—and secondly it demonstrates just what sort of thing can be done for the songsters that will meet with their approval.

Miss Minahan is very emphatic on the point of this being a miniature sanctuary. "I don't want people to think that I should be satisfied with forty feet of trees and shrubs for the birds, and a dozen or so bird houses, and two or three drinking fountains. The real sanctuaries must be much, oh very much, larger than this one."

The Lincoln highway to be built from coast to coast of the continent has suggested to Miss Minahan a plan for caring for a good many thousands of the feathered creatures.

"I don't expect them to make a sanctuary for the birds out of the whole highway," she said. "That would be beyond even my dreams. But the plan is to have each state have a memorial mile;

each state to have a mile somewhere within its boundaries which shall stand as a monument to the public spirit and the beauty and the enterprise of that state, one mile where the birds will be absolutely safe, not only from hunters and sportsmen and small boys, but from hunger and thirst and exhaustion.

"I want each state to plant trees and shrubs in that one mile of the kind birds particularly like to nest in and of the kind that will furnish them food. I want some bird houses there to attract the birds in the first place. Then, of course, the others will come there and build their own homes afterward. But there must be some that they can move right into. And wherever there are streams or ponds, or best of all, little waterfalls, I want the mile so chosen as to include them, and if that cannot be done, then I want bird basins placed there that shall never be allowed to go dry, so that they will always have water to drink and to bathe in. Birds like to be very neat and clean, you know."

"Wouldn't it be a great country that would do that, devote one mile of each state to the cause of the songbirds? We owe it to them. It's because their beauty and their songs are of such real value in our lives if we only realized it, and because, moreover, those birds have a definite economic value. Do you know what would become of our crops, grains, vegetables and fruits, if there were no birds to eat the destroying insects? Well, birds to eat the destroying insects? Well, you will find out, if the birds disappear."

"Bird Day" for every city and town where interest can be aroused is one of Miss Minahan's plans for creating the public sentiment needed for her work and also for accomplishing definite things in the work itself.

The production of Mr. Mackaye's masque, "Sanctuary," will be the principal event of the day, with Miss Minahan herself in the role (formerly taken by Mrs. McAdoo). The six principal characters of the play will be acted by professionals, regular members of her company, and the bird ballets will be recruited from the girls of the city.

"Having amateurs for the ballets does more than save expense," the actress-producer explained. "It makes the local people more interested."

Other features of "bird day" will be the playing of a bird fairy tale, "The Nightingale and the Moon," by the professional players and the children of the locality; a bird exhibit arranged by local people showing the birds of the district, plans for birdhouses, bird-baths, and other conveniences of bird life in the twentieth century; a bird lecture given by some bird authority; bird picture exhibits; and anything else which Miss Minahan or the local enthusiasts can arrange.

Then as you turn away from the "bird girl" standing by the Saint Gaudens bird fountain at the entrance of her cool, green, restful sanctuary, you hear the tick, tick, tick, and murmurs of "Maxwell Motors up seven-eighths," and "Buy Pennsylvania at 68"; and you wonder what the price of wheat, for instance, might soar to if the birds all vanished from the lands of the wheat-fields and the insects were left undisturbed.

At the north end of the second mezzanine in the McAlpine hotel in New York city, a ticker ticks steadily from 10 o'clock in the morning until 3 in the afternoon, while men who try to buy insurance finger the tape that runs from it, and women who try to look bored keep tense, anxious eyes on the blackboard where the story of the tape is recorded. It is just one more station of the great galvanic battery that has electrified and controlled a great body of men and women in New York this fall and winter, one of the many added stations of the stock exchange that has drawn excited customers from Syracuse and Tallahassee and Mobile and Toronto, to be a little closer to the center of the greatest stock interest the country has known in years, to be in a bit more favorable position to rock the cradles of the "war babies."

It is the sign and seal of metropolitan America, 1915-1916. At the south end of the same mezzanine floor, perhaps 100 feet away, is an arbor of trees and shrubs, with benches on some of them and with vines and with birdhouses built from the natural bark of the trees or from wood stained to bark color. Marble bird basins mark the entrance to the arbor, the only thing about it that speaks of the work and plan of man. It is dark and cool and quiet, and it throws an atmosphere of freshness and tranquility—almost as far as the tick, tick, tick, at the other end of the balcony.

Katherine Minahan is the "bird girl." David Belasco's bird girl, you know, who did all the wondrous bird notes behind the scenes of "The Good Little Devil." When Mary Pickford cooed to the robin in the play, it was really Katherine Minahan who did the cooing. Miss Pickford just moved her pretty lips for the benefit of the audience in front. Miss Minahan's wonderful throat—the true throat of a bird, scientists have decided that it is—and her remarkable power of imitating any song bird that ever sang, served to enthrall and amaze audiences for a year or more, served to make a real bird note on the stage a possible thing.
