UNDERTAKER ADMITS PLANTING DYNAMITE FOR MANUFACTURER

Mystery of 'planted' Dynamite During Famous Lawrence Textile Strike Cleared by John J. Breen

GIVEN $700 TO PLANT IT AMONG STRIKERS, HE SAYS Undertaker Accuses Fred Atteax, Dyer Manufacturer, of Paying Him and Conspiring With Him

(By Associated Press.) Broom, a dye manufacturer and co-venturer with President William W. Wood of the American Woolen Co., admitted today in the dynamite conspiracy trial that John J. Breen, a Lawrence undertaker, "planted" explosives in buildings during the strike, according to the witness stand. Breen testified that he was paid $700 before the dynamite was planted, and that he was given the money by Fred Atteax, a dye manufacturer and co-venturer with Wood. Breen testified that he was paid the money in three installments, the first $200 on May 10, the second $200 on May 15, and the third $300 on May 20. Breen testified that he was paid the money by Atteax, who was acting as an agent for Wood. Breen testified that he was paid the money for the purpose of planting dynamite in buildings during the strike. Power Conferred by a Former Assembly Upon Executive Committees Is Taken Back by This One

KANSAS CITY GETS THE 1914 ASSEMBLY Overture Prohibiting Use of Tobacco Among Ministers Is Turned Down—Gratification Shown at That

Southwestern Presbyterians in session at Kansas City, Mo., Tuesday morning, voted to take from the former assembly the power to name the secretaries and the executive committees, and at the same time returned that power in the general assembly. The action of the present assembly is a complete reversal of the action of the former assembly, which in 1911 took from the presbytery the power to name the secretaries and the executive committees, and returned that power to the general assembly. The committee's answer was "No." The action of the present assembly is a complete reversal of the action of the former assembly, which in 1911 took from the presbytery the power to name the secretaries and the executive committees, and returned that power to the general assembly.
